Closed for Alterations.

SPECIAL NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.
EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to CO-OPERATIVE OFFICES, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ACCRINGTON.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The Quality Quartette of Male Vocalists top the bill here, and contribute a highly-appreciated turn in "Gems of Vocal Harmony." The Woodwards in their sensational balancing act are warmly applauded; Johnny Deane, comedian, receives an ovation; a smart and prepossessing vocalist is Miss Nellie Wigley; Carl Lynn is excellent as an animal mimic; Sadie and Vone in music, mirth, and ragtime dancing provide a capital turn; Marguerita, a most graceful trapeze artist, is deservedly popular; and the Pictures on the Bioscope complete the programme.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A good variety programme is presented here. The Roysterers, in a new musical interlude, entitled Uncle's Annual, are very successful; the Videos prove to be particularly skilful skaters; Agnes Molteno, in Dolly and the Coach, is effective; Arthur Rigby gives clever and funny renderings of Woman's Rights and The March of the Married Men; the Great Vincent, in a table tumbling act, is highly acceptable; and the Bros. Lawrence, in a vocal and dancing act, are deservedly well received. Harry Blake, an old favourite in new songs, again does well; and Miss Rosie Lee as a comedienne and dancer pleases.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Revill for the summer season is relying upon modern melodrama, and the people are giving fair support. This week the romantic, domestic drama For Wife and Home is being produced by Power and Faulkner's company. Mr. Robert Faulkner is impressive as Roland St. Pierre; Miss Marion Ryder as Rosette Legrand, the Rose Bud, must be complimented on her grace and dignity of carriage and her forceful and sympathetic acting; Mr. Wilton Llewellyn scores as the half-brother Henri St. Pierre; Mr. Edwin Maydew as Gaspard le Farge, a mesmerist, finds favourable opportunities to elaborate a clever study of character; and Mr. Edward De Vere, Mr. Bruce Williams, Mr. Frederick Lisle, Mr. Clifford Locke, Mr. G. Swale, and Mr. Stanley Hobane do good work in minor rôles. Miss Georgina V. Clifford as Celeste le Grand finds scope for her dramatic resources, and Miss Alice Bradshaw as Miladi St. Pierre is well cast.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem. — Mr. Raynor and his répertoire company opened on Monday evening with the play David Garrick. Mr. Raynor's interpretation of the nom-rôle lacked nothing in courtliness, and in the great scene of the play he did extremely well; as Simon Ingot, the city merchant, Mr. Milton C. Curtis was responsible for a stern, yet kindly, impersonation of the indulgent parent; Mr. Conrad Heywood was the coarse, wine-bibbing Squire Chivy to the life; and Mr. J. B. Montague realised cleverly the coarse humour of Mr. Smith. Mr. Charles Brandon as Mr. Browne and Mr. W. A. James as Mr. Jones were able exponents of their respective rôles; Miss Cecilia Dare presented a clever study of the impulsive, impressionable Ada Ingot. On Tuesday evening Mr. Raynor gave a tense and touching interpretation of Count Skariatine in A Cigarette Maker's Romance.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. A. Sims.—Love Among the Roses is a comedy of the pastoral kind. There is something, too, of love and romance in the details of the story. It is presented by the A.B. company of actors. The Two Brothers is a narrative of Spanish hatred, vividly portrayed by the A.B. players. There are numerous other striking pictures. Watson and McHugh sing and dance successfully.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—Mr. Leckie's efforts to please his patrons receive due recognition. This week's bill is varied in its selection of pictures.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—The management here are having an entire change of pictures twice weekly, and are drawing increased patronage as a result. Variety turns are given by Ray and Douglas (Ida and Fred) in a comedy scena, The Postman and the Girl; and Mr. Fred Locke, eccentric comedian.

PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—The excellent programme presented here this week includes some of the latest and best productions of the picture world, the principal series being Cowboy's Devotion and Bride of the Haunted Castle.

BARNSLEY. — EMPIRE PALACE. — Proprietors, Barnsley Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Hutton.—The quality of the entertainment here is still excellent. J. W. Darley and Co., in Music, submit a highly acceptable musical sketch; the Van Domines are funny in a quaint and clever acrobatic act; the musical side of the bill is further sustained by the Sisters Brand and Brooks Bros., both excellent turns; John Donald is received with much appreciation in his scena A Scottish Girl's Dream; acrobatics of a high order are supplied by the Adras Bros.; and Tom and Neil are humorous exponents of the acrobatic business. Fred Stay's Steeplejack Cyclists complete the bill.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—The great Raymond is here with some fascinating tricks; Little Sunbeam is a bright singer; the Two Kokos are good burlesque artists; Les Grossi are realistic dancers; Morris and Moore are expert dancers; Ryde and Beeman give some acrobatic eccentricities; Luella Cross is a dainty comedienne; and Miss Lily Vane is an amusing artist.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The Vallagers are still here with a capitally varied programme.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The Fred Newman British Empire Pictures and Variety Company are still enjoying great popularity here, and draw good houses.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. H. G. Pelissier and the Follies commenced at Bath on Monday their summer "flying" tour of provincial visits. Most cordial welcomes were accorded to the old favourites, Miss Gwennie Mars, Miss Ethel Allandale, Mr. Dan Everard, Mr. Lewis Sydney, and Mr. H. G. Pelissier, and the new-comers Miss Effie Cook, Miss Muriel George, Mr. D. Maclaren, and Mr. M. Harvey.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Mr. Hymack, the chameleon marvel, is bewildering all who see him, and his turn is much enjoyed; Will Cornish, handbell ringer, delights with his melodious selections; Jack Hamilton, with songs, stories, and dances, wins approval; Erne and Foster amuse the house in their Jack and Jill interlude; excellent singing and artistic instrumentalism is given by Jessie Broughton and Dennis Creedon; Mr. Ellerslie Payne, in dramatic recitations, displays fine elocutionary powers; the Palace Perfection Pictures please.

SYDNEY GARDENS.—The entertaining performances of the Whips, a costume concert party, on their first visit to Bath, are greatly appreciated.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Mr. F. Marriott Watson's company opened here on Monday with The Black Mask. Miss Florence E. Florence was good as Nellie Cunningham, and Mr. F. Marriott Watson deserves commendation for his enactment of Henry le Noir; Mr. Willis Elton appeared to advantage as Philip Cunningham, and Mr. J. Woodall Bird was excellent as Walter Blackmore; Miss Mabel Harland was all that could be desired as Stella, and a capital impersonation of Samuel Winkle was given by Mr. Fred Imbert; Miss Dot Forde's Philip le Noir was a skilful study, and Miss Hettie Senior was a vivacious Emma Burt. Other rôles were adequately presented by Miss Flo Norman, and Messrs. Jas. Abbott, Elton Morgan, Aubrey Winn, and Jas. Chippendale.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading position here is held by Spissell Bros. and Mack, who present with success mirth-provoking pantomimical sketches. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, the popular Irish humorist, delights his many Belfast admirers, and Mr. Harry Friskey, comedy juggler, has made a big hit; the trapeze performance of Natalia and Diana is graceful and smart, and the tumbling feats of Pasquali Bros. are wonderful; Mr. Monty Walker is a comedian with new ideas, and Tray and Rich gain deserved encores for their patter and dancing. The bill is completed by Mr. Ernest Clifford, comedian and dancer, and the Hipposcope, with humorous picture Foolshead at the Ball.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—A series of artistic living statues, under the style of "Makers of History," forms the premier attraction here this week, and meets with much appreciation; Billie Burford, with chorus songs, gains hearty approval; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden present with much success one of their mirth-provoking sketches; Mr. Arthur Slater, comedian and whistler, has a good reception, and Miss Lena Verdi is an accomplished comedienne and mimic; Mr. Fred Arthur, comedian, is a favourite, and Miss Lily Esplin a character comedienne of ability. Also here are Mr. Fred Bronte, vocalist, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Many attractive pictures have been presented here, including The Gold Seekers, Susan's Revenge, St. Elmo, &c. The variety element is sustained by those versatile artists Jesta and Hope and Mr. Barney Murphy, comedian and dancer.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Some interesting films have been shown here this week, including The Soul of Venice, A Western Romance, The Legend of the Horse-shoe. Miss Babs Lloyd, comedienne and danseuse, appears with success.

PRINCESS PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Captain T. A. Blake.—Among some attractive films presented here may be mentioned Told in the Golden West, For Her Country's Sake, The Mexican's Revenge. Mr. John Short, Scotch comedian, supplies the variety, and his songs have created merriment.

BILSTON.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—The pictures shown this week include The Prodigal Son and A Dash to Death. Sim Maree, a marvellous contortionist, and Lilian Lowe, popular vocalist, also appear.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—Mr. Wilson Howard's company, in Under the Iron Heel, with Miss Carlotta Anson as Germaine Mirblemeau, a part which she sustains with marked ability. Mr. Douglas B. Watson is an admirable Rene de Maupassant; Mr. J. W. Richards is well to the front as Otto Marx; Mr. Dennis Clyde is efficient as Major Schromberg; and the representation generally is excellent.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—The Royal Banzai Troupe of Japanese entertainers, including Little Togo and Tiny Nogi, are a big attraction. Miss Bessie Slaughter, a talented contralto vocalist; the Great Four, a vocal quartette of ability; Miss Kathleen Gray, comedienne; Mr. David Poole, a smart ventriloquist; Mr. Charles Bignell, the popular comedian; Will Haines, an entertaining comedian, all contribute enjoyable turns. Brown's Royal Bioscope varies the programme with excellent films.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—The well-known drama, The Diver's Luck, capably represented by Mr. Andrew Emm's company, is cordially received; Mr. Edmond O'Grady as Barney Bawn is most amusing; Mr. Wm. Macready gives a fine rendering of Martin Faber; Tom Hale is cleverly enacted by Mr. Herbert Vere; and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff appears with distinction.

WINTER GARDENS, ROCK FERRY.—General-Managers, Messrs. B. Alandale and L. Blattner; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry A. Dooley.—Mr. Calder O'Beirne's company, in Dibdin's ballad opera, The Waterman, are prominent here.

BIRMINGHAM. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—There is much human interest in the drama As Your Hair Grows Whiter, which is produced here by Mr. Herbert Fuller's company, and audiences show their appreciation in a hearty manner. Miss Agnes Collier is a conspicuous figure as Alice Walters, and Mr. Fred Emery displays the necessary force in the character of the Rev. John Alberry. As the Farmer and his wife Mr. R. Nelme Grasswell and Miss Florence Delmar are responsible for several effective situations. Mr. Edward Fryer cleverly portrays the heavy character, and Mr. Herbert Fuller deserves praise for humorous acting.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—Mr. A. B. Mackay's comedy-drama The Beginning and the End is finding favour with audiences, the humorous and exciting incidents which abound in the production occupying full attention. Mr. Mackay portrays the character of Greville Brayle with distinct success; and Miss Ida Mackay as Dora Brayle displays artistic feeling. Miss Lillie Lewis is clever as Marcelle de Valcour; and Mr. George Diaper ably sustains the dual rôles of George Brayle and Captain Nemo. Mr. Jack Corlan and Miss Trixie Leighton are popular in humorous characters.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The closing week of the Carlton Dramatic Company reveals no falling-off in patronage, the comedy drama For Life and Liberty being produced. Mr. Norman Tracy gives a good account of himself as George Linforth, the hero, and Miss Nellie Thorn Hallam wins approval in the rôle of Mary Linforth. Mr. Victor Gardom adds another to his many successes by a clever portrayal of Richard Walshaw; Mr. Newton Pearce is amusing as Silas Swiverley; and other parts are well presented by Mr. Geoffrey Broughton, Miss Yoxa Summers, Miss Margaret Thorne, and Mr. Frank Holyoake.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Williams.—The Poluskis are paying a very welcome visit to this hall, and their show is as fresh and amusing as ever; Alicia Ramsey and Rudolph de Cordova's company present a very effective sketch, entitled The Organ-grinder, in which a splendid reception is accorded to Little Bella Terry; Lawrence Barclay is a comedian with a clever style; Winifred Hare is a popular contributor; Smith makes a hit with his merry patter; the Six Lancashire Lasses are a bright combination; the Martialo Trio are expert jugglers; and Smite and Smote, Azella Wilson, and the Bioscope provide other notable turns.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—The spectacular production of Change; or, The Haunted Castle, by the Jewels, forms an excellent top-liner, the remarkable stage effects being very effective, whilst audiences thoroughly enjoy the humorous situations; those two popular comedians Harry Ford and Sam Mayo are well to the fore, and each keeps the house well amused by his own peculiar style of wit; Matthews and Cowper present a successful sketch; the Three Merries are smart trick and comedy cyclists; Duncan's Royal Scotch collies perform remarkable feats; the Northcotts are applauded for charming singing; the Musical McGregors render pleasing items; and Frank Cass is a clever character comedian.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The eight charming Daughters of Eve are proving a big attraction this week. Audiences are delighted with a splendid series of artistic tableaux. A favourite singer is Daisy James, and the choruses of her songs are heartily taken up; Kelso and George are smart dancers; Clifton and Gibson are a diverting couple; Edie George has a good reception; and other good contributions are provided by the Lester Brothers, dancers; Will Brockton, the Three Rochesters, G. Webber, and George James. The Bioscope is well to the front with good films.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Edward Lauri, May Beatti, and company present their musical comedy play The Lady Bandits, which scores a great success. The humour is of a rich order, and the company a very capable one. Walter Emerson is a popular contributor, and his songs are well received; Newman and Knight present a smart comedy skit; Aggie Nolan is a dainty comedienne; the Ellimans are popular musical entertainers; the Little Vestas are promising juvenile vocalists and dancers; and Newman and Knight score in The Juggling Milkman.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—An attractive programme is here this week. The Colorgraphy pictures are an important feature amongst the animated subjects, The Troubadour, with special music, being greatly enjoyed. The Toreador is another popular picture; and interesting colour views are provided, illustrating a journey in the Laos State. Pictures of the late King's Funeral attract much attention at matinées. Miss Dorothy Veitch is making her first appearance, and is a popular vocalist.

KING'S HALL.—Owners and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—The principal attraction in the programme of pictures this week is a dramatic subject, entitled The Smugglers. The beautiful scenery of the Imatra Rapids is displayed in a splendid film, and there are many other subjects of a popular nature, the humorous pictures being well received.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—The crowds who flock to this popular picture house are well catered for. There are many new subjects exhibited this week, dramatic and humorous films being popular.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—The Arthur Gallimore Trio are a good comedy turn; Cash and Clair are clever dancers; Cestria is pleasing in his juggling and acrobatic turn; and Ada Fawn's songs delight the house. Included in the bill are the Bros. Obo, Michel Madden, Les Zelovas, and the Hipposcope.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is paying another visit here this week, with A Royal Divorce, and big houses are the rule. Mr. Keith Fraser as Napoleon, and Miss Edith Cole as the Empress Josephine receive their usual warm reception, and the other parts are in capable hands.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—Dolly Reforming Herself is being capably presented here this week by Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. Hanworth Browning's company. The title-rôle is carefully played by Miss Dorothy Giles; and Mr. Ethelbert Edwardes supplies a capital study of Harry Telfer. Professor Sturgess finds an ideal exponent in Mr. Russell Barry; whilst Mrs. Sturgess is ably accounted for by Miss Florence Steventon. Mr. Arthur Vezin as the Rev. James Pilcher, Mr. Hanworth Browning as Captain Wentworth, and Mr. Cecil Brooking as Matthew Barron also play their parts with credit and distinction.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Harry Lander is the big attraction here this week, with old and new songs; the Craggs appear in their acrobatic sketch, and are successful; the old favourite, Walter Munroe, dances and sings Irish songs; Devon and Earle are marvellous dancers; Archie Royer is a versatile performer; the Gaudsmidts are clever clown acrobats; and Maude Vera is a dainty comedienne. Howard and Harris contribute a good sketch.

BOLTON.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A capital company is appearing here this week, comprising Maud Lordy's troupe of wonderful and clever dog acrobats and actors. Charles Rothwell, quaint comedian; Henry Hilton, magician and sleight-of-hand expert; Calile and Walker, novelty vocal comedy entertainers; Denaro Bros., juvenile hand equilibrists, acrobats, and tumblers; Albert Rees, drawing-room entertainer; the Geo. A. Richmond Trio, vocalists, dancers, and paper manipulators; Master George Doonan, comedian and expert dancer; De Canty's grand illuminated water grotto, in which is introduced Mlle. De Silva; and the Premier Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale; Joint-Managers, Mr. Ludwig Blattner and Mr. Bobbie Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Boult.—Mr. Will Letters and company are entertaining crowded houses here with a musical farce, entitled The Would-be Pierots. Mr. Will Letters is the life and soul of the performance. An excellent entertainment is completed by the bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Maurice Mahony; Musical-Director, Mr. F. Shackleton.—The big attraction here is Miss Marie Lloyd, in all her latest successes. Julian Mack, the popular pattering Dame comedian, is amusing with his patter; Maurice, the marvellous mystifier, shows cleverness in his card manipulation; Muriel Harding, the Anglo-French impressionist, is successful; Arthur Woodville, comedian and dancer, keeps the audience entertained; Addie Lennard, comedienne and dancer, also deserves mention. The Hippo pictures conclude.

BRADFORD.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—This week Mr. Frank Adair is presenting Mr. F. Maxwell's drama The Heathen and the Christian here. Mr. Adair's representation of Li the Avenger is marked by intense dramatic power; he is ably supported by Mr. Herbert Sydney as Chang Lu, and by Miss Louie Adair as Mira Sampson. Miss Stanley Burt acts with earnestness as the persecuted May Berresford; Mr. F. Withers effectively fills the part of Lung Hi; the broad burlesque humour of Miss Connie Meadows as Becky Fibbins is acceptable, and there is noticeable merit in the George Berresford of Mr. Dudley Wynton, the Lieut. Allendale of Mr. G. Shirley, and the Admirable Freebold of Mr. G. Turner.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—A rousing reception greeted the comedian and raconteur R. G. Knowles on his reappearance here on Monday, and in song and "patter" he was as diverting as ever. In their vocal and musical comedy act The Page and the Maid the Bensons are entertaining; the Jackley Trio, with the funny George, do some good acrobatic work; Aida Marline is a dainty comedienne; Maxey and Pete are clever trick cyclists and very humorous; as Nance Arden in a dramatic episode Convict Nance Miss Lilian Dundas acts with power and pathos, and she is admirably supported; W. Mitchell and John J. Cain, in their turn The Frenchman and the Other Fellow, are diverting. Leo Stormont, baritone, renders his songs well, and the Bioscope pictures are amusing.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—A finely-acted military episode, For Honour, is winning for Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene golden opinions here; Oliver Martin, "sporting patter" comedian, wins favour; and Jessie Wilton is good in character vocalism. The Seddons are clever and diverting comedy jugglers, and Walter Read's banjo solos are well executed. There is some smart comedy by Colley and Scott (Fred and Minnie), excellent entertainers; the Alaskas are capital comedy acrobats, and the Palace Perfection pictures include some interesting local views.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE. — Manager, Mr. Chas. Palmer.—Mr. Norfolk Megone commenced his series of symphony concerts on Thursday last, when his full orchestra gave a finished performance of the various numbers in the programme, the splendid Italian Symphony by Mendelssohn being magnificently rendered under Mr. Megone's talented conductorship. Miss Margaret Wigley was the solo pianist, and her rendering of the solo part in Grieg's Concerto in C was a masterly performance, for which she was twice recalled. Elgar's "Wand of Youth" suite was very finely rendered by the orchestra, and Mr. Megone is to be congratulated upon the success of the first of his series of symphony concerts, which attracted a large audience. The vocalist at the promenade concerts this week is Miss Esther Yunson, a pleasing contralto. In the Grand Pavilion Mr. Walter George and his "Smart Set" entertainers are drawing big houses to their talented performances. A new cinematograph "house" has been erected outside the Pavilion, and the new show was successfully inaugurated on Monday evening, the pictures being thrown on the screen with wonderful clearness and effect. Mr. Palmer, the energetic manager to the Corporation, is giving his thousands of patrons one of the biggest programmes to be found at any watering-place on the East Coast of England.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. C. Luxton.—A clever company of entertainers, "The Gay Birds," under the management of Mr. Alexander Lee, opened here on Monday night before a crowded audience. Miss Langdon is a charming comedienne and dancer, and her songs at the piano were capitally rendered; Miss Doris Trevelyan possesses a sweet soprano voice, and she was recalled at each turn; Miss Jessy Cliff is a smart soubrette; Mr. Alexander Lee shone in his elocution; Mr. Frederick Park is a humorous comedian; Mr. Vivian Munro is an excellent light comedian, and his duets with Miss Langdon are very smart performances; Mr. Harry Taylor is the solo pianist, and a most efficient accompanist; and the staging and effects are well carried out. Mme. Angless and her Ladies' Orchestra continue to give great pleasure by their concerts under the Glass Dome, the special artist this week being Miss Annie Croft, a clever young vocalist, entertainer, and dancer.

BRIGHTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—The stock company here is performing Pete this week. Mr. Frank R. Petley displays masterly skill in his portrayal of Pete Quilliam; Mr. Austen Milroy merits praise for his enactment of Philip Christian; Mr. Fred Acton's Cæsar Cregeen is an admirable character study; and Miss Maisie Hanbury imparts charm and sympathy to her representation of Kate Creegen. The remaining characters are ably sustained.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—W. F. Frame, Scotch comedian, is very diverting with his songs and patter; Al Lawson and Frances Namon are well received in their comedy cycling and ball punching turn; the Eight Elves are very pleasing in their refined singing, dancing, and instrumental act; Merrie Maie Dillon is a capital Dutch comedienne and expert dancer; the Cardows are entertaining with dialogue and vocalism in their athletic display; the Two Romers are appreciated in their vocal and military duologue Comrades in Arms; Will Challiner, as a comedian and dandy dancer, is effective; the Walonells appear in a comedy bar act; Victoria Wright is a charming comedienne and dancer; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and amusing.

BARRASFORD'S HIPPODROME.—Resident Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Phil Ray, the popular patter comedian, is enthusiastically applauded; Jay Laurier is a quaint and pleasing comedian; Bertisch is very successful in an athletic act; La Belle Greta is a dainty vocalist and dancer; Phil Hermon, Tyrolean and character vocalist, is entertaining; Marshall and Parr present a refined comedy and vocal act; the seventeenth century sketch, The Last of the Desmonds, is favourably received; Dale and O'Malley are diverting comedians; Madge Osmond, the ideal dandy, is cordially applauded; and the Turkish musical comedy, The Belle of the Orient, is presented by Joe Peterman and George Ricketts.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris and company are here this week with The Education of Elizabeth. Miss May Norris gives an artistic impersonation of Elizabeth Black; Miss Emily Stevens makes a winsome and entertaining Blanche Macintyre; Mr. E. E. Norris is a droll Reggie Hankey; Mr. Herbert Garthorne is an admirable Harry Fairfax; Miss Helene Forest as Lady Middleton, and Mr. Fred Castleman, as Mr. Whitby, merit praise.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jay and Mann; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wilfred H. Kent.—The picture plays here prove very attractive. The Way of the World conveys an impressive story, the scenes of which are laid at the famous San Gabriel Mission, California; Sound of the Horn, Double Dealing, and Abandoned are replete with stirring incidents; and the amusing pictures include Susan's Revenge, Poor Pa Pays, and The Story of the Re-naming of the Hotel. Mr. Julian Rutt, at the pianoforte, is effective.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—The exhibitions of animated pictures here continue to attract good houses. La Sevelli is a moving dramatic story full of exciting incidents, Beautiful Windermere is charmingly picturesque, The Sorceress is highly dramatic, the Shepherd's Dog conveys an instructive story, and much fun is provided by The Order to March, The Faker's Flute, and Neo, the impressionable artist. Mr. Osland Denner gives his baritone songs in artistic style, and Mr. Arthur W. Briggs merits warm praise for his descriptive pianoforte accompaniments.

THEATRE DE LUXE.—Proprietors, Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. H. Cousens.—Crowded houses are the rule here, the series of animated pictures being warmly appreciated. Parks and Lakes at Stockholm is a finely descriptive film, The Paymaster, and the Stolen Purse, are dramatic, and the pictures of a comic character include Am I Mad? Coco and the Earthquake, and Mex Tries Ski-ing.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The Follies, under the direction of H. G. Pelissier, paid a flying visit here on Tuesday last, giving their entertainment both in the afternoon and evening to crowded houses. The various items of the first part of the programme went admirably. The "Potted Plays" were Henry of Navarre, Fires of Fate, and King of Cadonia, and the performance concluded with a very amusing "Burlesque of a Modern Music Hall," in which the whole strength of the company took part.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here with For Honour and Revenge. Miss Sidney Crowe displays considerable dramatic ability in her study of Maude Desmond; Miss Netta Mitchell plays in sympathetic style as Mary Galston; Mr. G. M. Montanini acts cleverly as James Galston; Mr. Herbert Skardon is convincing as Sir Gilbert Redville; Mr. C. Russell is impressive as Harry Travers; and Mr. Howard Harvey makes the most of the part of Arthur Redville. Miss Madge Palmer and Mr. Herbert Woodin evidently revel in the comic parts of Nancy O'Brien and Joe Reckitts.

PALACE.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Local Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Fred Karno's latest production, Mr. Justice Perkins, heads the programme, and is appreciated. Dr. Wilmar's mysterious "spirit paintings" prove interesting; Silbon's Cat Circus is amusing; Percy Farrimond is a pleasing tenor vocalist; Edna Deno sings and dances in good style; Russell Carr is an effective ventriloquist; the Keiths present a good musical turn, the lady member of the company dancing in excellent style; and Williams and Warren entertain with a lot of smart patter, &c. Animated pictures conclude.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—King and Benson, a really smart comedy duo, head the bill with much success, their patter being amazing. The Claymore Trio do some smart dancing, club juggling, &c.; Blanche Marion is a pleasing comedienne; the Four Kahns excel in their magical act; Albert Letine, "dame" comedian, has some smart songs; Royston and Bradfield amuse with their speciality The Bailiff and the Actress; R. Dunning, ventriloquist, is successful; Dolly Harmer is a pleasing comedienne; and Dan Smart, comedian, obtains applause. Interesting animated pictures conclude.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Signor

On their garments not a blemish,
But fresher than before.—The Tempest.

Arvi presents here his artistic mystery "Les Metables," a really wonderful performance, and on each evening holds a fancy costume and beauty prize competition for local ladies and gentlemen; Ben Lewin, an artist of ability, gives clever character impersonations; Marie Kay and Ray Royal contribute good singing, the latter lady's songs being assisted by bright illustrations; the Borella Brothers are responsible for a novel acrobatic speciality; Phil Kaufman is a favourite comedian; and the Operascope maintains its usual excellence.

BURY (Lancs.). — Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company, in A Wrecker of Men, is here. Mr. Arthur S. Pitt gives an able rendering of Jim Murley; Mr. Arthur Robinson displays ability as Guise Strange; as Pharosaphus Mr. Victor gives a clever study; Rallton is well played by Mr. Richard Boeco; Mr. Thompson Carruthers acquits himself admirably as Eric Melville; Mr. Edward A. Brooke provides clever impersonations of Ezekiel Isaacs and Karnaphus; Mr. William A. Armour is most efficient as Hon. Reggie Verincourt; Miss Lydia Hart is an amusing Vavazole Slopper; Doris Melville is delightfully played by Miss Gwendoline Talbot; and as Risca Mallinson Miss Ruth Zillwood gives a particularly powerful performance.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—The pictures are still proving a big attraction, and pleasing variety is introduced by Alice Craven, Lancashire vocalist; and Drury and Lane, comedians and dancers.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Herbert Darnley and company, including Chas. H. Bell, in John Jay, Jun., provide a popular turn; the Monctons are successful in A Woman's Curiosity; another good turn is that of Herman and Evelyn, in a pot-pourri act; the Sisters Lindos are capital comediennes and dancers; George Dollin gives impersonations of well-known stars; Alick Lauder, Scotch comedian, and the Cromwells, in a really clever juggling act, complete the bill.

BUXTON. — Opera House. — Proprietors, The Buxton Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company, in Diana of Dobson's, paid the Opera House a third visit on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week. Miss Eva Leonard Boyne acquitted herself admirably in the name-part, and was well supported by Miss Nannie Hume, who doubled the parts of Miss Smithers and the Old Woman; Miss Hilda Francks, who played exceedingly well as Mrs. Cantelupe, and Miss Mary Crave, who gave a neat little sketch of Mrs. Whyte Fraser; Miss Edith Robey enacted Kitty Bront nicely, and smart work was also done by Miss Cicely Oates as Miss Jay and Miss Winifred Trevor Lowe as Miss Morton. Mr. Thomas Pauncefort was well suited as Sir Joseph Grinlay, and Mr. Briscoe Owen deserves commendation for his work as Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton. The play was preceded by Out West.

CARDIFF.—Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—The popular comedian Will Evans is a big attraction here; the well-known tenor Edward Davies brings down the house with his beautifully-rendered ballads; Florrie Gallimore is as popular as ever; Tom and Marie Motramo, musical comedy artists, cause no end of laughter; the Carmos are a couple of sensational jugglers and acrobats; Tom Costello, in new songs, is entertaining; and Bert Harrow, the rum comedian, is very funny. Beaty and Blanche, prepossessing duettists, obtain a good reception; Rhoda Paul, comedienne and male impersonator, sings and dances admirably. The programme is brought to a close with the Bio.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson.—The Adder's Tooth, presented by Louis Taylor's London company with distinction and success, is a prominent turn here this week. Mr. Dudman Bromwich is admirable throughout as Teddy Maddox, and does full justice to a striking character; Mr. Hodgson Taylor is also exceptionally natural as James Bannister; while Miss Katherine Clarke wins the favour of her audience as Kate Bannister. A turn full of surprises and fun is that of Gene Morelle, the ragged virtuoso; Lilybelle is a graceful barefooted dancer; very successful is Vela, in his comedy wire act; Joe Belmont, the human bird, is clever; and Charles Woodward, light comedian, obtains considerable commendation. The Cedrics, comedy artists, the Belmonts (Hettie and Bessie), talented dancers, and the Bio complete.

CARLISLE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The enterprising manager here is giving his patrons a taste of variety. Reano and his band head the bill. The Saletos are truly described as "equilibristic marvels"; Barney Stuart is a mimic with an original and taking style, and Mlle. Du Roche's sweet soprano voice is heard to advantage in popular numbers; Mike Gray, assisted by his dog Dooley, juggles to the delight of his audience; and Manfield Grove, a Dame comedian, Zasma, a clever athlete, and Renie, Ernie, and Allie, three precocious and smart little performers, contribute popular turns. A turn quite out of the ordinary is provided by the Tennessee Guards, whose drill movements and wall scaling are quite a feature of the bill.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—One of the most entertaining turns this week is given by Sidney Brandon, his dramatic character studies and impersonations being wonderfully realistic and impressive; a character comedian of ability is Mr. Ryder Slone, who has two quaint songs; the Warsaw Bros. contribute a comedy musical sketch, and Jeff Martin presents "The Sport of 100 Years," concluding with an excellent boxing bout between Dick Murray and Joey Smith, clever exponents of the art. Ethel Entwhistle, with nice songs well rendered, Bardoff, the Russian strong boy, in weight-lifting feats, the Darntons, lady vocalists, and some fine pictures complete.

CASTLEFORD.—Queen's Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and Will H. Emerson.—A powerful attraction and the most interesting picture shown here this week is one by Gaumont of the local schools' sports, ten Maypole dances and parade by some very young girls. Crowded houses are assembling. Lambert and Vernon are duettists of considerable ability; the lady also shows merit as a dancer. Harry Albery, comedian, is a success with songs and patter.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Stanley Arkins, the messenger boy; Tennis and Laune, pleasing serios; the Brothers Curran, in a medley of mirth; the Five Bombays, with a lively and popular singing and dancing act; Lily Palmer, a neat and pleasing dancer; Tom Joy, with parody and patter; and Horace Hunter and company, who present in excellent style the sketch Under Suspicion. Lacey's Erascope has some interesting films.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—Mabel Sinclair is one of the leading attractions here, and delights all with her well-known clever ventriloquial entertainment; Miss Dot Hardy's low comedy songs go well; audiences marvel at the dexterity displayed by the Brothers Babusio; Benn's Dutch Boys and Girls contribute an entertaining scena; and others appearing are the Hendersons, speciality artists, and T. Edwin and C. Penrose, comedians.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—Palace of Varieties.—Business Manager and Secretary, Mr. Thomas Butt.—Tom Leamore, comedian, creates roars of merriment with his songs and eccentric dancing; Jack Smiles, who has been engaged for a further week owing to his great success, continues to amuse, and is this week serving up his latest creation "Fish Sauce"; the comedy sketch Her Husband is well played by Ernie Lotinga and company; Gulliver supplies a clever turn as a ventriloquist; Ina Lorimer is a comedienne and dancer of ability; and Dorothy Sephton is a charming burlesque artist; Peter Kelly sings a good comic song; and the Palace pictures present one or two good films. The excellent orchestra is under Mr. A. Malcolm Parkes.

Operetta House.—Lessee, Mr. W. F. Jury; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles F. Meadows.—The films shown here this week include several of a humorous character. Mr. Walter Gray is the accompanist and Mr. E. Grant the operator.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Miss Violet Osmund's company in The New Barmaid is here for six nights. Mr. Alexander Loftus in the rôle of Bertie White scores heavily, whilst he has a good aide in Mr. Chas. Adeson as William; Mr. Geo. Fox sings creditably as Capt. Lovebury; Miss Madge Prior makes a fetching Dora Heather; Miss Beatrice Erle is most vivacious; Miss May Hawthorne appears as Brenda; and Mr. E. W. Chewd undertakes the part of Colonel Claymore.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Moulliot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The big item this week is another visit by that standard animal turn Lockhart's Elephants; the Society Quartette, in dance and song, present an excellent entertainment; Addie Adell, an old favourite, again scores a triumph with her high-class vocal numbers; Bonetti and Corri in a comedy juggling act are much enjoyed; Flo Cecil again proves a welcome turn; Johnnie Osborne goes well in a racing monologue; Maisie Dene dances with extraordinary abandon, and is greatly applauded; and the Pathé films are interesting.

CONSETT.—Daly's New Hall.—Lessee, Mr. John Cottrell; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Campbell.—An excellent bill of fare is provided here. The Two Le Bruns hold premier place in a capital juggling and comedy act; Ted Lucknow, musical clown, is another good turn; and the pictures are of a high standard.

COVENTRY.—Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsone; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—The top turn this week is provided by Miss Lily Hammersley and company in Rough Justice, a stirring story of life in the Far West. Mr. Norman Partridge as Pete Karney acts with great ability; Mr. Stanley Harris as Jack Halesy is successful; Miss Hammersley as Madge Goodwin is all that can be desired; Miss Lillian Drury takes the part of Halesy's sweetheart very well indeed. The Bouncing Dillons, novel comedy gymnasts, give a very smart and interesting turn; the Three Warners perform some extraordinary acrobatic feats; James Stewart, "the tramp at the pianoforte," gives a good performance; George D'Albert proves a very popular comedian. Other artists who do good work are Billy Rex, versatile entertainer; Hughes and Elliott, very fine dancers; and Daisy Taylor, singer and dancer.

CROYDON. — Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Harry Tate and company are very funny in the sketch Flying; Harry Barford and company make a hit in the sketch Cottage or Palace? George Rae is a clever Scotch comedian and dancer; Les Marsumas are great in a humorous cycle act The Navvy's Rest; Jack Pleasants is an entertaining comedian; Ray Ford, comedienne and dancer, is very good; Daisy Hurale and Grace Langley are charming comediennes; Larry Lewis is a praiseworthy comedian; and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

Electric Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Richards.—A word of praise is due for the excellent management of this popular picture hall. Visitors crowd to see the up-to-date and exhilarating programme, and comment has been made of the civility of the attendants. This house has quite held its own in spite of the keen competition.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—An excellent variety programme is submitted this week headed by Fasola, the Indian fakir; the Sisters Gave are dainty duettists and dancers; the Codys give an excellent performance as lasso experts; the Lannons in their comedy act, The Policeman and the Maid, introduce clever pedestal dancing; Leon and Tee are funny in an act entitled On the Farm; Silverstone is a fine mimetic entertainer; Harry Bland, comedian; Iva Mona, comedienne; and the Darloscope pictures conclude.

DARWEN.—Albert Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Holden.—The Walons (Ranee and Willie) provide a musical comedy turn of merit; Arthur Richards, character comedian, is appreciated; capital films shown include A Lesson by the Sea, Black Peril, and Lieut. Rose and the Spy.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Walford Bodie made his first appearance here on Monday, and achieved as great a success as elsewhere; Atlas and Vulcana, assisted by Sisters Atlas and Little Gus, present a first-class exhibition of heavy weight-lifting; Mlle. Doris is successful with her cleverly trained dogs; Dolly Robson suitably sustains her title of a bell-voiced vocalist; Jack Diamond is a deserving trick dancer; Bella Skene is a pleasing comedy artist; and Tom Gold does well as a comedian. There is also an interesting series of pictures in natural colours by the Bio.

DEVONPORT.—Theatre Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—The Irish drama The Colleen Bawn was accorded a hearty and well deserved reception. Miss Dolly Gilroy as Eily was a general favourite; Mr. Leonard Aardale ably impersonated Myles. The other members of the cast were Mr. Conrad E. Stratford, Mr. Sam Roberts, Mr. John Sargeant, Mr. Chas. Lincoln, Mr. T. McDonnald, Mr. N. Purke, Miss Rita Sponti, Miss Jannie Tatman, and Miss Maggie Lindsey.

Hippodrome. — Manager, Mr. G. Prance. — Albert Whelan is a big favourite with audiences here; the Canworths provide appreciated banjo selections; the Smarte Bros. are clever comedy acrobats; Lily Hayes delights the house with her songs and dances; the Keppels contribute an especially good vocal turn; the Czar Troupe of Royal Imperial Russian dancers are excellent; and the sketch, The Little Stowaway, was well produced.

DEWSBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. Will Glaze's company in the melodrama, No Mother to Guide Her, is presented here twice nightly. Miss Rene-Belle Douglas gives a remarkably fine rendition of Nan, the flower seller; Mr. John S. Millward as the Rev. Tom Pelham acts with skill and impressiveness; Mr. J. O. Stewart as the bully Bill Bunce is repeatedly applauded for some very fine acting; as Bob Coleman, Mr. Will Glaze is very successful; Julia Patterson has a strong and capable exponent in Miss Georgette Theirry; Mr. Paul Barry-Lewers as the villainous Felix Campbell, alias Green, gives a powerful portrayal; a sympathetic rendering of Millicent Saxby is presented by Miss Betty Seymour; Mr. Tom Beasley as Tim does well. The other characters are well sustained.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Heading a strong bill is Will H. Fox, who delights everybody with his comedy and trick piano playing; Hayes and Merritt are aptly described as the Bounding Wonders; the Three Prestons give a very novel and diverting sketch, The Village of Shift 'Em, and are accorded an excellent reception; a very popular turn is Miss Ethel Thomas, the Welsh nightingale; J. H. Ellis is a very funny comedian; Kingstone-Trollope submits a powerful dramatic rendition of his monologue, "Only a dream"; George Adams has an excellent baritone voice, and goes well; Monie Mine is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Tiny Arnold is greatly appreciated. Up-to-date animated pictures are also shown, during which the orchestra under Mr. E. G. Summerfield play some fine selections, and a cornet solo by Mr. J. W. Grayson is highly appreciated.

Industrial Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Christian.—Some excellent films are shown here this week, including Thou Shalt Not, Taming a Grandfather, Western Justice, and a host of other interesting and humorous pictures.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A Woman's Past was unfolded here on Monday by Messrs. Clifford Hamilton and Charles Locke's company. Mr. Percy Dawsone as the victimised husband, David Heath, illustrates the character with chastened dignity; Frank Dellaney as portrayed by Mr. Charles Lock is lovable and popular; Messrs. Alexander Knight and Clifford Hamilton as Clement Harper and Uriah Craven are both clever; the Jack Crawford of Mr. Henry Bargate is well sustained; Miss Laura Bitterne enacts the rôle of Mrs. Brown effectively; Dorothy Heath is played with refreshing charm by Miss Cherry Veheyne; Miss Phyliss Elton acts capably as Clara Darrell; and Miss Dora Pass plays cleverly in the title-rôle.

DOUGLAS. — Grand Theatre. — Proprietors, Grand Theatre Co., Ltd.; Chairman, Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—The late Tom Robertson's Caste was staged here on Monday evening. Miss Madge Crichton's Pollie Eccles was a distinct creation; Miss Ida Phillips made a pathetic Esther; and Miss Lucy Beaumont a dignified Marquise. The Eccles of Mr. George Delaforce was a broad comedy study; Mr. Frank Tennant was a picturesque and forceful George Dalroy; the Captain Hawtree of Mr. Douglas Vigors was true to tradition; the Sam Gerridge of Mr. Jack Crichton was crisp and self-contained, and made an admirable foil to Mr. George Delaforce's Eccles. The company gave only three performances of Caste, the other nights being occupied with the representation of Mr. Arthur Shirley's The Artfulness of Ada, in which Miss Madge Crichton appears as Ada Byron Bruce. On each occasion the play of the evening was preceded by an incident, Music Hath Charms, cleverly conceived by Mr. Douglas Munro and sincerely enacted by Mr. Geoffrey Berwick, Mr. Stanley Liston, Mr. George Munro, and Miss Kathleen Rae.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—The Little Damozel was played here on Monday. Miss Emilie Polini in the title-rôle did well, her insouciant Bohemianism and unrestrained passion being delicately "stippled in." The Recklaw Poole of Mr. Alick Chumley was to the manner born. He was typical of the plunger who has lost, the racing man who has gone under, and yet who knows the possibilities and the pain of "it might have been." The Hon. Fitzroy Luck as presented by Mr. Guy Newall was a distinct study of decadence illumined by a sense of humour; Mr. George R. Brandram in the rôle of Captain Neil Partington was of quite real artistic value to the ensemble; Mr. William Matthews imparted character to Walter Angel, proprietor of the Café Angelique; as Papa Bertholdy, Franz Pepo, and Abraham, members of the orchestra of the Angelique, Captain Gambier, Mr. H. Ravenscroft and Mr. Frank Roy were always in the picture. The Little Damozel was preceded by a smart curtain-raiser, Curing A Selfish Husband, brightly penned by Mr. Newall and artistically played by the author, Mr. George R. Brandram, and Miss Maud Rivers.

The Palace.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—Dancing, skating with competitions, and exhibitions are the staple fare here. The variety programme is comprehensive. Mr. Harry Weldon provokes laughter by legitimate means; Colbert is a clever club juggler and hoop roller; Miss Alice Esty is a painstaking male impersonator; Ross and Grayson make for merriment in their piano playing; Miss Ouida Macdermott sings with vim; Burley and Burley are smart acrobats; the Four Royal Scots are refined vocalists, instrumentalists, and entertainers; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope is a fine draw in the ballroom at ten o'clock.

Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's entertainers are a feature in the Olympian Gardens, adjoining the Palace, every evening, and the Sunday concerts are ever a great vogue.

Derby Castle.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Kelly.—The popularity of Derby Castle is always a certainty, and on Monday a large and well-pleased audience attended the function. Mr. Jack Lorimer is a real draw—his quaint humour, his clever songs, and his dancing get there all the time. One of the smartest and most original turns presented to the public for many moons is that which the Zella-Vondi Trio are giving this week. It is a musical pot-pourri act, which enables the leading lady artist to demonstrate that she is an original musician of fine quality. Miss Veronica Brady repeats her success as Gretchen in the dainty trifle so cleverly written for her by Mr. Hugh Nolan; Humpsti Bumsti, as presented by Pipifax and Panlo, is a remarkable act; Miss Stella Stahl is a smart soubrette; and Mr. Sam Elton completes a very entertaining programme.

Connor's Grand Circus.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred Connor.—The audiences here must have been quite acceptable to the enterprising entrepreneur who runs this popular pleasure resort. One reason for this is that the clowns are really amusing, and while they preserve time-honoured tradition they have novelties to negotiate. Little Mona Connor's riding is daring and graceful, and her brother's is equally good in its way. The other artists, who include the Leopold Legless Troupe, De Ora, Rose and Maie Brilliant, Mr. George Madigan, Captain Roberts and company, Frederico and Edgardo, and the Circuscope, make more friends and admirers with ever-changing audiences.

Buxton's Amusements.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Frederick Buxton.—Pierrot concerts here increase in popularity by reason of the appearance of such bright entertainers as Miss May Birkett, Miss Edith Butler, Mr. John Story, Mr. Ernie Famont, Mr. Allan Hanbury, and Mr. J. J. Mannix among others. Special attractions also are the Picturedrom, the skating rink, and the billiard saloons.

Onchan Head.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Collier Cubbon.—The attendances at Onchan Head must be most gratifying to the engineers of the popular attractions offered. Mr. Charley Harvey and his associates go on increasing in public favour. The firework displays draw large concourses of people. The bal-masques competitions for cash prizes have caught on. The open-air dancing is quite a vogue, while the skating rink is well patronised.

Other amusements in Douglas are Dare's Empire in Regent-street, which with pictures and varieties is accorded its due share of public patronage, and Dare's Minstrels on Douglas Head.

DUBLIN.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—Large audiences continue to be attracted here. This week we have Little Tich, whose clever performance is heartily enjoyed. Scott and Whaley give great satisfaction in their eccentric dancing; Cummin and Seaham are amusing in their funny business, "The Ragman and the Postman"; the Garricks submit a delightful song-scena, and the Newmans, with clever tricks on their bicycles, and the whistling performance of Shrillo are well appreciated; Sophie, the juvenile artist, sings pleasingly. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—Messrs. Fox and Leonard's company is here with The Greed of Gold. Miss Amy G. Earle's impersonation of Mrs. Maxwell is excellent; Mr. Carthage-Caldcleugh cleverly enacts the part of Harry Hood; Mr. Alf. Edwardes does full justice to the rôle of Mr. Brightstone, and Dora Hood has a capable representative in Miss Amy Doris. Mr. Herbert Leonard makes the most of the part of Con Creamer, and Mr. G. Newell is capital as Mo Chow; Miss Violet Leyton is all that can be desired as Patty Mayfield, and Master Bernard Fox makes an admirable Cecil Hood.

Empire Palace. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Marsh.—Mr. G. H. Elliott, "the Chocolate-Coloured Coon," who tops the bill here, sings several of his well-known songs with great success, being recalled again and again; Miss Alice Maydue is a most convincing comedienne, and the Davis Trio in their daring act, "Motoring in Mid-air," are received with much applause; Miss Blanche Vincent's pleasing voice is heard in several ditties; Sid Penna is a capital comedian; Chris Van Bern is very versatile; and Iva Voyce and the Brothers Durant also appear.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Harry Tate's No. 1 Company in Motoring is on a welcome return visit. The L.V.O. Trio in their sketch Those Troublesome Slaveys create much laughter, and Fayre and Manning are capital comedians. Others on the bill are Talberto and Douglas, "Extremely Absurd People"; Les Lanas, vocalists and dancers; the Unites, comedy acrobats; Lisbon and Barker, extemporising comedians; Ada Marjutti, the Flexible Venus; Florence Brooke, in singing scena; and the Bioscope.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Robert W. Sprengel.—The following artists are successfully appearing here:—Miss Amy Wilton, ballad vocalist; Bell and Bell, comedy duo; Miss Ida Parr, serio and dancer; Miss Norah Howard, singer of chorus songs; and the Sisters Hibbert, harmonising vocalists.

The Pavilion, Kingstown.—Manager, Mr. Bert Lester.—"The Scarieteers" are appearing here this week and are being well attended. Miss Mary Hope gave several recitals, "Pa's Soft Spot" and "Reggie," in an exceedingly clever manner; Miss Daisy May was very entertaining in songs and dances, and Miss Lilian Sanders sang her songs, "It is the time of daffodils" and "Who shall have the roses?" in a most pleasing and effective style; Mr. Harry S. Clark, Mr. Sydney Leon, and Mr. Teddy Miles also do some excellent singing, which was warmly appreciated, and the pictures supplied by Messrs. J. T. Jameson and Co. are up-to-date and amusing.

DUNDEE.—King's Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—George Leyton is starring here in Lucknow, in which he is assisted by a number of war veterans; the Georgians are smart musicians; and the merry acts of Courtney and Wilton and D'Ort and Leonard are to the liking of the audience. Lily Edwards is making a hit with catchy chorus songs, and Gordon Stretton's coon ditties take well; Morimura is a smart juggler. On the Kingscope is displayed an admirable film of the Review of French Troops by ex-President Roosevelt.

Gaiety.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. K. Stewart.—The Hammersley stock company continue to attract large audiences. This week's drama is The Dear Homeland, in which the leading parts are cleverly played by Miss Dora Hammersley and Messrs. Charles Kean and Finn Doyle. Miss Bella Reid is a charming child actress.

Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Another attractive picture programme is being submitted to the numerous patrons of this Hall. Rastus in Zululand is a beautiful study of tropical scenery.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. W. Austin.—Fine business continues the rule here.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. William Mollison's company is appearing here in The Chorus Lady. Miss Rita Carlyle cleverly extracts humour and pathos from the part of Patricia O'Brien; Miss Elsie Vron-Neville does good and capable work as Nora; Miss Josephine Woodward is a delightfully natural and artistic Mrs. O'Brien; Miss Agnese D'Aragan makes a small part prominently successful as Mrs. Coote; Miss Mabel Durrant is a handsome Miss Simpson, and a number of pretty ladies in beautiful dresses enact with much realism the parts of chorus ladies. Mr. Henry Ludlow works earnestly and well as Dick Crawford; Mr. John Sims-Woolley is a pleasing, manly Dan Mallory; Mr. Harold Neville does well as Patrick O'Brien; and Mr. Eric Dane and Mr. R. Marshall are life-like stable boys.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Edwin T. Hey's company is appearing here this week in Candida. Mr. Ian Maclaren does excellent and consistent work as the Rev. James Morell, Mr. Francis Hope is a conspicuous success in his comedy work as Mr. Burgess; Mr. Frank Darch undertakes the part of the Rev. Mr. Mill easily and naturally, and the clever work of Mr. Leonard Mudie as Eugene Marchbanks deserves the highest praise. Miss Maire O'Neill is an animated and pleasing Candida, whose sympathetic work in the third act is particularly effective; and Miss Muriel Pratt cleverly makes every point as Miss Garnett. Delicate Ground precedes, and is well played by Miss Pratt, Mr. F. Darch, and Mr. Ian Maclaren.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—At the top of the bill here are Mooney and Holbein, who sing, dance, and patter in a clever and amusing style; Amasis is a smart conjuror; Miss Maggie Fraser has a sweet voice, and sings pleasingly; Mr. Johnny Hurley scores as a coster comedian; Messrs. Young and Evans are amusing patterers and dancers; the Evalos are expert ring performers; Mr. E. exhibits a variety of slides and makes comments upon them, and new pictures are shown on the bioscope.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and company are this week presenting A Pair of Spectacles. Mr. Lovel as Benjamin Goldfinch is responsible for a clever piece of character acting; Mr. Watkin Wynne in the character of Uncle Gregory is all that can be desired; Mr. Frederick Meads as Percy plays throughout with distinction; Mr. Melville Chiswell as Dick is to be complimented on his clever impersonation; and Miss Octavia Kenmore as Mrs. Goldfinch has a marked sense of character. On Friday night, when Miss Kenmore took her benefit, she played the title-rôle in Magda.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Edinburgh playgoers have had the opportunity this week of seeing the Scottish Repertory Theatre Company in a promising work, Barbara Grows Up, by another new dramatist, Mr. G. J. Hamlen. The comedy contains several amusing episodes, and the dialogue is bright and clever. The outstanding feature of the performance has been the admirable impersonation of the heroine by Miss Muriel Pope. Miss Pope is gifted with an attractive presence, an expressive face, and a voice of great sweetness and charm. Her portrait of the young wife was extremely natural and girlish, and revealed powers which augur well for success in her profession. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as Margaret Morrison showed the remarkable variety of her comedy style. Graceful in bearing and perfect in elocution, she played the sensible woman of the world with striking effect. That sterling character actor Mr. Campbell Gullan was excellent as Kenneth Morrison; and a Scotch serving maid was depicted with humour and an easy command of the Doric by Miss Lola Duncan. Mr. Walter Roy as Andrew Purdie, Mr. Norman McKeown as Barney O'Brian, and Miss Winifred Gunn as Mrs. O'Brian helped, by their capital studies of their respective parts, to the general buoyancy of the play. The comedy is preceded by a strong, if somewhat repellent, one-act piece, The Last Man In by Mr. W. B. Maxwell, in which Mr. Norman McKeown gives a powerful bit of acting in the title-rôle, and Miss Dudgeon displays with telling pathos the part of his mother. Mr. Albert Cazabon's finished rendering of various violin solos are again received with rounds of appreciative applause.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—One of the principal attractions here is that quaint comedian Mr. George Formby, who comes with several new songs, of which "Playing the game in the west" is a really clever piece of burlesque work. Mr. Formby is recalled again and again. The charming vocalist Miss Amy Augarde and her company appear in the musical farce The Sicilians, in which the fair singer renders wth her customary expressiveness and effect one or two delightful ballads. Mr. Mike Whallen tells with all his well-known power stories both humorous and pathetic; Orpheus shows his command of a large variety of musical instruments; Lydia and Amelys give, with grace and ease, a series of Continental dances, concluding with a realistic exposition of the Apache dance; the Three Laurels display dexterity, neatness, and muscular power in a smart acrobatic act; and Miss Nellie Farrell sings her Irish songs with vivacity and humour. Other items in a capital programme include Miss Cassie Walmer, a splendid dancer; Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers; and views of Ski-jumping by the American Bioscope.

Operetta House.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—Frankenstein, The Price of Fame, and A Romance of the Western Hills are admirable examples of powerfully dramatic pictures in this week's programme. Bird Life is a charming and educative series, and the amusing subjects include, amongst others, The Short-sighted Duellist, a very funny picture.

Pringle's Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edmunds.—A moving drama, The Mystery of Temple Court, is the leading picture here, but The Cowboy's Sweetheart is not far behind in its attractiveness, while St. Elmo is another excellent subject. Carlile and St. Malo and Coombs impart admirable variety to the programme.

Marine Gardens.—Manager, Mr. G. B. Smith.—Favourable weather and local holidays have helped to swell the tide of visitors and pleasure-seekers during this past week. The popular programmes of music rendered by the band of the 2nd Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers under Mr. W. F. Cooper's direction have drawn crowds to the band court, and in the concert hall packed houses have been attracted to the enjoyable entertainment provided by Herr Meny's White Viennese Orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas in their Dickens impersonations, the conjuring of Mr. Owen Clark, and Bioscope pictures. The skating rink continues to receive good support. A ballroom was opened with much success on Friday evening, and further special attractions are in preparation for the holiday season.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—Starring here this week are the Three Torontos, in a smart athletic act; Alfred Wellesley returns to make a hit with the farce Uncle's Courtship, in which Miss Beatrice Webb and Mr. Joseph Bruce lend valuable assistance; Mabel Mavis, an accomplished musical entertainer, finds much favour; Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists, are popular; Eva Strauss renders two ballads with feeling; Harry Moore, in a paper-tearing act; Demerell and Rutland, comedians; and the Kingscope are other pleasing items.

Metropole Theatre. — Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—The Shaughraun is the attraction here this week. Mr. Fred Elvin is a pleasing Conn; Mr. John B. Shinton ably fills the rôle of Captain Molineux; Corry Kinchella receives excellent treatment at the hands of Mr. Stanley Bedwell; Father Dolan affords Mr. Sidney Rennef an opportunity of showing his ability; Mr. Bert Atherton scores as Harry Duff; Miss Ada M. Ryder faithfully portrays Clara Ffolliott; Miss Lilian Earle scores as Arte O'Neill; and Mrs. O'Kelly is cleverly impersonated by Miss Annie Brunnette

GLASGOW. — Metropole, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Tom Watt's company is here in the Heath-Wilson Barrett version of East Lynne, presented in highly-creditable style, the parts of Archibald and Lady Isabel being most adequately filled by Mr. Frank Beresford and Miss Ida Heron. The rôle of Bullock (Mr. Joe Rowland) is likewise in very capable hands; and as Levison Mr. Wilfrid Percy Mansfield ably maintains the traditions of the character. Mr. Tom Watt gives proper weight and dignity to the part of Lord Mountsevern; the Justice Hare of Mr. Jerrold Manville is a well-finished performance; Mr. Eric Lugg does well as Richard Hare; and the parts of Dill and Hallijohn are ably taken by Mr. C. Elliott and Mr. Clifford Clifford. The Cornelia of Miss Isabel Singleton is a clever study; and Miss Alice Seymore makes an attractive Barbara Hare.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—George Robey is the star here this week, and the popular comedian is in his best form. All his songs go well, and the King Charles impersonation is intensely funny. The Gothams cause roars of laughter with their comedy business, and their singing is first-rate; Arabella Allen's impersonations of Dickens characters again proves her sterling ability, and her reception is cordial; Ben Albert is most amusing in his various songs, and takes well; Nina Wood, at the piano, contributes several catchy and enjoyable songs; the Kirbys give a lively and enjoyable comedy turn, full of funny business, and with a steady flow of entertaining patter; Lily Flexmore's acrobatic dancing is marvellous; M. and Mme. Alf Agoust give a clever juggling act, with a lot of new feats introduced; Amy Marsden's low-comedy sketches take well. The Bioscope concludes a varied programme.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—An amusing sketch, The Plumbers, is the principal item in the bill here, and is the cause of a succession of hearty laughs, as played by Messrs. Fred Emney and Harry Grattan, and Misses Emily Spiller and Blanche Doris; Ivan Tschernoff's ponies, dogs, and pigeons all show evidence of careful training, and the turn proves most enjoyable; Edna Latonne makes a hit comedy act, which takes well; Sam Thomson's humour as a Scotch comedian makes him a big favourite at this hall; Sisters Cara, as pantomime favourites in the Princess's Theatre, are accorded a hearty reception; Mlle. Ottino gives a smart conjuring turn, and keeps the fun going with her bright and lively talk throughout; Barnes and West are a clever couple, and are heartily applauded; Edith St. Clair makes a hit with an Irish song, and also as a chorus vocalist; the Rizarellis give a smart and dancing trapeze act; and another good acrobatic turn is that of the Azar Trio of lady gymnasts. Wynnie Darrell is a comedienne and dancer with a bright and lively style. Some clever new films are shown on the Palacescope.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Chas. Austin, as that excruciatingly funny constable Parker, P.-C., provides the audience with a lively half-hour's fun, in which he is ably assisted by the members of his company; in another vein is the condensed version of Rip Van Winkle, in which Fred Storey once again makes an excellent impression as the light-hearted Rip; My Fancy, in her dancing scena, "Winter, Spring, and Summer," shows her sterling ability, and rouses the audience to enthusiasm in each part; Miller Brothers are a clever and amusing couple of horizontal bar artists and burlesque wrestlers, whose turn takes well; Eva Compton is a dainty comedienne; Helene Donald sings several songs in cultured style; and the Westwoods are neat and graceful in their cycling display; Charles Vincent is accorded a hearty reception for his parody items; Three Sisters Kilner give a display of acrobatic dancing; and the Bioscope concludes a good programme.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Tasmania, with a seal hunt in progress, and warships and airships manœuvring in various parts of the world are among the fine collection of romantic and comic pictures presented here.

PANOPTICON, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Sinclair.—Messrs. Allen and Austin top the bill here, the vocal part of the entertainment being exceptionally good; in Miss Madge Field we have a vocalist and dancer of merit; Mr. Fred Lloyd, an established favourite, adds to his reputation with several new songs; the vocal numbers submitted by Miss Marie Ross are pleasingly rendered; Messrs. Raymond and Colby are responsible for a smart turn. There is a choice selection of pictures.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Albert Hengler; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Milne.—In addition to pictures, Joe Melrose, Scotch comedian; Bella Ray, in illustrated songs; and the Waltons, duologue artists, contribute to the programme.

STAR PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Guss Lazenberg.—For the second week of the Star Palace the management had again a well-selected company of artists. Miss Agnes Tina proved herself an especial favourite; and the Attilla Brothers win popular favour. The pictures are again in great demand; Mr. Harry Leaton, character vocalist, adds pleasant variety with his songs; W. H. Smart completes the programme. During Monday evening the manager, in a neat speech, appealed to the public to support his efforts to run a music hall in Partick.

SCOTTISH ZOO AND CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—To judge by the attendance here since the opening night, Signor Volipi's Royal Italian Circus is sure to prove a big attraction. The feats of many of the animals are remarkable. Jumbo, jun., the baby elephant, delights with its musical lesson; and Thurga, the calculating pony, is positively intelligent. The other animals are both amusing and interesting. The clowns, Bishop and Winkles and Dan Gregory, add a spice of humour to the entertainment. The Zoo collection is also very interesting.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Messrs. Pooles Theatres, Ltd.—A capital picture show is given here relieved by illustrated songs by Miss Kitty Woodford, and despite the hot weather good houses rule. The dramatic season begins on Aug. 1, when The Fatal Wedding will be played.

THEATRE DE LUXE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Boultwood.—Pictures are the entertainment here, and a capital performance is given.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Hainsworth.—The Monarchscope pictures and varieties are doing good business here; Hall and Wilson, trick and racing cyclists, are seen in a number of daring feats; Sam Ello is a comedian of much merit; Grover, card manipulator, gives an excellent display; Clavie Hastings is a charming descriptive vocalist; Palette and Otto provide a pleasing musical comedy act; and Max is a clever performing dog. The pictures are again of the best.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—This pretty little theatre reopened for the summer season on Monday with The Thief. The acting of Mr. Bernard Limpus as Richard Chelford is on a high level throughout; Miss Barbara Everest as Marise Chelford treats the part with true artistic touch; the Raymond Leyton of Mr. F. Morland leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Carl W. Lindsay gives a clever reading of Harry Leyton; Mr. W. Somerset makes an admirable Mr. Protheroe; and Isabel Leyton is suitably placed with Miss Mary Forrester.

AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company is presenting here The Mikado, The Gondoliers, The Yeomen of the Guard, and Patience. On Monday the ever-popular Mikado was played to a capital house. Mr. Henry A. Lytton portrays the irrepressible Ko-Ko, and quickly takes the popular fancy; Mr. Fred W. Pattrick, with a commanding presence, does well as Pooh-Bah; the Mikado himself is well rendered by Mr. Leicester Tunks; Nanki-Poo is well portrayed by Mr. Henry Herbert, who sings in good style; Pish-Tush is presented by Mr. Sydney Granville; and Yum-Yum, Pitti-Sing, and Peep-Bo are undertaken by the Misses Marjorie Stone, Beatrice Boarer, and Myfanwy Newell. The Katisha of Miss Louie Rene is characterised with good acting and singing.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. J. Bennell; General-Manager, Mr. J. B. Lawton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. L. Clayton.—A good collection of pictures, humorous and interesting, is being submitted here during the holiday week, and excellent houses rule. The selection includes The Hand of Fate, A Knot in the Plot, The Bride of the Haunted Castle, Baby's First Tooth, Trapped, and Water on Every Floor.

GRIMSBY. — PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The American drama At Cripple Creek is here again. Mr. Wernham Ryott gives a vigorous portrayal of Joe Mayfield; Mr. Charles E. Johnson vividly represents Martin Mason; Mr. J. O. Cuthbertson, as Manuel Alvarez, is equally good; Miss Agnes Verity realises admirably the character of Dynamite Ann; Miss O'Neil acts pleasingly as Belle Gordon; Mr. Pringle Roberts is excellent as the Indian, Wahketah; Mr. Harry Benson creates amusement as Ben White, the negro; and Miss Daisy Carlton as Maggie Mason, Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood, and Little Doris as Little Tatto also accomplish good work.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—The spectacular speciality presented by the Venetians has many novel features, and their representations of living statuary are thoroughly artistic; Graham is also responsible for an entertaining speciality, The Music Hall of 1875 and 1910, giving marionette impersonations of artists of different periods; Her Devonshire Father is a laughable farcical sketch, the principal part being taken with much success by Mr. Victor Widdicombe; Ross and Lewis are a good turn; Sara Rosebery is an excellent Lancashire dialect comedienne; The Lurellas, lady gymnasts, perform smartly; and Little Pam dances prettily.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN.—Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. George A. Deighton.—Imperial Electric pictures and varieties continue at this premier place of amusement, and, notwithstanding many counter-attractions, the attendance is good. Two special films are particularly fine, The Kid and Conscience, and truly realistic is the one depicting Hunting Wolves in Russia. Capital turns are provided by Miss Ivy Deene, in song and dance; the Gelders, society entertainers and magicians; and the Caritons, who foot it in style.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Messrs. Robert Cunningham and John Le Hay are here giving refined vaudeville entertainments.

CANDIE GARDENS.—The Galeties, headed by Mr. Wilson James, are here for a short season, and are drawing good audiences.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Haldane's company is here with The Cingalee. The company includes Frank Barclay (Harry Vereker), Hylton Warde (Chambhuddy Ram), Frank Lennard (Boobhamba), Grafton Williams (Sir Peter Loftus), Herbert Franklyn (Bobby Warren), Isa Bowman (Nanoya), Florrie Greensmith (Peggy Sabine), Winifred Stone (Miss Pinkerton), and Ray Anderson (Lady Patricia). Miss Winifred Stone contributes a clever solo dance.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Les Grossit, three fine specimens of physical manhood, give a turn conspicuous for grace and strength; Bessie Handman is a good soprano; and there is a fine display of pictures.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—G. W. Blythe's vocal scena The Toilers is a brilliant success. The two ladies sing well. Victor Riblo's talking birds are exceptionally clever; Irene Meldon is a smartly-dressed, pretty, and talented young comedienne and dancer; Josh Dixon, comedian, keeps the house in a roar; the Four Rosebuds are clever dancers; the Narow Bros., comedy cyclists, give a clever and sensational turn; and Clive Cattley is a good light comedian.

HANLEY. — GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Mildred Bryan, an Irish mezzo-soprano, is received with much favour; Jennie Johns delights as a comedienne; Alice Cheshire and company, in a sketch, Wanted a Wife, appear successfully; Harry Levaine, eccentric patter comedian, is quaint; the pictures are decidedly clever; the Quaint Q's are loudly recalled; Crosby and Walker, the jocular Eton Boys, are excellent; James Willard and company head the bill for the second week in Ace of Hearts.

KING'S.—Lessee, Mr. J. P. Moore; Manager, Capt. F. Shaw; Acting-Manager, Mr. Colin Hazlewood.—Three films shown this week are of exceptional merit, viz., The Man, The New Old England, and Outwitted by a Child.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—For the first three nights of the week Mr. Alex Maclean and company occupied the stage with a new play, My Lady Bellamy. Mr. E. H. Brooke was excellent as William III.; Mr. Maule was well placed as Mr. Robert Tarfax; and Mr. Arthur Layland dignified as Lord Crawford. Mr. Alex Maclean as Sir Jervase Bellamy and Miss Laura Leigh as the child-wife Henrietta Bellamy submitted satisfactory impersonations. Other parts were in good hands. For the rest of the week variety was in the bill.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—In addition to an excellent series of films shown on the Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, some capital variety turns are booked. These include Hearne and Palmer, comedy acrobats and tumblers; Mabel Moss, a dainty comedienne; and Earl and Melville, comedians, dancers, and patterers.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—A large house was attracted on Monday by Mr. Hamilton Stewart and his company in The Mummy and the Humming Bird. Mr. Stewart's impersonation of Lord Lumley (the Mummy) was an excellent realisation of character, and he was ably supported by Miss A. Bruce-Joy, who played throughout with much feeling; Mr. Chas. Groves, jun., was natural as Giuseppe, and Mr. Lewin Mannering well assumed the rôle of Signor D'Orelli. The breezy and honest Lieut. Ronalds was well played by Mr. Percy Marmont; Miss Constance Barton was a charming Ruth Thornton, and the remainder of the cast was adequate.

THE AMERICAN PALACE PIER.—Manager, Mr. M. Leopold.—The Maida Vale Rink Orchestra, conducted by Herr Adolf Voorzanger, is transferred here for the summer, and opened its season on Sunday with two concerts, which are continued daily. Other attractions were a baby show on Monday and a fancy dress carnival and confetti fête on Wednesday. The pavilion is still used for cinematograph entertainments, and roller skating continues in the covered rink.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Maxwell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hawker.—Mr. Norman V. Norman, Miss Beatrice Wilson, and company are here in The Marriage of Kitty. Seldom has Mr. Norman given us anything more finished than his study of Sir Reginald Belsize. Admirable in every respect is Mr. Lock Whittaker's sketch of the solicitor, John Travers; Miss Betty Stannard is refreshingly simple as Rosalie, the French maid; Miss Beatrice Wilson is a charming Kitty, quite realising the character. A brisk and vivacious representative of Mme. de Semiano is seen in Miss Thornton. Twice during the week Mr. Norman V. Norman appears in David Garrick, himself taking the title-rôle.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—Under the direction of Mr. George Blackmore Mr. Wallis Arthur's concerts continue to be well patronised. Mr. George Blackmore has a good répertoire of humorous songs, whilst his patter is laughable; Miss Nellie Perryer at the piano submits some delightful renderings; Mr. Harry Kemp's cultivated bass voice is heard to advantage; Mr. Oldbury Brough introduces much humour; a cordial welcome is given Miss Gladys Hill, whose songs are bright and tuneful; Mr. Harold Vincent is successful as a humorist.

HEATON-ON-TYNE. — BRINKBURN PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. T. McHary.—Excellent business is being done at this new hall. The Two Zets, speciality dancers, receive a flattering reception; Love Among the Roses and Silent Paths are the principal pictures for the present week.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Limited; Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Miss Winifred Maude and her company are appearing here, under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane, in the drama entitled The Sins of a City.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—Clever Tom Clare and a piano roused a good house on Monday night to much enthusiasm. Other turns are Miss Clara Reid and John Power, in an amusing comedy sketch; Reg. Beauchamp, a diverting eccentric comedian; Charles Baron and his troupe of animal comedians, introducing the racing cats; Miss May Knight, comedienne; Lestree, juggler; Les Arabellas, in a smart and graceful act on the tight-wire; Arthur Croxon, comedian. The pictures conclude the list.

HULL.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Life for a Life is the attraction this week. The little actress Miss Winnie Warden has caught the public fancy. Mr. Chas. H. Lester is well cast as Don Leon. In the hands of Mr. Hugh Travers Pedro suffers nothing. Miss Lallah Davis is a satisfactory Lulalie; Mr. Harold Kinton attains success as Bunker Ben. The remainder of the characters are well sustained.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—A capital programme here stars the famous Kellinos, in their new act, entitled On the Road. The popular comedian Ernest Shand gives several funny songs; the King's College Boys prove themselves vocalists of merit; whilst Frank and Free, in a smart turn, win much favour. Clever and unique is the performance given by Lux and his dogs, who exhibit wonderful training and intelligence. A neat little sketch is that presented by France and Stewart, named The Little Puritan. Ryan and Hall, two comedians of the acrobatic persuasion, Phil Parsons, the popular light comedian, May B. Brilliant, comedienne, who has a couple of catchy ditties, and the Bioscope complete.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Bentley.—S. W. Wyndham is scoring a big success here; Lucy Gillette is a clever juggler; Regan and Ryan, popular eccentric comedians, and Chorley and Connor, Scotch comedians, achieve success; F. A. Martell is a skilful equilibrist. Patty Yole, charming comedienne and dancer, the Juno Trio, three local boys who have proved themselves favourites, and Martin Henry, English Hebrew character actor, well supported by Irene Ross in The Silver Medal, gain approbation for their clever acting.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Slingsby.—The chief attraction here is Kioto and Eso, who present a clever equilibristic act; the Gilberts, on the tight-wire, are appreciated; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, in their realistic vocal scena, and Hal and Lal, versatile artists, are prime favourites; Will Willis, Jack Hayton, and Charles Rowe are all excellent comedy turns; whilst Vennie Veldon is pleasing.

THE PRINCE'S HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Morton.—A feature of the entertainment here is the excellent films shown to packed audiences, who amply testify to the quality of the fare.

JARROW. — PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Gibson and Stienlet; Business-Manager, Mr. John V. Kane.—The chief attraction here this week is the appearance of The Eldras, in a new canine and acrobatic act, which is heartily appreciated; the Sisters Robinson, comediennes, provide another capital turn. The chief films this week are The Village Inventor and The Death Disc.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris.—Mr. Charles Constant's No. 1 Company in Florodora opened the season here. Mr. Johnnie Schofield as Anthony Tweedlepunch was exceedingly funny; Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores made a hit with her fine voice, as also did Mr. C. R. Dutton, his excellent baritone voice being heard to great advantage in "Under the shade of the palm"; Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus G. Gilfain was good; Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood was successful; Mr. Johnnie Junior played Captain Arthur Donegal, Miss Florence Hersee was a dainty Angela Gilfain, and their dance, La Danse des Apaches, was a great success.

OLYMPIA WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. C. A. Barnett.—The Magpies opened their second season here, and are doing good business.

THE TRIANGLE PARK.—The Dandies are still the attraction here.

KEIGHLEY.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Barrasford.—Mr. John Warren, the versatile dramatic illusionist, is here in his magical sketch "The Conjurer at Home," also "The Magic Carpet Mystery"; the favourite comedian Charles Coborn receives a hearty reception; Frank Melvin, comedian, is a big favourite; the Tintos are smart in an acrobatic comedy act; F. G. Fenn appears in an elocutionary scena; Minnie Warner and Marmaduke are also in the bill.

LEEDS.—THE ROYAL THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The Nihilist is being performed here. Mr. O. Silverstone and Mr. C. Newton Buckland in the rôles of Prince Alexander and Pierlree Petoff act with much vigour; Miss Edna Clare represents Alexina Orloff with success; and Miss Florence Kelsey makes a capable Princess Olga.

THE EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Mr. Fred Lindsay, the Australian stockman, successfully deputises for Miss Hetty King here. The Avoloe throw some smart somersaults from perpendicular poles; the Haytors are talented and funny in a new comedy skit; Drew and Alders appear in The Coastguards; Les Marco Belli, comedy conjurors, give an interesting performance; and other turns are those of Leo Tell, Bertha Winder, Spry and Monti, and Nellie Wallace, who sings several successful songs.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Mysterious Balloon Girl, Mlle. Denarber, successfully tops the bill here. Mr. Herbert Sleath's London company appear in a new sketch, which we describe elsewhere; the Du Lor Trio are smart dancers; Ted Curtis and Pics are popular in song and dance; Sterling and Love appear with success in a new act; Rowland Hill, the popular "dame" of the Grand pantomime, renews his popularity; and Max Lauber, a nice whistler; Cissie Lupino, in a pretty transformation dance; and the Goodlow Trio, novelty acrobats, complete an excellent programme.

THE VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Clara Coverdale's Nine Dainty Dots provide a pretty song and dance scena here; J. P. Carroll, the military tambournist, gains much applause; and Arthur Harris, Radie Stuart, Archie Pitt, and the Three Favourites in a speciality burlesque, Park Pets, are all capable turns.

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—The Midnight Mail is being performed here by a capable company. Mr. George Harvard make a capital Harry Steyne; Mr. Fred G. Eveson gives an excellent study of Billy Brewer; Leonard Royle has an able exponent in Mr. Henry W. Hatchman; and Nancy Brewer and Mary Steyne have able representatives in Miss Mildred Carr and Miss Trissie Humphreys.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Geo. Ali and company hold premier position here this week in the laughter-compelling comedy sketch Papa's Day Off. Master James Hollom is distinctly good as Tommy; and others who assist in capital style are Walter Blagest, Jennie Lester, Bessie Harrison, and Fred Grove. The Delevines maintain their popularity in their briskly-worked comedy legmania act Flipp and Flopp; a good reception is being given to Miss Dorothy Dainty, a young Leicester lady with a phenomenal voice; Ed. E. Ford, the Australian sundowner, is aptly described as "President of the Face Trust"; Dot Stephens is again being accorded a flattering reception for her impersonations; the Lyric Quartette are heard to distinct advantage in their beautifully-illustrated harmonised numbers; Musical Silvo is very entertaining in his performance on the musical glasses and silvochimes; Miss Margaret Parker and company make a hit in their stirring interlude Jucky Jim, in which Miss Parker, in the name-part, is conspicuously successful; Frank Couch is a pattering comedian with original ideas; and the Bioscope is also a feature.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—Finely staged and acted, Mr. Wilfrid H. Benson's company are scoring a well-deserved success in the episode The Last Halt, in which Miss Mabel Wynn as Rebecca Marstein and Mr. Wilfrid Benson as Prince Paul Lerkoff are conspicuously successful. They are supported in good style by a most capable company. The Heseeys give a delightful, high-class, and refined musical act; Sinclair's Three Diamonds are making a hit in a smart exhibition as skate-dancers and vocalists, Little Babs displaying especial neatness as a toe-dancer; the Millwards are very clever in their feats of strength; Tom Garland scores as a ventriloquist of special ability; Bert Ward is an entertaining comedy whistler and raconteur; Bert Anderson is an expert conjurer. Bioscope pictures are also on the bill.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—The patrons of this home of animated photography can always depend on a first-class and diversified programme, the two chief films this week being To Save Her Soul and Custer's Last Stand, backed up by a full list of other films. Tom and Eileen Melbourne, in A Sentry-box and A Soldier and a Maid, are also appearing.

THE EMPRESS PICTURE PALACES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. P. W. Willard.—Both these halls are continuing to show pleasing pictures. A continuous change takes place each week.

LINCOLN.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The Pawnbroker, presented by Joe Peterman and George Ricketts' company, is being presented here by a smart combination; Gillin's ventriloquism is entertaining; a hit is made by Rousby and Rene in Fine Feathers, a Lancashire episode that is admirably presented; and Ada Gatley (in an equilibristic and wire act), Marion Scott and Harriett Rose (with chorus songs), Pat Lynch (wooden shoe dancer), and Dan Fraser (Scottish comedian) make up a bright bill.

LIVERPOOL.—STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week Mr. Junius Booth and his company are paying a return visit. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings they staged Monte Cristo. In the part of Edmund Dantes Mr. Booth played with considerable skill; Miss Lilian Deane was a delightful Mercedes; Mr. Miller Anderson filled the rôle of Nortier in commendable fashion; Mr. J. Sanger did everything necessary with Danglars; Mr. Harry Bannister made a good Mondego; an effective impersonation of La Carconte was given by Miss Alice West; Sophie Danglars was ably presented by Miss Lela Scarlett; and other worthy supporters were Messrs. J. Hawden (Villefort), Fred Martin (Abbé Fara), Charles H. Brooke (Caderousse), and Miss Jessie Blake (Marie). The rest of the week was occupied with Way Out West.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Top of the bill here this week is the famous Japanese actress Mme. Hanako and her company, who present The Tea House; Ella Retford, comedienne, brings her latest successes; the Keeley Bros., American athletes, present a smart comedy novelty, The Demonstrator; those lively comedians, the Ten Loonies, are as amusing as ever with their Dotty sketch; Woodhouse and Wells afford satisfaction with their singing and dancing; the Mezzettis cause shouts of laughter with "The New Recruit" tit-bit on the horizontal bar; an artistic entertainment of singing and dancing is presented by the Three Belle Belles; Edie King had a flattering reception for her dancing and singing; and Jewel St. Leger renders some popular songs.

LYRIC.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Her Fatal Marriage is here this week with Hinton and Green's company. Mr. Jerrold Heather handles the character of Zaco in powerful style; Miss Hilda Shirley shows high talents in the rôle of Myra Maletto; Mr. Colin Heather is well suited to the part of Wilfred Grey; and Dolly Dimple (Miss Laura Wright), Colonel Crichton (Mr. G. Mortimer Hancock), and Lily (Miss Winifred Rutland) are also well-played characters.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Here this week G. Osborne Burgoyne presents his company of English dancers in the ballet Les Idolatres, into which are introduced some remarkable forms and styles of dancing, Espinosa being among the artists; Lalla Selbini, the "American Bathing Beauty," has a novel act of juggling and trick cycling; the Five X-Rays are wonderful acrobats; Juno Salmo is a remarkable contortionist; Syd Walker is a smart comedian; Gladys and Alber have a neat comedy act; Moon and Morris please with their singing and dancing; Blake and Granby, comedy duologue artists, amuse greatly with The System; Philip Levard is a clever conjurer and illusionist; and Harry Zetter, comedian, also appears.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock dramatic company here are this week giving They All Love Jack, from the pen of W. R. Waldron. Mr. Harry Tresham looks the part of the heroic Jack Shelford; Mr. Sydney Grant acts with telling effect the rôles of Sir Philip Treherne and Abel Pugsley; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood capably impersonates Richard Penryn; Miss Lina Nazeby makes an excellent Margery Pugsley; Miss Gertrude Entwistle pleases greatly with her neat Phyllis Penryn; and worthy support also comes from Messrs. R. Seath Innes (Dr. Mason), Tom H. Solly (an amusing Larry Logan), Leo Montgomery (Pel Pugsley), E. D. Allen (Prison Warder), and Miss Florence Cameron (Rose). Brown's Bioscope shows The President's Special.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The big line here this week is Charles T. Aldrich, whose capital entertainment of quick changing and burlesque on modern conjurers is being richly enjoyed. The favourite comedian Fred Earle is here with his latest songs; The Half Caste is an exciting Indian episode presented in excellent style by Evelyn Beresford and company; a merry sketch, Our Mary Jane, comes from Florence Smithers; Wyndham and Kitty have a clever wire act; J. W. Hall keeps his audience in a merry humour; Harry Leybourne, at the piano, provides a neat turn; Harry May Hemsley is a smart caricaturist, and Jennie Hartley pleases with her singing and dancing.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—The Canadian Kilties Band is prominent here this week, making a last appearance in this country after a tour of the world. The clever efforts of the Abdullah Arabs are watched with interest; Geraldos perform some remarkable juggling; Olga's Oath is a stirring military sketch, well given by J. G. Grahame and company; Lady Mansel and her Juveniles repeat their neat "Concert Rehearsal"; Mitchell and Stott have a humorous gymnastic trifle, "The Clever Tramps"; and also in the programme are the Lyons Robertson Trio, tumbling pantomimists, and Dixie Dee, American comedienne.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—The amusing farcical comedy Where is William? is here, and excellent business is being done. Mr. Charles Windermere "hits off" the part of Sir William Gregory in laughter-provoking manner, and is ably supported by Mr. Rule Pigott, as the butler. The rest of the cast is in safe hands, and the mounting and dressing are deserving of mention. The Clown is a capital little curtain-raiser.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—In addition to an excellent pictorial display, we have the Vetter Bros., equilibristæ, in The Page's Recreation; Gicardo, juggler; and Fred Dunstone, humorist, from the Palace Theatre.

MAESTEG.—EBLEY'S OLYMPIC THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. Ebley.—The above place of amusment was opened for the season on Monday, a large audience attending. The piece chosen was The Prodigal Parson, when Mr. E. Ebley gave a clever portrayal of the Rev. Tom Godley. Equally good was Miss Edith Maitland as Vera Godley. The minor parts were well sustained.

PICTURE PALACE.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—The bill here is topped by the Frohmans, in an original musical turn; Joe Stirling, comedian, is funny; Li Chang Hi, illusionist, is smart; and Pictures complete.

MAIDSTONE.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ewart C. Potter.—This week Mr. Edmund Tearle's talented company has given a series of plays to good houses, winning great favour. In The Three Musketeers, given on three nights, Mr. Tearle played as D'Artagnan with skill and ability; Mr. Horace Price as the Cardinal was impressive; Mr. P. P. Miller made a striking figure of King Louis; Mr. Edmund Grogan as Count de Rochfort was successful; Mr. Bernhardt Turner in the rôle of the Duke of Buckingham was effective; Mr. Fawcett Lomax was an amusing Boniface; and the three Musketeers were represented by Messrs. D. J. Hogan, E. Lodge, and H. Pettitt. The chameleon character of Miladi was cleverly played by Miss Kate Clinton; Miss Mary Campbell made a typical Queen of Austria; and Miss Constantia Brooks a charming Constance.

MANCHESTER.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Mr. Oswald Gray, by arrangement with Mr. Morton Powell, presents here this week a revival of When it was Dark, Mr. Cray being seen to advantage in the part of the Rev. Basil Gortre, and capitally supported by his company, among whom Miss Lillian Herries is specially prominent as Gertrude Hunt. Mr. Edward Valentine plays strongly as Sir Robert Llewellyn, and Mr. C. Wordley Hulse is good as Schwabe. The play is well staged, and put on twice nightly.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Miss Ida Millais' company is attracting good houses here in No Man's Land. Mr. Henry Herne as Harry Oaklands is the mainstay of the cast, and he is well supported by Miss Marie Kildare as Mary Bathurst; while the sinister interest has excellent exponents in Mr. John Cecil as Silas Moore and Mr. Henry Cullenford as Mat Marsden. Mr. Henry J. Carlisle plays well in the dual rôle of Gilbert and Captain Bathurst. The humour is efficiently rendered by Mr. W. Mallalieu and Miss Emma Stockley.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—The bill here is headed by Fred Karno's Wontdetainia, which is much enjoyed, while prominent also are Frank Hartley, the famous young juggler; and the Brooklyn Comedy Four, in harmony and humour. Other good turns are Phyllis Seymour, a neat dancer and vocalist; Gracie Lawn, comedienne and dancer; the Three Romas, gladiatorial wonders; and Bruce Green, the popular dame comedian.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company are here in répertoire, including Her Wedding Day, Moths, and Trilby, each play affording special scope for the undoubted talents of Miss Ward, his leading lady.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Joseph Hart's Futurity Winner is the top attraction here, well acted and sensationally staged; while the next place of honour is occupied by H. O. Wills, who is well described as the funny man with the funny voice; Harry Jolson, the American black-faced vocal comedian, is another popular turn; Sid Doody and Edie Wright, the American comedy duo, give a funny act; an athletic act by the Blessings is remarkably smart and effective; Cull Pitt's burlesque conjuring is racy and humorous; and other entertaining items are contributed by Evelyn Stoll, comedienne; the Grassis, novelty musicians and acrobats; and little Rosie Fitzgerald, featuring In Dreamland, a nursery nightmare.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Mr. Raymond Phillips, with his airship under wireless control, is the big attraction here this week, and full houses are the rule. Highly amusing is An Amateur Anarchist, well played by Carter Livesey and Lillian Rosebery, very ably supported by Leo Minster, who makes the most of his opportunities; Mlle. Camille Ober, a Parisian star vocalist, provides a pleasing turn with remarkable singing; Hasse and Mariette are Continental whirlwind dancers of merit; J. W. Wilson and Nellie Waring make a hit in song, dance, and talk; Tom E. Finglass, the cowboy coon, scores with "My baby"; Griff gives an excellent turn; Roma and Romani offer an enjoyable musical instrumental act; and the Sisters Jerome are exceedingly neat dancers. The bioscope pictures are particularly good.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—The Harmony Four, who top the bill here this week, are vastly amusing in quaint comedy; very pleasing are the Palace Girls, vocalists and dancers; Mephisto, the Mysterious, presents twelve illusions smartly and with decided success; and R. H. Douglas, the well-known monologue artist, gives a clever and bright act; Hanvarr and Lee are smart, as usual, in their comedy juggling act; Beatrice Allen sings nicely; Elise, Wulf, and Waldoff go through an exceedingly neat acrobatic and gymnastic performance; Harry Webber, Hebrew comedian, has some good patter; and Wilman is a good instrumentalist. Pictures, very interesting, complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—The celebrated actress and singer Decima Moore is to the front here this week, and meets with a deserved good reception, her turn being an artistic treat throughout. Viviana and company score a big success in The Toy Shop, a bright dancing act; Vesta Nixon is a smart comedienne and dancer; Rhoda Gordon, Scotch comedienne, has a charming style; John Beech and Norman Arding, ably assisted, presents a dramatic episode, Money's Power; Violet Bilton pleases with her singing of taking songs; Ward and Davis are amusing in Wanted, a Typist; and the Sisters Robertson are dainty dancers. The pictures are good as usual.

KING'S THEATRE, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Mr. Alexander Marsh and company, including Miss Carrie Baillie, are here this week, and, notwithstanding the hot weather, are playing to full houses. For two performances nightly the programme is very ambitious, and includes Leah, the Forsaken, Romeo and Juliet, and The Taming of the Shrew. All the plays are well staged and gowned, and great credit is due to the promoters of the enterprise. The company is a very capable one, and besides Mr. Marsh and Miss Carrie Baillie in the principal parts, includes Messrs. Wilson Gunning, William Morrison, jun., A. E. Walker, Lawrence Meade, Doan Gardiner, James Vernon, and the Misses May Grimshaw, Elly O'Dempsy, Edith Elkins, and others.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—The Silent Humorist is W. C. Field's new designation, and it fits him like a glove. He tops the bill here this week, and his clever juggling and eccentric business is greatly enjoyed. Friend and Downing, American comedians, are very funny; Lavail and Bodine go through a very graceful and clever gymnastic act; and the famous Lavilles are quaint comedy acrobats. Other good items are offered by Harry Luck, comedian; little Sadie Lundy, the child prima-donna; Dix and Dox, Continental musical grotesques; Gertie Rex, character comedienne; and the Spadonis, excellent dancers. The Unchanging Sea on the Bioscope is a good film.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—Harry Leslie's Comedy Cadets are here for the first time this season, and meet with a great reception; the Marvellous Days (of mental telepathy fame) and Little Myrtle Grove being particularly successful. Lulu Fancourt, soprano, sings well; Ernie Percival shines as a light comedian; Rene Steadman is a smart and charming comedienne; George Curzon, baritone, has a good voice; Roland Bailey is good at the piano; and last, but not least, Jimmie Pullin, comedian, is as popular as ever.

BIJOU ELECTRIC THEATRE (Erskine-street, Hulme).—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thos. Morrison.—A set of excellent films is presented this week, and includes Father and Son, Ranchman's Wooing, Rural Tragedy, The Hand of Fate, &c.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. F. Weathersby; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company has been presenting this week, with marked success, Mr. R. C. Carton's cleverly-written and droll farce Mr. Preedy and the Countess, and large audiences have revelled in the funny situations and witty lines contained in this most mirth-provoking piece. The all-important part of Hamilton Preedy is taken by Mr. A. W. Baskcomb, and he presents a splendid character study of the nervous but chivalrous little man; an excellent selection is that of Miss Nella Powys for the difficult part of Joanna Countess of Rushmore, the calm, resourceful woman of the world being admirably realised; the over-bearing, burly John Bounsall is capitally played by Mr. John Nesbitt; Mr. Cecil Humphreys makes an aristocratic and altogether admirable Earl of Rushton; the Hon. Robert Jennerway is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Hamilton Deane; the senility of the aged Lord Kinslow is cleverly suggested by Mr. J. D. Goddes; and Mr. Edmond Beresford as the solicitor Mr. Sidgrave is worthy of high commendation. Mr. J. McClintock Clive as Reginald Saunders, a dental surgeon, and Mr. Shirley Lea as Preedy's manservant contribute effective impersonations; Miss Violet Greville as Mrs. Sidgrave, Miss Ruth Bidwell as Emma Sidgrave, and Miss Ninon Dudley as Harriet Budgen make the most of their opportunities. The farce has been preceded each evening by The Change.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, South of England Hippodromes, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mayall.—This week's programme is headed by La Pia, the enchantress, who presents four effective dances, and her turn has evoked loud applause at each performance; Maud and Sidney Wood, duettists and dancers, give a much-appreciated contribution to the programme; Jack Mackenzie, comedian, is very good; Taree, the musical bushman, is a clever musical mimic; the Edward Marris Trio are most successful in their amusing farcical hit A Medical Muddle. George Lambton, juvenile comedian, and the Sisters Allen also contribute to the programme, giving pleasing and entertaining turns.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Under the Sole Direction of Mr. Charles Evans.—Mr. Charles Evans opened this popular place of amusement on Monday. This week's programme includes Violet Desmond, the favourite serio; Revene and Elton, acrobatic comedians and vaulters; Teddy Denham, character comedian; Eunice and Zena, pre-eminent instrumentalists; Poole and Maguire, in their refined comedy duo; and Cyclumina, in a wonderful electric cycling novelty. Last, but by no means least, come Lew Lake's Six Buster Browns, in their American vaudeville singing and dancing act.

MATLOCK BATH.—May's Smart Society Cadets, located in the Pierrot Pavilion on the promenade, are receiving satisfactory patronage. The company consists of Will Daniels, comedian; George Parry, light comedian; Miss Lilian St. Aubyn, comedienne; Miss Evelyn Hurst, descriptive vocalist; Ernie Barry, accompanist; and Jack Rean, comedian and dancer, who is also the manager. Their entertainment proves a thoroughly enjoyable one. Another combination, called the Mugs from Monte Carlo, are also here for the season.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—The Repertory Circuit Company this week presents Caste in a most creditable manner. Miss Beatrice Burdett is a refined Esther; Miss Lester Stephens is admirably adapted to the part of Polly; the Hon. George D'Alroy is in the capable hands of Mr. Clifford Pembroke; and Captain Hawtrie is finely played by Mr. A. Austin-Leigh. Mr. Arthur Dennis is a capital Eccles; Mr. Fenton Wingate an amusing Sam Gerridge; and the Marquise de St. Maw is efficiently portrayed by Miss Emmie O'Reilly.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Mr. Charles Graham and company with Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner are meeting with success. Miss Winifred Scott is a capable Miss Elizabeth; the part of Mistress Sarah Williams is well played by Miss Leonora Braham; Mr. Charles Graham makes a fine Captain Harry Peyton; the Major John Colden of Mr. Graham Phillips is deserving of praise; and Mr. Cecil Clayton does well as Mr. Valentine.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembyes.—Bosanquet, "the human violin," pays a return visit, and this wonderful instrumentalist is as successful as ever; Messrs. A. C. Lilly and company, with Drummed Out, do well; and Russell and Held, American song and dance artists; Dolly and Madge McCalla, song and dance artists; Billy Hobbs, comedian and dancer; Frank H. Fox, comedian; and the Empire pictures all do well.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—A capital show of pictures and an acceptable turn, submitted by Harry Harvey, comedian, meet with much appreciation here.

MORLEY.—ALEXANDRA PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Izon.—Empress, the handcuff queen, has again created quite a furore here. Numerous challenges have been made and accepted, and the clever manipulator of locks, bolts and bars, and strait jackets has come out of each attempt with flying colours. Amy Hall, termed the "pocket Vesta Tilley," is a local young lady, and has been repeatedly encored for her male impersonation; Chas. Cassell, descriptive vocalist, and Charlie Buxton, eccentric comedian, keep up the interest in the "show"; and amongst the pictures the film of the fight between Welsh and Daniels is a decided draw.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—In spite of the hot weather, big business is being done here. The bill is headed by Mr. Auguste Van Biene and company in a delightful sketch, Van Biene's Baby. The 'cello solos bring down the house. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meymott, in their sketch My Artful Wife, create roars of laughter; Henry and Tyler are wonderful cyclists; and other turns include Mr. G. H. Carlton, conjurer; Canard, a novelty comedian; and Lytton and Bland, in a dancing and dialect speciality.

TOWER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. H. Davy.—A large number of trippers daily visit the Tower and grounds. This week's programme includes the Three Royal Temples (vocalists), Louie and Wally, entertainers; and Mr. Harry Herd, an eccentric comedian. The Towerscope pictures are always excellent.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale.—A week of American humour has been arranged, and Mr. W. T. Ellwanger and company produce Who Did It? and The Peacemaker. The Mosaics give another sketch, entitled The Suffragette. All are well received.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—PALACE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Judith, the Woman who Sinned is here this week, presented by Miss Augusta Tullock, the authoress. Jack Carrington is excellently portrayed by Mr. Alex Young, and that of Judith by Miss Tullock. Other rôles are adequately filled.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Ever a favourite on Tyneside, Dan Crawley on Monday evening was enthusiastically applauded. Another popular turn is that of the Egbert Brothers, whose amusing and skilful tumbling furnishes abundance of wholesome merriment; Tom E. Hughes makes a big hit with his songs, whilst Harry Lamore is very successful in a smart entertainment. The Glenroy Troupe provide a pleasing turn, whilst Phil Rees' Stable Boys provide plenty of amusement; Fred Curran, comedian, is amusing; and Shirley and Ransome, in Jim's Pal, and Emma Don are quite successful.

NORTHAMPTON.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—Secretary, Mr. G. Skempton; Resident-Manager for Andrews' Pictures, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—The North Sea Fisheries is an instructive subject; the Indian's Bride, In the Frozen North, and Told in the Golden West are good dramatic subjects. Miss Margaret Payne successfully sings "Mother" and "Does the girl you've left behind ever wish you back again?" with illustrations.

THE COUNTY ELECTRIC PAVILION.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Lyle Edwards.—Over Silent Paths, a sensational American drama, holds the lead this week; The Buried Man of Tebessa and The Ordination of a Bonze, an interesting Buddhist ceremony, are highly interesting subjects. The principal week-end picture is The Wrestling of all Nations.

PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. E. Bentley; General-Manager, Mr. J. W. Borrowman.—Some fine subjects are in the bill this week, including His Chum, The Minstrel, Lieutenant Rose and the Spy, and Victims of Fate. The Messenger Boy Magician is a good comic.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Large audiences still continue the rule here, and the stock company has this week produced My Partner, which has been warmly greeted. As Joe Saunders Mr. Albert Sember submits a sterling impersonation; Mr. Ernest R. Allen gives a capable interpretation of Ned Singleton; Mr. Edward E. Louis makes an admirable Josiah Scraggs; Mr. C. Alan Hineson scores a success as Matthew Brandon; Mr. Lonnen Meadows is clever as Major Brett; Mr. A. S. Baker makes the most of Sam Brawler; Mary Brandon is played in capital style by Miss Kate Froude; Miss Fay Garnet Vayne submits a careful rendering of Grace Brandon; and Miss Effie Macintosh is happily placed as Rosey.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The pictures this week are unusually attractive, and Miss Marie Leonard sings some pleasing songs.

THE OLD SPRING GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt.—The Georgians Concert Party are here this week, and receive hearty greetings. They include Mr. Robert Carr (baritone), Mr. Sydney Loculynne (in mimic sketches), Mr. Bertram Banks and Mr. John Coran (clever musical humorists), Miss Ida Freeman, and Miss Roma Castille. The quartettes by the company are quite a feature.

THE NEST, ROSARY-ROAD.—Messrs. Goodman's Pierrots are still going strong here.

THORPE GARDENS.—Mr. F. Lynne's Madcaps, under the direction of Mr. Bert Gordon, are meeting with much approbation. Miss Cecil met with a slight accident on Monday, and is unfortunately temporarily indisposed.

NOTTINGHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The humorous ditties and business of Wilkie Bard keep his audience in a constant state of amusement, and the delightful vocalism of Gwennie Llewellyn is one of the most charming features of the week. Impersonations by a Ruschie are remarkably faithful; smart dancing and plenty of fun mark the sketch provided by Elsa Brull and Arthur Hemsley; the Bros. Dean are seen in a neat dance; an athletic turn by the Bros. Bright evokes applause; and the Musical Jees contribute a pleasing entertainment. Baby Boden, comedienne, Johnny Walker, comedian, and the Bioscope complete.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—With apparent ease John Clempert rids himself of manacles, strait jackets, &c., to the delight and astonishment of audiences. Walter Ellis and company present a laughable sketch, entitled The Sleep-walker; the Carmody Trio are expert jugglers; Anna Hope uses a fine voice to advantage in a song; the patter of Happy Attwood pleases mightily; Cullen, Carthey, and Little Cluley are amusing cross-talkers; Frances Hanlon dances animatedly; Reno's trick cycling is deservedly appreciated; and Ernesto's musical juggling is popular.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott commenced the last week of their stock season on Monday with The Ticket-of-Leave Man. Mr. Charles Draycott submitted a fine performance of Robert Brierley; Mr. Clinton Baddeley cleverly represented James Dalton; Mr. George Steel was a cute and alert Hawkshaw; Mr. Theo Balfour ably portrayed Mr. Gibson; Miss Nana Flensberg was a successful Sam Willoughby; Miss Issa Steel a charming Emily; Miss Louise Millward a most amusing Mrs. Willoughby; and Mrs. Charles Draycott a highly-appreciated May Edwards. The Octoroon, East Lynne, Sorrows of Satan, and Arrahna-Pogue have been presented during the week.

OLDHAM.—ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The Cowboy's Devotion is a capital picture of the Wild West, and The Egyptian Maid is a fine example of a picture in colour. Mr. Roger Alwyn contributes a good song.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The topliner here is a most dramatic picture—A Treacherous Maid. A go-as-you-please competition is very enjoyable, as is Mr. Leicester King's song.

OSBORNE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. William Hughes.—Charity and The Call of the Heart are a couple of most dramatic films. Several other pictures of interest are also thrown on the screen.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—An excellent variety entertainment is again the attraction here. Nerigne, classical artist, worthily heads the bill, and scores in both song and dance; Dick Francis, piano entertainer; Sharon, street musician; Harvey and Jesson, clog dancers; and Winona and King, in their clever rifle-shooting act, are repeating the successes they achieved last week; while fresh additions are Tom Craven, comedian; Elsie Craig, singer and dancer; and the Oowana Girls, comediennes and dancers, who all merit the applause liberally bestowed.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Will Stone; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—The principal films for the current week include Lieut. Rose and the Foreign Spy (Clarendon), Love in a Mining Camp, Brothers, and The Ranch King's Daughter. Mr. George E. Hedges contributes largely to the evening's enjoyment by his clever and up-to-date pianoforte selections.

WORKMEN'S HALL.—Manager, Mr. H. Solway.—An attractive picture programme is given, supplemented by the Bijou Juvenile Troupe in a refined musical scena.

PLYMOUTH.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—James and Jennie Jee have won popularity by their clever feats on the tight and revolving wire; the Three Pirmans score heavily in their comedy bar speciality, as do the Jaxons, a troupe of graceful dancers; Norman Telma is a clever contortionist; Reg Bolton provides a funny turn, "The Editor's Imp"; the Sisters Reeve are responsible for a pleasant interlude; and Allis and Cassatis appear in an entertaining sketch.

PORTH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—The Great Awakening holds the boards here, presented by Miss Olga Audre and company. Miss Olga Audre cleverly enacts Lola Selby; Mr. Herbert Barrs ably sustains the rôle of James Selby; Mr. Chas. H. Mortimer as Capt. Lambert is a success; excellent results are achieved by Miss Evie Conway as Molly Merton; and Mr. Ernest Kendrick and Miss Dorothy Oswald are funny. Other parts are well sustained.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur A. Horner.—Tom W. Robertson's celebrated comedy Caste receives an excellent rendering at the hands of Miss Cora Anson's company. Mr. G. W. Anson is true to the life as the drunken Eccles; Mr. T. A. Shannon is conspicuously successful as George D'Alroy; his loyal comrade Captain Hawtrey is capitally impersonated by Mr. Cecil Collins. The sympathies of the audience are evoked by the emotional acting of Miss Lydia Busch as Esther Eccles; and Miss Helen Vicary as the Marquise de St. Maur effectively conceives the spirit of the play. The lighter vein is skilfully developed by Miss Cora Anson (Polly) and Mr. W. Allison as the honest, bluff Sam Gerridge.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Mr. Frank Bertram presents us this week with that touching drama East Lynne. A good all-round company includes Mr. Frank Stone, who successfully portrays Archibald Carlyle, Miss Gwendoline Hay making an admirable Lady Isabel Carlyle; Mr. Alfred Holles, who gives a capital rendering of Justice Hare; and Miss Aerita Vivien, who is a charming Barbara Hare. The remainder of the cast has been well chosen.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—John Bull's Indian wrestlers, Gama, Imam Bux, Ahmed Buksh, and Gamu are a big attraction this week. They genuinely challenge all comers, and succeed in throwing their adversaries in a wonderfully short space of time. Gus Garrick's humour is irresistible; Kittee Rayburn delights with lively song; the Rangers are clever comedy acrobats; and other good turns include the Frantz Comedy Five, acrobats; Harding and Preston, duettists; and Charles Lilburn, comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The high standard of entertainment is fully maintained this week. Horace Goldin repeats here his demonstration of bewildering illusions, assisted by Jeanne Fransioli; Haley's Juveniles in song, dance, and pose reflect credit on their teacher; Victor Courtney, as Boots, gives an amusing turn at the piano; the Bros. Horne in their boxing sketch amuse; Rex Fox appears quite at ease on the wire; Walter King evokes plenty of laughter; Selby and Myers, Ruby Roya, and the picture of A Happy Home complete the programme.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—The Six Brothers Luck are paying a return visit with their nautical absurdity H.M.S. Perhaps; the famous Cinquevalli is exhibiting his wonderful dexterity with billiard balls, &c.; a clever comedian and dancer is Lupino Lane; the Two Mackays are clever young duettists and dancers; Clarke and Hayden, Prince Milner Trio of wire walkers, Sisters Wingrove, Stephens and Rennior, likewise appear with success.

PRESTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Clarkson.—The Irish musical comedy My Irish Molly is being presented here this week by a capable company. Miss Winifred Stuart gives a clever rendition of the title-rôle; Mr. John Medley is a manly Dennis; Mr. Gordon Robey makes an accomplished villain as Captain Vere; Miss Elma C. Turner as Lady Blanche plays and looks the part to perfection; Tim Doolan is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Edwin Firth, as is also Father McGuire by Mr. Kenyon Gray. Mr. Karl Edwards as the Cockney Billy is funny, and he is ably supported by Miss Katie Norris, who is a pert and vivacious Sally.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Much amusement is derived from Herbert Darnley's company in Private Potts, the title-rôle being enacted by that funny comedian Fred Kitchen, supported by a capable company comprising about fifty people; the Norman and Leonard Trio give a clever musical act; Field and Mansel (Charles and Retta), lightning picture painters, give a novel turn; Emmie Ames, comedienne, in "Emmie's Christmas Tree," is a pleasing vocalist; Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, sings a couple of good songs; and W. B. Raby and Bob Lloyd, comedians, also contribute. Private Muggins, V.C., is a capital film, and concludes.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Under the sole direction of Mr. Chas. Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Mr. John Lawson, the well-known Hebrew impersonator, has been appearing here this week, the chief items in a capital programme being Humanity and The Monkey's Paw. There have been big audiences at each of the two houses nightly, and the show has gone with a rare swing. In addition to the dramatic sketches named, there have been various musical turns of a thoroughly acceptable character.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. T. R. Price; Entertainment Manager, Mr. C. Price.—The Girl from Kay's has made a welcome appearance here this week, and there have been good audiences. Miss Florrie Millington plays the title-part with grace and charm, and she is admirably supported by a good all-round company. Mr. Baron H. Heron (as Joseph, the hall porter) and Master H. Pink (Pepper, the page boy) contribute materially to the fun of the production, and praise must also be accorded Mr. Charles Leicester for his imitation of a society Johnnie, and Mr. J. W. Hooper for his representation of Hoggenheimer. Dresses and scenery are distinctly good.

MARINA THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Attack.—There have been large attendances of the public at the Marina Theatre this week to witness the excellent series of animated pictures shown there. The Woolhaffe have made popular appearances in the smart comedy act.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—The Co-operative Varieties, Ltd., are presenting another good programme this week; Shirley Liggins' company of coloured vocalists produce a good comedy scene, entitled A Twilight Serenade; the Bros. Ethairien are droll eccentric comedians and burlesque parodists; Vasey and Ramsey introduce some clever dancing in their comedy act, Jerks, the Butler; Hinton and Wooten go through an exciting cycling football match; Harry Wenburn is a good patter comedian; Miss Kitty Marion is an accomplished vocalist; Messrs. Rhode and Roche are entertaining in their novel episode A Strange Meeting. The show concludes with a good bioscope film From Music Master to Highwayman.

ALL the living picture exhibitions continue to give excellent shows.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The Cinematograph Industrial Corporation, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Chas. Collins.—We have a grand selection of films here this week, and Little Dando is scoring well with his clever antics.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Hubert Helliwell's company are here with the Anglo-Indian play Passion of Life. Mr. F. Owen Chambers played well as Captain Horace O'Neal; and the hero, Jack Kenny, was presented by Mr. Hubert Helliwell. Mr. Basil Mitchell made an excellent villain of Ralph Flint; Miss Ada Hender did well as Belle O'Neal; Miss Maud Garth was a charming Nita O'Neal; and Alice Kenny was prettily presented by Miss Madge Maher. The comedy parts were well filled by Mr. Owen Edwin (Fergus MacKenna), Mr. Fred Luard (Dan Sprouts), and Miss Emily Lewis (Tilly Tripp). The other parts were carefully handled, and many exciting incidents were included. The Wrongs of Woman was announced for Thursday and Friday.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—Jake Friedman and company, in the burletta Happy Holland, give pleasure; the violin solos of Ada Pagini are well played; Robins and Collier give Miss Bacon's Easter Egg, and gain much applause; a very good athletic act is provided by Smith and Gibbs. Other clever turns include Alan Adair, light comedian; Paul Corrix and assistant, in novel equilibristic act; and Rex and Ford, eccentric cross-talk comedians.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—The Child of the Squadron, The Sorceress of the Strand, Modern China, Saved from the Tide, Embarrassing Legacy, Mystery of Temple Court, and other good pictures are shown this week. Mr. Tom Sherlock sings "O'Neill of Derry."

CENTRAL HALL, BLACKFRIARS-ROAD.—Proprietors, Messrs. Matt. Raymond Co.; Manager, Mr. A. H. Gilbert.—The Raymond pictures this week include La Seville, Telegraph Boy's Revenge, Sign of the Globe Hotel, Saved by Her Dog, Embarrassing Legacy, Skating Mania, The Gold-seekers, &c.

NEW CENTRAL HALL (PENDLETON).—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thos. Whiteley.—Among this week's films are Magda, Renunciation, Magic Fountain Pen, Hair Restorer, Sammy's Purse, The Hand, &c.

SHEERNESS.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham.—George the First, the marvellous educated chimpanzee, introduced by Dandy George, is a big attraction here; The Crisps, in a dancing scena, arouse interest; Dewson contributes an enjoyable turn at the piano; Hicks and Hunter, ice skate dancers, are successful; Ike Bradley, comedy cyclist, is smart; Mint and Mart, patter and paper-tearing couple; Tom Collins, comedian; Howe and Ardie, eccentric acrobats; and Sybil Ray, vocalist, contribute to a good programme.

SHEFFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—The Eve of Her Wedding is here this week. Though Nemo dominates the drama, all the other characters are effective studies in the hands of Mr. William Benge's clever company.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Ramsay.—At the World's Mercy is being played to delighted audiences by Mr. Carr Loates's company. Mr. Fred Muntz is the dashing representative of Captain Manley; Mr. Carr Loates is good as the shady solicitor, Jabez Barber; and amusing types are Mr. W. H. Irving's Charlie Smart, Mr. A. Burrows's Goldstein, Mr. F. Overton's Slouching Sam, Miss Clara Hall's Mrs. Rouke, and Mr. W. Leonard's Dan. As Alice Lloyd Miss Maggie Hobart is graceful and interesting, and Miss Alice Hunter as Rose and Miss May Douglas as Dot are excellent.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A well-varied bill of fare this week includes Mons. Rinaldo, the wandering musician; Mr. Pat Rafferty; Hans and Lux, in novel act; Keene and Adams, two smart artists; Mr. Courtice Pounds and company, in an amusing musical comedy sketch; the De Wynne Brothers, expert performers in their special line; Miss May Henderson, the vivacious "dusky coloured queen"; Mr. Charles Torbay; Mr. Jack Lane, the truly rural humorist; and the graceful and elegant Miss Nell Emerald, in new songs, dances, and chic dresses. Artistic pictures of topical events conclude.

THE HIPPODROME.—The Barrasford Co., Ltd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—The Pride of the Regiment has gripped large audiences this week; Mr. J. W. Rickaby supplies character songs, which amuse; the Sisters Doris and Frances are two accomplished dancers; the Lacori Family are graceful trapeze artists; the Six Ceylons appear in a novel tumbling pantomimic act A Dream in an Opium Den; and Miss Kitty Upton, a tuneful vocalist; Mr. Joe Conway, variety entertainer; Mr. Harry Rogerson, burlesque artist; and Mr. Will Allen, vocalist and dancer, are well received with deserved applause.

THE picture theatres—The Grand, The Central, The Palace, The Surrey, and The Imperial—continue to do excellent business.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—A Country Girl in London is being presented here by Mr. W. V. Garrod's company. Mr. Fred Wilberforce figures to advantage as Squire Hamilton; Mr. Charles Halling sustains with dramatic power the part of Frank Gordon; Mr. Scott Leighton plays cleverly as the adventurer Godfrey Clinton; Messrs. Owen Redmonde (Job Smithers), Frank Dallas (Henrick Oppenheim), Seymour Perry (Wilberforce Puddyphat), and Edward Ashton (Joe Button) provide the lighter fare; Miss Elsie Marriott Watson is an aceptable Gwendoline Gordon; Miss Alice Clarke gives excellent assistance in the comic element; Miss Maude Merrick depicts with feeling and naturalness the vicissitudes of Marjorie Hamilton.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Weston.—Mr. Morton Powell's excellent company is here, in A Girl's Temptation, by Mrs. Morton Powell. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne, a clever young actress, scores as Kate Stirling; Mr. Frank V. Fenn is a manly Guy Warren; Mr. Clifton Earle a delightfully villainous Mark Klaw; Miss Winnie Donovan and Miss Blanche Lee are both excellent in their respective parts; and a word of praise must be given to the comedy efforts of Miss Amy Corallie and Mr. Albert E. Mann.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—T. E. Dunville, with his quaint mannerisms and extremely comic effusions, stars here, and makes a big hit; Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls are huge favourites; and a well-liked turn is given by Lennie and Hast, in The Maid of Polaria. Lovely Lily Burnand is as chic as ever, and Ernest Cadle's Casey Army, with Will Murray as Mrs. Casey, is a medley of fun and frivolity. Others are Lily Lonsdale, Ernie Myers, and Metz and Metz.

PIER PAVILION.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Sait.—Mr. Alfred West's "Our Navy and Army" cinematograph exhibition is proving a very strong attraction here.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. L. Pareezer.—This week's attraction is provided by Miss Florence Baines in Miss Lancashire, Limited, which gave intense delight on Monday, when the company gained a hearty reception. Miss Florence Baines' amusing impersonation of Mary Ellen Thompson kept her audience in continual laughter, and she is alike successful in acting, singing, and mimicry; Mr. Charles Swinburne as Harry Higgins and Mr. David Donaldson as John Higgins make capable exponents; Mr. James E. Manning is well suited as Moses Goldberg; Mr. Joseph Burley ably characterises the rôle of Herbert Fox; Mr. Payne Fletcher gives a good portrayal of John Henry Thompson; and the Misses Joan Earle as Bertha Higgins and Miss Locker as Mrs. Thompson are both worthy delineators.

LUNA PARK AND PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Hilton; Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—The two daily programmes are well supported this week. The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, ably presented by Mr. Arthur Watson's company, gains much favour; while the dances of the Vera Troupe and the musical items are additional features of enjoyment. The principal exponents include Messrs. Arthur Watson, Robert Leardo, Aubin King, and Harry Neilson, and the Misses Flo Stanley and Beatrice Hayden. Some clever dancing by Eddie Granton, a comedienne who pleases, wins recognition; the Sisters La Blanche, in duets and dances, entertain successfully, as also do the Leonards in a like turn; Rosa Neilson is a good transformation dancer; and Levano gives a clever tumbling performance.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless.—Trilby is the attraction here this week, and is presented by Miss M. Lowe-Dare and company admirably. Mr. Ernest Dare gives a convincing impersonation of Svengali, and shares principal honours with Miss M. Lowe-Dare, whose interpretation of the title-rôle is ably sustained; Mr. Jack Leyland is well suited as Little Billee; Messrs. E. Vere Montague and Gordon Meagor as Taffy and Sandy enact their respective parts creditably, as also do Mr. Arthur Foster as the Rev. Bagot and Mr. Lionel Waltham as the Concert Manager. Miss Maggie de Hallé makes a strong exponent of Mme. Vinard; and Miss Hope Willoughby is a pleasing Gecko.

THE HIPPODROME.—Salge's Animated Sculpture is at the Hippodrome this week in an exhibition of a very attractive character; the Kennedy Girls are clever dancers and acrobatic performers, and are as popular as ever; Clark and Hamilton are good in an amusing creation, "New York, London, or Paris"; Tommy Clifford is a clever ventriloquist; Henriette and Selina play cleverly on several instruments; while Karr and Kooney tell some funny stories. Aimee Roberts is a vocalist of a high order, and is accorded a hearty welcome; Goodfellow and Gregson, a comedy couple, and Robb Wilton complete the programme.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—The Eyes of the World, by Charles Darrell, is being played here by Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company. Miss Ethel Van Praagh as Hélène de L'Orme captivates by her powerful and emotional acting; Mr. J. Edward Whitty depicts M. Achille Fanfarade in good style; Mr. Charles O'Connor (Hector de L'Orme), Mr. Guy P. Ellis (Gaston de Carnac), Mr. Royce Carleton (Octave), and Mr. R. Wilton Bedford (Paul Roqueville) are all well placed. The same may be said of Miss Flora Hastings (Esmé de Carnac),

David Collins.—Mr. J. Forbes Knowles and company presents here Her Marriage Vow. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles makes a capital Ned Benton; Mr. W. Burgess as Gilbert Carlton was a success; Mr. Harry C. Momber in the rôle of Daffy Dan gave a capital impersonation; Mr. Joe Rockley as William Walters also did good work. The heroine, Kate Walters, was cleverly portrayed by Miss Effie Bartlett; Miss N. Shirley did justice as Hester Horton; and the comedy element was in the capable hands of Miss Nancy Lawrence and Mr. Richard Nugent.

PICTURE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Sleep.—A successful programme of pictures is given here by the A.B. Electric Picture Company, the leading subjects being Gold Is Not All, The Fence on Box Two Ranch, Generosity of An Indian Chief, The Twisted Trail, Foolshead on Skates, Lieut. Rose the Gun Runner. An excellent variety turn is given by the Sisters Lillian.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Mr. Morton Powell's company occupy the boards this week in Brought to Ruin. Mrs. Morton Powell appears as Miss Minnie Waters, and her clever acting of a difficult part gains her much favour; Miss Geraldine Verner is also successful in the emotional character of Jessie Burton; Mr. Harry Scott leaves nothing to be desired in his portrayal of the faithful sailor Harry Hailing; and Mr. Richard Vane is remarkably good in the double character of a rone and a judge in Philip Dare; the fun of Mr. Sydney Bryant as Jack Jossie adds much to the enjoyment of the play; and Miss Jeannie Bisley gives a good sketch as Lucy Lawton; the Solomon Sleek of Mr. Alaric Burton is well played.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Elmo and Rego are most amusing in their knockabout; and Lindsay and Hart are also very humorous; Ada and Gertie are sweet little songsters, and gain great applause; the Sylvester Trio sing and dance in fine style; and Karl Cynski as the one-man band, is excellent; Helen Martin captures the audience with a new patriotic song; and Lily Arthur dances daintily; Jack E. Roseve's turn is also a capital one.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. W. Graham Arthurs' company in The Mockery of Marriage is attracting large audiences here this week. Mr. W. Graham Arthurs impersonates the character of the villain, Sir Montague Jephson, with power and skill; Mr. Ernest Wingfield acts in manly style as Jack Stanley; Mr. Lowe Mackenzie's acting as Seth Pearse is impressive; Alva Kenyon is capably represented by Miss Mabel Elliott, and Miss C. Middleton acts charmingly as Rose Verham; and Mr. David Phillips as Toby Wright and Miss Ada Band as Mary Ann Barnicott are amusing.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Mr. Montgomery's company continues to entertain patrons here with The Mysteries of London. As the villainous Frenchman, Victor Levigne, Mr. S. E. Scanlon acts effectively; Mr. Stanley S. Gordon makes an acceptable Philip Conway; Lena North is sympathetically impersonated by Miss Nina Vaughton; and Miss Lillian Radburn praiseworthily fills the character of Sybil Grey; whilst the comedy parts are exceptionally excellent in the hands of Mr. Harry Cooke as Dick Coppem and Miss Mabel Tremane as Liza Stumps.

STOKE.—THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Mr. Stanley Carlton and company are this week presenting the drama by Arthur Shirley indicative of the white slave traffic, entitled Her Life in London.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE VARIETY HALL AND PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—Yettmah, assisted by O Sasa San, heads the bill here this week with his marvellous Anglo-Japanese magic act; the Sisters Dudley are operatic vocalists of extraordinary merit; Surrey and Carlton appear in a capital comedy sketch She Would be an Actress; the Two Daniels are first-class negro entertainers; and Sylvene, a novel equilibrist, foots the bill and does a smart turn. The pictures are above the average, and give general satisfaction.

SUNDERLAND.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. Will Casey's company is playing here this week in the drama The Unwedded Wife. Miss Chrissie Dunbar is in the rôle of Marion, and displays great histrionic ability; Miss Ethel Spence is capital as Elsie Langham; and little Doris Sorsby gives much promise as Reggie; Mr. L. Ernest makes a satisfactory John Hawthorne; and Mr. Arthur Cheeves is equally good as Frank Armstrong. In the rôle of Philip Blackstone, Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes proves himself a capable stage villain; and Mr. Joe Wright is well placed as Christopher Lennox. The comedy is in the excellent hands of Mrs. Will Casey and Messrs. Will Casey and Frank Masters, whose united efforts cause much amusement.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Cora Roland, comedienne, is here this week; Doyle and Gibson contribute smart work; and the pictures are excellent.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The bill here this week is headed by Charlier, ventriloquist and comedian, whose humorous performance is warmly received; Charles Norton makes a hit with his cleverly delivered mimetic monologue, Pros at the Races; Helen Charles is popular with good juvenile impersonation; Johnny Fuller does some smart acrobatic work and clever feline impersonations; the simultaneous dancing and repartee of Ike and Will Scott are keenly appreciated; the Five Vernons supply a good musical turn; Conan and Doyle, comedians, and Millie Payne, low comedy artist, also appear with success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Hamilton's Picture and Variety Co.; General-Manager, Mr. Archer Hamilton.—Captain Deveraux's Dogs create much amusement here; Godfrey Price sings "The Trumpeter" in capital style; Mozetto, juggler, performs feats of skill; and the pictures are good.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—This theatre reopened on Monday evening with an attractive variety programme. The Sarnthaler Troupe of Tyrolean Singers head the bill, and are enthusiastically applauded; Jimmy Grant, Scotch comedian, is successful; Otto Crusino, vocalist, sings nicely; Starley Brothers give a clever cycle act; Arthur George, comedian, is amusing; the Sisters Lavender, comediennes, are much appreciated; Maisie May, comedienne, pleases; and Milton Ray's comedy duo, The Puzzled Coroner, in which Messrs. A. Milton and George Leigh appear, cause much fun.

COUNTY ELECTRIC PAVILION.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur E. Melborne.—An interesting set of films is provided here, including The Broken Spell, King of Beggars, Mr. Poorluck's First Tip, Races at Heliopolis, Dutch Children, Young Deer's Gratitude, and Bride of the Haunted Castle.

TORQUAY.—PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—"The March Hares" are proving a great attraction here this week. Miss Beatrice Read, a talented vocalist with a charming presence, is a great favourite; Miss Doris Lind is a popular comedienne; Miss Sybil Clare performs with considerable skill; and Mr. Bernard Ansell is a baritone of much power and ability. Mr. Edmund Hollick is a humorous entertainer, and Mr. Davy Burnaby keeps the house in laughter; Mr. Philip Braham at the piano is very acceptable.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Palace Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Minnie Kaufmann, trick cyclist, heads the bill this week, and on Monday night received a flattering reception; Chinko, juggler, is paying a welcome return visit; Scholey and Scholey are seen to advantage in a comedy act entitled Winning a Wager; Lil Elfreda is a mimic of ability; Bromley and Fontein score in sketch entitled The Man Behind the Music Stand; Ciss and Will, juvenile duettists and dancers; the Seymons, in juggling act; and Henry A. Moore, monologue artist, also contribute to the programme; the Palace orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Percival Goffin, continue to please by their various and well-rendered selections. Animated pictures conclude.

WAKEFIELD.—NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Francini, Olloms, and Page give a fine acrobatic and musical turn; Bennett and Martell, comedians, create much merriment; Miss Elise Malpass is a smart juvenile mimic and dancer; Clarke and Mostel, comedians, are capital dancers; Waul Langtry, comedian, is amusing in song and patter; Cavallis is a clever ventriloquist; and the Emson Girls are dainty comediennes and dancers.

HIPPODROME.—The stage was occupied on Monday and Tuesday nights by local talent in a complimentary benefit to the permanent staff, when there were two overflowing houses.

WALLSEND.—PREMIER ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. T. F. McDonald.—A strong bill is provided here this week, the chief films being St. Elmo (Vitagraph), Indian Blood (Selig), The Way of the World (Biograph). Billy Clithro, comedian, receives a hearty reception.

ROYAL PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. T. McHary.—Silent Paths and The Gold Seekers are the chief pictures this week. Frank Stanert, comedian, is seen to advantage.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE. — The Andos Happy Little Japs provide the chief turn this week, and are very clever; Harry Herbert is a smart eccentric comedian; Lillie Lassah is a dainty comedienne and dancer; the Beautiful Lillian as a trick cyclist is clever; Charles Fisher's Vocalesques are a fine trio of vocalists. The pictures are particularly interesting.

THE ELECTRIC PALACE.—Some fine pictures are to be seen here this week, chief amongst the series being a film entitled Love's Stratagem; the picture A Daring Performance is a fine animal study. Other pictures worthy of mention are the Mistaken Identity and Caleno Tries Cold Water Cure.

IMPERIAL HALL.—The pictures here are very good, St. Elmo being a most touching story. Other films are up to the usual standard at this popular hall. Vocal turns are provided by the Delroys and C. France, and are much appreciated.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—The Blue Myths are here again this week, and their refined vaudeville entertainment is meeting with appreciation. The pictures, showing views of North Wales, are a charming collection.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—The remarkable American illusionist Sears is here this week, and his mystifying tricks astonish all; Johnny Danvers and Eva Rosslyn score in the sketch A Pantomime Boy; Velanche's canine troupe are well trained; Sissie Brand is a delightful comedienne; Miss Elsie and her cousin Bob score well in a series of fine balancing feats; Harold Heath is a smart coon singer and dancer; and the Vaudeville Trio are good vocalists and dancers. The pictures are good.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—Witty Wattie Walton is scoring well here with new business; Lillie Black has made many friends with her up-to-date songs; Rose Gower is a charming chorus vocalist, and Terry and Tate are thoroughly versatile artists. The pictures are again a delightful assortment.

GRAND.—Proprietors, The Palatine Company; Manager, Mr. Sidney Felton. — This house was opened on Monday by Mr. Harold Smith and Lady Greenall. It is a charmingly cosy place, and an excellent series of pictures have met with due appreciation.

WASHINGTON.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Lessees, The Alexandra Theatre Co.; Secretary, Mr. Joe Turnbull; Stage-Manager, Mr. Ned Johnson.—Mr. Walter Steel presents A Fast Life here this week. Mr. Fredk. Garrett is acceptable as Sir Oliver Franklin; Mr. J. Hamilton does well as the Bank Manager; a song and dance by Billie Burke (Mr. W. Barrett) gains loud applause; Mr. E. Kingsley as Lord Craven scores heavily; Wheatcroft is capably played by Mr. Hal Howles; Mr. J. Selwyn is successful as Lockfast, the warder; Mr. J. Moffatt is effective as William; Miss B. Hone scores as Lady Franklin, and Miss Maud Ryder sings her songs pleasingly.

WELLINGBOROUGH. — KING'S PALACE.—In addition to other interesting pictures shown here this week, the proprietors have enterprisingly pioneered a local cycle parade, that is drawing very large audiences. The turns are Bu-Val, who has, and deserves, the title of the "Happy Dutchman"; Connie Isca, a capital vocalist; and Clare and Pastor, in song and dance.

EMPIRE.—This week's programme is giving great satisfaction. Chief honours are carried off by Blanche and Diacoff, in their sensational turn "Cycling the Whizz," a daring performance; Memora's marvellous memory proves equal to all calls; Will Godwin acts powerfully as the drunken husband in Night and Morning; and other turns include Rene, a clever little juggler; Roy Bevis, Cissie Carter, Josie Neilson, Dan Scott, Arthur Hayes, and Queenie Doris.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Under the direction of Mr. Montague Beaudyn Her Kingdom of Love is being played to crowded houses. Mr. Beaudyn's portrayal of Rupert is strong and lifelike; Colonel Strelsburg is smartly played by Mr. D. Eckersley; Miss Muriel Inglis makes the most of her character of Baroness Von Holden; and Miss Irene Munroe acts with womanly feeling as Kate Forrest. Mr. A. A. Tomlins, in conjunction with Miss Phyllis Rae, are all that can be desired as Sergeant Devries and Marie; Major Halstein is well played by Mr. C. D. Pitt, and the same applies to the Captain Devries of Mr. George Overs.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. R. Colin; Manager, Mr. R. Colin, sen.; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ted Leamar.—A fine set of pictures is being shown here this week, interspersed by some excellent turns. Jenny Starr, comedienne, is well received; as also is King Leo, who gives a smart ventriloquial turn; Bella Leaburn contributes some catchy songs; and a clever musical speciality by the Leonas.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. F. Thompson.—Mr. Bert Coote as Harold Tapsley Framingham in the amusing A Lamb on Wall Street is delightful, and is ably supported by J. C. Aubrey and Ada Russell; Callahan and St. George, in a pretty character Irish study, The Old Neighbourhood, introduce some effective harp solos and Irish humour; Stewart and Morgan have a hearty welcome; the Four Mayos, in an eccentric skating act, are smart; Gwennie Hasto, in speciality dance, is grace personified; Frank Lynne is a funny comedian; and the efforts of Dion Wade always result in hilarity.

QUEEN'S RINK.—Mr. Maxstead, of the Empress, with his usual enterprise, has made this the home of his troupe of Royal Entertainers when the weather is unfavourable to them appearing in the open on Seaton's beautiful foreshore. A change of programme is announced for this week, Messrs. Adeler and Allandale's company appearing in The Gay River. The company appearing are Horace Jones, Starrie Fawn, Forde Roberts, Reg Manning, Ted Roberts, Arthur Parry, Myles Clifton, and Misses Edie Fawn, Marie Leigh, Peggy Tolgarthen, Marie Wilson, and Carrie Parry.

PALACE.—Black's Popular Pictures go as well as ever, packed houses twice nightly being the result of the excellent programme submitted. In addition to the pictures a pleasing turn is contributed by George Leonara, a blind musician, whose mastership of the concertina is indisputable; and Hayman and Houghton, comedians, who create laughter by their comedy and their parody on "Kelly."

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — GRAND PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—Another attractive bill is provided here this week. Maude Courtney and Mr. C.'s songs and patter prove delightful; the Cheers, with their educated cats, are loudly applauded; the Victor Brothers are clever as equilibrists; Joan Deering is a charming singer who plays her own accompaniments on the violin; Fields and Lewis evoke much laughter by their burlesque; and the Vanderbilts are an acceptable turn; Miss Florence makes a hit with her mimicry; and Mr. Lambert, as usual, shows some beautiful pictures.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Theatre Royal Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—This is the last week of the stock season here. On Monday and Tuesday The Octoroon was produced, Mr. Leonard Thackeray appearing as George Peyton. Mr. Henry Parr was good as Jacob McClosky, and as Salem Scudder Mr. F. B. Woulfe played in his usual forcible manner; Mr. Alf Raymond was an excellent Pete; as Wah-no-Tee Mr. Eddie Vane acquitted himself creditably; Miss May Irene Wright was a capable Mrs. Peyton; and as Zoe Miss Edith Lorraine gave entire satisfaction. Miss Josephine Richards did full justice to the part of Dora Sunnyside.

WEYMOUTH. — PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—Mr. Frank Weathersby's company are appearing in John Glayde's Honour. Mr. F. Pennington Gush scored a success as John Glayde, and Miss Lilian Hallows as Muriel Glayde was very effective; Mr. Hal Charlton played the difficult part of Trevor Lerode with care; Mr. Alfred Brandon was good as Howard Collingham; as also Mr. Leslie Bennett and Mr. Arthur Gibbons as Christopher Branley and Michael Shurmur. Miss Victoria May Holmes gave a capital rendering of the Princess Castagnary; Miss Viola March was very charming as Lady Lerode; while Mrs. Rennick and Dora were faithfully impersonated by Miss Phyllis Hume and Miss Kitty Crighton. Mr. Theodore Kelly was a capital Walters.

WHITLEY BAY.—WHITLEY PLEASURE GARDENS, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. A. Peuleve.—The following are appearing here: Sadod, the world's greatest original juggler; Mi Narom, the star comedy girl; Ruffell's pictures; Royal Quintette International Dancers; the Danbys, eccentric comedians and dancers; Morrisey, balancer and musician; Sisters Lyelle, character duettists and dancers; Dan Whitley, comedian; Dolly Hook, comedienne; Reuben Hill, actor-vocalist; Victoria Carmen, ballad vocalist; Harry Dungo, comedian; Gipsy Earle, soprano vocalist; and H. A. Griffiths.

COLISEUM.—Managers, Messrs. A. Blake and Fred Patterson.—In addition to some excellent pictures, the chief variety turn is contributed by Master Victor, the wonderful juvenile violinist.

WIGAN. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Uncle Tom's Cabin is being presented here by Mr. Charles Harrington's No. 1 Company. As Uncle Tom Mr. J. H. Boehm is successful; Mr. Claud Graveley gives a capital impersonation of Mr. St. Clair; Mr. E. Leonard is powerful as Dan Haley; and George Harris finds an able exponent in Mr. Eric Williams. Miss Gem Lloyd proves herself to be a talented little actress as Eva; while Miss Ethel Vernon as Aunt Ophelia and Miss Annie Watson as Topsy capably occupy the humorous rôles.

PAVILION.—Lessees, The U.S.A. Animated Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Fletcher Sansome.—Some capital films are presented here this week. The principal picture is The Unchanging Sea, a dramatic illustration of the toil and strife of fisherfolk; On the Borders is an exciting story of American life amongst the cowboys. Other dramatic films are The Livingstone Case and At the Eleventh Hour. Susan's Revenge and The Bald-headed Corporal are the comics.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Ball.—A change in the usual run of heavy dramatic fare is provided this week in the engagement of Mrs. Frank Bateman's company, who are appearing in Sapho, Camille, and No Wedding Bells for Her. The first-named was produced on Monday night, and in the title-part Mrs. Frank Bateman displayed conspicuous ability, and received adequate support from Messrs. Fred W. Goddard, Charles Clifford, Harry Aynsleigh, Percy Shaw, and Mesdames Mattie Everett, Lily Shaw, and Winnie Redfern.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Top of the bill here this week are the Elliott-Savonas, who present their well-known musical show in a most gorgeous stage setting; Jock Whiteford is well to the fore in his humorous Scotch songs; Barnes and Ascott win loud applause for their clever wooden shoe dancing; Edith Haley, in masculine attire, sings charming love songs; Senorita Eloina executes graceful feats on the trapeze; Tom Lee is a smart light comedian; and Miss Florence, with illustrated songs, completes.

WORTHING. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Malcolm Spurgin.—The opera company controlled by Cavaliere Castellano is on a welcome return visit here.—La Traviata was given on Monday, Rigoletto on Tuesday, and other operas in the répertoire include Lucia di Lammermoor, Cavalleria Rusticana, I Pagliacci, Il Trovatore, Faust, Il Barbiere di Siviglia, and Carmen.

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—An attractive programme is presented here this week. Brothers, an excellent British Dramatic picture, and Too Many Admirers are the leading pictures here. Other pictures shown are In the Mirror, Daddy and Mammy, The Right Decision, The Champion Bowl Player, and Isis. The cinephone sings all the latest songs.

YORK.—OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—There is a capital company engaged this week. Binns and Binns have been warmly applauded; Alcide Capitaine is a clever and daring gymnast; Gertie Martini is a sweet singer; Geo. Antill is a funny comedian; and the sketch given by the Oakes Duo is an enjoyable item. Senor ngel Blanco, the accomplished violinist, is heartily received; and the Phœnix Trio, the Rowntrees, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

VICTORIA HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr. Bert Rutter.—A Heart of Gold is a highly dramatic picture, and Davy Crockett and Caught in the Wind are warmly applauded. The comic films also are well received, and Nellie Neall is a popular singer.

PRINCESS BARIATINSKY, the Russian actress, whose appearance at His Majesty's last season in Hedda Gabler and other interesting plays is well remembered, and who will shortly appear at the Théâtre Michel, Paris, in a new modern play, entitled Le Meilleur Moyen, written for her by two French authors, has for her special ambition a London success in an English piece, and she is improving her acquaintance with our language with that object. It will be remembered that Mme. Modjeska, a popular West End actress, always spoke with an accent which did not detract from her charm.

"ARLECCHINO: A ROMANCE OF THE FOOTLIGHTS."

BY J. H. WRANGHAM.

From the most unlikely sources come strange happenings. Tiny tragedies tremble in sordid places, and pink-tinged romance occasionally illumines sombre surroundings. To the ordinary observer the last places to look for real tragedy or romance are those Hippodromes controlled by Flathead Brothers in Cottonopolis. But one such delicate idyll did occur at the Cowes Theatre, Cottonopolis. The Flathead Brothers, seeing that their clientèle were getting sick of the yellow-haired, raucous comediennes, who could not sing, and whose wit consisted only in the unsavouriness of the things not said, of comic men who were obsessed by the "lodger gag," had engaged an artist known as Arlecchino to appear in a new dumb show play. Arlecchino—or, to give him his right name, the Hon. Denzil Fane is sitting in his dressing room in his make-up reading an anonymous script which he was to play that night.

"I do not know the author," mused Arlecchino, "but his play is exquisite. There is in it tears trembling on laughter and real fun, making its pearls of pathos shimmer as if the sun had kissed them. Yes, I've got my chance, and for the kiddie's sake I'll take it. Otherwise I should not care. I thought I was alone except for my other and my better self, both derelicts on a Dead Sea of hopes forgotten, of ambitions frustrated, of desires denied. My wife had dishonoured me, denied me, defied me, left me. So I chucked the world social. I climbed down or up, as the good God pleases, into Bohemia. And what a beautiful world is Bohemia. There are two very beautiful things in this world. They are to love and to suffer. To give to others, not out of your plenty, but to pinch it from your poverty and deny yourself."

There came a knock at the door, and in response to Arlecchino's "Come in" there entered a very striking child of fourteen, with a pathetic face—a face not exactly beautiful, but fascinating, with its dark eyes, scarlet lips, ivory complexion, and bronze hair. It is Joan Howarth Fane, Arlecchino's only child, and his one treasure on earth.

"Are you nearly dressed, daddy?"

"Yes, sweetheart," he replies, drawing her to him. "My darling, are you happy, quite, quite happy in this nomad life of ours, or would you rather be back in the cloistered calm of convent walls?"

"Quite, quite happy with you, father. Of course, if you say so, I will go back. You are my world. What you say is Mosaic law—I obey. But I am afraid I should greet, Daddy. In this world of ours there is life and light and colour. In the convent, beautiful as the sisters are, the outlook is drab and drear."

"Then you shall not go back, my dear, my sweetheart. You shall not go back. You shall be a child of joy, not a little sister of grief."

"Father, I have never questioned you before, but I am growing into a woman, and I want to know something."

"Yes, dearest, growing into a woman, and, I thank God, pure womanly. What is it you want to know?"

"Where is my mother? Other children have mothers. They used to come to the convent and see them and kiss them and cry over them. No mother has ever come to see me."

"Your mother, dear, went a long, long journey from us many years ago. She left you with me because, at the bidding of an inexorable law she followed the passionate impulse of a perverse nature. But she left you with me. She left you with me, thank God for that."

"Then, Daddy, you do not want me to ask you more."

"No, dear, no. How is your throat?"

"It feels very bad, daddy, and the cough hurts."

"Does it, dearest? Come and lie on the sofa." It is only a fragile little body that Arlecchino carries to the sofa and covers up with a rug. Then he rang the bell, and kneeling by his child, chafed her hands until his dresser answered his summons. "Go to Mr. Musgrove, Simmons, and ask him if there is a doctor in front. If not, will he 'phone for one?"

"Yes, sir," replies the dresser, and he silently leaves the room.

"Are you easier, darling? The doctor will be here directly."

"Yes, daddy, much easier. Tell me your part again."

"My dear, it is a beautiful conception. It is a splendid idea. An idea into which is wrought sentiment embroidered with a silver crochet needle of phantasy and woven with a scarlet thread of passion which is shot with the gold of chastity. Grim tragedy is also worked into it—the pathos of mean streets, the epitome and essence of those tiny tragedies which lie just beneath the surface of our everyday existence, but worked into the scheme with worsted. It is the worsted issues millions know. Most of us, dear little child, have sometime felt the sap of life spur us on to fine ambitions. The fine ambitions are choked by the worsted of commonplace, strangled by the wool of circumstance. Too few of us find the scarlet thread shot with gold.

A voice interrupted them—the voice so often heard at the back of a playhouse: "Beginners, please. Beginners, please. Beginners, please," and then Simmons came into the room, followed by the doctor. He was a young, pleasant-looking man, who went straight to the little girl and examined her.

"Your child?"

"Yes, Joan Fane."

"Bad case of diphtheria. Can your dresser go to the front of the house. In the dress circle he will see a nurse in uniform."

"Do you hear, Simmons? Go at once. She will get better, doctor, she will get better? Tell me she will get better. In storm and stress, in times when the pinches of life's bruises, which are poverty's reward, pressed hard, I and the kiddie faced the music bravely. Her little kisses made a man of me. If she goes to the Great Beyond I shall be alone in a sea of anguish—derelict, without a plank of hope."

Once more the raucous voice at the door: "Overture."

"I can't go! I won't go!" came harshly from the artist's lips. "How can I play the fool when the kid may be dying? Has Punch no feelings? God tries us all very hard, but this is the limit. How can I play?"

"I am not going to talk platitudes, Signor Arlecchino," said the doctor, softly, "but your duty is on the stage. Human skill and God's mercy can help your child. That skill and that mercy shall be given to your child."

"The curtain is up. It is only two cues off you, sir," said Simmons, bursting in.

Arlecchino knelt by his child and kissed her. "Good bye, little one. If I make a success and you do not win through they will be faded laurel leaves I place on your grave. If you do live they will be green for ever," and without another word the actor went towards the footlights.

"Where's the nurse, dresser?" said the doctor at the door of the dressing-room.

"She is here," and Simmons ushered a lady attired in the neat uniform of the hospital nurse into the room.

"You want me, doctor?"

"Yes," replied the doctor, with difficulty making her hear through the applause and cheers which came from the front of the house. "Serious case of diphtheria. She is sleeping now. The child should be removed, but it is too critical to chance it."

"What is the child's name?" asked the woman, who was known in her hospital as Nurse Danvers.

"Joan Howarth Fane."

"Doctor—God help me, it is my child!"

"Your child," he returned aghast.

"Yes, my little child. In the days that are dead I left my husband for my lover. It was Guinevere over again, and Launcelot overshadowed King Arthur. I left my baby—I could not rob my husband of everything. And now she is dying, and I can do nothing!"

"Yes, you can. When my assistant comes you can help me. Where is the man you went away with, and why are you a nurse?"

"The night I stole away from home—the night I left honour and respect behind me there was an accident to the train in which we travelled, and Gerald Dare was crippled. I tended him. He grew to hate his sin and despise his fellow-sinner."

"But your husband divorced you. Why did not the man marry you? He was by way of being a gentleman?"

"Because I would not. He had ceased to love me, and though, doctor, I was an adultress in thought I was not in deed. Since then I have worked and suffered."

"Where is Dare now?"

"He died this morning with his hand in mine. I came here to-night to fulfil his last desire. His final work, his swan song, was the tiny drama which Arlecchino is playing now. Listen to the cheers, the laughter, the applause," she broke off to listen to the acclamations which were swelling up to them from the auditorium. "Arlecchino's success is his atonement, his expiation."

They are interrupted by Simmons entering with a small professional-looking case. The doctor takes it, and proceeds to administer an anæsthetic to the little patient, while the nurse, though busying herself preparing the child, still listens intently to the cheers and applause which penetrate the silent room.

"To save her I must suck the poison."

"No; I will do it. It is my child," and the nurse kneeling down applies her lips to the aperture which the surgeon has deftly made in the child's throat.

"She will live, she will live," cries the doctor.

At this moment Arlecchino bursts into the room. "Little Gertie. Success, success, success. Where is she?"

"There, she will recover. This brave woman has saved her at the peril of her life. She will sleep, and as soon as possible she shall be removed to the hospital."

The nurse turns from the bed, and Arlecchino recognised her. "You! You! and here?"

"Yes; but I am going now. Going back to loneliness and isolation to a starved life, crimsoned by regret and remorse. A woman alone, with the world against her."

She stoops, kisses the child, and turns to the door.

"Stay. Where is the man you left me for?"

"Gerald Dare is dead. But he never wronged you except in thought. I was never his wife. I was never his mistress, and he did one beautiful and gracious thing before he died. You were always a great, but undiscovered, artist. He knew it, and wrote for you by way of a last atonement the play, the little play by which this night you have made yourself famous."

"Gerald Dare did this for me?"

"Yes; Gerald Dare did that for you."

"And you this night have risked your life for the child—yours and mine. Can we not let the dead past bury its dead?"

"If we only could."

"We will. You shall be the joy of your real husband, the teacher of your child."

"Guv'nor, guv'nor; they are calling for you," shouted Simmons.

"Yes, yes." He opened his arms, and his wife is folded in them.

M. JOSEPH BOULNOIS, chorus master at the Opéra-Comique, Paris, is writing the music to Marcellus, the libretto being by M. Léo Lacrie, in collaboration with M. Poutier, who died last year after the completion of the work. M. Lacrie is also busy on a tragedy called Augusta, by no less a person than the famous barrister M. Décori.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH," which ran for several years in the United States without a break before it was seen on this side of the Atlantic, is said to have yielded nearly three-quarters of a million pounds profit for those who were lucky enough to have a share in its production. Enormous as has been the success of this popular play, it still falls far short of the record made by Rip Van Winkle, in which Joseph Jefferson appeared over 5,000 times, and which earned the amazing sum of £1,000,000. The Old Homestead, with Denman Thompson in the leading part, is said to have yielded £950,000 in a dozen years at the rate of nearly £80,000 a year; while Erminie was a gold mine across the Atlantic, running for 1,267 nights at a single theatre, and earning well over £800,000. Colleen Bawn, East Lynne, Peep o' Day, Uncle Tom's Cabin, and several other plays have made profits running far into six figures, and The Private Secretary is credited with a total clear profit of £300,000.

FIFTY years ago £50 an act, or, say, £250 in all, was considered a big price for a play (says a writer in the Penny Illustrated Paper), and for that sum the author disposed of his entire rights—London, provincial, foreign, colonial, and amateur. To-day a successful play should bring its lucky author anything from £10,000 to £20,000 in one year, whilst he still retains his copyright, and with it the probability of making another £20,000 before his play is finally done with.

THIS remarkable change in the dramatist's earnings is due, of course, to the introduction of the royalty system, by which the author, in place of a lump sum for his work, is paid a percentage on the gross receipts at the theatre where the play is produced. The receipts of a theatre, of course, vary with its holding capacity, but £1,500 a week is not an excessive sum to put down for the average weekly takings during the run of a successful play, and on this the author would take £150 a week, and with a year's run he nets in London alone £7,800.

WYNDHAM'S THEATRE.

On Monday, July 11, a New Comedy, in One Act, by Kathleen C. Lion, entitled

"THE WILES OF THE WIDOW."

Betsy Pye .....Miss Clare Greet
Mary Beasley .....Miss Joy Chatwyn
James Beasley .....Mr. Holliday Atlay
Daniel John Scatt .....Mr. Hubert Druce

The prosperity of The Naked Truth, with the unapproachable Charles Hawtrey always at hand to tell it, shows no signs of waning; but as a concession to those staunchest patrons of the drama, the early pittites and the eager gods, Mr. Frank Curzon "placed" a new curtain-raiser at Wyndham's on Monday. The little piece by Kathleen C. Lion, an authoress who is new to us, though it is theatrical in its essence, and at times naïve in its humour, has been written with some perception of satire and drollery of situation, and it was pleasant to hear the laughter that continually burst forth during its presentation.

When widows are wily on the stage they are really Machiavellian; and the strategy of Mrs. Betsy Pye, who had buried "her first," and had contrived ever since to make a snug living out of the little general shop of the village, is clothed with a few shreds of the higher diplomacy. Pye has been gathered to his fathers about eighteen months, and as every conventional form of respect has been paid to his memory, his relict is looking out for a second, who will in time share the grave for three, which, with an eye to the future, and in pursuit of a forward policy, she has bought. The village constable, Daniel John Scatt, is evidently impressed by the charms of the lady, and does not regard her little bit of property with indifference; but her heart has gone out to James Beasley, the skipper and the owner of the Mary Jane. James, "in a manner of speaking," is handicapped by a promise given to his parents that he will always keep a home for his sister Mary, an unattractive spinster of thirty-seven. Brilliant thought! Why not bring Constable Scatt and Mary together, and thus secure the gallant fisher captain for herself? Very artfully does Mrs. Pye go to work. With a dissimulation that seems the very essence of candour, she draws a picture for Scatt of Mary's good fortune if she marries. She will have a silver teapot, a fine china tea-service, and a pig! All these presents, it need hardly be said, will come from the widow. Scatt is evidently impressed, and as a preliminary to courtship, begs back the posy given by him to the widow, that he may offer it to Mary, who is quite easily captured, and the arch-diplomatist takes James Beasley to her arms. The outlay of the money on the grave is not to be wasted.

The plot might be more convincing if Miss Joy Chatwyn, who plays in such effective fashion the part of Mary Beasley, were not made up with such uncompromising ugliness, or if she was improved in appearance by a few deft touches to the hair and complexion on the part of the widow—a part admirably played indeed by Miss Clare Greet, a capital comedienne. Mr. Hubert Druce was very funny as the Constable, and did not hesitate to exaggerate the bucolic stupidity of the character. Quite in the picture was Mr. Holliday Atlay's artistic sketch of the fisherman, James Beasley.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama in Five Acts entitled

"THE 10.30 DOWN EXPRESS."

At the Shakespeare Theatre this week Mr. Horace Stanley's excellent company is holding the boards with the thrilling drama, The 10.30 Down Express. Full justice is done to the play, which goes strongly from start to finish, and the audience show their appreciation in the most enthusiastic manner. The scenic effects are particularly good, the scene depicting the express train being a triumph of stagecraft. Mr. Horace Stanley takes full advantage of his opportunities in the rôle of the true-hearted bluejacket Sam Wagstaffe, and his amusing antics evoke uproarious laughter. In this direction he is well supported by Miss Kate Kilpack, who is a vivacious Peggy Potts; Mr. Ernest Fare gives a manly and vigorous portrayal of Lieut. Jack O'Malley, and a sound performance of the villainous James Inderwick is contributed by Mr. George Arthur, who acts with convincing force. Mr. Edwin Clarke is responsible for an admirable rendering of the part of the Detective Huntley Mason, and Mr. T. B. Brabazon faithfully delineates the stern pride of Cuthbert Leigh. Mr. Evan Roland is well to the front with a clever impersonation of the broken-down gamekeeper Seth Coombes, and Mr. A. E. Francis does well as Blotherby Blaggs. Miss Violet Agnew acts with feeling the part of Bessie Leigh, and elicits the fullest sympathy. Miss Ida Fape creates considerable laughter by her humorous representation of Letitia Leigh, and Miss Clara Santley acts with sufficient abandon as Olive Coombs. The minor parts are capably sustained, and the whole performance is very enjoyable.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama entitled

"DRIVING A GIRL TO DESTRUCTION."

On Monday night Mr. Morton Powell presented to an appreciative audience his excellent company in Mrs. Morton Powell's latest play, Driving a Girl to Destruction. Miss Maud M. Powell plays naturally as the persecuted village school teacher Ruby Wright; Miss Edith Wallis as the betrayed Ruth Wright by some forceful acting gives us a terrible example of the effects of vice and drink; Miss Ana Corri is sufficiently subtle as the proprietress of a massage and bath establishment, Mme. de Meral; Miss Lilla Nordon plays vivaciously as the cheery barmaid Bessa Betts; Miss Eva Norman is a pathetic figure as the crippled boy Ned Chipplet; Mr. Leslie Austin is a strong nautical hero as Robert Ray; Mr. Walter Clarke plays well as the lustful Lucas List; Mr. Henry Scratchard is the repulsive Octavius Screwe; Mr. Edward Swinton as Billy Broad, Mr. Mackintosh Clyde as Bobby Broad, and Mr. William Clements as Freddy Feather are responsible for some excellent pantomimical humour, and generally keep things lively. Mr. William Berson plays convincingly as the Rev. Christopher Lovett.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, July 11, the Military Drama, entitled

"SECOND TO NONE."

The stirring military drama entitled Second to None is being played here to large audiences. Mr. Ashley Page, in the character of Harry Wilding, does full justice to his part, and is greatly applauded from all parts of the house. Miss Marion Denvil, a great favourite at this house, is the cause of much enthusiasm, her impersonation being most interesting. Mr. Fred Rivers impersonates Sir Reginald Greystone, V.C., with much ability; Mr. Alexander Bradley, who has established himself at the Pavilion as a remarkable delineator of stage villainy, is a great success; Miss Phyllis Orme is very good in a light part; Miss Nellie James, supported by Mr. Allan Carruthers and Mr. Will Harman, supply much laughter, and are greatly appreciated. This being the last week of the Pavilion stock company, a benefit was given to Mr. Ashley Page on Thursday evening, when speeches were made from the stage. The stock season has been most successful, and the house has worn a prosperous look nightly.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, entitled

"HER SECRET LOVER."

This piece has a capital story, chiefly concerned with the misfortunes that overtake the principal characters on account of the unreasonable jealousy of the hero, Gilbert Seymour, and has drawn full and enthusiastic houses here. The play, written by Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, is produced by her and Mr. Kimberley. Mr. Arthur St. John's interpretation of the part of Gilbert Seymour is very powerful. Mr. Walter H. Wilson has the house with him in his rendering of Captain Darrell Rose. Mr. Alfred Stretton as John Strange plays the heavy lead efficiently. The part of Ivy Seymour is strongly played by Miss Laura Walker, and Miss Flora Lealie as Alicia Royale is very effective. Mr. Victor Vernon is a delightful Billy Burley, and Miss Lynn Darlington as Jane Maria Wilkes enacts the part of the servant with excellent comedy. Mr. J. Newton-Cowling as Jim Jones does extremely well, and evokes complimentary hisses. Mr. Robert Lord makes up well as Mr. Murfield, and sustains the part with considerable force. Sergeant Smith is smartly embodied by Mr. Hugh Clayton, and Mr. Felix Lawson is good in the rôle of Inspector Wilson. Warden Phillips is faithfully interpreted by Mr. Harry Cob, and Mr. Alfred James is good as the Rev. Arthur Holmes, Mr. Fred Evans being satisfactory as Vernon Cooper.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, by G. R. Sims and Henry Pettitt, entitled

"THE HARBOUR LIGHTS."

The Kennington répertoire company have put some of their very best work into the famous Adelphi drama The Harbour Lights, the big attraction here this week, and the whole performance runs through smoothly. Mr. Walter Gay as Lieut. David Kingsley gives a vivid and graphic sketch of the stalwart sailor lover, and he finds a sympathetic companion in the Dora Vane of Miss Jessie Winter, who plays with a warmth of feeling and engaging frankness which evokes genuine admiration. Mr. Maitland Marler is full of good comedy as Tom Dossiter, and is ably supported by Miss Nellie Burdette, who makes a bright and skittish Peggy Chudleigh. Mr. Frank Crimp is admirable as Jack Lirriper; Mr. Fred Morgan is quite at home in the sinister part of Nicholas Moreland, the villain; his accomplice and tool, Squire Moreland, being well taken by Mr. Frank R. Robertson. Mr. Herbert Lloyd furnishes a grim and realistic study of Mark Helstone; Miss Winifred Whyte does good work as Lina Nelson; Miss Lucie Evelyn is an amusing Mrs. Chudleigh; Miss Mary Kilpack adequately fills the part of Mrs. Helstone; Miss Maggie Clayton is a slatternly Bridget Malone to the life; and Miss Maggie Hogan is well placed as Polly. Mr. George Poulson makes an excellent Captain Hardy; Captain Nelson is realistically impersonated by Mr. Wilson Blake; Mr. William Sidney is deserving of a passing word as Detective Wood; and others who assist materially in making Harbour Lights a success are Mr. H. Baker (the sentry), Mr. Leslie Ferguson (Dick Hockaday), Mr. T. E. Collins (Will Drake), and Miss Elsie Videau (midshipman) The play is mounted in a really first-class style.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, July 11, the Drama, by Lewis Gilbert, entitled

"A DAUGHTER OF THE SEA."

A breezy, seasonable drama is A Daughter of the Sea, which opened to a full house at the Stratford Theatre Royal on Monday. There is a distinct suggestion of the briny in the tarpaulins which pretty Sunshine wears so effectively and in the numerous sea-coast incidents, and the story itself is graphically written, and apparently hits the taste of popular playgoers exactly. Mr. Lewis Gilbert has a well-selected cast, and the scenery is picturesque and appropriate. As Sunshine, the pretty and plucky damsel whose life story provides the title, Miss Florrie Green is a decided favourite. Mr. Lewis Gilbert as the cunning old reprobate Mark Glensdale is remarkably realistic in make-up, voice, and gesture. As the crippled young fisherman Ken Moreland Mr. Ashmore Vincent wins much sympathy, and Mr. H. C. Langley does well as Captain Ben Morrison. Mr. Joe Monkhouse, in the excellent comedy part of Billy, the village idiot, is decidedly droll and entertaining, and Mr. Sidney Dench, jun., is a genial representative of Jack Strong. As the week-kneed Dan Glensdale Mr. J. Gordon Blyth is satisfactory; Mr. Sutton Taylor, in the short part of Sir Maxwell Brentwood, fulfils all requirements; and Miss Allyce Wyllyams is a bright and engaging Mollie.

Messrs. Rebman, Ltd., will shortly publish a drama by Sarath Kumar Ghosh, on the same theme as his recent romance The Prince of Destiny. It will be the sole modern drama of India by an Indian, and will deal with the present condition of India. Messrs. Rebman hope that it will take its place in English literature next after Elizabethan drama, alike in theme and in treatment. It will combine the essential elements of modern, Elizabethan, and Hindu classical drama, and by this new development may confirm Schlegel's contention that dramatic art was first begotten in India.

"I feel sure that the Vote is near," said Miss Gertrude Elliott the other day to a representative of a suffragist paper, "and that the reward of all our watching and our waiting is almost within our grasp. The very anxiety of the Anti-Suffragists, their organisation of their slender band, means that they see dangers ahead, and that they feel we are nearing our goal.

"Mr. Forbes-Robertson is an ardent Suffragist; his father and mother were keen Suffragists before him, and his godfather, Professor Masson (of Edinburgh), was one of those who spoke for Women's Suffrage in Mill's time. Looking over some old speeches and writings of the Professor's on Woman Suffrage, it seems to me that many of them might have been written at the present day.

"The zest with which well-known actresses have taken up this question is due largely to the feeling of equality in wage-earning that the stage gives. There your salary depends upon your drawing power, and has nothing to do with your sex. It is rather galling to find that off the stage the leading lady has not citizen rights which the stage carpenter possesses."

"What is your experience in the taste of the public in women, as seen from behind the footlights?" "The public always likes the fighting woman who is resourceful, and at the same time full of the joy of life, and what they ask for from the stage is the exaggeration of what they want in everyday life. They have no use for the woman who does not do things; they do not want her to talk a lot, but what she says must be human and worth saying."

Miss Fanny Ward recently gave evidence at Marlborough-street with reference to her loss of £50 in bank notes at Lucile's, court dressmaker, Hanover-square. Florence Rhoda Emma Bainton, eighteen, an assistant at the shop, was charged with having stolen the money. Miss Ward said she was being fitted with a dress, and laid her purse, containing five £10 notes on a table, and then passed into another room. She did not miss the money until she returned to her hotel and had occasion to open it.

A detective said the accused was arrested on Friday night at her home. She said she stole the notes. He believed that about £30 had been spent by her. She told him she had a sweetheart. Her parents were highly respectable. The girl's father, who seemed deeply distressed, stated, in answer to the magistrate, that his daughter was paid 10s. a week and her food, and had been employed about three months. A remand was ordered.

THE LATE MR. AUGUSTUS DUBOURG.

The few playgoers who can remember the name of Mr. Augustus W. Dubourg, who has just passed away at the age of 80, on London playbills must be now past middle-age, for it was as far back as 1866 that he collaborated with Tom Taylor in the three-act drama A Sister's Penance, produced at the Adelphi on Nov. 26, 1866. This play was brightened by the genius of Kate Terry and the late Mr. Hermann Vezin as the young hero, named Markham. To the same collaboration London playgoers of the mid-Victorian era owed the admirable comedy New Men and Old Acres, which, after a trial at the Manchester Theatre Royal on Aug. 20, 1869, came to the Haymarket on Oct. 25 in the same year. Miss Madge Robertson scored one of her earliest successes in the part of Lilian Vavasour, and Mrs. Chippendale, that fine impersonator of aristocratic dames, was highly praised as Lady Matilda Vavasour. Henry Howe played the matter-of-fact Samuel Brown; and Caroline Hill was the Fanny Bunter. Mr. W. H. Kendal was not in the cast. The comedy was a great success, and at its revival at the Court in 1876 Miss Ellen Terry distinguished herself in the part of Lilian and Sir John (then Mr.) Hare acted Chippendale's part of Sir Marmaduke Vavasour, giving an entirely original reading of the character.

Mr. Dubourg found another collaborator in the late Edmund Yates, but Without Love, the play due to their joint efforts, which was selected by Miss Ada Cavendish as the opening attraction of her management of the Olympic (Dec. 16, 1872), was considered rather morbid, and did not attract. The deceased author's first play from his own pen was Women and Men (Manchester Theatre Royal, May 22, 1871), with Mr. Kendal as Charles Westby, Miss Madge Robertson (Mrs. Kendal) as Ethel Lyster, and Mr. Clifford Cooper as Topham Lyster. Sympathy, a comedietta, was produced at the same house in April, 1873; and on July 4 of the same year Twenty Minutes' Conversation Under an Umbrella, a duologue, was introduced as an after-piece on the occasion of Mrs. Kendal's benefit. That delightful actress then essayed, for the first time in London, the rôle of Lady Gay Spanker in London Assurance, Mr. Kendal being the Dazzle. In the duologue named the happily-associated pair played Cousin Will and Cousin Madge.

Other plays from Mr. Dubourg's pen were Bitter Fruit (Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool, October, 1873), Art and Love, a dramatic sketch (Opera Comique, February, 1877), Land and Love (Globe, May, 1884), and Vittoria Contariri (Princess's, May, 1897). Just Like a Woman, produced at the Gaiety in November, 1879, was simply Women and Men renamed, and its presentation was chiefly noticeable for the first London appearance therein of Miss Adela Measor (Mrs. J. C. Buckstone), who has been appearing lately at the Coliseum in support of Mr. Seymour Hicks in Scrooge. Miss Measor made a hit as Maggie Macfarlane in a revival of W. S. Gilbert's Engaged at the Court Theatre on Nov. 30, 1881, and her touching performance as Giannina in Jerome K. Jerome's Fennel, an adaptation from François Coppé's Le Lathier de Cremône, produced at the Novelty in 1888, will be well within the memory of middle-aged playgoers.

The late Mr. Dubourg, like his collaborator, Tom Taylor—appointed Secretary of the Board of Health in 1854—and Robert Reece—the famous successor of the Brothers Brough as a writer of burlesque—held a Government appointment, having held, until his retirement twenty years ago, the position of Chief Clerk of the Judicial Office of the House of Lords. He died at his residence, The Mount, Wilton, Salisbury.

Mr. F. Bayley Robinson, speaking at the annual dinner of the Allied Artists' Association at the Holborn Restaurant, said the theatre had been described by Goethe as "the spoilt sister of the arts, who squanders the whole goods and chattels of the household." Nevertheless the influence of this far-reaching and most popular art was incalculable both for good and evil, and he felt that those managers who were endeavouring to raise the standard of dramatic art in this country were doing a great national service, and that we should do all we could to support them. With regard to the staging of plays, the whole thing was to his mind usually much overdone. The forcing of colour and effect distracted one's attention from the acting.

Although the orchestra was considered out of place in the French theatre, he considered it was of great value to concentrate and attune the mind to the play. Following upon the concluding notes of the prelude as the curtain rose, came the scenic artist's moment for him to continue the music of preparation and awakening suspense. The scene should then be lighted to the best advantage, as the eyes of the audience, naturally following the rising curtain, took in the ensemble at a glance—and the light afterwards should be gradually brought to bear upon the actors, as it was essential that their expression should be seen when speaking, the scenery subsequently becoming a background to be felt rather than seen.

A sentence of penal servitude for life was passed in Paris on Wednesday upon a woman named Marie Bourette, who was convicted of poisoning M. Godard, a well-known tenor. Marie Bourette was for some years the friend of a M. Doudieux, who asked her to marry him. She refused, and M. Doudieux not long afterwards became the husband of another woman. Marie Bourette then repented her refusal, and conceived a plot to poison Mme. Doudieux and regain the affections of her rejected lover. She left a packet of an apparently harmless medicine—which she had impregnated with arsenic—upon Mme. Doudieux's doorstep.

M. Godard visited the Doudieux at the time, and after dinner suffered from an attack of indigestion. His hosts gave him a dose of the medicine found upon the doorstep, and he died in agony. For some time there was no clue to the sender of the poisoned medicine, and it was only the fact that Marie Bourette avoided M. Doudieux when he chanced to meet her in the street and even denied acquaintance with him that caused suspicion to fall on her.

The prisoner denied all the charges made against her, and practically secured her own conviction by her denials. A chemical expert declared that ten grammes of arsenic were found in her room, whereas a fifth of a gramme is sufficient to cause death. The public prosecutor pleaded for the death sentence. He said M. Godard before his death was earning £2,000 a year, and had a £4,000 engagement in America. His widow and orphan were now left destitue.

We hear with regret of the very sudden death, from heart failure, on June 17 last, of J. W. Trievnor, who was very well known in the theatrical, music-hall, and music-loving world. Of late years he wrote and composed, under the name of J. W. Ronvert, and was for ten years with Miss Sarah Thorne, and was afterwards musical director for Mr. J. W. Boughton at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth. He was also with Messrs. Graham and Atkinson for some years at the Theatre Royal, Dewsbury, and there arranged many pantomimes for John Lovey and John Wright. Mr. Trievnor was the husband of pretty Jennie Ronvert, a popular music hall turn in her time, and whom he has left, we regret to say, unprovided for.

REHEARSAL COMPANY AT THE COURT.

The Rehearsal Company, which did much good work at the little theatre in Maiden-lane, have removed to more ambitious quarters in Sloane-square, and at the Court Theatre on Friday, the 8th, presented a varied and entertaining triple bill, consisting of The Taming of the Shrew, The Bishop's Fortune, and The Life of a Rose. The version of The Taming of the Shrew played had been condensed and arranged by Mr. Clive Currie, who himself undertook the part of Petruchio, an impersonation on which he is to be congratulated. Particularly good was Mr. Currie in his handling of the earlier scenes, where Petruchio so effectually subdues his "merry Kate," and his performance throughout was a very vigorous and humorous one. Miss Eva Balfour as Katherine in the earlier portions of the play scarcely realised the character of the self-willed hussy, but towards the end her portrayal was much more convincing, the obedient and loving wife of the last act being admirably depicted. Miss Letty Paxton was a pretty and artless Bianca, and the love scenes with Hortensio and Lucentio were played in exactly the right spirit. Miss Grace Richardson submitted a very satisfactory enactment of the part of Curtis; Petruchio's male servant, Grumio, being a very droll personage in the hands of Mr. Keith J. Shepherd. Mr. Lewis Carlton's stuttering tailor was responsible for laughter; and Mr. Wilfred Fletcher as the foppish and conceited servant Tranio also supplied an amusing impersonation. Mr. C. H. Croker King and Mr. Dennis Cleugh as the ardent and gallant lovers of Bianca both looked and acted their parts admirably, very humorous being the scene where they masquerade as Bianca's tutors. Mr. W. A. Mackersy as Baptista, Mr. Montague Mazeran as Vincentio, and Mr. Ribton Haines as Gremio all gave excellent support, and the other parts were satisfactorily undertaken. The first piece of the evening was a new play in one act by "Gaston Gervex," entitled

"THE BISHOP'S FORTUNE."

Bishop of Granchester Mr. Montague Mazeran
Dowager Lady Mills .....Miss May Saker
Lady Mills .....Miss Laurie Flockton
Lord Mills .....Mr. Dennis Cleugh
Miss Plinge .....Miss Dorothy Tanqueray
Servant .....Mr. Elgin Huntly

The Dowager Lady Mills has, we learn, been for some time estranged from her son, he having offended his parents by marrying a mill girl. The devoted young couple have been living abroad, but when the father dies they return home. On condition that he cuts himself adrift from his wife, the bulk of his father's money will go to the young man; if he refuses to do this the Bishop of Granchester has it to spend on charitable work. His mother persuades the young wife to sign some papers and promise to go abroad and leave her husband, but Lord Mills, coming on the scene, tears up the document, and declares that though he is penniless he will not be parted from his wife. Then it is that the Bishop, who has previously befriended the young people, gives them the fortune—it will be an act of charity that will be sure to result in good; and the young wife endeavours to console the Dowager Lady Mills, evidently not greatly pleased at the Bishop's action. This rather unconvincing play was favourably received by the audience on Friday, the authoress being given a hearty call. The hard and unnatural mother was admirably enacted by Miss May Saker; Miss Laurie Flockton as the young wife submitted a sympathetic portrayal; Mr. Dennis Cleugh was manly and sincere as Lord Mills; and Mr. Montague Mazeran creditably enacted the Bishop of Granchester. The other item in the bill was a song-cycle, descriptive of "The Life of a Rose," words and music by Mme. Liza Lehmann. Sung by Miss Adelaide Rind and accompanied by illustrated dancing on the stage by a Bee, the Spirit of the Storm, and a Rose, the last-named being portrayed by Miss Violet Furnivall, who danced attractively, the trifle proved a very pretty and pleasing one.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held on Tuesday, July 12, at 32, Regent-street, at 2.30 p.m. There were present:—Mr. C. F. Collings (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. C. Hayden Coffin, Vita Spencer, F. J. Arlton, Chris Walker, Murri Moncrieff, Henry Le Grand, Miss Mildred Cottell, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Beatrice Chester, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 5th inst., and the meeting confirmed and the chairman signed same.

The secretary read a letter from the Touring Managers' Association, acknowledging receipt of the model contract, which will be submitted to the committee of that Association at their next meeting on the 1st prox.

With reference to a complaint against an agency, the council instructed the secretary to file the letter for further reference.

The Finance Committee's report was submitted by Miss Rose Cazalet, and adopted.

The hon. solicitor's report was submitted by Mr. Mote, and the council discussed at some length a member's case against a manager. After hearing Mr. Mote's advice, the council, on the motion of Mr. Chris Walker, seconded by Miss Vita Spencer, unanimously agreed that the action be dropped.

The House Committee's report was submitted by Miss Rose Cazalet and adopted.

Jane Comfort was elected a member, and Beatrice Fay, Charles Sparrow, and Bessie Rignold were nominated.

THE CASE OF CHARLES FROME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Referring to the appeal of Mr. W. Payne in your issue of June 25, on behalf of an old actor, who has fallen upon bad times, Mr. Charles Frome, and the paragraph thereon in your issue of July 2, I shall be glad if you will allow me to make a slight correction.

Your paragraph states that it is many years since Mr. Frome earned £3 10s. per week. This is apparently intended to contradict the statement in the appeal, to the effect that Mr. Frome had an engagement at £3 10s. per week last Christmas. It is obvious that the correction is quite beside the mark, as it does not in any way affect the statement contained in Mr. Payne's letter, namely, that the engagement was for £3 10s. per week.

With regard to the alleged refusal of the Fund's offer of £1 per week engagement, Mr. Frome denies that any offence was expressed or meant in refusing the engagement. If there were any words which looked at all offensive, they were simply in reply to the not very courteous and off-handed way in which the engagement was offered.

With regard to the statement that Mr. Frome never contributed anything to the fund, I am informed that this is absolutely incorrect, as Mr. Frome has always paid as much to the fund as he could afford—various sums of from 2s. 6d. up to 10s. per week.

The fact still remains that Mr. Frome is in distress, and the Actors' Benevolent Fund refuses to contribute.

I trust, Sir, that this explanation will substantiate the fact that Mr. Frome is not quite undeserving of sympathy.—Yours faithfully,

W. DRAKE.

THE BEECHAM OPERA SEASON.

Richard Strauss's comic opera Feuersnot was produced for the first time in this country by Mr. Thomas Beecham at His Majesty's Theatre on Saturday night, July 9. The story of Feuersnot, which was originally heard in Dresden in 1901, is more weird and quaint than comic, and the libretto of Ernst von Wolzogen includes the legend of St. John's Eve. The period of the opera is the twelfth century, and the action takes place in a square in Munich, where the people are lighting bonfires in honour of the Festival of St. John's Eve. Ortolf, the Burgomaster, arrives, accompanied by his pretty daughter, Diemut, and her three lady friends, Margret, Elsbeth, and Wigellis. The children surround them and are given wood for the bonfires and small presents. In the midst of all the animation of such a scene, Kunrad, a young man supposed to be a magician, enters. Greatly impressed by the Burgomaster's charming daughter, for, indeed, it is a case of love at first sight, Kunrad, after a very melodious solo, suddenly kisses Diemut, at which there is a storm of protest from the townsfolk, and the young lady herself is very angry. Even in the twelfth century ladies evidently objected to such treatment in public, and Diemut, who would not have been greatly shocked by a handsome young man kissing her in private, determines on revenge. In the evening Kunrad stands beneath the Burgomaster's house, and when Diemut appears on the balcony outside her window she pretends to forgive him, and they join in a love duet. Diemut then asks Kunrad to get into the wood basket that she may wind him up to her window, but when only half way she leaves him, and calls her friends and the townsfolk to jeer at his unpleasant position. A large crowd assemble underneath the basket, and promise the lover a very warm reception when he descends, but the fun is not entirely on their side, for Kunrad, who is really a magician, by a spell extinguishes all the lights in the town. At this there is a great outcry, and the populace implore Diemut to receive her lover. She at last consents, hoists Kunrad up to her window, and he enters the room. After an impassioned orchestral interlude the lights in the houses and the bonfires burst into flame, while the people rejoice, and Kunrad and Diemut are heard singing a duet. Although Richard Strauss to some extent makes use of native folksong in his opera, there is a charming solo for Kunrad and a fervent duet for the lovers; while Margret, Elsbeth, and Wigellis, the playmates of Diemut, who come to ridicule Kunrad in the basket, have a most dainty air. A waltz in the festival scene is also a very striking number, and the various choruses for the children proved attractive. The orchestra had no easy task, but under Mr. Thomas Beecham's skilful direction did justice to Strauss's extremely difficult score, on which the music of Feuersnot chiefly depends, while the picturesque scene of the old square at Munich was well up to the high standard Mr. Beecham has reached during his present season. Miss Maude Fay, who sang the music of Diemut, and Mr. Mark Oster, the Kunrad, are both experienced artists, but Miss Fay was somewhat uncertain in her intonation, and the Kunrad of Mr. Oster had no great amount of vocal charm. Certainly to sing well while hanging in the wood basket was almost impossible. Mr. Oster, however, acted artistically, and in the address to the populace greatly distinguished himself. Mr. Robert Radford as the Burgomaster was excellent; and Mr. Harry Dearth did justice to the part of the innkeeper. The Misses Lena Maitland, Stella Phelps, and Lilian Coomber acted and sang with spirit as Diemut's three friends, and the other characters were ably sustained by Miss Edith Evans, Miss Caroline Hatchard, and Messrs. Arthur Wynn, Byndon-Ayres, Lewys James, and Herbert Langley. The chorus of children was capital, and their life and animation did much to ensure success for the first comic opera of Richard Strauss. For the English version of Feuersnot given on Saturday a translation was provided by Mr. William Wallace.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The programme of the students' concert on Wednesday afternoon commenced with Bach's Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor, for organ, played by Mr. Herbert Dawson. Miss Marie C. Foster was much applauded for her singing of "God is My Shepherd," from the Biblical Songs of Anton Dvorak. In her pianoforte solo of Ole Olsen's Petite Suite Miss Eunice Mort displayed the requisite delicacy of touch and neat execution in the Sérénade, Danse Caprice Norwégienne, and Papillons, the most attractive of the five movements. The violin playing of Miss Gwen Bury in Canzonetta (d'Ambrosio) greatly pleased the audience. Two songs, "What is love?" and "I heard a maid," MS., by C. H. G. Mottram, were interesting, the last-named being cleverly written and very well sung by Miss Alice Booth. A youthful student, Miss Nannie Pritchard, gave a piano solo, Rondino in E (Sterndale Bennett); a somewhat difficult task for the young performer. Rheinberger has written more attractive music than the Moderato (on "Tonus Peregrinus") from his Sonata in A Minor for organ, but it was carefully played by Mr. Clifford Cartwright. An ambitious song, "Clouds," MS., by Edward S. Mitchell, was sung by Miss Kathleen Lawler with some effect, but little purity of tone. Both composer and vocalist were recalled and applauded. After an able pianoforte solo by Miss Gladys Pearce, who played Schumann's Toccata in C, the concert ended with the trio for violin, 'cello, and chromatic harp, Miss Olga Corrigan, Miss Kathleen Thompson, and Mr. Sidney Sheppard giving a good account of Tottenham Lucas's pretty "Berceuse."

Fraulein von Sussmandl, the Austrian opera-singer, has sued Baron von Frankenstein for breach of promise. A marriage had been arranged between them some months ago, and the date of the wedding had been fixed, when the Baron declared the engagement at an end. The opera-singer claimed £1,200 damages. Before judgment was given an arrangement was come to, by which Fraulein von Sussmandl received £520.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A more than usually interesting item of the Tunbridge Wells Cricket Week theatricals was the production of the above comic opera. The author has taken Female Suffrage for his theme, by presupposing not only that women have got the vote, but also seats at Westminster, and that a feminist Cabinet is, in fact, in power. The first act, the scene of which is laid at Hyde Park, shows us the complete political and administrative triumph of the fair sex. Women legislators, women soldiers, women officials hold the sway, and mere man has been relegated to a secondary, not to say domestic position. The author deals very humorously with the feminist régime, and then leads us up to the inevitable reaction. The men find petticoat government too much for them, and conspire to get rid of it.

Their conspiracy develops in the second act, which is laid at St. Stephen's, Westminster. Here we have the typical comic opera conspirators engaged in the overthrow of government by women. The cares of State have not proved so absorbing that the ladies can resist the temptation of the annual bargain sales, and while they are besieging certain well-known drapery emporiums the men seize the administrative machinery, and get everything into their own hands. They capture the bureaucratic machine, and even the Prime Ministress and her colleagues have to yield to the inevitable. The surrender is, however, made easy for them. There is, of course, a subsidiary love plot, and several of the ladies, chafing under the despotic régime which would regulate even their marriages for the good of the State, have placed the dictates of the tender passion before the call of duty, with the result that they pair off very contentedly with their political enemies, and apparently forget about politics in the prospect of connubial bliss. Such, briefly, is the plot which is ingeniously and amusingly worked out. The music is bright and tuneful, and has been elaborately orchestrated, and the lyrics allotted to the principals made a very favourable impression, and were often redemanded. One of the best of these is sung by the husband of the Prime Ministress, and is entitled "Perfidious Eve," who says the lady

"Contrived in her cunning to cheat us,
By her feminine arts to deceive."

The Lady Commander-in-Chief also has a pleasing song, "Artless Art," which deals with feminine deception. What is perhaps the greatest hit of the evening is made with a topical song allotted to the Court Perruquier, who heads the band of conspirators. This is entitled "Plot and counter-plot," and among other topics deals in a spirited verse with Anglo-German naval relations. There are also several charmingly composed concerted pieces and effectively written finales for each act. The composer made a heavy demand upon the resources of the orchestra and chorus, but found ready response. The mounting of the piece was well carried out, the ladies' military costumes selected in imitation of crack regiments of Guards and Lancers being particularly effective. For amateurs with limited opportunities of rehearsing to produce comic opera on an ambitious scale is naturally a very onerous task, and one may congratulate all concerned upon the measure of success which attended their efforts. Mr. T. C. Fairbairn stage managed and Mr. F. D. Barnes, the composer, personally conducted the orchestra.

IN a tiny shop not far from Pall Mall, says the Daily News, Mrs. David Longworth, an American lady sculptor, is hard at work every day fashioning impressions in plaster of many of the most popular theatrical stars of the moment. "I have been here seven months," said Mrs. Longworth to a representative of the Daily News, "but it is only recently that my work has begun to catch on at all. Miss Maud Allan was my first subject, and Mr. Butt was so pleased with the novelty of the idea that he immediately bought the bust and had it put on view at the Palace Theatre."

THIS so encouraged Mrs. Longworth that she set to and made statuettes of other stars, and to-day her shelves include Pavlova, Mr. H. B. Irving (a remarkably fine piece of work, treated with copper bronze, of the actor in The Lyons Mail), Mlle. Schollar, now at the Hippodrome, Réjane, and Fred Farren and his lady colleague in their Empire Apache Dance, &c. Plaster of Paris is the foundation of each statuette, but the work is so beautifully finished that it might well be old ivory or real copper or silver bronze at the first glance.

When Mrs. Longworth decides to "do" an artist, that artist is quite unaware of the fact. The sculptor just sits in her seat at the theatre, gets a "photographic impression" in her mind, and then works it up. Usually Mrs. Longworth is wonderfully accurate, even to facial expression. The sculptor has already disposed of a number of her casts, those of Pavlova, Maud Allan, and Schollar being especially popular; but for all their growing popularity there is yet a strange prejudice against them in the breasts of many people.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, MAY 24.—All places of amusement closed on the day of King Edward's funeral, the 20th, and marvellous manifestations of mourning abounded. At the Naval and Military Demonstration in the Centennial Park over 250,000 people stood, silently bowing their heads when the massed bands, the Liedertapel, Philharmonic Society, and State school children rendered the solemn music selected for the service.

NEXT night saw the production of Hall Caine's own dramatisation of "The Manxman," known as Pete, at the Criterion, a revival of The King of Cadonia at Her Majesty's, and the first Calvé concert. In Pete Mr. Matheson Lang was altogether admirable as the loving, simple, trusting young Manxman. Miss Hutin Britton also scored heavily as Kate. Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw made an excellent Philip Christian; Cæsar Cregeen was cleverly undertaken by Mr. Arthur Styan; Miss Maggie Knight, an old favourite, was a good Nannie; and Mr. B. W. Tyrer made much of flippant Ross Christian. Smaller parts were Nancy (Miss Jennie Pollock), and others by Messrs. Tom Cannam and John Howard and Miss Hilda Meade, and Sir Rupert Clarke and Mr. Clyde Meynell had fine scenery painted by Phil Goatcher.

"THE KING OF CADONIA" at Her Majesty's brings back J. C. Williamson's comic opera company with none of the old vivacity gone astray. Miss Dorothy Court is again the Princess Marie, and that means good singing, acting, and speaking. Mr. Herbert Clayton once more plays the King, and sings admirably; Mr. Bert Gilbert was very funny as the Duke of Alasia. Clever Miss Susie Vaughan played the Duchess; and Miss Lottie Sargent enacted Militza as charmingly as ever. Roland Hogue, Phil Braaf, Pat Bathurst, Victor Prince, Arthur Jessant, Irene Sandeman, and a host of young Australians were in the cast.

THE TIVOLI has now Carter, the magician, who made such a stir at the Palace Theatre some time ago. Miss Olive Lenton has captured alike old friends and new; Fred Bluett, the Howard Brothers, the Wheelers, Albertus and Millar. All these and others are in the bill.

MR. WALTER BENTLEY and Mr. Douglas Ancelon, with Miss Stella Chapman (for the ladies' section) have started a fine college for the necessary teaching of elocution. It was opened on the 21st by an influentially-attended soiree musicale.

SYDNEY, JUNE 1.—The Dollar Princess was superbly mounted at Her Majesty's Theatre by the J. C. Williamson firm on the May 28. A new lady from America, Miss Grace Edmonds, was cast for Alice, and did some bright singing. The other ladies, Miss Lottie Sargent (Daisy) and Miss Olive Godwin (Olga Labinska) were excellent, and made their scenes go gith vim; and Mr. Bert Gilbert extracted the last ounce of fun out of Harry Q. Conder. Mr. Herbert Clayton was an impressive Freddy Fairfax, and Mr. Frank Greene put in good work as John, Earl of Quorn. Our own pocket comedian, Mr. W. S. Peray was Mr. Bulger: that meant plenty of laughs. Mr. J. R. Hogue was Dick, a capably and forcibly played character. The minor parts were well filled. Mr. W. R. Coleman and Mr. George Upward painted three beautiful scenes; the costumes were bright and good. Mr. Fritz Hart controlled orchestra and chorus, and Mr. Alexander Butler directed the whole production, which was a most decided success.

MR. MATHESON LANG, Miss Hutin Britton, and the Clarke and Meynell dramatic company are making Pete draw good business at the Criterion.

"THE THIRD DEGREE," at the Royal, is witnessed by highly interested audiences, the acting of Miss Katherine Grey, Mr. Julius Knight, and Mr. James Bryant being of the very highest order. The next Williamson bill will be Henry of Navarre.

THE TIVOLI has some new people selected by Mr. Harry Rickards for his patrons: Billy Williams, who has at once caught on; the Raymond Trio of clever mandoline and dance turns; Godfrey James, an excellent tenor; and the Harmonious Huxhams, an Australian trio of very expert vocalists and instrumentalists. Hilda Lane, Fanny Powers, Baby Watson, Fred Bluett—all "our own"—and a host of more clever people make up a great bill.

MISS AMY MURPHY, our bright soprano, has had a triumphal march through New Zealand, whence she hails, and has returned for a long list of engagements.

MELBOURNE, MAY 31. — PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh J. Ward; Business-Manager, Mr. Walter Monk.—The Girl from Rector's, presented by Mr. Hugh J. Ward and a strong comedy company, has been filling this theatre since the opening night. The piece abounds in humorous situations, and the fun is never allowed to flag for an instant. Mr. Ward and Miss Palotta appear in the leading parts, and are ably supported by a first-class company. The play, in spite of its popularity, will shortly be withdrawn, and The Man from Mexico is announced as its successor. Mr. Ward has a popular and capable manager in the person of Mr. Walter Monk.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait.—The musical and scenic charms of A Waltz Dream have drawn many playgoers to this theatre during the past week. In some respects it resembles The Merry Widow, and will, in all likelihood, be just as popular as Lehar's opera. On Wednesday afternoon Mr. Williamson is generously giving the use of the theatre for a special matinée in aid of the Women's Hospital, for which a strong programme is being prepared. So far the sale of tickets has been very satisfactory, and the management anticipate a bumper house.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—The highly sensational Australian drama Thunderbolt is proving very popular with the patrons of this theatre. The many exciting situations in the play are nightly watched with keen interest by large and enthusiastic audiences. Mr. George Cross, Miss Eugenie Duggan, and the rest of the company all do justice to their various rôles. On Saturday evening next Man to Man will be revived for a short season.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Clyde Meynell and Rupert Clarke; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—After a highly successful season extending over ten weeks the last nights of The Arcadians are announced. The Arcadians has proved one of the most popular productions that Messrs. Meynell and Clarke have so far placed before their patrons, the theatre having been filled nightly since the beginning of the season. On Saturday evening, June 11, Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton will make their reappearance in Melbourne for a short farewell season.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Bonita, champion rifle shot, and Cleopatra, snake charmer, are the leading attractions here at present. The former of these artists gives a wonderfully clever exhibition of rifle shooting, while the latter handles snakes and other reptiles with great ease and skill. Their performance throughout is a novel and entertaining one, and has proved one of the most popular turns that Mr. Rickards has presented to his numerous patrons for some considerable time. On Saturday evening Mr. Fred Keeton, comedian, made his first appearance, and met with a good reception. Mr. Keeton sang a number of very witty songs in character, and so pronounced was his success that the audience was loth to allow him to leave the stage. Other artists appearing with success at present include Lieut. Travis and Miss Marjorie Deane, Albertus and Millar, the Three Dardinis, Lillie Langtry, Ted Kaufman, Will White, the Barnards, Con Moreni, Alma Lyndon, Two Colliers, George Sorlie, the Two Bells, and a host of others.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS GERTRUDE LITTLEWOOD.

Miss Gertrude Littlewood (her own name, by the way) is, like many other actresses, the daughter of a clergyman. She was educated at Cheltenham, and finished her studies in France and Germany. Always attracted by the theatre, she determined, after considerable experience in amateur work, to take up acting as a profession. Her first engagement was at a small provincial town, during which she played several small parts in Shakespearean productions, and also had the opportunity of appearing in several stock pieces—Ticket-of-Leave Man, Sorrows of Satan, Trilby, &c. Following six months in drama, in which she played the heavy parts, and several short engagements as Mrs. Bagot in Trilby, Mrs. Willoughby in The Ticket-of-Leave Man, &c., Miss Littlewood was engaged by Mr. Ian Maclaren for his Shakespearean répertoire. This appointment lasted four years, and during that time she played the whole of the character comedy and heavy leads in the répertoire of Shakespeare and old English comedy.

The rôles undertaken by Miss Littlewood include Mrs. Hardcastle, Mrs. Malaprop, Mrs. Candour, and Lady Sneerwell; The Queen, in Hamlet; Olivia and Maria, in Twelfth Night; Audrey, Nurse, and Lady Capulet in Romeo and Juliet; Bianca and Emilia in Othello; and Second Witch in Macbeth. During the whole of her last tour with Mr. Maclaren she played Lady Macbeth. She also appeared in various other plays, creating the part of Frau Schultz in The Free Lance, and playing Catherine in The Bells and the character-part in Henry of Lancaster. After this came an engagement with Mr. Geo. Munro for a short autumn tour, during which she played her old parts in the comedies, Catherine in The Bells, Jeanne in The Lyons Mail, and Mme. dei Franchi in The Corsican Brothers. Next she was engaged by Mr. Leigh Lovel for a short tour of Fanny and the Servant Problem, in which she played Jane, making a wonderful success in this short part.

At Christmas last year Miss Littlewood was re-engaged by Mr. Munro for his spring tour for the character and heavy parts, and as he added Shakespeare to his répertoire, she had the opportunity of playing all her old parts of Queen, Emilia, &c., in addition to those undertaken on the previous tour. Altogether, into her six years of stage experience, Miss Littlewood has crammed some fifty parts, ranging over Shakespeare, modern melodrama, old melodrama, and old and modern comedies.

MR. FRANK R. GWYN-RICHARDSON.

After studying for a marine engineer and serving for two years on a Wilson liner, Mr. Gwyn-Richardson threw up the sea and adopted the stage. His first engagement was in English Nell, in which he walked on, and afterwards "rose" to a small part. At the end of the run he was engaged by the late Mr. John A. Atkin for De Belfort in A Grip of Iron, with which drama he stayed for six months, leaving it to play Charley in Charley's Aunt for two years under Mr. W. S.

Penley's management. Then came a succession of varied engagements in Driven from Home, When London Sleeps, Trilby, and At Duty's Call, including stock seasons under Mr. Arthur Carlton's management. Mr. Richardson then took up stage-management with Mr. Frank Bertram's Hearts Adrift company, from which drama he was transferred for the same duties to The Breed of the Treshams. In the latter company he only served six weeks as stage-manager, for at the end of that brief time Mr. Bertram made him general-manager.

After a tour with Mr. Hamilton Stewart in Sherlock Holmes, Mr. Richardson was engaged by Messrs. Helters, Ltd., as resident-manager of their various amusements at Southport. Then he returned to The Breed of the Treshams as general-manager, this time producing the piece. An engagement for the light comedy part in Second to None concluded, he was re-engaged by Messrs. Helters, Ltd., for a six months' season, dividing his time between Southport and Morecambe. It was during this period that Mr. Richardson first found his engineering knowledge useful in the profession. "It was like this," he remarked. "The engineer in charge left suddenly, and I thought I might as well do the work myself. It seemed a little strange at first, but it all came back very quickly, and I have dispensed with an engineer's services ever since." Mr. Richardson is particularly fond of studying make-up, and spends many spare moments with his grease paints.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, July 7.—This work is founded on a novel by M. Paul Bourget, who assisted M. Basset in dramatising it. Molière hated doctors, and in nearly all his comedies the medical practitioner plays the rôle of the funny man. Things have changed since then. Modern science has imparted to the doctor a position that does not lend itself to farce; and that gentleman, not unfrequently, has to deal with cases affecting the mind as well as the body. Painful family secrets are poured into his ear, and there are moments when the power he wields over life and death cannot but frighten him, especially if—like in the above play—the following terrible case comes under his notice. A man is dying; a slight operation can prolong his life for a few hours. Is the doctor, however, justified in giving his patient this slight lease of life if he knows that the patient will use it to dishonour his wife and ruin his children's future? The Comte de Roqueville, dangerously ill, hears accidentally that his wife has had a lover, and that one of his sons is not "legally begotten." The Comte knows he is dying, but, hard and implacable, he will not quit this life before having avenged himself. In a violent scene with his wife he has commanded her to give him the name of her seducer, but, as neither prayers nor threats can make her divulge that name, the Comte resolves to punish her by dishonouring her before her children. We know all these details from the conversation between Dr. Poncelet and his colleague, Dr. Odru. The Comte has given orders that his three sons are to be sent for, but Dr. Poncelet, to whom the Comtesse has imparted the secret, promises to help her to keep the sons away, alleging that their presence might upset the patient, who is suffering from a heart disease. The boys, however, have received the telegrams, and the Comtesse knows that in less than a couple of hours they will be with their father. Once more the Comte orders her to give her lover's name, and, his rage getting the upper hand, his strength fails and he faints. A little blood-letting will recall him to life, and the doctor has already seized his scalpel when the Comtesse raises her hand. "Must four lives be wrecked in order to give a slight respite to a dying man?" is the question she asks. The doctor hesitates a moment, but he shakes his head. "Whatever may be the consequences," he says, "I must not be an accomplice to a murder." After a while the Comte opens his eyes, and his three sons enter: one a young lieutenant, the second an attaché, the third still at college. The father eyes them in silence. He then embraces the eldest and the youngest, but, as he is about to lay his hand on the arm of the second, he suddenly hesitates. Instinct, or perhaps an unconscious movement of his wife, has warned him, and he remains motionless. "Don't you know our brother George?" whisper the two others. The father does not reply; he only sighs, and dies in their arms. He has not dared to poison these three young lives by a horrible revelation. The play, which met with a good interpretation, was very well received.

THIS sombre work was followed by a revival of Les Erinnyes, if anything still more gloomy. It is by Leconte de Lisle, and belongs to the classical répertoire, brought out at the Odéon in 1873, when it scored a great success. It is the story of Orestes, the son of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra. When the former is cruelly murdered by his wife young Orestes is saved from his mother's dagger by his sister Electra. Arriving to the years of manhood, he avenges his father's death by assassinating Clytemnestra, but he is tormented by the Furies as a punishment for the murder he committed. In Leconte de Lisle's tragedy we see the Furies in the first scene, and also in the last, when they appear before the frightened Orestes as he leaves the palace. M. Paul Mounet is a trifle too old to impersonate a young man, but he played his part with conviction. The same, unfortunately, cannot be said of the other exponents.

YESTERDAY we had the "Tragedy" competition at the Conservatoire, with a large audience, but it proved an uninteresting afternoon; in fact, as far as the pupils went, it was a very poor show, and I cannot blame the jury for having distributed the awards with a sparing hand. Among the lady competitors was Mlle. Deroxe. I noticed she had a slight accent, and learned that she was American. She recited "Athalie's Dream," and did not acquit herself badly of her task. She did not secure a prize, but she has the making of a good actress, and I would not be surprised if she soon came to the fore. The favourite was Mlle. Ducos, who last year received an honourable mention. She recited the famous tirade in On ne Badine pas avec L'Amour, known as "Les Imprécations de Camille," a difficult venture, hardly suited for her sweet, harmonious voice. Everybody expected she would only receive a second prize, but the jury showed themselves generous, and gave her the highest distinction.

AT the Porte-Saint-Martin Chantecler continues to draw crowded houses, at a reduced tariff. The rôle of the Hen-pheasant, created by Mme. Simone, is now played by Mlle. Carmen Dermisy.

"LA VEUVE JOYEUSE" (The Merry Widow) is also doing well, and M. Alphonse Franck won a rather big bet in respect to this work, which he said would have a good run during the summer months.

As to the Renaissance, they are coining money with Le Mariage de Mlle. Beulemans. As I said before, there is nothing in the plot, but the Belgian French is so shriekingly funny and the acting so magnificent that everybody wants to see the piece, and seats are booked long in advance.

PARIS, THURSDAY, July 14.—Under the auspices of the Comte de Clermont-Tonnerre, a great patron of the drama, Joconde, a new play by Fernand Noxière, was brought out before a very aristocratic audience, and scored a genuine success. The plot is frothy. Astolphe, the young King of Milan, is handsome and fascinating, so fascinating that the ladies of his Court are in love with him, and only wait for a sign to show him their admiration in a practical form. All this is very flattering for the young monarch, but a bit tiring. The ladies, moreover, are apt to become a bit familiar, addressing him as "Your Majesty" as they enter his bed-chamber, and calling him "Astolphe" when they emerge. The King thereupon has a happy inspiration. Finding he cannot attend to love's labour all by himself he sends for Joconde, a young knight, who, he feels sure, will assist him in the task. Joconde arrives, but he is in anything but a good humour, for on the very day he receives the King's command to betake himself to Court he has discovered that Beatrice, his wife, is deceiving him with Lélio, a page. When he tells this mournful story to the king, the latter roars with laughter. His Majesty's merriment, however, does not last long, inasmuch as his royal eyes are opened to the dismal fact that his Queen is enjoying herself on her own account with the Jester of the palace. Being brothers in misfortune, the King's and Joconde's first impulse is to wreak vengeance on the two flighty wives, but they come to the conclusion that vengeance is as foolish as it is mean. In a philosophical spirit they endure what they cannot cure, and decide to start on a voyage through Italy to see if in their country they cannot find a lady beautiful and virtuous. But, as a precautionary measure they take with them the page and the jester. They travel far, they travel long, and at last discover, as they think, this rara avis in the person of Isabelle, a charming little creature, the daughter of Léonard, a farmer. But Léonard and Isabelle turn out to be only "fakes." He is no farmer, and she is not virtuous. Both have been engaged by Beatrice and the Queen, who want to punish their husbands for their presumption. Astolphe and his partner look at one another in silence, and return to Court, more than ever convinced that whereas infidelity is stern reality, virtue seems to be a myth. The work, full of biting satire, was played by a brilliant cast, comprising Mlle. Marthe Mellot, Mlle. Dulnc, Mlle. Dorziat, Mlle. Colonna, Mlle. Devimeur, Mlle. Pascal, and M. Beaulieu, the only man among this bevy of ladies.

No more new plays are to be produced during the holidays. The Comédie Française at first proposed to bring out MM. Adolphe Aderer and Armand Ephraim's new play in the course of next month, but the management wisely have postponed the première until the middle of September.

THE PRONUNCIATION OF SHAKESPEARE.

Mr. Daniel Jones, Lecturer on Phonetics, at the summer meeting of the English Association, recently held at University College, delivered a lecture on "The Pronunciation of English in the Time of Shakespeare." Mr. Jones said that it was only within the last few years that people had come to realise how very greatly the pronunciation of English in Elizabethan times differed from that of the present day. This notable change was one of considerable interest and importance, both from the philological and the literary point of view. He spoke, of course, of standard English, the form current among educated persons in the South of England, more particularly in the Metropolis and at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. If Shakespeare could hear his plays spoken according to the modern pronunciation he would often have difficulty in recognising his own words, and, similarly, when people in the present day heard a passage of Hamlet or As You Like It read according to the reconstructed pronunciation of Shakespeare's time it was often more or less incomprehensible. Everyone admitted that much of the charm of fine poetry lay in the element which might be called its musical effect. Shakespeare's lines, therefore, had suffered a detriment by being deprived of the pronunciation in which he intended them to be spoken. Those who had taken the trouble to make themselves familiar with the spoken English of the reign of Queen Elizabeth were unanimous in declaring that Shakespeare's words were far more beautiful in that form of speech than in the English of the present day. Not a few passages in his words were sensibly impaired by the altered pronunciation of modern times. Thus, in Elizabeth's time the letter "r" was rolled, as in the mouths of Scotsmen of the present day, "earth," for instance, being pronounced "airrth." This strong "r" gave great expressiveness to a word like "thunder." Much of the effect of Shakespeare's play upon words was lost to the modern ear. In All's Well that Ends Well the word "muddied" in the phrase "muddied in Fortune's mood" was formerly pronounced "moodied," and Falstaff's pun on "reasons" and "raisins" had more significance from the fact that those two words were identical in pronunciation. It was sometimes asked, "How do we know how words were pronounced three hundred years ago?" There were four principal sources of evidence: the statements of numerous scholars of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries who wrote books dealing with pronunciation; the evidence of spelling, the evidence of rhymes, and the principle of continuity in sound development. Mr. Jones read several extracts from the poet's works with as near an approximation as possible to the pronunciation of Shakespeare and his fellow-players of the Globe. Mr. Sidney Lee, in proposing a vote of thanks, said that, while he had given little attention to the study of phonetics, he thought, after hearing Mr. Jones's readings, that the fact that hardly any of us knew what was the pronunciation of Shakespeare's time showed that there was a serious defect in our system of education. Mr. Jones had told them about the past, but could he foretell the future? Would the English educated classes of the future say "piper" for "paper"?

MR. MARK HAMBOURG, the famous pianist, who recently returned from a tour in Canada, has had some amusing experiences, and relates them in M.A.P.

ONE of the greatest inconveniences of his tour was the transport of the piano, for he took his own piano with him wherever he went. He did not, however, meet with the same obstacles that confronted him in South Africa, where the Kaffirs refused to touch the instrument, thinking that the box contained devils because of the sound of the strings! As a consequence, it was necessary to employ convicts to move the piano, while the warders superintended matters, each armed with a rifle.

AT a recital in Sydney, New South Wales, he was playing with an accompanist, and the two pianos were set back to back on the platform. The hall was not very light, and the man at the other piano was quite invisible to certain members of the audience. During a Concerto of Chopin Mr. Hambourg stopped playing for a few bars, while the other man continued to perform, a fact which called forth the following remark from a musical enthusiast who could not see the accompanist from where she sat: "Oh," exclaimed this lady to her friend, "isn't Mark Hambourg a wonderful musician? Why, look at him now, he's taken his hands from the keys and is playing with his pedals!"

ANOTHER anecdote which tells against Mr. Hambourg arose out of the visit of a lady journalist to interview him. She made the usual notes during the interview, which he finally brought to a close with some such remark as this: "And now, I'm afraid, I must be off. It's a dreadful bore, but I have to go and dine with some horrid people to-night." What was his horror next day to find this remark reproduced in cold print at the end of that interview! It was his last dinner at the house in question.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES, paying a visit the other day to one of his Merry Widow companies on tour, observed a curious gesture on the part of a leading man during his songs. "He sings well," said Mr. Edwardes, "and he's an uncommon good actor, but, tell me, why does he move from side to side like that with his hands out?" "Weel," replied the doughty Scot in charge of the outfit, "you see he fields first slip in our cricket team, and he's rather caught the movement." "Oh, I see," said the governor. "Well, put him mid-on for a week or two."

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN SARGENT, of the New York Academy of Dramatic Arts, and Mr. Francis Wilson have arranged a school for the children of the stage, where the youngsters may learn reading, writing, and arithmetic without interfering with their professional duties. A large apartment has been engaged at Carnegie Hall, and school will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. daily, except when the pupils are engaged at matinées. The teachers will be women. The regular course is from September to June, but there will be summer sessions.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER'S revival of The Importance of Being Earnest, which has passed its 260th performance, will continue to be the attraction at the St. James's Theatre during the summer. When a new piece is needed in the autumn, Mr. Alexander will produce a play, in four acts, by Louis Evan Shipman, entitled D'Arcy of the Guards, in which he, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, and Mr. J. H. Barnes will appear in the principal characters.

AT the end of the run of D'Arcy of the Guards, Mr. Alexander will stage a new comedy by Mr. R. C. Carton, for which he has specially engaged Miss Compton, who will appear for the first time under his management. Mr. Alexander's future plans include a production of Oscar Wilde's Florentine tragedy, The Duchess of Padua, and An Ideal Husband, the rights in the latter having recently been acquired by him. Mr. Henry Arthur Jones and Mr. A. E. W. Mason are both engaged in writing new plays for him, which will in due course be produced at the St. James's.

MR. EDWARD TERRY will commence his annual tour at Margate on the 28th inst., after which he will visit the leading towns in the provinces, where he is an immense favourite. The leading part in The Toymaker of Nuremberg, which was such a success at the Playhouse, and which Mr. Terry has added to his repertory, will suit his fine blend of pathos and humour exactly, and its performances should be very prosperous, especially as Mr. Terry has engaged that gifted and experienced actor Mr. Robert Pateman to support him.

MISS NEILSON-TERRY, in Countess Arnim's merry comedy, Priscilla Runs Away, is drawing smart society to the Haymarket Theatre. Amongst those who visited the Haymarket during the past week were the Duchess of Sutherland, the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk, the Duchesse of Wellington, Lady Kinnaird, Lady Troubridge, Lady St. Davids, Lady McIver, Lady Bell, Lady Airedale, and Lady Lewis.

SIR ARTHUR AND LADY PINERO have left London for Stillands, Chiddingfold, Godalming, until the autumn.

MISS WINIFRED EMERY will repeat her magnificent impersonation of Queen Elizabeth in Mr. William Devereux's spirited drama Sir Walter Raleigh, which will commence its provincial tour at Portsmouth on Monday, Aug. 15, finishing at Bournemouth on Nov. 5. Blackpool, Yarmouth, Bradford, Newcastle, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Manchester, Dublin, Liverpool, and Birmingham will be visited in the course of the tour. That powerful actor Mr. Lyn Harding, will be the Sir Walter.

MR. H. B. IRVING has arranged with Mr. J. C. Williamson for a long tour with Mrs. Irving (Miss Dorothea Baird) in Australia next year; but not until after his next London season, which begins next spring, when Mr. Irving will present the new play founded by Mr. George Pleydell on Mr. A. E. W. Mason's novel "Clementina." The success of Mr. Irving and Miss Baird in Australia may be looked upon as certain.

MR. J. E. VEDRENNE, whose three years' season with Mr. Granville Barker at the Court Theatre is one of the marvels of theatrical history, has taken a West End theatre, where, about the middle of September he will produce a new play by Mr. William J. Locke, entitled The Man from the Sea. The piece is a romantic comedy of English country life. The leading part has been allotted to Mr. Robert Loraine. Miss Cecilia Loftus, who will enact the heroine, has been appearing in America in such important parts as Viola in Twelfth Night, Hero in Much Ado About Nothing, Elsie in Mr. Walter Frith's play The Man of Forty, and as leading lady with Mr. E. H. Sothern. Her performance as Margaret in Sir Henry Irving's revival of Faust at the Lyceum in 1902 is well remembered, and she has also been one of the exponents of the part of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's. Mr. Vedrenne has also engaged Miss Beryl Faber, a clever actress with an excellent record.

MR. LIONEL RIGNOLD, who is now playing John Chodd, jun., in the Robertsonian revival of Society at the Coronet Theatre, has been kindly released by Mr. Robert Arthur, and will start his seventh tour with Judge Parry and Frederick Mouillot's amusing comedy What the Butler Saw, on July 20. The play has been such a success that he has been offered dates at nearly all the first-class theatres in the kingdom, and could easily have booked three tours for the piece, but he believes in personal supervision, so has decided to send out only one company this autumn, which will be under his sole control.

AMONG those who signed the volume forwarded by English actresses to the Queen-Mother expressing their profound grief and sympathy with her on the occasion of the King's death, a considerable number of those who signed the book omitted to leave their address with Miss Lena Ashwell. As Miss Ashwell is anxious to communicate individually with each, she will feel obliged if anyone who has not heard from her on the subject will kindly inform her of the fact by letter, addressed to 36, Grosvenor-street, W.

CONSIDERABLE attention has been created at Margate this week by the kite advertisement used by Mr. Walter Maxwell to announce the visit at the Theatre Royal, Margate, of his company in Mr. Preedy and the Countess. Mr. Douglas Eley, who is so well known in connection with this kind of advertisement, has a fleet of kites, some twelve in number, all of which are in use; and as each kite bears a banner 36 x 16ft. in dimensions, it can readily be observed that not many of the visitors to Margate are unaware of the visit of the play. Mr. Eley is personally superintending the flying, and must be pleased at the success attending on his clever invention

AT Bournemouth on Thursday Mr. Robert Loraine, under the name of "P. Jones," made an attempt for the slow circuit prize on his Farman biplane, but after passing once round in excellent style he sharply came down at that part of the course furthest from the starting-point. He was not hurt, and his machine was only slightly damaged.

AT a special meeting of the committee of the Managers' Club, held at 5, Wardour-street, W., on Thursday, there were present Mr. Herbert Ralland (in the chair), Mr. Cecil Barton, Mr. G. Carlton Wallace, Mr. Frank Weathersby, Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. W. Muckerry-Tilson, and Mr. Martin (secretary). The following gentlemen were elected members of the club:—Mr. Arthur Leigh, Mr. Frederick H. Anderson, Mr. Thomas Reay Wood, Mr. Fred Osmond, Mr. John Waddington, Mr. Charles Dyer, and Mr. Mathew H. Glenville.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES commences her tour with Miss Tommy at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on July 25. The author of Miss Tommy, Mr. Jerome K. Jerome, is personally supervising the revival. Miss Hughes' tour with Miss Tommy extends until the end of October, after which she will be seen in London again as Napoleon's Washerwoman, the character of Sans-Gêne having made Miss Hughes a favourite with variety audiences.

In A White Man, which will be revived at the Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday next, Mr. Herbert Sleath will make his first appearance at this house since the days of the Old Lyceum, in the part of "Jim Carston." The cast will include Mr. Herbert Sleath, Mr. Eric Mayne, Mr. Frank Elliott, Mr. W. F. Grant, Mr. Harry Cane, Mr. R. A. Brandon, Mr. Gerald Valentine, Mr. Stanley Warmington, Mr. Hugh Taylor, Mr. Frederick Ross, Mr. Frank Mayo, Mr. Martin Thornton, Mr. S. Major Jones, Little Kitty Rogers, Miss Gladys Storey, Miss Lilian Tweed, Miss Violet Vorley, and Miss Georgina Winter.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE must be warmly congratulated on his exceptional list of bookings for the forthcoming autumn season at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool. This theatre, after redecoration, will be reopened on August Bank Holiday with The Speckled Band, from the Adelphi; and among the bookings to follow on are the following attractions:—The Bishop's Son, Hall Caine's new play, presented by Messrs. Wentworth Croke, Milton Bode, and Edward Compton; The Whip; Mr. Lawrence Irving, Mabel Hackney, and company in Margaret Catchpole; Mr. Fred Terry and entire New Theatre company in The Scarlet Pimpernel and Henry of Navarre; The House of Temperley; Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch; Mr. H. B. Irving in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde; Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson; the Carl Rosa Opera Co.; Mr. Lyn Harding and Sydney Cooper's company in Tantalising Tommy; The Dawn of a To-morrow, presented by Messrs. Wentworth Croke, Milton Bode, and Edward Compton; Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Don; Mr. Arthur F. Hardy's répertoire company in a quintuple bill, including two pieces by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, A Pot of Cavaire and Foreign Policy, F. Anstey's A Short Exposure, and Mrs. Herbert Cohen's The Chain; Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton; and Mr. Charles Frohman's company in Alias Jimmy Valentine.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR'S fifth revival of Robertson comedies is Progress, played at the Globe in 1869. This will be seen at the Coronet on Monday next, with Mr. J. H. Brewer, Mr. James Carew, Mr. O. B. Clarence, Mr. Edward Sass, and Mr. Arthur Wontner in the cast. Miss Nell Compton plays the heroine, while Miss Annie Brunton, a niece of the late T. W. Robertson, will appear for the first time this season. The play will be dressed in Early Victorian style.

MR. HARRY P. TOWERS'S cast for the autumn tour of Guy Eden and Reginald Somerville's romantic Savoy opera, The Mountaineers, will include Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Aida Jenoure, Mr. Fred Eastman, Mr. Frank Lawton, Mr. Claude Flemming, and Mr. Leo Sheffield. Mr. Reginald Somerville will personally conduct the orchestra. The tour will start at Great Yarmouth on August Bank Holiday. Active rehearsals are already in progress at the Strand Theatre as well as for two other big productions which Mr. Harry P. Towers is sending out in the autumn. Mr. E. Taylor Platt is general manager for all these tours.

MR. WALTER MAXWELL commenced his tour with Mr. R. C. Carton's clever play, Mr. Preedy and the Countess, at the Theatre Royal, Margate, on Monday. During the summer months the company will visit Folkestone, Hastings, Eastbourne, Brighton, Worthing, Jersey, afterwards touring the bigger provincial towns. An excellent company has been engaged, including Mr. A. W. Baskcomb (whom everyone will remember as Slightly Soiled in Peter Pan) for the part of Preedy. Mr. Maxwell has staged the play with his usual thoroughness, and the enterprise starts on the road under the happiest auspices.

THE matinée of a new musical play by Violet Hatherley and Cyril Winchcomb, entitled The Girl on the Boat, arranged by Mr. Harry W. Lumley to take place at the Garrick Theatre, kindly lent for the purpose by Mr. Wentworth Croke and his co-directors in aid of the Middlesex Hospital, and under the immediate patronage of H.S.H. Prince Francis of Teck, was cancelled owing to the sudden illness of Mr. Harry Lumley, whose doctor has ordered a long sea voyage and an entire rest.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD will only be running two companies this autumn, viz: The Earl and the Girl and When Knights Were Bold. The former opens at the Marlborough Theatre on July 30, with Mr. Edward Lewis as Jim Cheese, Miss Lena Hicks as 'Liza, Mr. Herbert St. John as Dick Wargrave, Mr. Lionel Scott as Creweboodle; Mr. D. Fisher, jun., as Downham; Mr. J. R. Tate as Talk; Mr. Harry Courtin as Bunker Bliss; Miss Lily Gullick as Elphin Haye, Miss Blanche Astley as Daisy, Miss Edith Blande as Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Flora Gordon as Miss Bliss. When Knights Were Bold opens at Ilfracombe on August Bank Holiday, with Mr. Sam Lyons playing Mr. Welch's part. Mr. Howard's autumn season at the Crystal Palace opens on Sept. 26 with the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company.

THE Committee of the Playgoers' Club were entertained on Thursday night at dinner at the House of Commons by Mr. E. Marshall Hall, K.C., M.P., the President of the Club.

MR. GEORGE BARRETT, the chief comedian in The Whip at Drury Lane Theatre, will be married on Thursday, July 28, to Miss Betty Rutherford. After the ceremony there will be a reception at the Waldorf Hotel. It may be of interest to note that Mr. Arthur Collins has still further strengthened the cast of his next pantomime at the National Theatre by engaging Mr. George Barrett and Mr. Harry Randall to support Mr. George Graves—a trio of very popular comedians.

MISS FLORENCE NELSON (Mrs. Atkin) has been engaged by Mr. Watson for Mrs. Rennick in The New Boy and Lady Sylvia in The Country Mouse for one month. Mr. Gilbert Porteous has then secured her services for autumn to support Miss Ethel Irving in Dame Nature, for Mrs. Garford, the part originally played by Miss Agnes Hewitt in town.

MISS ELSIE CHESTER, who had been engaged to appear at Wyndham's in September in "George Paston's" play, Nobody's Daughter, has, we are sorry to hear, had to have her leg amputated; but it is cheering to know that when she has recovered from the operation she hopes to be able to still act and teach.

THE late Professor W. J. L. Millar, who died at Newport News, Va., U.S.A., on June 25, after two days' illness, was born at 410, Broadway, New York, in January, 1825. He built the first theatre in the State of New Jersey in February, 1847. He was formerly manager of Junius Brutus Booth, sen., Mrs. Scott Siddons, Miss Braddon (the novelist), Dan Rice, and Barney Williams. He brought Signor Bosco before Queen Victoria at Balmoral Castle in 1856, when the Prince Consort and the late King Edward were present. He was lessee of the Theatre Royal, Cork, Ireland, and of the St. James's Hall, Liverpool. He lived in London for a number of years, and knew the British Isles intimately. He was Royal Arch-Mason of Bath, England. The body was interred at Newport News on June 28 with Masonic honours, the Misses Katie and Jessie Millar being present at the funeral.

MESSRS. LYN HARDING AND SIDNEY COOPER'S first tour of Mr. Cyril Maude's latest success, Tantalising Tommy, will open on August Bank Holiday at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. Miss Löhr's part will be played by Miss Nellie Lonnen, and Mr. Maude's by Mr. Hastings Lynn. Other members of a most excellent cast include Messrs. Ambrose Flower, Roy Byford, Ernest Hollway, Olaf Hytten, Geoffrey Denys, Cyril Percy, Miss Eva Brickwell, Miss Margaret Stuart, &c. Every scene will be carried, and has been painted by Mr. M.D. Hobbes, who did such excellent work for Messrs. Harding and Cooper's Flag Lieutenant companies. Much time and thought have been given to the printing, which should prove both attractive and novel, and includes a very humorous poster by Hassall. Mr. George Mallett is the general-manager, Mr. Jack Parson the business-manager, Mr. Ernest Hollway the stage-manager, and Mr. H. Val Kirwin the advance representative.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS, who has long been meditating an appearance as Richard III., will be seen in the battle scene of Shakespeare's play at the Coliseum in October. The "sketch" will be liberally mounted, and 180 supers will represent the soldiers. Mr. Hicks possesses wonderful versatility, and his Richard is sure to be active and original.

MR. ALFRED MARTIN, the well-known business and advance Manager, concluded on Wednesday his engagement as business manager for Mr. Alex. Maclean's My Lady Bellamy company, and rejoins Les Cloches de Corneville company as advance manager, having been re-engaged by Messrs. Milton Bode and John Hart. Mr. Martin's first engagement under Mr. Milton Bode's management dates back to 1896.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Maggie Teyte, it has been decided to postpone the production of A Summer Night and The Impresario at His Majesty's Theatre, to Saturday evening next. This evening Tales of Hoffmann will be given instead, with Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Muriel Terry, Miss Caroline Hatchard, Mr. John Coates, and Mr. Frederic Austin in the cast.

MR. FRANK CURZON and Mr. Gerald du Maurier's partnership will result in the production at Wyndham's Theatre, on Sept. 1, of "George Paston's" play, Nobody's Daughter, in which Mr. Du Maurier will appear in a middle-aged part, supported by Mr. Sydney Valentine, Mr. Marsh Allen, Mr. Leon Quartermaine, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Rosalie Toller, and Miss Henrietta Watson.

MISS JEAN AYLWIN has been kindly permitted by Mr. George Edwardes to resign her part in Our Miss Gibbs, and to join the company which will appear in the successful musical play next month in New York.

MR. COURTICE POUNDS, supported by his own company, will appear in four musical pieces every evening and at two matinées next week at the Pier Pavilion, Hastings. The pieces are Box and Cox (musical version), The Voice of the Charmer, Charles, His Friend, and the Kitchen scene from Twelfth Night.

THE Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, closes for one week this week-end, the Carlton Dramatic Company concluding a very successful season there.

MR. ROBERT MAITLAND, an English baritone, has signed an important contract with Mr. Oscar Hammerstein to create in America the title-part of a new opéra comique which Mr. Hammerstein is producing at the Manhattan Opera House next September. The opera is written by M. Louis Ganne.

MR. WALTER MAXWELL, whose tour with Mr. Preedy and the Countess opened at Margate this week, had close upon 400 applications for the part of Joanna, Countess of Rushmere, the character so admirably sustained by Miss Compton in the original production at the Criterion Theatre, and which is now being played on tour with conspicuous success by Miss Nella Powys, a young actress of striking originality, who distinguished herself under the Vedrenne-Barker management at the Court.

MR. A. W. BASCOMB, who is starring as Mr. Preedy in Mr. Walter Maxwell's Mr. Preedy and the Countess company on tour, was the recipient of a huge ovation on Monday night at the Theatre Royal, Margate, where he served his novitiate under the régime of the late Miss Sarah Thorne. Mr. Bascomb, who has played Slightly Soiled (his original part) in Peter Pan over 1,000 times, enjoys the unique distinction of having played Clown (the part he originated) in J. M. Barrie's Pantaloon before his late Majesty at Sandringham and Windsor twice within a month, and is the proud possessor of a jewelled scarf-pin presented by the King as a memento of these visits.

MANY of our readers will be sorry to learn that Mr. Duffy, Mayor of Wallsend and owner of the Borough Theatre of that town, is dangerously ill, and at time of writing his condition is causing his family and friends great concern.

ON Saturday next the last two performances of the present run of The Dawn of a To-Morrow will be given at the Duke of York's Theatre, as Miss Gertrude Elliott's presence in America is demanded under a previous contract, and the necessity for undertaking rehearsals immediately upon her arrival will even restrict the holiday she so well merits to her journey across the Atlantic. In the meantime the fact speaks eloquently for the attractiveness and drawing powers of Mrs. Hodgson Burnett's very notable drama that The Dawn of a To-Morrow is (all rumours notwithstanding) to be the piece with which, about a month hence, Miss Gertrude Elliott will open at the Maxine Elliott Theatre in New York.

MR. ALEX MACLEAN concludes his successful spring tour of My Lady Bellamy at the Opera House, Harrogate, this week. After a short vacation he will commence his autumn tour with practically the same company, including Miss Laura Leigh in the tile-rôle, Mr. E. H. Brooke as King William III., and Miss Mary Palmer as the Queen. The play has been enthusiastically received in the provinces, and managers who have already seen it express themselves highly delighted with the production.

OF all the novel and pretty spectacles which have been witnessed in the magnificent Ball-room of the Blackpool Tower none have anywhere approached in interest and brilliance the children's ballet produced there this week by Mlle. Pauline Rivers, a ballet directress of London and Continental fame. The title of the production is Our Children's Farmyard, and although inspired by Rostand's much-discussed play, it is not so much to tell a story as to present a succession of pretty and striking pictures. One hundred and fifty children take part, in gorgeous costumes representing all the fowls and animals usually seen in a farmyard, together with moths, butterflies, and scarlet poppies all dancing together, the mise-en-scène is one of unusual splendour, the equal of which has probably never been previously witnessed on a ball-room floor. The entire production has been designed and supervised by Mlle. Pauline Rivers, for which she deserves the warmest encomiums. The costumes have been supplied by Messrs. Samuel May and Co., London, and the music has been arranged by Messrs. J. Woof Gaggs and Thos. Cheetham, of the Tower Co.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON, who has been resting in North Wales for the last two weeks, has returned and is now busy rehearsing his companies for the autumn, which include two companies of Smith, Brewster's Millions, and Don.

THE first of the Hutchison companies to go on tour this autumn will be Don, with Miss Emma Hutchison, Mr. Charles Harley, and Mr. Gordon Bailey. The company opens at Douglas on Monday. The next is Smith (South company), the cast of which includes Mr. Robert Minster and Miss Cicely Stuckey, Mr. H. Douglas Greet, Miss Ethel Hodgkins, Miss Pauline Straus, Mr. F. G. Thurstans, and Miss Ethel Wellesley. Mr. T. J. Phillips is the business manager, and Mr. George Gamble the stage-manager. The North company of Smith starts on Aug. Bank Holiday at Southport, and the cast includes Miss Jessica Thorne, Mr. Montagu Love, Mr. Vivian Gilbert, Miss Eleanor Delaporte, Miss Katherine Collier, Mr. Cecil Brooking, and Miss Eileen Atherley. Mr. Launcelot Lowder is the stage-manager.

THE productions for both companies of Smith will be exact replicas of that used at the Comedy Theatre, and the play is being personally produced by Mr. Hutchison. Mr. Hutchison's own personal tour of Brewster's Millions starts on Aug. Bank Holiday at Blackpool, this being the fourth visit of the play to Blackpool within eighteen months.

WE are asked to state that the seating, upholstery, and appointments of the Theatre de Luxe at the Brussels Exhibition were designed and manufactured by the well-known firm of James S. Lyon, of High Holborn.

THROUGH the enterprise of Mr. Percy B. Broadhead, the patrons of the Crown Theatre, Eccles, have had the pleasure of witnessing Romeo and Juliet and The Taming of the Shrew, twice nightly, and the result has been an artistic and financial success. The company who were engaged by Mr. Broadhead for the venture was Mr. Alexander Marsh's, and included Miss Carrie Baillie. The business was enormous, pantomime records being broken.

MISS SOPHIE LINGWOOD has been engaged by Mr. Louis Meyer for his No. 1 The Woman in the Case company.

MR. DOUGLAS STUART is busy compiling this year's edition of his well-known "Railway Fare Book," which will be the eighth he has published. It will be issued early in September. The whole of last year's edition has been sold out.

THE Opera House, Southport, will reopen for the autumn and spring seasons on Monday with Miss Decima Moore and Mr. Robert Minster in Lady Frederick. For the coming autumn Mr. Hutchison is able to announce such strong attractions as the original London companies of The Blue Bird, The House of Temperley, The Brass Bottle, The Mountaineers, and The Speckled Band Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. F. R. Benson, The Carl Rosa Opera Company, The D'Oyly Carte Company, Arsène Lupin, The Merry Widow, The Arcadians, The Whip, Our Miss Gibbs, and a host of other recent London successes.

MR. ROBERT MINSTER has been specially engaged to play Tom Freeman in Mr. Percy Hutchison's autumn tour of Smith. Next week Mr. Minster will support Miss Decima Moore in Lady Frederick at the Opera House, Southport, where he is rehearsing for Smith, the tour of which starts on the 25th at Lowestoft.

MR. OTHO HAZLEWOOD, after a short rest in the country, is again by Mr. Percy Hutchison's side as his General Secretary, and will, as usual, go on tour with Mr. Hutchison in Brewster's Millions.

A MOST gratifying success was achieved by Mr. Walter Maxwell's company of Mr. Preedy and the Countess on its initial venture in the provinces at the Theatre Royal, Margate, and it seems that Mr. Maxwell has secured in this play a worthy successor to The Little Minister.

THE success attending the production of the new farcical play, Looking for Trouble, by Hélène Gingold and Lesser Columbus, during its recent week's trial run at the West Pier Theatre, Brighton, would appear to be something quite out of the ordinary, as packed houses followed upon the opening night, and scenes of quite exceptional enthusiasm were aroused at the fall of the curtain at each performance. On the Saturday night the big audience did not leave the auditorium until they had brought all concerned before the curtain seven times and cheered them to the echo. Mr. Cowen has received a most flattering and congratulatory letter from the local management emphasising the hit which the play made, and expressing unbounded confidence in its future.

MR. COWEN is now negotiating for a West End theatre for Looking for Trouble, the "preliminary canter" at Brighton justifying this course, and has already received so many offers of dates from the provinces that he will send out two companies with it in the autumn.

AT Grimsby County Court, on Tuesday, Sir G. Sherston Baker, Bart., awarded Mrs. Louisa Connell, wife of a Grimsby engineer, £40 damages against the Gay Gordons company, who were performing at Grimsby on Feb. 22. On that day Mrs. Connell was walking past the Prince of Wales's Theatre, when some glass fell from one of the dressing-room windows, and cut her face. She claimed damages against the theatre company and W. A. Seymour, responsible manager of the Gay Gordons company. It was admitted that a dresser at the theatre on the date mentioned pushed some glass out of the window, but it was claimed that the dresser was employed by the travelling company and not by the theatre company.

"ALL PARIS," as usually, is much interested in the annual prize competition at the Conservatoire, writes our excellent Paris correspondent; but the attitude of the male and female members of "All Paris" is no better than it was in previous years. If these well-dressed society loafers only applauded those who receive awards there would be little cause to complain. But if the jury's decision does not meet with their approval they shriek, hiss, and insult the gentlemen who sit in judgment on the competitors. In England, where people are taught to respect the "chair," half a dozen policemen would put these cads into the street as a lesson to others; but here the same disgraceful scenes are witnessed year after year.

MR. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN proposes to build a fine opera house in London and present grand opera here next year on the same lavish scale that he did in New York. When he was in London two months ago he selected the site, which is in the West-End, and began negotiations for a ninety-nine years lease of the property. It includes two parcels. On one Mr. Hammerstein has already made payment, and holds the option on the other. He is obliged to go to America now to settle affairs for the Manhattan for next season, but will return in two or three months and complete the negotiations in London. The house is expected to be finished next year, in time to open at the beginning of the season. It will be modelled on the same plan as Mr. Hammerstein's opera house in Philadelphia. After his London season closes Mr. Hammerstein will take his company to America and tour there.

M. RAOUL LEPARRA'S opera La Habanera, which was first heard in Paris on Feb. 26, 1908, at the Opéra Comique, will be performed at Covent Garden on Monday. The libretto is exciting, its chief situations being the murder of one brother by another for the love of a woman and the return of the dead man in spectral shape. The cast will include Mlle. Demellier, M. Dalmorès, M. Bourbon, Mr. Murray Davey, Mlle. Egener, M. Lheureux, Mr. D'Oisley, M. Morin, M. Verheyden, and Mr. G. Sargeant.

MASTER MAX DARewski, the famous boy composer and pianist, profoundly impressed a large and critical audience at Mr. Carl Weber's Pupils' Concert at Bechstein Hall on Tuesday evening, With Miss Maude Dixon he executed in a most masterly manner variations on a theme by Beethoven for two pianos, arranged by Saint-Saëns, and afterwards gave Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 13, and a Paraphrase of Rigoletto by Franz Liszt.

LESSER COLUMBUS'S sensational play, The World, the Flesh, and the Devil, starts its fourth tour of the provinces the end of August, and is booked to visit the most important towns in the country. The tour will last until Whitsuntide, 1911, and new scenery is being painted for the production.

AT the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, on Friday evening, on the occasion of the complimentary benefit accorded by the management to the popular and charming actress Miss Ida Heron, who is at the present time delighting everyone by her skilful and pathetic rendering of the dual rôle of Lady Isabel, the performance of the Bullock version of East Lynne by Mr. Tom Watt's company, was announced to be followed by a farcical absurdity entitled A Lively Hibernian, by Mr. Joe Rowland (the ever-popular P.C. Bullock) as a special item.

MR. WALTER MELVILLE asks us to mention that his office is now at the Lyceum Theatre.

MR. A. C. MOODY, the popular lessee and manager of the New Theatre Royal, Blyth, has acquired the Miners' Theatre, Ashington, and opens this theatre on Aug. 29 with Mr. H. Armitage's company in Leah Kleschna. In the vacation Mr. Moody has had the interior of the Ashington Theatre gutted, and has provided for his patrons new tip-up chair seats in the circle, stalls, and pit, and has put an entirely new stage in. He has already booked several good attractions for this theatre.

MR. T. CAMPBELL BROWNE has been appointed manager for Mr. Moody, and is in town booking companies for both theatres. Mr. Browne will be remembered as business-manager for Mr. R. C. Buchanan's pantomimes and Mr. George Dance's Girls of Gottenburg company.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE is opening his next tour, extending to Whitsuntide, 1911, at the Opera House, Buxton, this week, and will mark the occasion by the production of Twelfth Night. With this addition the Shakespearean productions toured by Mr. Wilkie now number no less than twelve; and he has still further increased his repertoire by acquiring the full provincial rights of Louis N. Parker's famous romantic play, The Cardinal, which he purposes producing very shortly. Mr. Wilkie's excellent company now includes that finished comedian, Mr. Philip Gordon, so long associated in principal comedy parts with Mr. Edward Compton.

AN interesting cricket match took place at Portsmouth last week, on the Milton Asylum Ground, between the lady members of the New Barmaid company, who were playing at the Theatre Royal, and eleven local gentlemen, resulting in an easy win for the ladies by 48 runs. The gentlemen used prepared bats and played left-handed, and the ladies played cricket proper. Miss Violet Osmund made top score, viz., 41 runs. The whole company were entertained at tea in the stand between the innings.

MISS MAIE HOEY, who made such a success in her Eastern dances in their pantomime, is specially engaged by Messrs. Murray King and Clark as principal in their dances in their new production in August at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne.

THE pretty theatre at Tunbridge Wells reopened for the summer dramatic season with the annual cricket week theatricals, when a new comic opera dealing with the Suffragette question was successfully produced, as recorded on another page. While the house has been closed the grand circle has been enlarged with three additional tiers of seats, the auditorium redecorated, the floor of the orchestra sunk, a fireproof chamber constructed for the bioscope, and other improvements effected which cannot fail to add to the popularity of the theatre. An attractive list of bookings extending well into the autumn has been arranged.

MR. DOUGLAS SLADEN has collaborated with Mr. W. Wigmore in the compilation of "The Green Book of London Society," and the result has been published by Messrs. Whitaker and Sons (Limited). It is a directory of British titles, and a directory of peers and peeresses and official personages, set out in an abbreviated yet compendious form, and supplemented with lists of leading names in the principal professions and artistic and literary occupations. The list of actors, dramatic authors, librettists, composers of musical comedy, lyric writers, and scenic artists has evidently been compiled with care, and that of the London theatres with their lessees or actor-managers, their business-managers, and other information concerning them, is well arranged.

MR. HARCOURT WILLIAMS'S Pastoral Play company was rained out on Wednesday, and Mr. Edwin T. Heys, the business-manager of the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, found a haven of refuge for them there in the evening at six hours' notice, whilst extensive alterations, especially in the electrical department, were in progress, and all the staff were scattered on their holidays. Within an hour after Mr. Heys's arranging to receive Mr. Williams, bills were printed and posted, and the box office was opened. A staff was assembled, scenery were carted in, a new switchboard erected, and the theatre cleaned throughout. This was certainly a "record," and Mr. Williams spoke strongly at the close of the performance of the extraordinary speed of the preparations.

SINCE the destruction of the Hippodrome at Barry, by fire, in November last, the town has been without a theatre beyond cinematograph entertainment houses, and the erection of a new Hippodrome of a permanent structure is viewed with considerable satisfaction by the townspeople generally. The extensive building is almost completed, and on Monday evening last the Barry District Council granted a dramatic licence, subject to the approval of the work by the Licensing Committee, it being stated that everything would be complete by to-day.

MR. ROBERT MACDONALD'S Dairymaids company have been engaged for the opening week, which will commence on Monday. The proprietors of the theatre are Tours, Ltd., and on Tuesday Mr. Arthur Carlton, managing director, will entertain the members of the District Council and other leading townsmen at a banquet.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Ibsen's Paintings.

As a young man, Ibsen was by no means certain of his vocation, writes the Norwegian journalist John Paulsen, quoted in the current number of The New Age. Until he was thirty-two he believed himself to be born for painting. In fact, a pretty big exhibition might be got together of the canvases painted by Ibsen in the days of his early manhood, and scattered now throughout the farmhouses and country villas of Norway. He remained all his life profoundly interested in art, and his judgments of ancient and Renaissance art in Italy are always original. Of Raphael he said: "Raphael's art has never warmed me. His beings belong to the Garden of Eden before the Fall."

The Time of Day.

IBSEN'S conception of drama was of something supreme in literature. The creation of dramas was indeed for him not merely a substitute for life, but life itself. He could not conceive that a man should be able to write both novels and plays; for drama demanded the devotion of the whole of a man's powers. In the art of drama, he said, there are a thousand and one artifices of finesse which the novelist knows not of. "Have you ever thought," he remarked to Paulsen, "that in a play the conversation of the morning must have an entirely different colour from the conversation of the evening?"

No Nonsense.

JONAS LIE, the well-known Norwegian writer of sea stories, was asking Ibsen's advice one day about a play he was contemplating. How long, he asked, may a character chatter on the stage? (He had in mind, perhaps, some such conversational plays and displays as we have lately seen at the Repertory Theatre.) "Chatter!" said Ibsen, witheringly, "nobody is allowed to talk nonsense either on the stage or off."

Ibsen's Explainers.

IBSEN, like every other great author, was perpetually being asked to explain what he meant by his plays. Just as perpetually he pretended not to know. "Somebody," he said, "will one day come and tell me what I do mean. The critic is always ready to see a double meaning in everything. In The Doll's House, for example, there is the scene in which Nora enters, followed by a porter carrying a Christmas tree. Nora takes her purse and gives the porter a shilling instead of the usual sixpence. A Swedish critic, if you please, found a symbolic meaning in the act. Nora, he thought, was a Socialist, who desired to equalise wealth, and Ibsen was a Socialist propagandist!"

Even Wallpapers.

"You never notice anything," Ibsen once said to a friend. "For instance, you don't remember at this moment the colour of the wall-paper in your own bedroom. But when I enter a strange room I notice the very smallest details. Nothing escapes me. Yes, I see everything."

His Secrecy.

ONCE when Ibsen was engaged in writing a play he by chance dropped a scrap of paper on which were the words "the doctor says." Mrs. Ibsen determined to have a joke, and one day casually remarked, "Who is that doctor in your new play? I suppose he'll say some interesting things?" Ibsen at first was silent with astonishment. Then he broke out into a fit of rage, full of reproaches for her spying.

His Early Loves.

WHILE at Bergen Ibsen fell a little in love with a pretty girl, who used to bring the young poet flowers from the wood. One day while walking with her the pair were suddenly met by the young lady's father, who had no respect for an impecunious poet. Ibsen, like Goethe, was no hero, and incontinently fled, leaving the girl to explain as best she might. It was to her that the poem "Flowers of the Wood" was written. Ibsen was also in love for some time with his wife's sister, Mary; and it was to her that he addressed the poem "With a Water Lily," in which occurs the famous line, "It's dangerous to dream near Mary."

Goethe a Goat.

IN some respects Ibsen was not unlike Goethe, for whom he had a profound admiration. He could not tolerate, however, the German adoration of Goethe's amorisms, which filled his strict puritanic temperament with disgust. After listening one day to somebody's praises of Goethe's loves, Ibsen remarked, laconically, "That goat!"

An Energetic Actress.

MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON says:—"I think highly of the actress of to-day. Unlike her sisters of twenty-five years ago, she believes in devoting her spare time to outside affairs—hobbies, if you like—and there is nothing better calculated to broaden one's outlook on life than mixing in the busy world. Then just think with what fresh vigour you return to your particular sphere. I live up to my opinion, having illustrated several children's books, acted as organising Secretary during the South African War for the Actors' and Actresses' Hospital Hut, contributed sundry articles to the Fortnightly Review, &c., and, finally in October I take up the management of a theatre."

A Money Order.

MR. OSCAR ASCHE says the deadhead is a destroyer of drama. "Once give a man a free seat for a play," he said, "and you will have a difficulty ever afterwards in making him 'pay to go in.' While I was once playing at a famous old playhouse in an ancient town, the theatre at which Macbeth was to have been given was burnt down. For our next week there our chief contrived to borrow a playhouse a little way out of the district. On reaching there to rehearse on the Monday, the manager received a letter saying that the writer had been given two dress-circle orders for the performance of Macbeth, but as that play was not performed owing to the destruction of the theatre, the writer surmised that the manager would remit the money value of those orders."

A Rubber Boom.

IN Mr. Neil Kenyon's dressing room at the Apollo Theatre last week there was an extra number of autograph books handed in. Mr. Harry Danby, who had looked in for a chat, suggested in his saddest manner that a rubber stamp would be useful; and the matter dropped, as some jokes have a habit of doing. The following evening, however, Mr. Kenyon was surprised to have no less than three representatives of rubber-stamp firms send in their cards. Mr. Kenyon, seeing Mr. Danby's fertile brain in this, ordered an autograph stamp from each, giving "Harry's" name and address and scrawling on the order form "cash on delivery." Like many others, Danby is now a sadder man at the mention of rubber.

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

"HIS LORDSHIP'S CURE."

Comedy, in Four Acts, by Dolf Wyllard and Elliott Page, Produced at a Matinée at the Apollo Theatre on Tuesday, July 12.

Lady Jane Wrightways ..... MISS GRANVILLE
Dennison ..... MR. ARTHUR BURNE
Mr. Wrightways ..... MR. EDGAR B. PAYNE
Enid Marchmont ..... MISS VIVA BIRKETT
George Alston ..... MR. BRIAN EGERTON
Sir Philip Vesey, F.R.C.S. .... MR. BASSETT ROE
Lord Charles Howard .... MR. MALCOLM CHERRY
Archie Gillies ..... MR. FRED CREMLIN
Tibbie ..... MISS ARMINE GRACE
Primrose ..... MISS KATHARINE POLE
A Boy ..... MR. R. BRIGHTEN SALISBURY

Under the immediate patronage of His Serene Highness Prince Francis of Teck and many distinguished ladies and gentlemen, the above play was produced at a matinée given on Tuesday at the Apollo Theatre, which had been kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Alexander Henderson. There is much merit in His Lordship's Cure. It contains some pretty scenes and several well-conceived and interesting characters. It is brightly and pleasantly written, and the story, if not strikingly original, is clear, entertaining, and agreeable.

The action opens at the London house of Lady Jane Wrightways, a match-making, meddlesome woman, who, seeing that her nephew, Lord Charles Howard, is getting fat and losing his health as the result of his idle and dissipated mode of life, schemes to marry him to a charming girl named Enid Marchmont. Enid is under the dominion of her step-brother, George Alston, a scamp, who has gambled away most of her money, and has, by a trick, managed to break off her engagement with the young man with whom she was in love. Alston tells her that she is practically ruined, and that the best thing she can do is to marry Lord Charles. By a very simple trick, Lady Jane brings about the semblance of an engagement between them. She asks Lord Charles to go to a jeweller's and select a bracelet. When he brings it, she pretends that he has bought it as a present for Enid, and makes him clasp it on the girl's arm. In order to get Lord Charles to marry and settle down, Lady Jane has induced his doctor to warn him of his condition, and it is this medical opinion which leads him to visit Western Lodge, his house in the country.

The tenants on the estate have been very badly treated by Lord Howard's last secretary, who apparently acted as his steward as well; and the old gardener, who, with his wife and a lady assistant, Miss Primrose, are the only people at Western Lodge, are expecting the coming of the new secretary. Lord Charles arrives, and Primrose mistakes him for the subordinate. In the course of their conversation she gives him a bit of her mind as to his own character and mode of life. The piquancy of the situation attracts Lord Charles, who maintains her error, takes her advice as to exercise, comes out and digs in the garden, and gradually falls in love with her. Just as he is about to propose to Primrose, Lady Wrightways swoops down on Western Lodge, accompanied by Enid, Alston, and others. Now, of course, trouble begins. We learn that Primrose is Enid's sister, who, disgusted by Alston's behaviour, has determined to earn her own living. When Alston tells Primrose that Enid is engaged to Lord Charles, she is, of course, very indignant, and the act-drop falls on her outburst of passionate grief.

Matters are cleared up in the last division of the piece. Enid's old sweetheart, it appears, is Lord Charles's present secretary; so, when she tells him, as she thinks it her duty to do, about her "prior affection" and the way it was broken off, Howard is able to bring the lovers together, and thus break off his engagement with Enid gallantly. He then interviews Alston, who tells him a story about Primrose having disgraced herself and left her relatives; but Howard turns the rascal out of the house, explains matters to Primrose, and easily obtains her forgiveness.

The success of the piece was very greatly owing to the admirable way in which it was acted. The performance by Miss Katharine Pole of the part of Primrose was a charming and clever one. She was exactly suited to the character, and she depicted the bright, lively, yet strong and spirited girl to the life. Miss Pole gave a vivid representation of a certain type of modern womanhood, and made a very fascinating and interesting lady gardener. Her performance was full of intelligence and feeling, alert, active, earnest, and affectionate. It was a real and very winning impersonation. Another embodiment which must be warmly praised was Mr. Fred Cremlin's Archie Gilles. As the sturdy, shrewd, and slightly sarcastic Scotch gardener, he was thoroughly firm, human, and convincing, and his admirable make-up, the "pawky" humour of his characterisation, and the tender and dignified way in which he handled his share of the interview with Lord Charles in the last act made his creation a meritorious and a memorable one. Mr. Malcolm Cherry was well chosen to represent Lord Charles Howard. His lightness of touch in the earlier part of the performance, and his genuine vigour and emphasis later on were very commendable; and the comedy spirit of his acting in the scenes with Primrose was excellent. Miss Granville was more than equal to the requirements of that superficial personage Lady Jane Wrightways, and her polish and style were liberally bestowed on her task. Mr. Arthur Burne contributed a clever bit of acting as the gloomy man Derwent Dennison, and Mr. Edgar P. Payne did all that was possible as the dyspeptic Mr. Wrightways. Miss Viva Birkett looked very pretty as Enid Marchmont, and well suggested Enid's pathetic helplessness, bearing herself with charming delicacy and grace; and a particularly sharp, subtle, and incisive representation of the sly and scheming George Alston was supplied by Mr. Brian Egerton. It was an easy thing for such an able and experienced actor as Mr. Bassett Roe to impersonate the flattering, "finicking" physician Sir Philip Vesey, and he did so irreproachably. Miss Armine Grace was curiously original as Tibbie, and Mr. R. Brighten Salisbury was satisfactory as a smiling yokel. The play, which was produced by Mr. D. J. Williams, and stage-managed by Mr. Charles A. Maynard, went extremely well, and as there was a good house and all monies received were handed over to the hospital intact, without the deduction of any expenses, the charitable purpose of the matinée may be assumed to have been effected.

MISS CONSTANCE BEERBOHM writes:—"In 1908 and 1909 I was able to send away a number of governesses, hospital nurses, typists, musicians, secretaries, actresses, and ladies engaged in other professions who could not have afforded the expense, and yet to whom the good of a refreshing change and rest was untold. The lives of these workers in some cases are not only exposed to the positive sufferings attendant on poverty, but to a blank monotony of work and anxious outlook. Moreover, toilers of gentle birth are often overlooked whilst those of a different class are liberally provided with holidays. I appeal urgently to those who look forward themselves to a happy holiday this summer to hold out a friendly hand to the friendless and chiefly to the workers broken down in health and spirit. Any contributions sent to 48, Upper Berkeley-street, W., will be as carefully distributed as gratefully acknowledged.

"A MODERN MEDEA."

A Tragedy in One Act, by Alice Chapin, Produced at the Rehearsal Theatre, Maiden-lane, on Friday, July 8.

Jeannie ..... MRS. ALICE CHAPIN
Freda ..... MISS BEATRICE CHESTER
Ellie ..... MISS ELSIE CHAPIN
Reginald Vere ..... MR. GOODWIN NOCK
Alfred Whitlake ..... MR. BASIL OSBORNE
Felix Villon ..... MR. MAURICE ELVEY

MRS. Alice Chapin's one-act play was the only novelty in the programme of a matinée performance given by her and Miss Elsie Chapin for the benefit of the Women's Freedom League. The scene is an artist's studio, occupied by Reginald Vere, and when the curtain rises Jeannie, a middle-aged model, is being painted in the character of Medea. She proposes introducing a new model to the artist, a young girl, who is a nursery governess, and is very tired of gaining her livelihood by that prosaic occupation. But to introduce an innocent young girl into Reginald Vere's Bohemian set is a risky experiment, so far as the youthful model is concerned, and Jeannie is anxious that her young friend Ellie should never lead the life that she herself has lived since she was betrayed and abandoned by the man she loved and in whom she placed her trust.

Fresh arrivals at the studio are Freda, another model, of the blatantly vulgar type, Alfred Whitlake, an artist, and Felix Villon, a Frenchman, familiarly known among his intimates as "Mouser." They are all anxious to see the new model, more particularly the fast Frenchman, who, it is pretty evident, makes love to every pretty young woman he meets. Ellie has to pose as Galatea, and her classic robes are arranged by Jeannie. By a series of questions she learns that the young girl is her own daughter by the man who deceived and then deserted her. Ellie shocks her newly-found mother by her avowal that she is prepared to make any sacrifice for the sake of living a life of ease and comfort, and she does not seem to be indisposed to encourage the advances of Villon, who is said to be a wealthy man. Her mother, however, warns her of her fate if she listens to the libertine, who would soon tire of her and cast her off. Freda, who has no friendly feeling for Jeannie, brings her a bottle of absinthe, knowing her weakness for drink. The woman cannot withstand the temptation, and gradually becoming intoxicated, falls asleep. When in the early morning of the next day the Frenchman breaks into the room the girl, disgusted with the turn affairs have taken, stabs herself to the heart in the presence of her horrified mother, exclaiming that with her life seemed impossible.

Mrs. Alice Chapin, who, as author, was specially called for at the conclusion of the play, gave an excellent embodiment of Jeannie, and Miss Elsie Chapin also played well as the young girl Ellie. Miss Beatrice Chester ably represented the vulgar, loud-spoken Freda. Mr. Goodwin Nock was good as Reginald Vere, Mr. Basil Osborne acted with earnestness as Alfred Whitlake, and Mr. Maurice Elvey was capital as the Frenchman Felix Villon. The play was produced by Miss Edith Craig, and was preceded by the one-act drama Shame (also by Mrs. Alice Chapin), in which Miss Mary Allestree scored as Annie, the despairing young woman who is prevented from committing suicide, and Mr. C. C. Calvert and Mr. Maurice Elvey did well as Dr. Conang and Dr. Hewett.

The last item in the programme was Mr. George Bernard Shaw's one-act play Press Cuttings, which was acted with much spirit and caused great merriment amongst the audience, which consisted principally of ladies. Mr. Harold Chapin was a laughably ferocious General Bones, Mr. C. C. Calvert made good use of his opportunities as the worried Prime Minister; Mr. Basil Osborne was very amusing as the Orderly; Miss Agnes Thomas played with real humour the part of Mrs. Farrell, the Irish charwoman, to whom the General makes a proposal of marriage; Mrs. Alice Chapin was an amusingly aggressive Mrs. Banger, and Miss Elsie Chapin, who also fulfilled the duties of stage manager, was an attractive Lady Corinthia Fanshawe.

THE public examination was held and concluded on Wednesday of Wilfred Lawson Butt, of Cliftonhill, W. The debtor stated that he was an actor, and that he attributed his insolvency to losses incurred by him in connection with the production of the plays The Open Sea and The Royal Rival and to lack of engagements, in consequence of which his net earnings had been insufficient to meet his expenditure. The liabilities were returned at £498, and the assets at nil.

THERE was a panic at the Comédie-Française the other night during the performance of M. Bataille's Le Songe d'un soir d'amour. Towards the end of the act, at the moment when the poet pours out a cup of tea for the lady lying on the sofa, several persons rose from their seats, and at the same time a slight smell of burning pervaded the house. There was a rush for the doors, but M. Grand, the actor, came forward and said: "Ladies and gentlemen,—Please remain seated—there is no fire whatsoever!" This statement having been confirmed by the police commissary on duty, the frightened spectators returned to their places, and the performance was allowed to continue.

THE Paris Conservatoire competitions are over. The successful candidates have carried home their prizes, whilst the unsuccessful ones attribute their failure to a vindictiveness on the part of the partial jury. But if there is gnashing of teeth in the students' camp, there also reigns dissatisfaction among the journalists, who very rightly complain of the enormous number of seats given to people who have no claim whatsoever to being admitted to these functions. A well-known musical critic having been refused a seat managed to purchase one for 15 francs, and as there is no admittance except by invitation, it is obvious that unprincipled persons traffic in these tickets. The critic made the most of his grievance, and the French Fine Arts Director, M. Dujardin-Beaumetz, has been compelled to take the matter in hand, and is instituting an official enquiry. But this "official" enquiry will, of course, lead to nothing, and things will remain as they are.

THE annual report of the Exeter Theatre Company states that the expenses for the year were practically the same as those of last year, but the receipts were nearly £700 less. This was to be attributed to several causes, chief among which were the occurrence of the General Election in January, which materially affected the receipts from the pantomime, both in Exeter and elsewhere, and the demise of the Sovereign in May. In addition to these causes, the severe competition to which the theatre was subjected could not be overlooked, and it was not likely that this would diminish, in view of the building of the additional places of amusement in the city, and the opening of a bioscope theatre in High-street. Every effort had been made by the directors to increase the comfort of the audience and to attract the best class of companies, but unless the shareholders generally endeavoured themselves to secure patronage for the theatre it would be increasingly difficult to maintain its prestige. The uncertainty of the law as to the value of dramatic and other licences still continued to be a source of considerable difficulty to the directors, and it was hoped that the Government would speedily take action in the matter. Mr. C. T. K. Roberts and Mr. Robert Hancock retire from the Board, and, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Thursday morning at twelve o'clock the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the new Royal Academy of Music in Marylebone-road, N.W., took place. The stone was laid by the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G.C.M.G., and the dedication service carried out by the Bishop of Kensington. The event is of great importance in the musical world, and a large number of distinguished visitors were present at the ceremony. For many years the Royal Academy of Music has been sadly cramped for space in the inconvenient premises at Tenterden-street, Hanover-square. An increasing number of students and the need of a large concert hall or theatre, with room for an orchestra, in which dramatic and operatic performances could be given, became imperative for the famous old school so ably conducted by Sir A. C. Mackenzie. The new building in Marylebone-road, near York Gate, will have an imposing frontage of 180ft., comprising a central block and two wings. In the concert hall—122ft. long by 45ft. wide—will be erected a large organ by Messrs. Norman and Beard, given by Mrs. Trelfall in memory of her husband, the late chairman of the Committee of Management. Messrs. Ernest George and Yates are the architects, and Messrs. Wallis and Sons, the builders, expect to have the work finished by June next year. The new school is convenient in position, being near the Baker-street Station and Bakerloo Tube. The Royal Academy of Music, founded in 1822 by John Fane (Lord Burghersh) eleventh Earl of Westmorland, was opened to the public on March 24, 1823, under the patronage of His Majesty King George IV., and it is somewhat a coincidence that the stone of the new building was laid in the reign of his present Majesty King George V. Always under Royal patronage, for King George the Fourth gave an annual donation of one hundred guineas and a Charter to the School on June 23, 1830, King William IV. was also a patron, and Her Majesty Queen Victoria; while, when Prince and Princess of Wales, His late Majesty King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra conferred the greatest honour on the institution by attending in person the distribution of prizes in St. James's Hall in 1897. Ever since 1868 the number of pupils has annually increased. No. 5, Tenterden-street, was acquired in 1876 and a house in the adjoining street taken, and in 1892 the school was enlarged by the addition of No. 6, Tenterden-street. During more than eighty years the Academy has trained over 6,000 pupils, and space does not permit the mention of a host of talented students who have risen to fame in the musical world. For its principals the Academy has had Dr. William Crotch, 1823; Mr. Cipriani Potter, 1832; Mr. Charles Lucas, 1859; Sir William Sterndale Bennett, 1866; Sir George A. Macfarren, 1875; and Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie, 1888, who still holds the office, the President of the Academy being H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, K.G., and it is worthy of mention that in the year 1823 only twenty pupils were admitted, while the number at the present day is over 500. The proceedings on Thursday morning commenced with a Dedication Service, conducted by the Lord Bishop of Kensington, assisted by the Rev. W. D. Morrison, LL.D., Rector of St. Marylebone, in the course of which two hymns—"Angel voices ever singing" and "Now thank we all our God"—were sung by the choir of the Academy. After the stone of the new building had been "well and truly" laid by the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G.C.M.G., the Bishop pronounced the Benediction, and the part-song "My soul would drink those echoes" (written for this occasion by Sir Alexander Mackenzie) was ably sung by the students. Votes of thanks were given to Lord Strathcona and the Bishop of Kensington, to which both responded. Lord Strathcona spoke of the difficulties the Royal Academy had to contend with in the past at their old school and his hopes for the future in the new building, and the Bishop of Kensington, in the course of a humorous speech said how pleased he was that, instead of a great row of ugly flats, a handsome school of music would be built in Marylebone-road, for music was the joy of life, and it would be a poor thing without it. The Rector of St. Marylebone also expressed his pleasure that the new Royal Academy School would be erected in his parish. There were various other speeches, and a telegram was read out from Sir Arthur Bigge to Sir Alexander saying His Majesty King George would be pleased to honour the Royal Academy with his patronage. A telegram was also read from the President H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, expressing regret at being absent from so interesting an occasion and his good wishes to the Principal. An interesting feature also was a kind message sent from Lady Rose Weigall, a descendant of Lord Burghersh, founder of the Academy in 1822. When the Principal rose he had a most enthusiastic reception, and it was some moments before Sir Alexander Mackenzie could proceed. The Principal, in a short speech, said: "We have been honoured by the King, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and a descendant of the founder of the school on this occasion, which has long been looked forward to, but we must remember, in spite of the past eighty years, the Academy really begins now. This event will call for increased energy, but I have no fear and every hope for the future. It must be ours to uphold English music and its ever-increasing importance, and to make our new home an honour to England." Sir Alexander then called upon the students to give three cheers for the old and new Royal Academy, and three very hearty cheers were also given to Sir Alexander himself. The band of the Royal Engineers, by kind permission of Colonel J. L. Irvine, performed Mr. F. Corder's overture "The Golden Dawn"; overture, "Richard III." (German); "Imperial" Grand March (Neville Flux); and Sullivan's incidental music to Henry VIII., under the conductorship of Mr. R. Neville Flux, A.R.A.M. The weather was perfect on Thursday morning, and the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the new Royal Academy of Music was carried out under most pleasant and hopeful circumstances.

The fine site which has been secured in the Marylebone-road, till now occupied by the Marylebone Charity School for Girls, for the new habitation of the Royal Academy of Music has a frontage of 180 feet, with ample light and air on all sides. With the many means of communication it is easily accessible to students and professors. The important new building, the design of Messrs. Ernest George and Yeates, the drawing of which is now in the Royal Academy Exhibition, consists of a central block with two wings, that on the right hand containing the concert Hall, 122 feet long by 45 feet wide, with its entrances and exits on the main road and on the side street, also communicating internally with the building on the ground and on the first floors. The concert room will be provided with a fine organ by Messrs. Norman and Beard, Ltd., the gift of Mrs. Threlfall, in memory of her husband, the late Mr. Thomas Threlfall, who was for many years chairman of the Committee of Management. On the ground floor are the rooms of the principal, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the secretary and the staff, as well as hall, waiting rooms, &c. By an ample staircase a well-lighted basement is approached with the students' luncheon rooms, kitchen, and cloak rooms. The upper floors are occupied by the class rooms, including organ rooms, the library, and examination rooms. The fireproof building is of Portland stone and brick. The difficult problem of deadening sound has been studied in the construction of floors and partitions, and double doors are arranged to all the rooms.

A short account of the history of the Academy is apropos. It was founded in the year 1822 through the patriotic exertions of John Fane (Lord Burghersh), eleventh Earl of Westmorland, and was opened to the public on March 24, 1823, under the direct patronage of His Majesty King George IV., whose interest in its welfare was manifested by an annual donation of one hundred guineas. One of the last official acts of the monarch was the signing, on June 23, 1830, only three days before his death, of the charter granted to the school. His successor, King William IV., was also a patron of the Academy, and continued the pecuniary contribution to its funds. In 1834, by his royal command, the proceeds of the Handel Festival held in Westminster Abbey, at which the students of the Academy took part in the performance of Israel in Egypt, were divided equally between the Royal Society of Musicians of Great Britain, the Choral Fund, the New Musical Fund, and the Royal Academy of Music, the Academy benefiting thereby to the extent of £2,250.

Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, on her accession to the throne in 1837, graciously continued the patronage and support extended to the Academy by her two predecessors, and, together with the late Prince Consort, honoured with her presence a concert which was given for the benefit of the school in 1858.

On the lamented death of H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha in 1900 the Academy was honoured by the gracious acceptance of the presidentship by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn.

The objects of the Academy, as set forth in its charter, are "to promote the cultivation of the science of music, and to afford facilities for attaining perfection in it by assisting with general instruction all persons desirous of acquiring a knowledge thereof."

During the early part of its career, "Academic" concerts for the benefit of the institution were given by the directors, in which, although the celebrated artists and musicians of the day contributed largely to the programmes, the orchestral class and a few of the more prominent students of singing took part. But it is worthy of mention that, as early as 1828, the Royal Academy of Music students were permitted to give a concert before King George IV. in St. James's Palace. In the same and also in the following year a series of Italian operas (the vocalists as well as the orchestra being composed entirely of Royal Academy of Music students) took place in the English Opera House and King's Theatre, Il Barbiere, L'Inganno Felice, L'Italiana in Algeria, Il Matrimonio Segreto, and Così fan Tutte being the operas performed. The third and fourth performances in England of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony were given in 1835 and 1836, under the direction of Mr. Charles Lucas; also the first performance in England of Haydn's Seasons. As the school developed, these performances were continued—first in the Hanover Square Rooms, and afterwards in St. James's Hall and Queen's Hall.

Since 1868 the number of students has annually increased, and, as occasion demanded, additions to the building have been made. The concert room was enlarged to its present dimensions, and the lease of No. 5, Tenterden-street, acquired in 1876. Subsequently, a house in the adjoining street was taken, and again, in 1892, it was found necessary to add yet another house (No. 6, Tenterden-street) to those already occupied.

The curriculum, which includes tuition in all branches of music, and the study of elocution and languages, is comprehensive and complete.

The school has, since his foundition, never failed to retain its leading position, and within recent years years the educational course has been augmented by the institution of the sight-reading classes, the operatic and dramatic classes, classes for ensemble practice, the students' fortnightly concerts, weekly lectures, and the addition of deportment, stage-dancing, fencing and physical drill classes.

Owing to the great and increasing interest taken in the dramatic class and the marked ability displayed by many of the students in acting and elocution, the committee have, with a view to the further encouragement of these arts, decided to permit each of them to be made a subject of principal study in connection with a suitable musical curriculum in either case.

For many years the Royal Academy of Music held local examinations throughout the kingdom, which were popular and lucrative. In order, however, to raise the standard of these examinations and assist the public towards the elimination of defective instruction in music, the Royal Academy of Music entered into negotiations with the Royal College of Music for combined action in the matter. These negotiations happily resulted in a union of the forces of the two institutions for the purposes of local examinations in Music, and the formation, in the year 1889, of the "Associated Board" under the presidency of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

The work of the "Associated Board" of the two great Chartered Schools of Music has already produced excellent results. The scheme includes the Local Examination of Schools, as well as "Local Centre" Examinations, and has recently been extended to the Colonies.

The Academy continues its own separate examination in London (independent of Academy Teaching) of music teachers and performers. This is known as the "Metropolitan Examination." Successful candidates at this examination, which increases annually in popular estimation, receive diplomas certifying to their proficinecy, and are created by the directors Licentiates of the Royal Academy of Music.

During over eighty years of a useful existence, the work of the Academy in the cause of musical education has been, with the assistance of many eminent musicians and lovers of music, conducted successively by its principals, Dr. William Crotch, 1823; Mr. Cipriani Potter, 1832; Mr. Charles Lucas, 1859; Sir William Sterndale Bennett, 1866; Sir George A. Macfarren, 1875; and Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie, 1888.

The number of students who up to the present time have received either their complete or partial musical training within its walls is computed at over 6,000. The growth of the school may be estimated by the fact that whereas in the year 1823 only twenty students were admitted, the number now under training is usually over 500.

Past students, many of whom have risen to positions of eminence and distinction, have, in the course of their respective careers, extended the good work, not only in Great Britain, but in the Colonies and in India; and it is a gratifying fact that the connection with their Alma Mater is rarely, if ever, severed either by the lapse of years or by the distance which may divide them. Space does not permit of the enumeration here of more than a few of those who have distinguished themselves in their profession since leaving the Academy. Among many others whose names are to be found in the lists of Fellows and Associates, the following may be mentioned: Mathilde Bauermeister, Dora Bright, Mary Davies, Agnes Larkcom, Kate Loder, C. A. Macirone, Marian McKenzie, Julia Neilson, Charlotte Sainton-Dolby, Clara Samuell, Charlotte Thudichum, Alwina Valleria, Maude Valérie White, Hilda Wilson, Edith Wynne, and Agnes Zimmerman; H. C. Banister, Joseph Barnby, John Francis Barnett, G. J. Bennett, William Sterndale Bennett, Henry Blagrove, Philip Brozel, Frederick Corder, William G. Cusins, Ben Davies, Eaton Faning, Edward German, C. H. Allen Gill, Thomas Harper, W. H. Holmes, John Hullah, Charles Lucas, George A. Macfarren, Walter Macfarren, Alexander C. Mackenzie, Arthur O'Leary, Brinley Richards, William Shakespeare, Charles Steggall, Arthur Sullivan, Arthur Goring Thomas, John Thomas, Frederick Westlake, Thomas Wingham, Henry J. Wood, &c.

ROSHERVILLE FETE AND GALA.

The hon. directors of the Fête and Gala at Rosherville Gardens last week and the Committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Institution desire to express, through these columns, their deep sense of gratitude to one and all of those who in any way assisted. Special thanks are due to all the following "star" artists who, despite the gloomy elements, journeyed down to keep faith with the Gravesend public:—G. H. Chirgwin, Charles Coborn, Alexandra Dagmar, Marie Blythe, Gertie Gitana, Constance Moxon, Florrie Forde, Andy Burn, Harry Wright, Ross and Grayson, Maidie Scott, Tally Ho Trio, Fred Greville, Adele Levey, Dolly Harmer, Gilbert Girard, Jessie Albini, Edwin Barwick, Elsa Joel, Walter Norman, Pat Carey, Florrie Robina, and Prof. Astley. Mr. Pat Carey as stage manager could not have done his work better, and kept to his post the whole of the day.

Mr. Harry Blake, the Hon. Treasurer of the Fund, at no little inconvenience came expressly up from Brighton, where he was appearing, to render assistance; while Mr. Jack Straw, although in bad health, travelled all the way from Peterborough to supervise his castle, and hurried back again to appear at the local Hippodrome at night. One manager at least who may be justly styled "the artists' friend," Mr. Harry Bawn, became for the nonce an "assistant," and insisted upon everyone he could find entering his "Magic Caves."

Among the stewards were: Lieut. Albini, Jack Collinson, Bernard Stavordale, Harry Wright, T. C. Callaghan, Jack Straw, Harry Blake, and Pat Carey. Amongst other helpers who must not be forgotten are Mrs. Woodrow, who for weeks past has worked like a Trojan, telephoning and telegraphing every hour, and running messages incessantly, and Mr. Busbridge, a local gentleman, who gave much valuable assistance, and who did not mind what trouble he took for the cause. Mr. Edward Swift, the manager of the Gardens, kindly placed everything possible at the disposal of the organisers, and the Press, both professional and local, were very generous in regard to their space. Mr. Jack Collinson deserves warm praise for his representation of Maria Martin, which caused unbounded laughter, and was ably backed up by his dramatic company.

In brief, the Hon. Directors would shake everyone who assisted by the hand, and fervently say "Thank you."

During the afternoon the following telegram was received from Joe Elvin, the founder of the institution, who, to his deep regret, could not be present owing to illness:—"Regret owing to indisposition unable to appear. Have sent doctor's certificate. Sorry to disappoint, but impossible to play. Best wishes, Joe Elvin."

Mr. Fred Herbert, Chairman of the Committees, M.H.A.R.A. and V.A.B. Fund kindly sent the following wire from Birmingham:—"Best wishes for successful day. Good luck.—Herbert."

Other telegrams were as follows:—"Joe Elvin,—God bless your efforts, dear old boy.—Fred Willes, Clacton-on-Sea."

"Weather too bad to appear in the open.—Lil Hawthorne."

"Rush of business, impossible to come. Cheque follows.—Herbert Shelley."

"Regret cannot be with you. Wish best success. Do everybody happy.—Harry Brown, Palace, Clacton-on-Sea."

"Greatly regret too hoarse to sing to-day. Very sore throat. Best wishes for success.—Katie Cohen."

Mr. Harry Tate, the President of the V.A. Benevolent Fund, motored down, and although he was unable to perform, was to be seen busily paying out at the fairground and elsewhere, and visiting all the side-shows.

The following is a list of the amounts collected in the bricks for sale of programmes, flowers, postcards, &c. Considering the incessant downpour it must be reckoned as a good result, and the best thanks of the organisers are due to all the ladies who worked so hard under such miserable conditions, including especially the members of the Committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild:—Miss Indiana Smythson, £1 16s. 3d.; Miss Dora Challoner, £1 13s. 8d.; Miss Elsie Athas, 19s.; Misses Amy and Jessie Denton, 15s. 6½d.; Mrs. Bartram (sale of mirrors), 13s. 2d.; Miss Jessie Smith, 10s. 3½d.; Mrs. Minnie Priddle, 10s. 2d.; Miss Kathleen Rayburn, 9s. 1d.; Mrs. Smythson, 8s.; Miss Elsa Joel, 7s. 2½d.; Miss Olga May, 6s. 1½d.; J. Brooklyn, 5s. 10d.; Mrs. Fawkes, 5s. 8½d.; Miss Florrie Robina, 5s. 1d.; miscellaneous amounts in unnamed boxes and amounts under 5s., £5 15s. 2½d; total, £14 19s. 3½d.

The Star Palace, Partick (Glasgow), has been successfully inaugurated by Mr. Gus Lazenberg, who has been rejoicing in great audiences during the week, the card "House full" being displayed nightly.

Electric Theatre for York.

Messrs. Richardson and Trotter, auctioneers, of Lendal, York, have negotiated, on behalf of the National Electric Theatres, Ltd., the purchase of a site in Fossgate, York, for the erection of an electric theatre. Plans have been prepared by Mr. W. T. Whincup, architect, of York, and the same have been approved by the Streets and Buildings Committee of the Corporation. The whole of the seating accommodation will be on the ground floor, and the façade of the building is of an ornamental character. It is proposed to open the new theatre early in September, and the entertainment will comprise the most up-to-date cinematograph pictures.

MUSIC HALL COMPETITION AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

The Crystal Palace Theatre has been well filled for the last week, and a spirited competition for a prize for the best music hall turn, inaugurated by the management of the Empire Pageant, has drawn together a varied assemblage of amateurs, semi-professionals, and professionals.

Each night the weeding-out process has been going on, and last Saturday witnessed the final heats of the competition, when nine turns presented themselves for the vote of the public, and a most amusing evening resulted. The first turn was given by Mr. Herbert Godfrey, the popular conductor of the Crystal Palace Band, who in a street scene and in the garb of a policeman skilfully rendered solos on trombone, French horn, baritone, and cornet, supplementing this clever performance with a really excellent display of his ability in sketching accurate portraits of celebrities on sheets of obscured glass, evolving the portrait by the process of scraping away the surface until an excellent result was obtained. His performances were greeted with genuine rounds of applause.

Turn No. 2 was "Mr. Black," a baritone singer of sea songs, with a voice of pleasing quality, but whose performance would have been improved by a little more action, but his voice secured him a hearty encore.

The Brothers Uno, who next appeared, gave a remarkable example of simultaneous clog-dancing, and, without the aid of any special costume or get-up, simply brought down the house by their perfect dancing, which appeared all the more remarkable when given by two ordinary individuals in their work-a-day clothes.

"Miss Cinda," low comedienne, infused any amount of go into two songs of the Ada Lundberg or Vesta Victoria type, but her reception was hardly as good as she deserved, perhaps because of the somewhat broad tendency of her humour.

The Four Jarrattis were four young gentlemen attired in the mess dress of officers and sitting at a discussion of the coming production of a regimental concert, but as only one of their number could really sing we do not think that their contribution as a whole would be very valuable.

The next turn, "Little Kathleen English," described as "a pocket Vesta Tilley," was a little lady of certainly not more than nine or ten summers, but whose singing and deportment showed the highest training, and her two songs were rapturously received; her winks and gestures in the rendition of "All the nice girls love a sailor" were a revelation, and it is no wonder that the applause accorded to her stopped the performance for some time.

Miss Winnie Heal was an intelligent child reciter, but it is a pity that both her selections were to the sombre side. However, she received a full meed of applause from the audience.

The Brothers Sperryn made a bold bid for popularity as simultaneous dancers and back-talkers, and although excellent from an amateur standpoint, they failed to get home with the audience.

The last turn was the Brothers Wix, two genuine seaside or racecourse "nigger serenaders," and certainly their performance went with a swing and some of their wheezes smacked of novelty, but they represented a taste that is now well-nigh gone, and although very deserving, they did not score heavily.

The judging was really by the measure of applause received by each artist at the hands of the audience, and Mr. Charles Baker, who had throughout acted as introducer and referee, announced the results, which were very much to the liking of all concerned. Miss Kathleen English was undoubtedly first favourite, and received the prize of £3 3s. and an engagement for this week at a salary of £4 4s. Mr. Herbert Godfrey was second favourite, but the reward of £2 2s. was handed to the Uno Brothers, a decision which seemed to please everybody. A special prize of 10s. 6d. was awarded to the Brothers Wix, and a splendid box of chocolates was handed to Miss Winnie Heal.

The success of this competition has been so great that the management announce another to begin on July 20, which no doubt will cause even more attention than the present one.

Friends of Miss Madge Brownie will be pleased to hear she has recovered from her serious attack of appendicitis, and will resume her work at Boscombe on Aug. 1.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the L.C.C. on Tuesday approved of the drawings of the proposed electric and gas lighting installations at the Finsbury Park Empire.

Black Bros.' Outing.

Last Sunday, July 10, the staffs of the various halls controlled by Black Bros. met and journeyed by rail to the picturesque spot of Barnard Castle, where a most enjoyable day was spent. Sports formed part of the day's programme, many interesting events taking place for numerous valuable prizes. It was a glorious day, and during the afternoon a drive around the countryside proved very enjoyable. This enterprising firm are now running the Palace Theatre, West Hartlepool; Black's Palace, Gateshead; Tivoli, High Shields; and Black's Picture Hall, Sunderland; and on August Bank Holiday will be opened the very elaborately constructed theatre at North Shields, which will bear the same title as the old theatre that was burned down some time ago—viz., The Borough Theatre.

A VARIETY ARTIST'S FATE.

A ghastly murder, of which a once popular member of the variety profession is believed to be the victim, has been revealed this week. The police have little doubt that some human remains which have been discovered in the coal-cellar of 39, Hilldrop-crescent are those of Miss Belle Elmore, a music-hall artist. Mrs. Cora Crippen, otherwise Belle Elmore, an American lady, was married some years ago in New Jersey to an American doctor named Hawley Harvey Crippen, alias Peter Crippen, alias Franckle, who for some years represented Munyon's Remedies in London, was connected with the Drouet Institute, and has latterly carried on a dental business at Albion House, New Oxford-street, as the Yale Tooth Specialist. Mrs. Crippen was a very charming lady, and was very popular in the music-hall world, and was honorary secretary to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild.

For the past four years they have resided, apparently very happily, at 39, Hilldrop Crescent, Holloway. On Feb. 2 last Crippen circulated a report that Mrs. Crippen had left for America to transact business. Later on he said he had received intelligence from America that she was seriously ill with pneumonia, and later still that she was dead, and had been cremated near San Francisco, and that the ashes were on the way to him.

Although her friends were not satisfied with Crippen's story, they did not inform the police until June 30 last, when a lady and gentleman friend of hers came to New Scotland Yard and gave information as to her mysterious disappearance to Superintendent Froest and Chief-Inspector Dew. Every possible inquiry was made by the latter, who, not being satisfied as to Mrs. Crippen's death, interviewed Crippen, who admitted that all his former stories were incorrect; that he had had a quarrel with his wife, who had gone away, saying that she should never see him again, and he believed she had gone to America.

On Saturday last Crippen and Miss Le Neve, whom he had told people he had married, disappeared together about one p.m. Chief Inspector Dew, with Sergeant Mitchell, continued the inquiry, made a thorough examination of the house and garden, and on Wednesday afternoon determined to make a still further examination of the garden and house.

In making a close examination of the cellar, and probing the brick floor, they found that they could move the bricks in some parts easier than in others, and decided to dig the whole cellar up, with the result that the inspector, after digging some little distance down, came across what was evidently a portion of a human body, and later on the mutilated remains of a body were found. He communicated these facts to New Scotland Yard, when Sir Melville Macnaghten and Superintendent Froest attended and viewed the remains.

Additional details are; that early in February, the following letter from 39, Hilldrop-crescent, but undated, was received by the Committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild:

Dear Friends,—Please forgive me a hasty letter and any inconvenience I may cause you, but I have just had news of the illness of a near relative, and at only a few hours' notice I am obliged to go to America.

Under the circumstances, I cannot return for several months, and I therefore beg you to accept this as a formal resigning from this date of the honorary treasurership of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild.

I am enclosing the cheque-book and the deposit-book for the immediate use of my successor, and to save any delay I beg to suggest you should vote to suspend the usual rules of election and elect to-day a new treasurer.

I hope some months later to be with you, and in the meantime wish the guild every success, and I ask my good friends and pals to accept my sincere and loving wishes for their own personal welfare.—Believe me, yours faithfully,

Belle Ellmore.

Suspicion was aroused in regard to this letter by the fact that the name "Ellmore" was spelt with two "l's," whereas Mrs. Crippen always signed her name to letters and cheques with one "l." It is believed that the letter was a forgery.

Also, a notice of Mrs. Crippen's death appeared in the obituary columns of The Era of March 26 last. It was worded:—

Elmore.—March 23, in California, U.S.A., Miss Belle Elmore (Mrs. H. H. Crippen).

We were rather inclined to query the notice at the time it was handed in to us, the reason being that we thought we recollected seeing Miss Elmore with some of her friends just a few weeks previously in the office. Still we were not quite sure, but we had the notice endorsed at the back in the usual way by the person handing it in.

All railway stations, docks, and outgoing ships are being watched, and the police are doing all that is possible to arrest Crippen and his companion.

Miss Melinda May, the secretary of the Music Hall Artists' Guild, says of Miss Elmore:—"She was a bright, bonny, and beautiful woman, of sweet disposition, and worked very hard for the Guild. We first became suspicious that there was a mystery attached to her supposed departure for California when we received the letter on Feb. 2, purporting to come from Mrs. Crippen herself, asking me to put someone in her place, because she wished to resign. It was not her handwriting."

Miss May mentioned the strange fact that at the annual dinner of the Music Hall Railway Associations on Feb. 28 Mr. Crippen appeared with his typist, who was very showily dressed. "It was noticed by the majority of our members, who were somewhat startled, that she was wearing a handsome sealskin coat similar to one which had been worn by the deceased, and even then we did not look so much at her fine clothes as at a beautiful brooch she was wearing, which was exactly like a piece of jewellery worn by Mrs. Crippen.

"At the dinner the typist sat at his right hand, and later in the evening Mr. Crippen danced with her. It was given out in some quarters that the typist was his wife."

The annual outing of the employees of the Metropolitan took place on Sunday last. The party journeyed to Weston-super-Mare, lunch and dinner being provided in a specially engaged saloon car.

The new Aberdeen Tivoli when it opens on Monday next will be under the management of Mr. Walter Gilbert, late of the Aberdeen Palace, which re-opens the same day, after extensive alterations, with Mr. Percy H. Gallagher as manager.

Opening of New Picture Theatre at Maidenhead.

On a site immediately adjoining the Pavilion Pleasure Gardens a commodious and handsomely-furnished building has been erected by Messrs. Boyle Lawrence and Frederick Mouillot. The show will be continuous from 2.30 to 11 p.m., Mr. Nowne being the resident-manager, and the films being supplied by the London Cinematograph Company. The building is of brick and iron, covered with a preparation of stone; it is lighted and ventilated by electricity, and warmed by gas radiators. Tip-up accommodation is provided for 500, while the prices range from 3d. to 1s.; each series of pictures will last for an hour and a quarter. On the occasion of the opening, Saturday, July 9, the venture was well patronised, with a continuous full house. The pictures, which are to be changed twice a week, include Saturday in Maidenhead High-street, Ascot Sunday at Boulter's, Henley Regatta, Funeral of King Edward VII., and The Rice Industry in Japan.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving and affectionate memory of our only and beloved Daughter Jeannie, the sunshine of our lives,
Who passed peacefully away,
Friday, July 16, 1909,
aged 18.
Deeply mourned and sadly missed by her sorrowing Father and Mother,
Dr. and Mrs. Walford Bodie.

THE LATE MISS JEANNIE BODIE.

God hath called away our only girl,
Placed our bud amongst His flowers;
Taken back the one He lent us
To a better home than ours.

We loved her—yes, no tongue can tell
How much we loved her and how well.
God loved her, too, and He thought best
To take our Darling home to rest.

A precious one from us has gone;
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

The Angel of Death did enter our home
And bore our dear loved one away.
The chair that she filled in bygone days
Is sadly empty to-day.

Gone, dear daughter, much we miss thee;
No dear form like thine is near,
No kind word to soothe or comfort,
None like thine our hearts to cheer.

Oh, God, how mystic are Thy ways—
To spare the frail and old,
And take away the beautiful—
The choicest of the fold.

In loving and affectionate memory of our dearly beloved Sister, Marie Walford Henry Bodie (Mystic Marie), who died July 19, 1905, sadly missed by her loving and devoted sister and brother, Dr. and Mrs. Walford Bodie.

THE LATE MYSTIC MARIE.
(Miss Marie Walford.)

Time cannot blot you from our minds
As the days and years pass by,
When we stand at your graveside, sister,
And look on the place where you lie.

Sweet be thy rest, thy memory dear.
'Tis sweet to breathe thy name.
In life we loved you very dear;
In death we do the same.

Byeways of Byron.

Mr. Gilbart-Smith's picture-play, The Byeways of Byron, which was witnessed by so many people early in the season, will be given every day at the Piccadilly-circus Cinematograph Theatre, Great Windmill-street, at four o'clock, and at the Oxford-street Cinematograph Theatre at seven o'clock. Many interesting pictures, never before published, and the actual scenes which inspired "Childe Harold" illustrate the libretto. The play goes to Edinburgh in August.

History of a Sardine Sandwich.

The management of the Bath Electric Theatre continue to present first-rate picture entertainments. An interesting and educational film recently shown is entitled the History of a Sardine Sandwich, which deals with the whole process of tinning sardines from the time when they are caught. Another interesting film is a most graphic reproduction of a performance by the Ramon Garcia Troupe of gymnasts. There is an exceptionally clear film of that celebrated fairy tale "Little Snow White," which is well taken, and should especially appeal to the younger element. Two humorous films are entitled Foolshead Tries Somersaults and Poor Pa Pays Again, while Grandfather's Heart is a tale of love with the usual happy ending.

The Choice of Tyres

It is a singular thing that a man will spend six months choosing a car, and grudge six minutes to choosing the tyres for it. This is rather short-sighted, for tyre troubles are quite equal to car troubles, and tyre bills to car bills. Moreover, there is always a BEST somewhere. If by taking thought you can add a few hundred miles to your present tyre mileage, is it not worth the thinking? Our suggestion to you is that you co lect a little evidence about

"THE GOODRICH AVERAGE."

There are many ways, but the quickest is to

A FEW days ago an amusing incident occurred at the Trocadéro, Paris. M. Henri Maréchal's magnificent cantata, "Chant de Fête" was being performed, the orchestra, chorus, and soli comprising 1,100 performers. The huge hall was packed with people, and the chorus consisted of children belonging to the Paris public schools. These children—whose ages varied from twelve to fourteen—had been carefully trained, and at rehearsals a piano, of course, had replaced the orchestra. The opening bars of the work are played by the trumpets, a fact of which the children unfortunately were not aware. And when the brass instruments suddenly started their terrific din it gave many of the youngsters such a shock that they had to be promptly removed from the hall.

AT Woodbridge Petty Sessions recently an application was made by Mr. George Walter Curtis, manager of the Weights Theatre of Varieties Company, under the Theatres Act, 1843, for a licence for the performance of stage plays in a portable building to be erected on a meadow in the Avenue, Woodbridge, for the space of three months. The applicant stated that the entertainments would consist of dramas and comedies. He had already had three licences granted him, and was now located at Saxmundham. Mr. Skinner and Mr. J. Cole had consented to be his two bondsmen. The building would seat about 550 to 600 people, and there was sufficient number of doors in the buildings to allow it in case of necessity to be cleared in 1½ minutes. There would not be any Sunday performances, and no liquor would be allowed to be taken on the premises. Replying to the Bench, Mr. Curtis said there was no vulgarism in the dancing and singing, which were part of the contents bill submitted to the Bench. After a retirement of about a quarter of an hour, the Chairman said the Bench would like further references as to the performances, and in order to ascertain the feeling of the residents of the town they would adjourn the application for a fortnight.

FRIENDS of little Molly Shiells, the clever child actress, who made such a success of Nellie in Ramsey and De Cordova's sketch The Organ Grinder, will be sorry to learn that a month ago she was compelled to relinquish the part whilst playing at Olympia, Liverpool, owing to an attack of appendicitis. She was taken to the children's infirmary there and operated upon immediately. The case being a very serious one, there was grave danger for some days, but we are glad to learn that she is now going on splendidly, and hopes to be able to resume her old part of Europena, which she has played for two and a half years, in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, in the autumn.

Try Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Savoy Hotel, Strand, W.C.*

MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON'S "Little Theatre" is progressing steadily, and she hopes to be able to open it in October. Miss Kingston proposes to produce a new piece on the first Tuesday of every month, so as to have always something to fall back upon. Of course, the run of a successful production will not be interrupted, but Miss Kingston hopes to thus acquire a stock of plays on which public approval has been pronounced.

BENGER'S

FOR ACTORS, ACTRESSES, VOCALISTS AND ATHLETES.

When fatigued or overstrung, the first refreshment should be Benger's Food, because all exceptional physical effort and nervous strain causes a temporary lowering of the digestive capacity, just when Food is required as a pick-me-up.

It is unwise then to take ordinary food, and stimulants should be doubly avoided, Benger's Food is, however, just what is required to revive from fatigue, to give immediate nourishment, and to tone up the system in readiness for ordinary food.

Benger's is the lightest and daintiest of foods; it is also the most digestible and most highly nutritious.

It should be made with new milk strictly in accordance with the directions contained on each tin.

Benger's Food is sold in Tins by Chemists, etc., everywhere.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1910.

GARRICK'S VILLA.

It will be a great pity if, as is threatened, DAVID GARRICK'S old villa at Hampton is demolished; and we trust that the Society of West End Managers and the Middlesex County Council between them will find some means of preventing the destruction of so interesting a relic of the past. GARRICK was not only an actor of genius; he anticipated the modern manager in the respect which he won for himself and his calling. He would have been knighted had not the narrow mind of "Farmer George" objected to thus honouring a man whose chief associates belonged to the Whig party in politics; and he was received on terms of intimacy and consideration by all the distinguished men of his day. Dr. JOHNSON, who was half jealous, half contemptuous of the actor-manager, nevertheless was his friend; and Queen CHARLOTTE, when on a certain occasion she called at the Hampton villa and found Mrs. GARRICK pickling onions, sat down beside her, called for a second knife, and joined the good housewife in her occupation. GARRICK often dined with such men as Lord Chief Justice MANSFIELD and Lord Chancellor CAMDEN, and was a persona grata with a very large number of fashionables and people of title. His tact "taught him when to be reserved and free"; and his talent as a conversationalist made him welcome in all sorts of society. At the same time, he hated brainless fops and foolish rakes, and wasted no time in cultivating their acquaintance. He was, besides being a great actor and a marvellous manager, a consummate man of the world.

In another point GARRICK anticipated the modern manager; he was economical. In an age of gambling and extravagance, and with a record and character so free from weaknesses that it was difficult to find in him a point for attack, it is not surprising that GARRICK was ridiculed by the envious for his care and common sense in money matters; but he broke the bad tradition which coupled dramatic genius with folly, and which derided a rich manager because he avoided waste and insisted on having a shillingsworth for a shilling.

Especially did GARRICK show his wisdom in the choice of a wife. LA VIOLETTE was a dancer, and a teacher of dancing; an Austrian Court favourite, and the Terpsichorean instructress of the children of MARIA THERESA. Her portrait in the SHAKESPEARE Memorial Gallery shows a pretty, shrewd face, with a slim and symmetrical figure and a good deal of natural elegance. In order to remove her from the vicinity of the Austrian Emperor, whose infidelities to his "predominant partner" were numerous and notorious, LA VIOLETTE was sent to London in the disguise of a boy, and was received into the household of the Earl and Countess of BURLINGTON, probably as governess and companion to their daughter. She danced in pastoral and heroic ballets at the Haymarket Opera House and Drury Lane Theatre, where the Countess used to wait for her in the wings with a pelisse. She fell in love with GARRICK after seeing him on the stage, and a marriage was soon arranged between them, Lord BURLINGTON generously settling on her £4,000.

It is pleasant to think of the young couple starting housekeeping in Southampton-street, Covent Garden, and afterwards moving to ADAMS'S newly-built Adelphi Buildings; but there are more picturesque associations connected with the villa at Hampton, which GARRICK bought in 1754. The engraving of the house which was published at the time shows a simple, semi-classical frontage, a lawn sloping down to the river, a quaint little temple with Ionic pillars at the portico, and a weeping willow bending over the water. Fortunately the house has been little altered. According to Mrs. CLEMENT PARSONS, who recently visited the place, the low-roofed entrance-lobby, with its corner cupboards flush with the panelling, is the same as in GARRICK'S day; and so is the medallion decoration of the staircase. The large upstairs drawing-room presents what must be a comparatively rare complete specimen of eighteenth-century taste, in its canvas-hung walls painted with subjects à la Chinoise—pagodas, junks, and parasols—in colours now dark from bitumen, while the round-topped doors are encircled with trellis in painted and gilded plaster. A curious feature of the grounds is that the high road runs between the villa and the lawns, so that a tunnel had to be run under the highway to the part of the garden where stands the temple in which the GARRICKS used to sit over their wine on summer evenings. At Hampton they received as guests all the notable people of their day. FOX, BURKE, SHERIDAN, GIBBON, REYNOLDS, and BEAUCLERK assembled at GARRICK'S garden parties. It was proved, what now seems self-evident to us, that the social status of a great actor, if he will only adapt himself to general society and respect its customs and regulations, could even in the eighteenth century be made brilliant and secure.

As the author of an interesting article in T.P.'s Weekly reminds us, Mrs. GARRICK survived her husband by more than forty years, and retained the tenancy of the villa. After her death it passed into the hands of her solicitor, Mr. CARR. One day in 1829 "Rainy Day" SMITH pulled the bell and took shelter from a threatening storm. He found the house full of GARRICK relics, which Mrs. CARR showed to him with pride, including trees planted by Mrs. GARRICK, and a mulberry tree which had been a sucker from SHAKESPEARE'S tree at Stratford. HOGARTH'S famous election pictures, which GARRICK had possessed, were no longer there. They had been bought at the sale of GARRICK'S pictures, in 1823, by Sir JOHN SOANE, and are now in the SOANE Museum, Lincoln's Inn. SMITH had the satisfaction of sitting on a sofa which had often supported Dr. JOHNSON. When he thanked his hosts for their hospitality, Mr. CARR said: "This house was ever famous for it. Dr. JOHNSON has frequently knocked up Mr. and Mrs. GARRICK at a very late hour, and would never go to bed without a supper."

The speculating builder is rapidly swallowing up relic after relic of the past. Such memorials cannot be replaced. Places like Hampton Court Palace and Kew are national possessions, and the nation should make some small sacrifice to save from destruction anything of the same sort. Can nothing be done to preserve GARRICK'S villa?

DRAMATIC "THRILLS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your leading article in the current issue of The Era it is contended that the section of the British public interested in social problems—on the stage or elsewhere—is but a small one. This is true; but it should be emphasised that the failure of certain recently presented sociological plays to satisfy the dramatic instincts of even the interested minority was founded upon the same inward inefficiency which causes the advanced contemporary mind to reject conventional plays of a past age. It may be accepted as axiomatic that thrills are the fundamental basis of vitality in the theatre, as in life, but that the nature of these changes, as does the nature of other things, as the generations pass. There was a time—in what may be called the dagger-thrust period—when the thrills of the theatre and of life lay in the violence and accident of material action; but we are no longer agitated by this, not even the spectacle of bodily death producing the awe and the purging that it used to effect. But the point to be considered is, that for the advanced modern mind little thrill lurks in any surface action whatever, whether it be ancient or modern, smooth and silent running, as is contemporary life, or tumultuous, as existence was of old. So it is that the dramatic instinct rejects the most valuable modern intellectual compositions when it but photographically reproduces surface life for much the same reason that it rejects antiquated stage forms—because these seek to limit the appreciation to the mere crust of things after these have lost their old significance.

For this reason a play like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, constructed for the most part, for stage purposes, in an old, conventional form, yet raised itself in the scale of dramatic acceptability above some of its more awakened and vital intellectual contemporaries because, at one point at least, it allowed the eddy of surface-movement to cease and the underlying imaginative idea to come forward and produce its thrill. The advanced mind of to-day is not thrilled by bodily change in the concrete, but it is moved when the dramatist or actor presents this as a symbol of a struggle that goes on, in some degree, in the souls of all men. Perhaps the only authentic twentieth-century thrill in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde was in the last scene, when the imagination no longer pictured a man local to any spot of materiality, but knew that the being whose footfalls behind the walls of the laboratory came to the sensual ear was yet in reality a spirit wrestling for his heritage of the fair things of existence far away in some intangible inferno of the mind.

The only real thrills that exist to-day—in life or in the theatre—are those that come to the imagination when the threads of the surface action are drawn aside and the beam of some radiant or diabolic immaterial idea sets the imaginative nerves tingling. Ibsen's thrills are of this kind, also those of Maeterlinck, and the sense of satisfaction in the recent plays that contrast the complexity and falsity of the social fabric against some elemental and simple standard of nature—usually of Colonial birth—is reared on the same basis.

As a critic pointed out, certain vital plays recently presented supplied an intellectual feast, but left some inward corner of the imagination hungry "almost to the point of starvation." But this will happen to any play dealing in any subject matter whatever if the author fails to supply thrills as well as argument—thrills being understood to advance in quality to the same point as every other product of the time. If we seek to define the idiosyncratic note of the thrill of to-day we find it perhaps in the imaginative pleasure we take in observing the particular and passing as it is related to the universal and enduring. To some extent we have lost interest in the individual destiny as such, and are moved chiefly when it finds contact and is modulated by some force that is constant and eternal in action on the life of all men. The individual is of little appeal, except when its action touches and merges itself in the stream of some enduring and immortal emotion. We seek, in short, to observe constant quantities under the surface ebb and flow, because these allow us to participate in the sensation of mankind's far-spread and linked-up destinies, and the imagination enjoys the peculiarly twentieth-century thrill of partially realising an immortal life.—Yours faithfully,

"HOW IT'S DONE."

Playlet, Produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Thursday Afternoon, July 14.

Louisa Marmette De Vere..MISS MAY PALFREY
Captain Vivien .....MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH
Reginald Bantock .....MR. WILFRED FORSTER
Proprietor of the Hotel ..MR. ALFRED DRAYTON
Waiter .....MR. P. LEACH
Policeman .....MR. C. MCGUINNESS

Played for the first time at the matinée given at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Thursday last in aid of the Actors' Church Union, How It's Done certainly proved one of the most diverting items in the fine programme. The author, whose name is not given, funnily shows how the confidence trick is worked, and in describing the plot of the play it is difficult to give an adequate idea of its humour. Louisa Marmette de Vere, an auburn-haired lady, posing as a wealthy widow, and Capt. Vivien, her accomplice, both really very impecunious, make it clear soon after their entry on the scene what their game is. Vivien has managed to get acquainted with a young man, named Reginald Bantock, and learns he has a considerable sum in notes on him, and, with the assistance of the "widow," he means to annex them. Louisa, out walking by herself, had purposely dropped her bag, and Bantock, picking it up, is of course profusely thanked, and when he calls, presumably at her request, at the hotel in Surrey-street, where the "widow" is staying, she again expresses her gratitude to him and explains the real value of the service he has rendered her. She had been on a visit to her lawyer's, and her bag contained her late husband's will, a large sum of money in notes, and precious stones worth a fabulous amount. How can she repay him? Of course he will accept nothing. But Louisa insists that he must be rewarded. She has an idea. There is a clause in her husband's will by which anyone proving worthy may benefit to the tune of £1,000, provided he can show a quarter of that amount Bantock evidently would have no objection to the £1,000, but he has his suspicions of Louisa, and declares he has no money, and the lady departs. Captain Vivien, who all this while has been silly aiding his accomplice with plausible talk and posing as a son of a distinguished military man, then tells Bantock how foolish he is not to take advantage of the "widow's" generosity, and when Louisa returns the young man is eventually induced to produce notes to the value of £150, which, however, he keeps his eyes and his hand on. Tell the tale as they will, Bantock does not seem inclined to part. Suddenly, however, the bag of valuables is knocked or falls to the ground, the contents are scattered, and Louisa implores the young man to help her collect the unset rubies, diamonds, &c. Then it is that the scheming couple are rewarded for their perseverance, for before Bantock has risen from his hands and knees Louisa and Vivien have taken the notes, disguised themselves, and departed. When Bantock calls in the police they immediately tell him he is the victim of the confidence trick, the red-haired widow and Balaclava Bill being well-known adepts at the game. The finished representation given the playlet by the three principals was a very important factor in its success. Miss May Palfrey enacted the apparently artless widow—so ignorant of the world and its ways and so anxious to reward Bantock—in an easy and artistic manner. Mr. Weedon Grossmith supplied another inimitable portrait of an amusing little bounder, his impersonation of Captain Vivien being embellished with many funny little bits of business that were very effective; and Mr. Wilfred Forster played Reginald Bantock in exactly the right spirit, and contributed a very convincing and sound portrayal.

Much amusement was also created by the representation of Frank E. Potter's little play Proteus in Petticoats, in which Miss Viola Compton displayed her varied abilities as an actress in the rôle of Diane Dio, receiving excellent support from Mrs. Fred Wright, sen., Miss Lorraine Stevens, Mr. Arnold Lucy, and Mr. E. M. Robson. Medea (founded on Euripides' tragedy) and the duologue Constancy were also down for representation. Mr. Wilfred Douthett's fine voice was heard with pleasure in the Prologue to Pagliacci and another number, and Miss Eva Moore delighted all with a serious and a comic recitation, the latter especially appealing to her auditors. Mr. Henry Ainley, Clara Novello Davies' Royal Welsh Choir, Mons. Bogea Oumiroff, Miss Jonatha, Mr. George Giddens, Miss Clarice Howard, Prof. Luigi Magistretti, and little Vera Fleming were also other talented artists on the alluring programme.

THAT there is a rapprochement between music hall and regular stage in Paris is illustrated by the fact that Mlle. Véra Sergine, the talented actress, will appear at Marigny next season in a one-act drama, with the actor De Max. Mlle. Sergine has also been engaged at the Odéon, and will make her début there in L'Aveu, a three-act comedy by M. Gabriel Trarieux.

"IT is a good thing that I am a quick study," Miss Neilson-Terry has told a representative of the Lady's Pictorial, "for I only had a clear fortnight to learn and rehearse Priscilla. And it's a long part, too. She is chattering almost the whole time she is on the stage, and her moods are nearly as many as her words, too. You like my little snatches of song? I'm glad; and, really, my singing has been very useful in every part I've played so far. I've been studying for one and a half years now at the Royal Academy of Music—following in mother's footsteps again, you see—and I'm still continuing my lessons, though I'm going to make acting, not singing, my great aim. As to the rest of my studies, they were carried on at a boarding-school at Westgate, and completed three years ago in Paris, while as to my amusements, I don't think that any sports appeal to me especially, though I'm very fond of swimming. And, of course, always, from the time I can first remember, I've loved going to the theatres!"

"I DO a good deal of my studying and rehearsing at home. Do I go over my parts a great deal with dad and mother? No, perhaps less than you would think. They never actually 'coached' me, but they talked things over with me, and explained the meaning of situations and sentences—told me where my ideas were wrong, and so forth—and this, you know, helps more than anything. In this new 'Priscilla' part it seemed quite strange, though, to be acting without father—he'd been with me in everything else I had done, and this was the first time, too, that I ever wore fashionable 'grown-up' gowns."

BOURNEMOUTH and district is now very gay. The Bournemouth Centenary Fêtes are now in full swing, and thousands of people are daily visiting this beautiful seaside health resort. The programme provided is colossal, and grand concerts are arranged, at which the following well-known artists are appearing:—Mme. Edna Thornton (vocalist) and Zimbalist (violinist), Herr Backhaus (pianist), Miss Margaret Cooper, Mme. Melba, the Royal Welsh Male Choir, M. Vladimir de Pachman (pianist), Mme. Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford, Mischa Elman, Miss Susan Strong and Mr. Robert Maitland, Mr. Plunkett Greene (baritone), and the Gaieties, under the direction of Wilson James. The following bands play daily in different parts of the town: The Band of H.M. Coldstream Guards (personally conducted by Dr. Mackenzie Rogan, M.V.O.), the Band of H.M. 7th Hussars, the war pipers of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, the Bohemian Orchestra (personally conducted by Herr Elderhorst), the Band of the 7th Hants, and the Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra of sixty performers (personally conducted by Mr Dan Godfrey, hon. R.A.M.).

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, July 7.—After an interval of some eight or nine years this charming little verse-play has been revived. It was produced for the first time at the Berliner Theatre, and took the town by storm. Frau Prasch-Grevenberg gave the important rôle of the lad Vittorino, and gave it in such splendid style that it soon became one of the best in her comprehensive repertory; she has played it, I am told, over 500 times. A description of the plot will hardly be necessary. Suffice to say that the reception was cordial enough to justify the prediction of a renewed successful run. The interpretation was good all round. The part of Vittorino and that of his mother Marchesa were well acted by Fräuleins Ritter and Renier respectively, and the grateful rôle of the good old Benedictine, Father Bentivoglio, met with full justice at the hands of Herr Stoeckel. The mounting was very tasteful and effective.

A VARIATION on the old idea of Box and Cox is Wem Gehort Helene? (To Whom Does Helen Belong?) which is still running at the Hebbel. For a piece with such an utterly impossible plot it is unusually successful. Helene, the heroine, is the wife of a German telegraph clerk who is on duty every night and all night long. This state of things does not please the lady, so she has recourse to an adventurous ruse by which her solitude is removed. She goes on an ostensible visit to her parents, but in reality she runs across to London and marries a certain Herr Krause, the manager of an office, who is only occupied throughout the day. She obtained her second spouse through a matrimonial agency, and has no idea that he and Birnbaum—her legitimate mate—are old friends. In the day Helene is Frau Birnbaum; the remaining part of the twenty-four hours she is Frau Krause, and this game of hide-and-seek goes on for some time. The fun grows fast and furious, and ultimately the cat is out. Then the question arises which forms the title of the play. After it is proved that the London marriage was only a hoax the solution becomes easy, and Herr and Frau Birnbaum make it up. The acting is bright, and the audience is usually the lenient one known as a summer audience.

As a curtain-raiser a little piece entitled Koketterie was put in the bill, but very soon removed. It has been replaced by a "caprice" by Kurt Muenzer, entitled Spuk, about which there is not much good to be said.

A POT-POURRI called a three-act farce, and entitled Der Gesundbeter, was produced at the Rose Theatre last week, and met with a friendly reception. The author is A. O. Weber, and that he is a novice is evident throughout. He apparently had a number of friends and admirers among the audience, for the calls and applause that fell to his share were scarcely due to the merits of the play. The acting was all that could be desired.

THE Gura Opera is doing excellent business, while from an artistic point of view the enterprise is a distinct success, and deserving of every possible encouragement. The Nibelungen cycle has been attended by the best results, the performance of Der Rheingold being particularly good. Herr Siegfried Wagner has been some days in Berlin directing the rehearsals of his new work Der Kobold, which sees the footlights for the first time to-night. There is not a ticket to be had now for love or money, and booking in advance for subsequent performances is very brisk.

MME. NIKISCH, wife of the well-known conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, has composed a comic opera entitled Meine Tante, Deine Tante, which is to be produced at the New Operetten Theatre here, and later on will be given in New York under the title of Suschen Unverzagt.

"CHILDREN ON THE STAGE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With reference to a report of the case of Connie Thorne, in which I was fined the maximum penalty at Manchester, may I crave the indulgence of your columns in order to air a grievance which I have in the matter. In this case I took every precaution which was humanly possible to ascertain that the child was over the regulation age. I obtained a letter from her father stating that she was over fourteen; I also asked for a birth certificate, which was promised, and, although I did not receive it, I have ascertained as a fact that myself and others have been misled in the matter by the production of the child's sister's certificate. On finding that I had been misled, and that she was under age, I immediately took her off and wired to London for another child to take the part. Having regard to these facts, and also that I have been fined the maximum penalty, it would be interesting to learn what penalty the magistrates would impose upon a manager who did not take these precautions. With reference to this matter, I also have pleasure in enclosing you herewith copy of a letter written to Scotland Yard in reference to another child, and also a copy of their reply, from which it appears that they think more of red tape than of a child's welfare.

"Scotland Yard, S.W.

"SIR,—I am applying on July 4, at Bow Street Police Court, for a licence for a child, Winnie Rousby, age fourteen next November, to appear at this theatre in East Lynne for the following week. The following sixteen weeks will be played in various London theatres, and I want to know if it will be possible to obtain a licence for the entire period.

"I am sure you will agree with me that it is not nice for a child to have to appear at a police court every week. Furthermore, it means her missing school for a half-day every Monday.

"As we are able to obtain a licence at Bow-street for Hammersmith, I thought perhaps it might be possible to obtain a licence for the full seventeen weeks.—Yours faithfully,

"SIR,—With reference to your letter of the 25th ult., I am directed by the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that it would be entirely contrary to the terms of his Order in Council of March 5, 1910, for a licence to be granted for such a period at various theatres.

"It will be necessary, under the circumstances, to make a separate application week by week, giving the Police at least seven days' notice in each case.

"I enclose forms of application."

SUNDAY ENTERTAINMENTS.

It is inferred from the discussion which took place at the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday last, upon the Theatres Committee's report as to the action taken to appeal against the decision of Mr. Cecil Chapman, that should the appeal fail the Council will reconsider its regulations as applied to entertainments given in music halls and theatres on Sundays. The whole question may, therefore, be re-opened, and no one can say what the result will be. In these circumstances the discussion at the meeting to be held in Terry's Theatre next Friday afternoon, under the auspices of the Sunday Defence Committee, is likely to be interesting.

Mr. J Ramsay Macdonald, M.P., will preside at one o'clock p.m., and among the speakers will be the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Southwark, Canon H. B. Ottley (hon. secretary the Imperial Sunday Alliance), Mr. W. H. Clemart (chairman the Variety Artists' Federation), Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Charles Jesson, L.C.C. (secretary London branch the Musicians' Union), Mr. Wm. Johnson (general secretary the National Association of Theatrical Employees), Mr. J. A. Seddon, M.P., Captain Watson (lay secretary of the Church of England Men's Society), and the Rev. Donald Hole (organising secretary, the Actors' Church Union).

The resolution to be submitted is as follows: "That, in order to avert the imposition of a compulsory seven days' working week upon variety artists, actors, musicians, and employees, this meeting declare it to be imperative that the licence of any place, licensed for public amusement, should prohibit the opening of such premises on Sunday by way of trade or personal gain."

The following are extracts from letters to be read at the meeting:—

The Bishop of London writes to express regret at his inability to attend the meeting, and "... Wishes Godspeed to the efforts of those who are trying by every means to safeguard Sunday."

The Bishop of Croydon writes: "... From my heart I wish your efforts Godspeed. The endeavour to secure one day of rest a week to every toiler is surely an endeavour after freedom...."

The Dean of Manchester, Bishop Welldon, who would have attended the meeting, but is leaving for America on that day, writes: "... It is easy to forget that the recreation of one class may involve the labour of another, and I shall be truly grateful if I may assure the theatrical and musical professions that I believe the Church will heartily support their just desire."

Mr. Oswald Stoll writes: "... I regret I shall be unable to attend the meeting on Friday, the 22nd inst.... If I had been in town I would like to have been present, as, of course, I am quite in sympathy with the movement...."

Mr. Charles Hawtrey writes: "I am afraid I shall not be able to attend the meeting ... but I am in sympathy with the objects of the Sunday Defence Committee, and cordially approve the resolution...."

Mr. David Shackleton, M.P., regrets he cannot attend and says: "... The resolution to be moved is one which has my hearty support."

Mr. Arthur Henderson, M.P., writes to say he is sorry he cannot attend, and "... I fully approve of the resolution, and am in hearty sympathy with the object your committee has in view."

Mr. Harry Lauder writes: "Had I been at home it would have been a pleasure for me to say something on the subject. Down with all Sunday work unless it is for a charitable purpose."

Mr. R. A. Roberts writes: "... Providing I can get to town, I shall be very pleased indeed to come.... The staffs in American theatres are in an agitating mood (or at the time of my last visit in April) to stop Sunday shows. The want of some sort of break in their lives is writing itself vividly on their too anæmic and pallid countenances...."

The Rev. Donald Hole, organising secretary to the Actors' Church Union, writes: "I am in entire sympathy with the objects of your committee, and with the resolution to be submitted to the meeting.... I shall hope to be present on that occasion...."

Variety artists, actors, musicians, and employees who wish to preserve their Sunday as a day of rest are urged in their own interests to attend this meeting and assist the Sunday Defence Committee to establish conditions which will ensure (1) That no man or woman shall be compelled to work on Sundays, (2) to accept employment on six days of the week on condition that he or she shall work on Sunday.

Members of the V.A.F., the A.A., the A.M.U., or the N.A.T.E. will be admitted on showing their membership cards. Tickets may be obtained by others interested from Mr. W. H. Clemart (chairman), Mr. J. B. Williams, Mr. Charles Jesson, L.C.C., Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. G. H. Dyball, members of the committee, or Mr. William Johnson, hon. secretary, The Sunday Defence Committee, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

THE Academy of Dramatic Art, which is bringing its summer term to a close this week, is in its sixth year of existence. The committee and the staff of teachers are devoting themselves to giving young actors and actresses as thorough a training as possible. If they think that applicants are unsuited for the stage they say so at once. Others they try with a year's training, and then, if the aspirants show no improvement, they are advised to seek some other career. Another thing the committee are careful to guard against is allowing students who do not do well to proceed with their instruction. In this way the Academy helps to prevent overcrowding of the profession. Among those who, after passing through the Academy, have achieved success on the stage are Miss Marjorie Maude, Miss Mary Barton, and Miss Athene Seyler. Miss Grace Croft, the lady who was so highly complimented for her acting at the last annual examination of the Academy, has become Mr. H. B. Irving's leading lady in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde on tour, and other students of the Academy are acting with Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and Mr. Benson.

MR. STEPHEN FISKE, in Sports of the Times, says: "At present we know only two methods of regulating the effects of the weather—fires and steam heat in winter and cooling with ice in summer. But the inventors, who have too long neglected this easy opportunity to amass fortunes, will discover a method of keeping theatres and all sorts of buildings at a uniform comfortable and healthful temperature all the year round. Roof-gardens—especially when they are roofed in the modern style—do not solve the problem. In one of the roof-gardens in New York last week the heat was so intense that the panting and exhausted audience were literally burned out of their seats and fled to the streets for coolness. What the performers suffer the Lord only knows. A well-ventilated theatre, scientifically cooled, is more enjoyable than a hothouse on a roof."

HERR ENGELBERT HUMPERDINCK, who has just completed his opera Die Königskinder, has gone for a holiday with his wife and family to Norway. The composer has worked at the opera for two years, and put excellent work into it. Those who have heard portions of the music say it is far and away better than Hansel und Gretel. In November Herr Humperdinck goes to New York, where at the Metropolitan Opera House the work is to be produced shortly before Christmas. The text of the new fairy-opera is by Ernst Rosmer, in private life Frau Bernstein, wife of the famous Munich barrister. Both husband and wife are writers of plays, and intimate friends of the composer. In January we shall make the acquaintance of the opera.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The tragic discovery of the body of Miss Belle Elmore under the cellar floor of a house in Hilldrop-crescent, Camden-road, is referred to at length in another column. The late Miss Elmore was hon. treasurer of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, and very popular with the committee of that charity.

Sunday is the date fixed for the third annual motor run to Brighton of the Grand Order of Water Rats, starting from the Vaudeville Club, 38, Charing Cross-road, at 11 a.m. Prince Rat Harry Tate, of Flying, Fishing, and Motoring fame, is organiser-in-chief, and on Sunday last he motored down to the Sussex watering-place, accompanied by Scribe Rat W. H. McCarthy, to make the necessary arrangements for luncheon at the Royal Albion Hotel, which is to be the rendezvous this year.

Mr. Tate has been fortunate in again securing the valuable support of Sir William Treloar, who has promised to be present, together with Sir William Dunn, and, given fine weather, another successful outing is assured.

Amongst others the following have generously offered to supply cars: J. Adams (Belsize), F. S. Bennett (Cadillac), J. W. Stocks (De Dion), Michael Egan (Dunlop), D. Perry (Ford), Warwick Wright (Metallurgique), Guy Lewin (Friswell), D'Arcy Baker (F.I.A.T.), Frank Shorland (Talbot), R. Herbert Smith (Brown), — Middleton (Vinot), — Cooke (Darracq), F. C. Baisley (Gladiator), George Peele (Swift), A. Mosses (Clement), —— (Daimler), and Peter O. Serck ——.

Miss Carrie Moore opens at the Tivoli next Monday with three new songs, specially written for her by Arthur Wimperis, Herman Finck, and Chas. Norton. This will be this lady's last appearance on the variety stage for some time, she having been engaged by Mr. George Edwardes to star in the provinces in Miss Gertie Millar's part in Our Miss Gibbs.

The directors of the Empire have decided to produce a new ballet entitled The Dancing Master in about four weeks' time, and it is now in active preparation. It is derived from the first scene of The Débutante, which was so successful at the same house with Mlle. Adeline Genée in the leading part. The Dancing Master will be found to contain much of Mr. Cuthbert Clarke's delightful Débutante music, and many of the fine features of that delightful ballet, together with a number of new dances and new airs. Mlle. Lydia Kyasht will appear in the leading part and Mr Fred Farren in the title-rôle. Miss Phyllis Bedells and Miss Beatrice Collier will surely be found parts in the new production.

Miss Dorothy Ward, the charming musical comedy star, who is playing a season in variety, made her first appearance at the Coliseum on Monday. A hearty welcome was given the fair singer, who made a pronounced hit with two excellent numbers from the joint pens of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. Her first song was the now popular ballad "I wonder if you care," of which, by the way, Mrs. Ward is the original singer, having produced it at a special performance in Birmingham some months ago. Her second number was a bright, tuneful song with a martial lilt, entitled "Cheer up, my Highland lassie!" In the last chorus a couple of tiny tots in typical Scotch attire came on to illustrate the happy finale. This has "brought down the house." The Star Music Co. publish both songs.

The Secretary of the Terriers' Association, Mr. Arthur Were, having been ordered to take a rest, in consequence of ill-health, is leaving town on Saturday next for his favourite retreat in the Luxemburg Ardennes. Terriers are requested to note that during his absence all correspondence, &c., will be dealt with by the committee at the Friday meetings.

For a time we are to lose Miss Cecilia Loftus, who is leaving variety to play the heroine in the play to be produced by Mr. J. E. Vedrenne. In America Miss Loftus has played a number of important Shakespearean parts, and in the 1906-6 revival of Peter Pan made a big success as J. M. Barrie's boy hero.

Mr. Alfred Butt has decided to place Mr. W. L. Courtney's little play, A Woman's Revolt, originally produced at a Maud Allan matinée at the Palace Theatre, on July 7, last year, into the regular bill at the same house on the evening of Aug. 29.

Mr. Walter Gibbons embarked for America on board the Campania on Saturday last for New York. Much speculation is rife as to the business that takes the variety magnate across the Atlantic, but there is not much doubt that it has to do with the development of the "merge" in which Mr. Alfred Butt, Mr. Walter de Frece, and Mr. Beck of the States are concerned.

Mr. Seymour Hicks's promise to appear as Richard III. is to be realised at the Coliseum in October, where the famous battle of Bosworth Field will be produced very elaborately, the pomp and circumstance of this famous fight between the protagonists of the White and Red Roses entailing the co-operation of no fewer than 180 soldiers. The revolving stage at the Coliseum will be put to its widest use, thus ensuring a spectacle unusually striking and of great variety.

In about five weeks' time the work of demolishing the Royal Standard, Victoria, the oldest music hall in London, will be commenced. Only the foundations of the old structure will be utilised for the new building. The new Palace, like all modern theatres and music halls, will be a two-tier house. Although there will be a permanent managerial representative at the new hall, the direction of the house and the booking of the "turns" will be in the hands of Mr. Alfred Butt.

Mr. Ernest Wighton, the very able manager of Olympia, Liverpool (Moss' Empires largest theatre in the provinces) has been promoted by Mr. Stoll to the palatial new Finsbury Park Empire, which is to be opened shortly. Mr. Wighton's return to London, where he has a large circle of friends, will be welcomed, and his wide experience of managerial work, both in this country and America,, augurs well for a brilliant future to the new Empire.

Mr. Wighton will be succeeded next Monday by Mr. George M. Slater, who is well known in connection with the Gaiety Theatre, London, where he was stage manager and late general manager of the Gaiety provincial tours. Upon the conclusion of his engagement under Mr. George Edwardes Mr. Slater acted as London representative for Mr. Milton Bode. Mr. Slater, by the way, is a well-known writer of lyrics and a librettist.

Our Paris correspondent writes:—"The news that Little Tich has received the "Palmes Académiques" has given much satisfaction to his Paris friends, who are very glad to learn that his efforts to amuse the public of la ville lumière have received the acknowledgment they deserve. It is a gratifying sign of the times that the English music hall has been officially honoured in the person of this popular artist.

Newark-on-Trent, which has for many years been without a licensed building, is to be provided with a new hall for theatrical and other entertainments.

Mr. Rowland Hill, who has been elected a member of the Grand Order of Water Rats, was duly initiated last Sunday evening by King Rat Charles Warren.

Mr. Maurice Mahony has taken up the resident management of the popular Boscombe Hippodrome. Mr. Mahony has had most of his experience at the Prince's, Manchester.

Mr. Johnny Renson, of Renson and Waite, the Yorkshire comedian, has been appointed manager of the Empire Theatre, Cleethorpes, near Great Grimsby, for the summer season.

The Palace Theatre of Varieties, Jarrow, has recently changed hands, and the present owners (Messrs. Gibson and Stenlet, of North Shields) have had the interior practically reconstructed and a new proscenium opening added, bringing the building entirely up to date.

As an illustration of Mr. A. E. Pickard's enterprise, we may state that he is running a special trip to Blackpool on Glasgow Fair Monday at the nominal charge of 7s. 6d. We are informed that the trip is being largely taken advantage of by his numerous admirers and their friends.

Mr. Jack Williams, son of Mr. Arthur Williams, played Mr. Fred Kitchen's part of Private Potts at the King's Theatre, Southsea, most successfully on the occasion of Mr. Kitchen having to be in London for his father's funeral. In recognition of his readiness and versatility, he was the happy recipient of a handsome silver cigarette case from Mr. Kitchen and a nice increase in his salary from Mr. Herbert Darnley.

Since His Majesty's Theatre was opened some four years ago, the old Guild-street edifice, that served the theatrical needs of Aberdeen for more than a generation, has been closed. About a year ago a local company was formed to take over the building and convert it into a modern, up-to-date vaudeville theatre. This has now been successfully accomplished, and on Monday the Tivoli, Aberdeen, is to be opened with a first-class variety company.

Practically only the shell of the old theatre has been retained, and so well have the new architectural improvements been blended with the old fixtures that the ordinary observer quite fails to see where one ends and the other begins. The stage has been considerably enlarged, and by patent appliances all the scenery will be dropped from on high, instead of being stored and folded in wing fashion.

The embellishment of the theatre has been most tastefully done. The leading colour of upholstery and fittings is light electric green, with white groundwork throughout and gold facings. There is an absence of garishness in the scheme of decoration that is pleasing to the eye, and yet the effect is brilliantly animating and artistic.

The new theatre will have comfortable seating accommodation for some 1,600 people, and the entrances, corridors, and exits are roomy and elegantly equipped with all modern conveniences and comforts. By an ingenious device, a series of limelight effects will be controlled from the back roof of the building, and every part of the capacious stage can be illumined from this source. The resident-manager for the Tivoli Company is Mr. Walter Gilbert, and it is intended to give two performances nightly. The house opens on Monday.

Yet another is proposed to be added to Glasgow's entertainment houses. Arrangements are being made to erect a new variety theatre, to be known as the Olympia, at the north-east corner of Charles-street and Orr-street, Bridgeton Cross. The nominal capital of the company is to be £40,000.

Provost M'Millan, Greenock, will be chairman of the company, and the managing-director and general-manager will be Mr. Samuel Lloyd, formerly manager of the Pavilion Theatre, and at present occupying the same position at the Glasgow Coliseum Theatre. Mr. Lloyd leaves the latter house in a week or two, and will at once assume his new duties, as the plans and the building of the new Olympia will be under his supervision from the start.

The members of the General Purposes Committee of the West Riding, who have the granting of stage-play licences, were asked recently for a stage-play licence in respect of the Empire, Wakefield.

Mr. T. T. P. Sherwood, who made the application, explained that of course they had the usual music, singing, and dancing licence, but they desired a stage-play licence in order to safeguard themselves in the months of January and February, when they were anxious to produce pantomimes. Eventually the application was granted, on the understanding that the use of candles was discontinued in the dressing-rooms and that an excise licence was not applied for.

The Spennymoor Hippodrome (Limited) has been registered as a private company, with a capital of £3,000 in £5 shares, to carry on at Spennymoor or elsewhere the business of music hall or theatre proprietors and managers, &c. The subscribers are Mr. A. E. Nicholls, Darlington; Mr. R. Pepis, Bishop Auckland; Mr. A. I'Anson, Middlesbrough; Mr. W. M. Tress, Spennymoor; Mr. J. J. Taylor, Darlington; Mr. P. Minor, Darlington; and Mr. R. Spencelagh, West Hartlepool.

Mr. Horace Livermore, during his residence in Bristol, has become popular amongst a large section of citizens, and his retirement from the position of manager of the Palace Theatre, and his appointment as district inspector by the same company is considered by a number of influential friends a favourable opportunity to promote a concert on his behalf.

This is to take place shortly at the Colston Hall, and in furtherance of the arrangements a representative committee is to be formed. A meeting with that object was held at the Crown and Dove Hotel, Bridewell-street, on Friday. Mr. Livermore has always practically identified himself with various movements organised for the benefit of local institutions, and, in various other ways, has given help and assistance where required. The proposed concert is certain, therefore, to be influentially supported.

Large crowds of visitors continue to patronise Matlock Bath, that beautiful Derbyshire haunt. As an extra inducement the authorities are now building what has long been required, and that is a hall to accommodate some thousands of people. The building is to be called the Kursaal, and is now in an advanced stage. It is intended to provide various entertainments, and is a long-felt want, as up to the present time there has been no building in the town to which visitors could go.

Duncan and Godfrey will produce an entirely new and original coster scena, entitled The Coster's Courtship, at the Tivoli on Monday next.

Mr. Wilkie Bard has sent a donation of five guineas (£5 5s.), and Miss Marie Lloyd, Little Tich, Edward Lauri, Will E. Fox, and many others have purchased tickets for the sports.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manners (Miss Fanny Moody), who have done so much for the cause of English opera, will be at the head of the bill at the London Hippodrome on Monday, July 25. They will, of course, introduce scenes and soli from various operas.

Graham, the human marionette, has scored an unprecedented success at the Palace, Grimsby, the show being the talk of the town. The reception on Monday night was positively great, and on Tuesday, at the second house, money had to be refused at the doors.

Miss Ella Shields, one of our most popular chorus singers, was unable to answer her number on Monday at the Oxford, but a temporary indisposition should disappear with the week's rest which she is taking. She hopes to be able to open at the Hackney Empire on Monday.

Malcolm Scott's absence from the London Pavilion is due to the fact that he has been defending an action in the Edinburgh Court of Session at the suit of Mrs. Williams of the Gaiety Theatre, Dundee, for £250, which has resulted in his favour. He will return to the Piccadilly-circus house on Monday.

Mr. Benjamin Woodger, secretary of the Music Hall Home, desires on behalf of the committee to thank Mr. Harry Bawn, proprietor of the Empire, Edmonton (per Fred Alexander), for box collection of £2 5s.; also Mr. Nelson Barry, Hippodrome, Manchester (per A. Trussell), for box collection of £1.

While in London during May and June, Walter Emerson was very busy hearing songs written by the leading scribes, and secured fifteen numbers which he considers suitable to his particular style. Two of these he produced at the Hippodrome, Aston, this week, and one, entitled "Mother, mother, mother," met with unbounded success.

Mr. Gus Elen is again playing his favourite part of the gentle angler. Starting from his London residence on Sunday, he is now having a restful time at his cottage some miles beyond Aberdeen, and here he will remain shooting and fishing until his next engagement in six weeks' time at the Empire, Glasgow.

"The Organ Grinder," by the favourite London Hippodrome collaborators, Alicia Ramsey and Rudolph de Cordova, will make its first appearance at the Coliseum, after a tour of several weeks on the Moss-Stoll circuit. Mr. Lawson Butt, the powerful villain of the Hippodrome water spectacle The Sands o' Dee, heads the company as the Padrone.

Friends will be pleased to hear that Miss Nellie Donegan (Mrs. Earle Reynolds) is now well on the way to recovery. On Tuesday last she underwent a very serious operation, performed by Dr. Hunter Richards, of Harley-street. Mr. Alfred Butt and other managers have very kindly postponed the dates of her engagements in consequence of her regrettable illness.

We need no excuse for a further announcement of the general meeting at Terry's Theatre on Friday next of the Sunday Defence Committee. The Rt. Rev. Lord Bishop of Suffolk will attend and speak, and speeches will also be made by Mr. William Johnson, of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, and Mr. W. H. Clemart, secretary of the V.A.F.

Owing to the enormous success of the recent Crystal Palace competition, the management beg to announce that a second gigantic Music Hall competition will take place in the Theatre on the week commencing Monday, July 25, 1910. Prizes, four guineas, three guineas, two guineas, and one guinea. There will be a grand amateur night on Thursday next, entrance fee, 2s. 6d.

Plenty of fun and keen competitions are assured at the Music Hall Sports on Thursday next at Stamford Bridge. The prizes, to be presented by Miss Cecilia Loftus, are the finest that have ever been offered, and the crowd watching the track should be swollen by every performer in the metropolis. The exchequer of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund is ever in need of contributions, and everyone with the necessary leisure, and particularly those connected in any way with the profession, may help and combine duty with pleasure by attending Stamford Bridge. The prices rule from 6d. to four shillings.

The events include a pursuit race between George Clark, jun., champion runner, H. J. Jeapes, champion walker, and Bert Hughes, champion cyclist, a 120 yards running handicap, a mile handicap, a half-mile running handicap, a one mile running championship, a one mile bicycle scratch race, a 360 yards cup obstacle race, and a running high jump.

Mr. Albert Le Fre, chairman and organiser of the Sports Committee, requests ladies and gentlemen giving prizes to send them to 18, Charing Cross-road, this week, in order that they may be classified in time to be included in the official programme. Sir Edward Moss has given a £5 5s. prize. Mr. Oswald Stoll is presenting a £25 challenge shield, the winner of the 120 yards race to hold the shield for the year. Each successive winner to have his name, the date, etc., engraved on the shield.

The report of the directors of the Granville Theatre of Varieties, Walham Green, up to May 31 last, discloses a gross profit on the year's working of £3,295 0s. 5d. After making the deductions for debenture interest, capital expenditure redemption, and 5 per cent. depreciation of furniture, fittings, scenery, and plant, and after expending the sum of £369 on re-decorating the theatre, and providing new carpet, boiler, radiators, uniforms, etc., and also purchasing £400 Consols to reserve fund, there remains on the year's working a profit of £2,188 8s. 6d.

The directors recommend the payment of a dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, less income tax, and after payment of same there will be carried forward a sum of £188 8s. 6d. to the current year's account, together with £1,100 cash in hand. The fourteenth ordinary general meeting of the shareholders will be held at the Granville, Walham Green, S.W., on Tuesday next.

Mr. Hermann Finck, the popular conductor of the Palace, not only wields with signal success the conductor's bâton, but in his spare moments gives himself over to the pleasures of composing. He has again written the music for the Blackpool ballet, entitled this year Lovely Lucerne, being produced on Monday at the Winter Gardens in that town. Mr. Arthur Sturgess has supplied him with the scenario. The Swiss environment is productive alike of picturesque scenery, effective costumes, and music of the most inspiriting kind.

Miss Rosie Buttsrick heads the list in the variety world for the Pelican competition for the "smartest lady of the season," having 688 votes recorded in her favour.

Little Lily Shaw, "the Toy Vesta Tilley," was on Saturday wired to by Mr. Oswald Stoll to deputise for Miss Hetty King at the Hull Palace, and was an immense success. It was a great honour for one so young to take the place of such a great artist.

The London Pavilion management announces a revision of prices of admission for the summer months, commencing on Monday next, the 18th inst., as under:—Orchestra stalls (reserved), 5s., pit-stalls (reserved) 3s., first circle (unreserved) 2s. 6d., second circle (unreserved) 1s., pit 1s.

Miss Melinda May (Secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C.), on behalf of the Committee, begs most gratefully to thank the following: Mrs. Herbert Shelley (collecting), 8s. 1d.; Mrs. George Smythson (ladies' hats).

Will Mrs. Arthur Hatton kindly communicate at once to Miss Melinda May? She attended a meeting on August 11 last year. The handsome portière curtain belongs to her. She has No. 50 ticket.

Mr. H. B. Sawyer, the popular acting-manager of the Peckham Hippodrome, has been appointed resident-manager of the Opera House at Jersey, which is under the joint control of Messrs. Edward Marris and Albany Ward.

The Bath Citizens' King Edward Memorial Fund has lately been enriched by the sum of £10—a share of the takings at a special entertainment given at the Palace Theatre. In the list of additional subscribers appears the name of Miss Octavia Barry, who has contributed one guinea to the fund.

Mr. W. J. Churchill's up-to-date minstrels, consisting of twenty first-class artists, are meeting with excellent receptions at Llandudno, where their popularity has never waned since they came under the auspices of the clever entertainer and comedian who is so much liked at the famous North Wales seaside resort.

It was Mr. Wallis Clark who last week played the Scientist in The Price of a Soul at the Rotherhithe Hippodrome, and not Mr. Russell Vaun. Oh those programmes! Mr. Clark, by the way, has been specially engaged for Miss Maud Hildyard's new piece now in course of rehearsal, owing to his success in her last production.

Miss Gina Cormani has just succeeded to the position of principal boy at the Alhambra, hitherto held by Miss Julia Seale, who has been a favourite for many years at that house. She is an Italian, and took her first place in the corps de ballet while still a child. She speaks several languages, and at present takes the part of John Bull in the entertainment Our Flag.

Mr. Fred Lorenzo (of Astley's Circus) and Miss Ivy Florodora (of the Florodora Girls) entered into a life contract at the Gravesend Town Hall on Wednesday. Miss Florence Raynor was in attendance on the bride, and Messrs. H. Cory Woodrow and Mr. E. H. Swift (lessee of Rosherville Gardens) looked after the bridegroom. The bridegroom's mother and one sister were present from Chigwell. The provincial engagements of another brother and sister—Horace and Olga—prevented their attendance.

The wedding breakfast was held at Rosherville Gardens in the Bijou Theatre, where the happy pair were the recipients of numerous congratulations. Among the wires received from friends and relatives unable to be present were one from Kate Carney and another from Fred Baugh. The bridegroom's gifts to the bride included a handsome diamond ring and a diamond and cut crystal brooch. We are pleased to state that the variety stage is not to lose Miss Ivy Florodora's services.

The second annual outing of the staff of the Aston Hippodrome proved a very happy event. By popular vote it was decided to revisit Holt Fleet, a pretty village on the Severn, where a most enjoyable day was spent last year. The party was composed of about forty ladies and gentlemen, including the genial manager and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Middleton, and several guests. Special saloons were engaged for the train journey between Birmingham and Worcester, the party arriving at the cathedral town about 10 a.m.

The pleasure steamer Avonmore was in waiting at the riverside, and the merry party, after a stroll through the town, enjoyed a picturesque journey up the river. The Wharf Tavern, Holt Fleet, was made the headquarters, and upon arrival the party split up, a good many enjoying the pretty scenery in the neighbourhood, whilst several enthusiastic sportsmen indulged in exciting games of cricket and football. An excellent dinner was partaken of, after which the afternoon was spent in pleasure-seeking according to individual tastes.

Local playgoers will probably not be greatly surprised to learn that the Palace Pier Company, St. Leonards, has signed an agreement with Mr. J. D. Hunter for him to appear in the pavilion there for several weeks in the summer, with a view, we believe, to eventually arranging a permanent engagement. Mr. Hunter will organise a company to appear in a series of attractive entertainments.

One of the first things said by Mr. Hunter's friends when it was made known that his connection with the Hastings Pier was to cease was that it would be a good move on the part of the St. Leonards Pier to secure his services. Time will prove whether the move will be profitable to the St. Leonards Pier Company, just as it will also prove whether the Hastings Pier directors are wise in the first step they have taken in their attempt to compete with the Gaiety Theatre—raising the prices of the seats in the pavilion and abolishing that very popular attraction the free standing room.

The Croydon Hippodrome opens on August Bank Holiday. The building, which occupies a commanding central position in the town, has its main frontage to Crown Hill and entrances and exits on each side. The richly embellished and well appointed interior embraces stalls and pit on the ground floor, a large circle and gallery over, and will accommodate about 2,000 persons. The building has been designed by Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co. for the Croydon Hippodrome Co., Ltd.

Next week marks the close of the Russian dancers' season at the London Coliseum. Mlles. Karsavina and Baldina and M. Kosloff, with the entire troupe, having to return to St. Petersburg for the opening of the Imperial Opera House. The new arrivals on Monday include the Australian Woodcutters, who provide an exceedingly interesting entertainment. In order to reproduce this act of the Australian backwoods it has been necessary to obtain the actual timber with which the men have been accustomed to work, and some hundreds of tons of the blue gum tree have been shipped to London for this purpose.

The new manager of the Coliseum, Glasgow, is Mr. John M. Hay, assistant manager of the Ardwick Empire.

Messrs. Walton and Lester return to London on Monday for a season of seventeen consecutive weeks. The world's worst wizards have the talisman of humour in their entertainment, and will again largely increase the gaiety of London.

Miss Viola Spencer, the lady parachutist, died during Thursday night from the injuries she received at Coventry last Saturday, when she fell 40 feet into the street owing to her parachute, on which she had descended from a balloon, coming into contact with some telegraph wires.

Laddie Cliff, who was reported to be in London looking for new songs, was compelled through serious illness to cancel his American engagements, having been ordered to England by his medical adviser. It is hoped his native air will bring a speedy convalescence to this clever artist.

Mr. Ben Abrahams, the popular secretary and assistant manager of the Queen's, Poplar, is leaving there. At present nothing has been definitely decided regarding his future arrangements, but he should easily find scope for his ability and energy elsewhere.

Mr. Jack Hart has become very popular at the Palace, Hammersmith, and last week some of his friends took the opportunity provided by his birthday on the 5th to present him with a solid silver cigarette case, suitably inscribed, as a slight token of their esteem.

Miss Vera Saunders completes her first two weeks at the Tivoli to-night. The engagement has proved in every way a successful one, and the directors of the popular Strand house have retained the little lady's services until 1913. Her new number "Billy" scored an instant success last Monday.

The London County Council, at their meeting on Tuesday, approved of an appeal being made by the Theatres and Music Halls Committee against the recent decision of Mr. Cecil Chapman at the Tower Bridge Police Court, on May 24 last, in respect of cinematograph shows being permitted to open on Sundays.

A few months ago the Croydon County Council granted to Mr. James Watt a cinematograph licence for his new building known as the "Picture Palace" in Portland-road, South Norwood. Mr. Peard, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. Watt, on Monday, asked the Council for a full dancing and music licence.

Mr. Watt has seven or eight other theatres, and in three cases had successfully applied for music and dancing licences after holding a cinematograph licence. The Norwood building was erected originally as a cinematograph theatre, and a licence was applied for simply for that purpose. The Council decided not to accede to Mr. Watt's application.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilmott are enjoying a vacation at Scarborough. It is darkly hinted that Mr. David Day's secretary chose this noted Yorkshire resort in order to get away from the melody of "Flanagan," which has been permeating the air of Charing Cross-road for some little time past.

But he imagined a vain thing, for his arrival almost synchronised with that of Miss Florrie Forde, who at the Opera House and Hippodrome has been infecting the multitudes with that great song of Will Letters and C. W. Murphy, and who by imperative desire has had to sing her great success of last season, "Has anybody here seen Kelly?"

Edgar Bateman, whose staggering experience on Littlehampton beach a few days since will probably appear shortly in these columns, was one of the first to wire his congratulations to Mr. Harry Randall anent his return to Drury-lane at Christmas—to the great stage whereon his two comrades of former years—Dan Leno and Herbert Campbell—appeared with such distinction.

Mr. Fred Herbert (chairman) presided over the M.H.A.R.A. committee meeting held at the offices of the Association on Wednesday. Messrs. E. W. Edmonds, T. C. Callaghan, Lieut. Albini, and Tom Packer were present. It was decided to close the offices of the Association on Thursday next for the Music Hall Sports. A new agency was appointed at the Fleetwood Arms, Runcorn. The weekly statement showed an increase of twenty-four new members and receipts of £29 12s.

The troupe of Russian dancers, who are appearing at the Palace Theatre with such conspicuous success, were honoured on Wednesday afternoon by the presence of the Grand Duchess Xenia (sister of the Czar) and suite. Her Highness arrived early, and apparently greatly appreciated the dances of Mlle. Pavlova and M. Mordkin, together with their company. The programme was augmented by the inclusion of Miss Mary Grey, Mr. Barclay Gammon, and a long series of pictures in natural colours depicting King Edward's funeral procession.

Bert Swan and Marie Vesta, the original Bill Smith and 'Liza, produced on Monday last at the Hippodrome, Poplar, an original episode of coster life, entitled 'Liza's Wedding Day, with special scenery and novel effects, including a church organ and peal of chimes. They also introduced the prize donkey and governess car, presented to them by the proprietors of Answers, for advertising that journal in the well-known sketch, The Coster's Prize. 'Liza's Wedding Day proved an instantaneous success, and was immediately secured for the Gibbons' circuit, and will shortly be seen at a West-End hall.

By forty-five votes to twenty-nine the London County Council decided on Tuesday that it was not expedient that the pictures of the Jeffries and Johnson fight at Reno should be shown in London. The proposal was brought forward by the Rev. J. Scott Lidgett, an ex-chairman of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference, who moved: "That in the opinion of the Council the public exhibition, at places of entertainment in London, of pictures representing the recent prize fight in the United States is undesirable, and that the proprietors of London music halls and other places licensed by the Council for cinematograph performances be so informed."

Mr. Edward Ross (Rose and Challoner) and Mr. Richard Bird were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Fred A. Hooper, P.W.T., assisted by Terrier Russell Brandow, V.T. Terrier Arthur Were officiated as Organist. Messrs. Eddie Gibbs (Eddie and Ethel), Reg. Beauchamp, and Arthur Whalley Stanley (Stanley and Greenop) have successfully passed the ballot for membership of the Association. Terrier D. M. H. Hoffman was elected as W.D. and Terrier W. E. Dunkley as Y.B. on Sunday last. A hearty welcome was extended to Terriers Jack Cosgrove, Leo Roland, and Tom Packer upon their reappearance in the kennel. The Association has placed at the disposal of the committee of the Music Hall Sports a very handsome large silver rose bowl on a pedestal as a prize.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

PRINCIPAL boys should on no account miss hearing Miss Madge Temple's fine number, "On the silvery, silvery sands," by Arthur C. Findon and Hermann E. Darewski. This number is creating the liveliest interest, notably at the Oxford, where the fair artist is delighting patrons with the witty lines and taking melody. In this song Messrs. Francis and Day have one of the best pantomime songs of the coming Christmas, and one already ear-marked for premier honours by the cognoscenti.

AT the Stratford Empire Miss Eva Kelland, in that beautifully staged production Songland, has been winning all hearts by her refined vocalisation in the three numbers, "At Gretna Green," "Take me back to Pompeii," and "In my bouquet." All these songs are issued by Messrs. Francis and Day.

AT the Alhambra in Leicester-square Miss Ethel Levey is creating with "Down in Jungletown" the same furore nightly as she did recently with "Pride of the prairie, Mary," and in "Miss O'Hara and her emerald tiara" the gifted lady has a song that fits her like a glove. All three are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. HICKMAN SMITH, who directs and controls so many of the brightest and best companies entertaining the sojourners by the sea at this period of the year, has during the current week at the Claremont Pier, Lowestoft, been extolled both by visitors and the local Press for his fine renderings of those well-known songs, issued by Messrs. Francis and Day, entitled "Without you," by J. Edward Fraser and Douglas Munro; "The eyes are the windows of the soul," by Charles Wilmott and Ernest Milton; and "I'm coming back to Erin and to you," by Arthur Lynch and Herbert E. Haines. Miss Marie Westcott, one of the foremost among the bevy of lady vocalists who owe Mr. Smith allegiance, is charming everyone in Lowestoft with Fred Leigh's "Come back to Mallow, Molly," also published by Mr. David Day's firm.

THAT charming and powerful-voiced young artist, Miss Lilian French, has just had accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day her pretty ballad "When the summer sun is dying, Rose Marie." Percy Edgar is responsible for this admired item.

MISS BERTHA STUART is the fortunate possessor of Joseph Tabrar's fine new song, "When the bells ring out for Rosie." Messrs. Francis and Day have the song, which bears in every word and note the impress of its talented writer, in the press.

J. H. BARNES' new waltz, "The Nun's Dream," will be presently placed on the market by Messrs. Francis and Day.

A FREE song entitled "I want to get right home," written and composed by E. W. Rogers, Frank Calvert, and Orlando Powell, is about to see the light in sheet music form, it having been purchased by Messrs. Francis and Day.

IT is always good news to hear that Miss Millie Hylton will be singing a new song, and when it is from such practised pens as those wielded by J. P. Harrington and Orlando Powell, the result is a foregone conclusion. The new ditty is entitled "Puff! Puff! out went the moon!" Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

A NEW song by E. W. Rogers and J. A. Glover-Kind has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day. Its title is "Come round to tea on Sunday."

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT'S clever song, "Everybody calls me 'Carrots,'" which is a perfect cameo, giving the artist the opportunity of exhibiting the talents the lady possesses in abundance, is from the pen of Mr. Alfred Wood. Miss Scott will probably in the near future be heard in a song specially written with an eye to her by the author and composer of her admired song, "The great invasion play."

MR. CHARLES R. WHITTLE, at Stratford, has been nightly the recipient of thunderous applause for his fine renderings of Messrs. Francis and Day's "Come and have a drink with me" and "He's a naughty, naughty boy."

"THE BATTERY."

Farcical Sketch, by Mrs. Christie Murray, Produced at the Standard on Saturday, July 9.

With a little quickening in the action Mrs. Christie Murray's farcical playlet should prove an attractive sketch at the halls, for the main idea is funny, and the audience was kept busy laughing during its representation for the first time on Saturday. Mrs. Ponsonby-Smith, a gushing female no longer in the first blush of youth, comes to the Bond-street rooms of a palmist. She is anxious for a glimpse into the future, but the maid by her tall tales of the happenings that go on soon makes her wish she had never ventured therein. Her mistress's powers, indeed, are wonderful, for even the tables and chairs have been known to frolic, strange moans and groans are of frequent occurrence, and altogether the uncanny revelations quite terrify the foolish Mrs. Smith.

When the palmist enters Mrs. S. is, of course, awed, but the picture the veiled lady conjures up of her future soon pacifies her. There is a dark and handsome young lover somewhere pining for her; she will live in a marble palace; every luxury that money can buy will be hers—and so on. Mrs. Ponsonby-Smith, entranced, would hear more, but the palmist declares that the oracle will reveal nothing else just at present. Will she wait a little while, and doubtless further disclosures will be forthcoming.

The palmist then remembers that a male idiot she has in another room is also named Ponsonby-Smith, and that his errand is the same as his wife's, and the denouement may be guessed. The lights are lowered, and the couple are left together. Becoming aware that there is a female in the room, Ponsonby-Smith soon makes violent love to the charmer, and the lady, after pretending to a deal of coyness, reciprocates his protestations of affection, and agrees to fly with him to foreign climes. Each wonders what the hum-drum partner at home will say—and up go the lights! Ponsonby-Smith flees and his wife faints, but "the battery" soon brings her round, and down comes the curtain.

Miss Rose Edouin made a droll Mrs. Ponsonby-Smith, very funny being her acting in the incident where her future is being revealed to her, and her impersonation altogether was a clever and finished one. The names of the other characters and their interpreters were not given on the programme, but all were capitally enacted.

BELFAST is to have another cinematograph theatre. Property has been acquired by the Provincial Cinematograph Theatre Company, Ltd., in Royal-avenue, the leading thoroughfare, and it is their intention to open a theatre on thoroughly up-to-date lines. It is proposed to have a continuous entertainment from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 10 p.m., and beautifully fitted tea-rooms, reading-rooms, lounges, and retiring-rooms form part of the scheme. The new building will have a length of 95ft. and a breadth of about 70ft., and will be able to accommodate from 1,500 to 2,000 persons. The site is central, and it is expected the new theatre will be opened at n early date.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE HIPPODROME.

Last week in our columns we enlarged on the novel sensation promised at the Hippodrome for Monday, and on that afternoon the sensation promised, entitled "The Eagle and the Girl," duly made its appearance for the first time on this side of the Atlantic. The novelty is due to the invention of Mr. Asa Cummings, a Chicago engineer, and we are given to understand that it is in no sense an optical illusion. The ornithological curiosity, which is something like an eagle, is a huge white bird, and we believe it is endowed with mechanism whereby it can be sustained in space. Therefore the whispered word "Wires," heard faintly in the auditorium during the eagle's flight on Monday, covers a solution of the problem that would be too familiar to the public to be in any sense a new sensation. During the flight of the mammoth bird of prey the house is completely darkened, but by means of a coating of radium paint the lady and the eagle stand out in bold relief. The eyes of the bird are aglow with incandescence, and on the features of the singer, Miss Ferguson, a purple light is shed. It was unfortunate that curious sightseers in the balcony on Monday afternoon struck matches in the vain hope of elucidating the mystery. The wings slowly flapped as the "bird" and its burden circled round the auditorium, and Miss Ferguson sang "Won't you fly with me?" and when the number came to an end the mysterious bird floated behind a black curtain, and the mystery remained quite unexplained.

A very welcome reappearance is made by Miss Helen Trix, the American comedienne at the piano, who, it will be remembered, first won the favour of London audiences at the Coliseum. Miss Trix, in a very pretty gown, opened with a song to her own accompaniment, entitled "Honest little girlie, I'm strong for you. When you're gone away I long for you." For her second number she appears in a neat brown suit, to sing, with the orchestra, "You needn't say you love me, because I'm pretty sure you don't," a catchy song to which the artist imparts much archness and liveliness. In her final number we notice a decidedly English note in the make-up, dress, and business. It is entitled "Sam," and its low comedy is very acceptable.

Mlle. Juliette's sea lions, amphibians that made a real sensation in London a few years since, have lost none of their skill and intelligence, and their juggling with balls, their hat-throwing, and their music provide many laughable moments, as well as evoking much astonishment. They are affectionate creatures, and admirably disciplined by their fair trainer. Farr and Farland indulge in cross-talk that has a spice of originality, and one of them, in an imitation of Mr. G. P. Huntley, now in America, is decidedly droll. In Staley's Transformations from a cooperage to a completely furnished drawing-room, with the necessary changes in dress, is found a quick-change musical act that is distinguished by much ingenuity and charm; and other turns include the Onetti Sisters, clever and graceful gymnasts; Bert Errol, a female impersonator who warbles "Il bacio"; the Du Gros Trio of comic gymnasts; and Chong Ling Soo, Chinese magician, whose neat tricks are much applauded. A much appreciated number in the dances of the Russian ballet is the Danse Bacchanale of Glazounow, presented by Mlle. Ludmila Scholla and M. Theodore Kosloff with wonderful abandon.

THE OXFORD.

Chanteclair, one of the most ambitious productions that has been seen on the music-hall stage since Joe Elvin produced Over the Sticks at the same popular house, has found its way to the permanent favour of large audiences attracted by Mr. Blyth Pratt's capital programme. The "bird" of the story struts and frets now to the continual accompaniment of applause and laughter; the entertainment, in a novel environment, has become brisker and funnier, and the work of the cast throughout reaches a higher artistic level than during the opening week of production, and is in for a long spell of prosperity on the variety stage.

To the variety portion of the bill there are two lady contributors who have became immense favourites by the right of exceptional artistic endowment—Miss Gertie Gitana and Miss Madge Tempie. It is just a few years since the former young lady, then quite a little girl, appeared for the first time at an Oxford matinée, and was at once acclaimed as a youngster of considerable ability. The promise of childhood has been more than fulfilled by Miss Gertie in the springtide of her youth, and her joyous abandon, her clever and pretty dancing, and her ballads make of her a persona grata to audiences at the Oxford. Just now she is well fitted with a tender ballad, "You were coming through the corn, Mollie dear," which brings about enthusiastic applause.

Miss Madge Temple comes from the ranks of comic opera and musical comedy, and first made her mark with Mr. Richard Green in the early days of the Coliseum. She then attracted considerable notice by her impersonation of a romantic heroine named Fenella; but it was at the halls that she developed her delightful comedy, and, aided by cleverly-written lyrics and tuneful melody, always touched with lightness and humour the craze or whim of the moment. "I'm looking for Mr. Wright," in which the responsive and eager gods roar the chorus, is her first number. In her second Miss Temple may be said to waft the scent of the ozone over the footlights, when she sings with sly archness and irresistible humour "On the sands," in which the verses are so many storyettes of the ever-rolling sea, whose tides—at flood or ebb—have so much to do with the affairs of man and woman. Miss Temple always wears very charming hats, and her outdoor costume is a revelation of neatness, nattiness, and exquisite taste.

Miss Gipsy Woolf, a brunette of great attractiveness, brightens the later half of the Oxford programme with a most fascinating dancing scena, the nature of which is revealed in the title "The Mermaids of Margate." Wee Georgie Wood as an enfant terrible in frocks, keeps the house laughing during his vagaries with a nurse and a Teddy bear, and also mimics Marie Lloyd and Harry Lauder cleverly. Mr. Frank Maura made his London début at the Oxford just a few years since, and his show of foot equilibrism is as startling as ever. Miss Winifred Ward has two catchy songs in "I can't keep away from the girls" and "Keep your eye on father"; Mr. Harry Bedford's dancing is particularly quaint; the Cape Girls are smart long-boot dancers; Hayman and Franklin are still exploiting their successful duologue A Matrimonial Agency; and Mr. Victor Kelly, assisted by Miss Agnes, is as smart and as popular as ever.

A fine and effective instrumental turn is supplied by the Seven Bramusas, a musical family possessing decided musical ability. Boys and girls play brass instruments with all the facility of experienced soloists, and the background to their act "Music Afloat" is a fine representation of the deck of a liner. A second scena, given in answer to the strenuous demands for an encore, is "On the Mississippi." The Bramusas are a charming family, and have a way with them that should be productive of continuous engagements. Other turns on the full and varied bill include Spalding and Riego, comedy bar performers; Mr. Harry Nelson, comedian; Les Marbas, acrobatic dancers; La Belle Linda; Miss Ma Shields, comedienne; the O'Gorman Brothers, speciality dancers; Miss Maidie Scott, more popular than ever; and Mr. Dutch Daly, in dialogue and concertina solos.

EAST HAM PALACE.

The bill of fare provided here this week is of a particularly bright and entertaining character, several of the turns being excellently novel and original. Considering that so many of the "top of the bill" artists are resting, the array of talent is a very formidable one. The especial feature of the programme is Rousby's Greater London, produced in the form of a scenic review, with fine panoramic cloths combined with the up-to-date electrical appliances. The various scenes depicted are Evening Festivals at the White City, giving a wonderful representation of the Flip-Flap in motion, and numerous airships passing overhead; and Mighty London in 1910, of which the dioramic effects of a rainstorm, with vivid flashes of lightning, and sunset and dawn, are most realistic.

Dusty Rhodes comes forth with his usual round of merriment and his parody on "Somewhere" is screamingly funny. A wonderful performance is that of G. W. Walker, blind comedian, assisted by Miss Ida May, in a vocal vaudeville scena, and one which elicits the warmest applause. Max Waldon, the famous impersonator of international stage "stars," is making a welcome reappearance, and his clever representations of a Spanish dancer and a Parisienne café-chantant dancer receive unstinted applause.

Valazzi, the supreme juggler and pedipulator, gives a marvellous exhibition of amazing feats, a special feature being "sloping the slope" on an ordinary cannon-ball. Many of his juggling feats are also astounding. George Kirby's company of comedians present an amusing sketch, entitled Flyaway's Derby, the strong company of fifty artists being very clever in their eccentricities. Two racehorses are also on the stage. Other pleasing "turns" are Kisbey, "the call-boy," Evelyn Taylor, Adey Spencer (comedienne), and Katie Marsh (vocal comedienne), whose sweet singing is much admired. Mr. Albert E. Hill, the genial manager, in front is ably assisted by his lieutenant Mr. H. Wincott.

CAMBERWELL EMPIRE.

It is not often we notice that a change of ownership makes such an immediate difference to the business done by a music hall, but in the case of the above house its popularity seems to have increased tenfold since the incoming of Mrs. Cissie Lawson. This is not surprising considering the way in which she personally attends to the comfort of her patrons, mixing with them in the gallery or pit and making them happy and studying their interests in many little ways. Mrs. Lawson has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr. Albert Adams as her general manager. This gentleman has had great experience in the profession, and should help in a large way towards the success of the house. The decorators are working on the place night and day, and when they have completed their task the Camberwell Empire should be one of the prettiest and the most comfortable variety establishments in London.

The programme this week contains many novelties of a varied and interesting description. Hemsley and Ambrose appear in their humorous and pathetic episode entitled A Fatal Rehearsal. The piece has many happy incidents, and at the same time it has its serious moments, and is much appreciated. Miss Gladys Clinton has a dainty style with her, and sings "I've got money in the bank," and afterwards dances with ability. Carter's Bijou Octette supply a musical scena of high worth. The boys and girls in the troupe possess good voices and dance with neatness and precision, one of their number giving a praiseworthy rendering of "Killarney" on the cornet. Mr. Nat Lewis sings in excellent style "After the pubs are shut," and creates merriment with his droll recitation.

Fred Karno's sketch The Mumming Birds is evoking its usual amount of mirth. Miss Lily Denville has two numbers, "Schneider" and "Prairie Flower," to both of which she does full justice, and also dances well. Miss Betty Lincoln and Mr. Charles Tuppen delight with music and song in their comedy sketch, The Slavey's Birthday. Mr. Tuppen plays tastefully and with considerable skill on the coach horn. The Sisters Harcourt, a captivating couple, sing "Ebenezer Brown" and "Rustus, wake up" in fine style, and earn well-deserved applause. Mlle. Liane D'Arigny is a classical dancer of considerable charm, and her dance poem, "La Danse d'Amour," is extremely well executed and well received.

Mrs. Cissie Lawson produces her highly successful sketch, The Devil's Sunday. The piece holds the profound attention of the audience from beginning to end, and Mrs. Lawson plays in her usual brisk and entertaining manner and supplies a delineation of great power and interest. The evening's enjoyment is brought to a happy close with pictures shown by what is now termed "Cissie's Bioscope."

THE STANDARD.

Mr. T. S. Dickie's programme at this old-established and popular hall is of that attractive and varied nature patrons are accustomed to, and is particularly strong in comedy interludes. One of the funniest turns in this week's bill is the farcical playlet Something for Nothing, presented by Fred Conquest and company. The head of the combination is, of course, responsible for a very droll and finished portrayal of the miserly moneylender, Mr. Grabbit, the extraordinary antics, facial expression, and behaviour generally of the eccentric and artful old man provoking almost continuous laughter. Such a clever character study is seldom seen at the halls, and is an eloquent tribute to the splendid training Fred Conquest had under his famous father. The company supporting him have little opportunity of distinguishing themselves, but all valuably serve their chief, Mr. W. Seguin as Mr. Owitt and Mr. Ainslie Burton as an office boy, who belies his name of Soppy, merrily helping along the fun and giving sound portrayals. Mr. Frank Gordon as a mysterious and maniacal visitor to old Grabbit, with a weird and wonderful make-up, also supplied an effective little bit of acting, and Miss Olga Kate Vernon, the velvet-voiced heroine of many a Surrey drama, has a part unworthy of her abilities in Mrs. Soppy, a charwoman, to which she does every justice.

The Star of the Bazaar, a funny comedietta with a serious finish, is also a much-appreciated item in the bill. Miss Alice Hughes as the seemingly frolicsome burlesque actress who intends to annex bank-notes belonging to the curate contributes an attractive and effective impersonation, the shocked cleric and his faithful, if familiar, servant also being capitally enacted. Hemsley and Ambrose have a comedy coster interlude, also with a pathetic moment, in The Fatal Rehearsal, and the amusing trifle is responsible for many laughs. The Porter and the Singer is a droll duologue, smartly given by Rose and Challoner, the lady distinguishing herself as a tuneful vocalist, and her partner as a faithful mimic of T. E. Dunville and Sam Mayo.

Miss Mabelle Fournier, the talented juvenile première danseuse from the Folies Bergère, Paris, is paying a welcome return here, and her four selected dances are all cleverly given and loudly acclaimed; and Miss Tiny Franks, comedienne, and Mr. Charlie Lloyd and Miss Cissie Barwick, comedy duo, contribute amusing and enjoyable items. Miss Florence Yaymen's novel caricature coon songs always win her a flattering reception, and, in addition to these cleverly worked and original numbers, on the night of our visit Miss Yaymen tunefully sang a verse of the old darkey song "The Swanee River," a droll dance also being included in her much-appreciated turn. Mr. Tom Moore has a serious selection in "The songs my mother used to sing" and a comic one in "No one can resist it," to both of which he did full justice. Mr. Harry Sims extracted all the humour possible from his number "You ought to hear him play his old ta-ra-ra," and that delightful comedy artist Miss Annie Purcell pleased the house immensely with "My Belle of Aden," "Jack Jones," and another pretty selection. Mr. T. G. Royde, comedian, is also on the programme, and the two series of animated pictures shown by the Edisonograph include Poor Fido, a pathetic tale of a dog's fidelity, Misfits, a funny trick film, and many other interesting and amusing subjects. Mr. Maurice Volny is the courteous and capable manager here.

KILBURN EMPIRE.

After a week of melodrama, Mr. C. Foster Marner has a fine variety bill on hand, and excellent business is being done. After a bright overture by Mr. Horace Sheldon's capital orchestra, a very melodious turn is given by Lyster and Cooke, who play a varied selection of airs on some quaint but very pretty instruments, and they are highly popular.

The chief honours of the evening undoubtedly fall to Miss Wish Wynne, the new comedienne, who, by reason of her sheer ability, has come to the front at one bound. Miss Wynne has some capital songs, and the first one she essays, entitled "Swank," is decidedly smart. Her studies of the London school girl and also that of the shy country lass are equally fine, and show off her talents to the best advantage. Will Musgrave is amusing in his song "Not to-night, Josephine," and Curtis Leo is giving his juggling act, with which he scores a big hit. This juggler works at high speed, and his various tricks are done in most nimble fashion. Anna Gold and her dancing boys, who supply a dancing accompaniment, as it were, to her singing, the effect of which is very pleasing. The boys also contribute a clever solo dance. Horton and La Triska present a novel number with their clown and automaton. The lady's absolutely immobile features are wonderful, and her muscular control is indeed striking. Although the doll is brought among the audience, most people are completely deceived until, on her return to the stage, the lady contributes a song and dance.

Some delightful songs are rendered by Mlle. Amélie de l'Enclos, who has a wonderful range, and whose singing causes astonishment as well as enjoyment. Coram and his little friend give an amusing ventriloquial sketch which is full of diverting patter and goes well. Herbert Rule is, as usual, well to the fore with his comic ditties. On this occasion he indulges in a clever parody of "Yip-i-addy," which causes general diversion. Another interesting turn is that of Barnard's Mannikins; the antics of the little figures are most amusing and cleverly worked. Miss Carlotta

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

It frequently happens that a programme which does not seem to appeal to one when the street bills first catch the eye, turns out in the testing to be quite up to a good average, and sometimes even goes further. The present week's menu at the popular house presided over by the popular Mr. Pierre Cohen is a case in point. The casual observer—the blasé man in the street—might say, like Sir Charles Coldstream, "there's nothing in it." But that is just where he would make one of his inevitable mistakes. Not only is there plenty in it, but there is much of very excellent quality. Mr. Cohen is to be congratulated and thanked for giving his patrons something in the nature of a "surprise packet" in his programme for this week. It is gratifying to note that the public are not slow to recognise a good thing when they get it, and that "business" is surprisingly good for the season of the year.

An excellent start is made by Gus Ryder, a vocalist of no mean order, smart and alert in his military uniform, who sings well and whistles sweetly; the Corina Sisters are two engaging young ladies, charmingly dressed, who perform on instruments too numerous to mention, but all beautiful; an instantaneous success is made by Little Zola, who is aptly described as an unusual comedian. One can only wish that his talents were more usual. His song, "It makes me feel so small" has much appropriate humour, and his extraordinary dancing fairly brings down the house.

Fanny and Harry Dent appear in a novel mélange, The Indian Bottle, singing and dancing with an amount of vigour and humour combined that certainly deserves, as it receives, some of the loudest applause of the evening; Ethel Campbell, looking supremely dainty, sings "Love is like a balloon" charmingly, and even betters that effort with "You must admire a man like that"; Harry Taft is a very original comedian, and is exceedingly funny in his song, "My Mother was a lady," his whistling is of an extraordinary nature, and, to some sensitive hearers, may partake of the earsplitting quality, but it is very clever; Hammon and Wyatt, the Sandow Girls, with their magnificent (there is no other word for it) appearance, create something of a sensation, first in their duet, "Dreaming," and anon in a picturesque Mexican scena.

A huge reception is accorded to Harry Champion. He first captivates his hearers with that plaintive hymn, "Boiled Beef and Carrots," again with a song having the refrain, "You don't want to keep on showing it," and again with "Down came the blind." Not content with screaming themselves hoarse over these, Mr. Champion's sturdy admirers insisted on having—and got—a fourth contribution, and his "Don't do it again" sent the house into convulsions of laughter.

The Five Whiteleys repeat a performance that has been seen here before, but is always welcome. Their acrobatic feats on the wire, their tumbling and general business, must be classed among those things that must be seen to be believed. Whatever the Whiteleys do they do well, and the breathless interest with which the audience follows the daring exploits of the lady member of the company, such as jumping over five chairs on the wire, is, in itself, a tribute to the excellence and grace of their entertainment. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope winds up the evening with some thrilling pictures of North American Indian life.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Variety gives place to drama this week, and Matthew Lynton and company are producing James Willard's mystery play, The Girl with the Angel Face, presented for the first time at the Shakespeare, Clapham, on Aug. 3, 1908. The absorbing interest of the plot loses nothing of its attractiveness in the hands of the capable company now filling the principal rôles. An Ealing audience loves a play with strong situations, and this The Girl with the Angel Face supplies in full.

Miss Minnie Love fills the name part, and right well does she translate the author's ideas. Alternately vindictive and cajoling, she looks and acts the character to the life. Whether tricking her benefactor, Sir John Wentworth, bullying her old grandfather, Jasper Death, or threatening the would-be blackmailer, Martin Flood, she is ever forceful and convincing. As Jasper Death Mr. E. Ling gives a fine character study of a cringing, cunning, loquacious old man; his make-up is good, and some of his business excellent, and he is quite successful in acquiring the hatred of the audience. The two sisters, Ena Wentworth and Mollie Maitland (Eno's sister), have good representatives in the persons of Miss G. Vernon and Miss L. Potter. The temperament of the two daughters of Thomas Wentworth—the one happy and boisterous, as if filled with the very joy of life, the other broken-hearted, yet brave in her betrayal—loses nothing of its pathos, nothing of its gaiety, in the hands of these clever actresses, and the house was not niggardly in showing its appreciation. The Rector of West Marlow (Mr. M. Lynton) has some fine opportunities, notably in the struggle with the blackmailer, Martin Flood, in the second act, a conflict which is ended by a shot from Litt'e Nellie—Ena's child, prettily played by Miss R. White. The Hon. Percy Paget, a masher and a gentleman, who is sweethearting with Mollie Maitland, finds excellent representation from Mr. E. Beresford, while the chauffeur, Jim Bates (Mr. W. Hicks), forms an amusing foil for the witticisms of an Earl's son. Mr. G. Winsford represents the Man of Mystery, Sir John or Thomas Wentworth, and succeeds in maintaining the secret of the vault in West Marlow Church up to the very last. Mr. J. Stirling makes an able lawyer-friend to Sir John, while the unsympathetic character of Stephen Arkwright, the private secretary, is well supported by Mr. M. Lawson. The drama is well staged, the incidental music capably rendered by the Hippodrome band, and Mr. J. A. Molloy, the manager, must be gratified at the excellent use he has made of his double licence.

PECKHAM HIPPODROME.

A visit to Mr. Cecil Paget's popular South London house reveals to us the fact that in spite of the summer weather it is still enjoying plenty of support from Peckham patrons. The ball is opened by Miss Gladys Warren, a shapely young lady, who sings with success a couple of songs, but a little more animation on her part would add to the attractiveness of her effusion. Mr. Irve Hayman, assisted by a clever little child artist, whose name is not on the programme, presents a telling episode, entitled Christmas Eve. Mr. Hayman presents an admirable character sketch of the repentant burglar. Mr. Phil Bransby scores a decided success in his two coster effusions, "There's always a welcome for a stranger" and "It aint my place to interfere," which he renders with much humour. Miss Jessie Stuart proves herself the possessor of a fine soprano voice in her two vocal efforts "Mr. Moon" and "My song bird."

Mr. Jack Hayworth is an extremely clever delineator of Scotch character, and his two songs, "That's mine" and "McCloskie mon, I wish that I was you," are received with abundant laughter and applause. Messrs. Kydd and Kydd are successful in their comedy scene A Mix-up Story of a Shipwreck, but their patter needs brightening up. The smart Athos troupe of ball manipulators and acrobats gain a deservedly big reception. Messrs. Wild, Willie, and West, described as the "Three Bounding Navvies," soon bound their way into the favour of the audience, their knockabout business being extremely clever and withal intensely comic. Mr. Maurice Lee and his three young lady artists, styled "The Militaire Brigade," favour us with an attractive turn of song and dance.

The bright entertainment concludes with some most picturesque and realistic films upon Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, entitled A Corner in Wheat, which shows us how a Yankee millionaire corners the wheat market, and ultimately meets with dramatic justice by tumbling into the wheat pit, and being smothered by the falling grain.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

This week the management have wandered from the variety path, and for a short period have reverted to the "legitimate" with The Bad Girl of the Family. Mr. H. Hargreaves as Lieut. Richard Marsh, R.N., made the most of the part; as Harry Gordon Mr. Harry Thornton was a typical stage villain; the Lord Erskine of Mr. Fred W. Freeman was effective; and Mr. Tom May a very funny Sammy Snozzle, and Mr. W. Pemberton as the Jew Barney Gordon, with Miss M. Hungerford as Sally Smithers, kept the play alive and the audience in a good humour. Mr. Geo. Belmore was well placed as the hooligan Jerry Holmes; Miss C. Carew was very good as Honour Moore; so, too, was Miss Daisy Cook as Gladys Erskine. Miss Violet Crossley made a capital Bess. The remaining characters were in capable hands, especially Mr. Jas. Selwin as Rev. Evans. The play is well dressed and mounted, and the scenery everything that could be desired.

Mr. Fred Carr, of Carr and Rose, is lying in St. Thomas's Hospital suffering from appendicitis. He would be pleased to hear from his friends.

The Two Bobs (Bob Adams and Bob Alden) on their first appearance in Europe have made a decided success. Their performance at the Tivoli is quite novel, and their style distinct, either playing the piano, singing, or dancing. They have a charm which quite takes the fancy of the audience.

A Northumbrian, Mr. J. W. A. Eskdale, the manager of the Gourock Pavilion, has travelled far and exercised his talents in many spheres, at times conducting the very fine musical combination at the Pavilion. He has managed for Arthur Jefferson, but, so far, has never appeared in the legitimate.

The Eskdale Select Band was a force in the Glasgow parks, and on his appearance in Regent's Park, London, with the Scotch band, Mr. Eskdale won high commendation. He was a pupil and friend of Philip Aimes, Mus.Doc., Durham Cathedral.

A man of many parts, Mr. Eskdale has been church organist, leading violinist, and cornet and saxophone soloist, and has supervised the thousand and one items that make up the duties of a Government contractor, having for ten years the training of boy bandsmen.

MUSIC HALL CELEBRITIES.

MISS VERA SAUNDERS.

Miss Vera Saunders may be numbered amongst our growing band of young entertainers. The young lady in question is just over seventeen years of age, and only finished her schooling some three months ago at St. Margaret's College. Always, in her own words, "crazy to go on the stage," the little lady was a member of two amateur dramatic and operatic societies. Mr. Leon Beaudout taught her dancing, in connection with a little Dutch operetta he produced some six months ago. Finding Miss Saunders an apt pupil, he took pains to develop her talent in this direction, and succeeded in turning out a finished little dancer. The possessor of a good soprano voice, Miss Saunders is being carefully coached by her music master, Mr. Lionel Cochrane, and that gentleman states she is one of the most natural singers he has trained.

MISS VERA SAUNDERS.

Mr. Harry McKelvie gave Miss Saunders her first engagement in Scotland, Mr. Frank Allen immediately booking her, whilst she has appeared at the Grand, Clapham, the South London, the Metropolitan, and the Tivoli in succession. Her bookings include the Syndicate Halls for 1910-11 and the Gibbons tour.

Miss Saunders is a member of an old Surrey family, her father being well known as an authority on rose culture. Cycling and boating form her chief amusements, and in emulation of her father she is an enthusiastic grower of white roses. Her present ambition is to appear as Red Riding Hood, and play Marie Löhr parts with songs and dances.

"'LIZA'S WEDDING DAY."

An Original Episode of Coster Life, by Swan and Vesta, Produced at the Poplar Hippodrome, on Monday, July 11.

This is a pretty little scena, and should last Swan and Vesta for some time. The scenic effects are decidedly good. The dialogue requires some slight alteration, but, no doubt, after a while this will be effected. 'Liza and Bill are to be married. They drive up to the church in a very swagger donkey chaise, but, unfortunately, next to the church is the Barley Mow, and Bill, feeling somewhat thirsty, proposes beer. 'Liza objects. She states her reasons, and it leads to a right royal row, during which Bill tears up the licence. Matters appear to be irreparable for a time, but the strains of the wedding march from the church repair the damage done, and both quickly decide to make it up. They enter the church, and leave just as the curtain falls—a very effective finish.

The Poplar Hippodrome programme also includes Marie Wilton, comedienne; Chas. Russell, comedian and vocalist; Jack and Evelyn, in their latest, Introductions; Mamie Fenton, with "Bonnie Sandy" and "Donald McIntyre." Mamie, who appears in full Highland costume, has a particularly pleasing style. Her efforts are greatly appreciated. Claude Gardner sings about "I want a girl like that," also "I'm going to meet my girl," the latter a very taking number. The Maples have a laughable comedy skit in How to Treat a Burglar; and Luis Hardt, the Sandow boy, has quite a novel scena in "In Days of Old," in which several feats of strength are cleverly given.

Barney Armstrong, assisted by Kelly, makes the hit of the evening in a burlesque of the simultaneous song-and-dance act, so much in vogue. The house literally rocks with laughter. Harry Randall, with funny patter and clever character; Kitty Colyer, a fine dancer; and the Bioscope, with new pictures, are also in the bill.

The Villagers, a recent addition to the ranks of first-class concert parties, have made a decided hit at H.M. Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness, at which most of the leading concert parties have appeared, and owing to the fine business done during their opening week, were immediately offered a return contract for their first open date by Mr. Calvert Routledge, the lessee and manager. Messrs. Moore and Bentz are negotiating with The Villagers for an extended colonial tour.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

At the London Pavilion during the present week Mr. Arthur Aldridge has been repeating his former triumphs at this house with Feldman and Co.'s great ballad-success, "Beautiful Garden of Roses," and is also received with acclaim for his rendering of "Mary, you're a big girl now," another Feldman number.

The success which Miss Gertie Gitana achieved on the Stoll tour with Mellor, Lawrance and Gifford's graceful pastoral ballad, "You were coming through the corn, Molly dear," has been duplicated this week at the Oxford and her other London turns, at all of which this delightful song and singer have won the suffrages of all auditors in a very marked manner. Messrs. Feldman and Co. publish this latest success of Miss Gitana's.

Mr. Fred Barnes is going great guns at the Euston and other engagements with two Feldman songs, both from the accomplished pen of Mr. John A. Glover-Kind, entitled: "I'd rather be by the fireside" and "Let's have a little bit of sunshine," both of which are chorused by his hearers and literally applauded to the echo.

Mr. J. R. Tyrell, proprietor of the Pierrots at St. Andrews, N.B., writes Messrs. Feldman and Co. most enthusiastically anent the success his company is making with four of the Arthur-street firm's songs, to wit: "Pretty little Girl from Nowhere," "Alpine Dress," "Hello, little girl," and "I do like to be beside the seaside," all of which are going big up North.

Mr. Lloyd Edgar's popular troupe the Savoyards are opening next Monday at the Pier, Aberystwyth, when Miss Frances Leonard will sing at every performance no less than four Feldman numbers, viz.: "Alpine Dress," "Sunbonnet Lady," "I wonder who's kissing her now," and "Pretty little Girl from Nowhere."

Miss E. Pooley, at the Theatre Royal, Goole, last week made a most sterling sucess with her rendering of "Looking for the lovelight in your eyes," which Messrs. Feldman and Co. publish, it being encored again and again by the delighted hearers of this talented young artiste.

Mr. Reed Pinaud, jun., has been most successful at the Hippodrome Gardens, Llandudno, with his renderings of "I do like to be beside the seaside" and "I'd rather be by the fireside," and will shortly feature several other Feldman publications.

Messrs. John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell have just fitted Miss Millie Hylton with a strong dramatic song-scena, entitled "The Dawn of a To-morrow," which she will produce at the Empire, Hackney, on Aug. 1, and throughout her forthcoming Stoll tour, including the Coliseum, where she opens on the 8th prox. She will also sing two other specially written songs from the same pens, "I couldn't help being a lady" and "Puff, puff, out went the moon."

"Hail! King George!" published by B. Feldman and Co., was produced for the first time at the Court Theatre, Brighton, on Monday with terrific success, the singer having to respond to no fewer than seven and eight calls.

Miss Sadie Simpson, comedienne and dancer, who has been engaged for Douglas for two weeks, commencing July 24, will be featuring in Manxland her original song "My little girl from nowhere."

Harry Sims is just now featuring two excellent songs, respectively "You ought to hear him play his oom-ter-ara" and "The very first girl I see." Both numbers are published by the Star Music Co.

Miss Winifred Ward, a member of the excellent company at the Oxford, on Monday evening produced a new song, by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, entitled "Keep your eye on father." This item fits Miss Ward like the proverbial glove, and allows her many opportunities to display her humorous talent. Laughter and spontaneous applause was the well-earned reward for a really fine performance. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

The Star Co. are the publishers of Mr. C. R. Whittle's new chorus song, which is entitled "Fall in, and follow me." Arthur J. Mills and Bennett Scott are to be congratulated on a number of which much will be heard.

THE MUSIC HALL SICK FUND.

The annual general meeting of the members of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. William Bailey presided, and there were also present Messrs. Pat Carey (treasurer), W. H. Handley, S. Whyte, F. Boyce, A. Drew, W. Collins, T. Carney, H. E. High, W. Bailey, jun., and R. T. Baines (secretary).

The principal business was the election of officers and committee for the ensuing year.

On the motion of Mr. T. Carney, seconded by Mr. F. Boyce, Mr. Fred Karno was reappointed President of the Society. Mr. W. H. Handley proposed, and Mr. S. Whyte seconded, the proposal that Mr. W. J. Wainratta be re-elected Vice-President, and this was carried unanimously.

Messrs. H. Jennings and Douglas White were, on the proposition of Mr. Pat Carey, seconded by Mr. T. Carney, re-elected trustees of the Society, and Mr. Leon Zeitlin was appointed the third trustee in the place of Mr. Jesse Sparrow resigned.

Mr. Pat Carey was re-elected treasurer, and Messrs. T. Carney and F. Boyce appointed hon. auditors. Other officers again nominated and elected included Messrs. G. F. McCarthy and J. H. Griffin, hon. medical advisers, and Mr. A. Oldred Clarke, hon. solicitor.

The committee of management for the ensuing year was also duly elected. It is worthy of record that the committee, which met on March 18, 1867, when the society was formed, included the late Wm. Holland (chairman), F. Ledger (of The Era), Wm. Page, J. D'Auban, F. French, J. Wardo, P. Corri, Arthur Lloyd, and G. W. Hunt. Mr. Fred Strange was the first President of the Society, with Mr. Harry Huggins as hon. president, Mr. J. J. Liveasey was the first treasurer, and Mr. J. R. O'Hara the first secretary, his successor being the late G. W. Hunt, the author of the famous "jingo" song originally sung by Mr. J. H. Macdermott.

On arriving at the popular West of England seaside resort, the travellers were met by many friends, and, marshalled under the guidance of Sergeants Tom Cook, Dan Crawley, Fred W. Bristow, and others, motors, waggonettes, and boats were engaged. Some preferred to take a stroll on the Esplanade, others through the woods and town. Great credit and praise are due to the servants of the G.W.R. Co., who attended, not only to the outer, bu tinner man, going and coming.

Mr. Edgar Hyman, the South African impresario, was an interested spectator at the Palace, Glasgow, on Friday (8th), and during an interval formed one of a lively theatrical group, including Mr. A. E. Pickard (of the Panopticon), Mr. Harry McKelvie (of the Palace), Mr. Prince Bendon, Mr. Harry Thurston, and others, and many amusing comparisons between variety business as conducted in South Africa and in this country were exchanged.

"GRETNA GREEN."

"Pugilistic Playlet," in Two Scenes, by Fred Moule, Produced at Sadler's Wells on Monday, July 11.

Sir George Buckley .....MR. FRED MOULE
Amos Crissel .....MR. JACK WAYHO
David Rothwell .....MR. JACK COLLINSON
Millicent Dale .....MISS ANNIE THOMAS
Harry Merton .....MR. FRANK KINGSLEY

Exciting situations are plentiful in Mr. Fred Moule's latest sketch, a "pugilistic playlet," Gretna Green, which, excellently played and mounted, appealed successfully to Monday night's audience at Sadler's Wells, the fight with the "raw 'uns" at the conclusion being particularly effective. In the Tally Ho Inn on the Great North-road we learn that Sir George Buckley, a rascally lawyer, and a shady patron of the "noble art," has appropriated for his own use the fortune of his ward, Millicent Dale, and prepares certain documents concerning her money which he thinks the simple maiden will sign without reading. The unsophisticated damsel, however, informs him she has been told never to put her signature to anything she does not understand, and soon after reveals the fact to her guardian that it is her lover who has put her on her guard. This young man, Harry Merton, was formerly Buckley's head clerk, and has latterly been taken into partnership by the lawyer, and is evidently aware of the nefarious practices of the latter, for he denounces him, and severs all connection with the firm. Buckley is determined to put an end to the wooing of the young couple at once, and tells his ward to prepare for a long journey. With the help of Amos Crissel, a prize fighter ready to do any dirty work, his plan is to keep the young man at the Tally Ho Inn, and himself take Millicent, who will not be mistress of her own affairs and her money for nine months, to Gretna Green and marry her. Merton, concealed behind a cloak, overhears this proposition, and manages to detain Buckley, himself hurrying to Gretna Green with Millicent. In the next scene, the Village Smithy, the young couple arrive, and implore David Rothwell, the blacksmith, to marry them. He tells them that he cannot, as they are a mile from Gretna Green, but learning the name of the man they are trying to outwit he promises to help them, as Buckley wronged him years ago. When Buckley and Crissel come in pursuit he puts them off the track for a time, and Millicent and Merton ride off on horseback to Gretna. The blacksmith then locks the door, and when Buckley and Crissel, finding they have been tricked, demand that the door be opened, he refuses to obey them. He then tells Buckley that years ago, when he, Rothwell, was a prize fighter, in an encounter with Crissel Buckley caused Rothwell to be drugged, Buckley having backed Crissel to win for a large sum of money. He is not drugged now, and he will fight Crissel on the spot, and if the latter wins the blacksmith will give up the key of the door. Buckley agrees, and Crissel appearing to offer no objection, the couple are soon engaged in their pugilistic encounter. Needless to remark, the blacksmith soon proves his superiority over Crissel, whom he frequently "downs," and when the latter has to acknowledge defeat Millicent and Merton are at the door—man and wife. Mr. Fred Moule admirably realised the character of the scoundrelly lawyer Buckley; Mr. Jack Wayho and Mr. Jack Collinson were both excellent as Amos Crissel and David Rothwell, the fight being skilfully managed; Mr. Frank Kingsley was a satisfactory Harry Merton; and Miss Annie Thomas was a bright and engaging Millicent, but the laugh of triumph she indulges in every time she scores over her guardian was rather overdone.

A big line in the varied and entertaining programme is Perkins, M.P., presented by Fred Karno's company of comedians—one long laugh from beginning to end. As the Labour candidate Mr. Tom Nelson can be complimented on a very humorous and arduous performance, and whether "spouting" in the street in opposition to Grub, flirting with a buxom Suffragette, posing to a photographer, or behaving in most ludicrous fashion in the House, Perkins always makes for merriment. A small comedian drolly helps along the fun, and the hard-working crowd all contribute valuably to the success of this "screamer." Mr. David G. Noble and company present a dramatic sketch, Wife for a Wife, which holds the attention of the house throughout and is admirably enacted; the Two Lillies, dainty dancers, cleverly execute a novel terpsichorean "mirror illusion"; Miss Irene May, the Lancashire nightingale, displays a cultured and excellent voice in "Beautiful garden of roses" and another tuneful number, and is loudly acclaimed; and the illustrated song "Sweet Maid of Erin's Isle" of Miss Bessie Neilson was also a much appreciated number. The Pick of the Picture World includes an interesting film, The Senorita, and scenes taken in the public ring at Alexandra Park are also shown on the Bioscope. Other entertaining items in the bill are contributed by Miss Lily Lang, juvenile character vocalist; Little Doris Dace, comedienne; and Miss Gertrude Bibby, the protean artist, in the drama Bonnie Prince Charlie.

"MR. JUSTICE PERKINS."

A Sketch in Three Scenes, written by Herbert Sidney, Albert Bruno, and Fred Karno, Produced at the Palace, Bristol, on Monday, July 11.

Justice Perkins .....MR. ALBERT BRUNO
Mayor of Spoddleton .....MR. HERBERT SIDNEY
Hezekiah Dull .....MR. FRANK RICKARDS
Gotty .....MR. ALFRED STUART
Phyllis .....MISS LYDIA WEBER
Mary Ann Blobbs .....MISS LALLAH DAVIS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Fred Karno is a name to conjure with in the music hall world, and all sketches emanating from his fold are waited for with keen interest and anticipation. His latest production, Mr. Justice Perkins, ranks with any of its predecessors. The plot is quite original, and centres round the idea of a villager named Perkins being promoted to the rank of a Justice of the Peace, who amongst other experiences has to try his own breach of promise case. There are innumerable side-splitting situations, and the audience are kept in roars of laughter from start to finish. The whole atmosphere of the sketch, in construction and design, is distinctly original, and far in advance of the accustomed music hall farce. The scenery, dresses, and general ensemble are conspicuous features of the production.

The part of Perkins is capitally sustained by Albert Bruno, which fits him like the proverbial glove. There was not one dull moment whilst he was on the stage, and his performance was a great personal triumph. A capital character sketch of the Mayor of Spoddleton was given by Mr. Herbert Sidney, and the same may be said of Mr. Frank Rickards as Hezekiah Dull. Miss Lydia Weber was full of daintiness as Phyllis, and Miss Lallah Davis supplied a clever character study of Mary Ann Blobbs. Alfred Stuart as Gotty is well placed. The authors are to be congratulated on the success they have achieved, and Justice Perkins is assured of a prosperous career.

Sheffield Skating Club.

THE officials of the Sheffield Skating Club have received and accepted an invitation from the Manchester Ice Rink Company, Ltd., to be present on the opening night of their new rink early in October. It is intended to begin with a grand exhibition of skating, wherein all the best skaters now resident in England, together with representatives from Stockholm and Berlin, are expected to take part.

"THE FOURTH KISS."

A Dramatic Episode, by Douglas Newton, Presented by Lionel Atwill and Miss Phyllis Relph, at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, July 11.

John Hughes .....MR. LIONEL ATWILL
Phyllis Manners .....MISS PHYLLIS RELPH

The scene is Miss Manners's flat, where, on the rising of the curtain, she is found working. A moment or two afterwards there comes a knock at the door, and on opening it she is greatly surprised to find standing before her her fiancé, John Hughes, whom she imagines to be buried somewhere in Central Africa and working hard. After the joy of meeting has subsided, she remarks that Jack is looking far from well. He attributes this to the recent death of his brother and uncle. She sympathises with him and tells him that in a sense they had been expected. The matter is passed over, and in the course of conversation Phyllis tells him that he must leave her for a short while as she has some important work on hand which she must finish at once. Jack picks up a paper and retires to another room to try and kill the intervening time. Almost immediately he rushes back looking absolutely terrified, and on her asking him what is the matter, he says that he has just read of the death of another near and dear relative. She tries to calm him, but all he seems to mutter is "the curse," "the fourth kiss," which he keeps on repeating. She is, of course, completely mystified. After a short time she manages to get him to give her the reason for these strange remarks.

It appears that whilst in Africa Jack one day got frightfully drunk, his extreme loneliness—there being only one other white man with him—being given as the reason. Whilst roaming about in this condition, he came across a priest worshipping an idol, and after mocking him, proceeded to kiss it. This was too much for the priest, whose fury knew no bounds, and he cursed Jack. The nature of the curse was that wherever he was he would feel the idol kiss him. The first three kisses would mean the death of three of his nearest relations, and the fourth his own death.

Phyllis tries to persuade Jack that it is nothing more or less than coincidence, and just as her words seem to be doing him some good, he jumps up terrified, and says that he can feel the dreaded thing near him. Just as he has finished saying this, he exclaims, "My God! It has kissed me again!" and falls back dead.

This powerful little sketch, which grips the audience from start to finish, should have a long and successful career. Mr. Lionel Atwill as John Hughes both acts and looks the part; and to Miss Phyllis Relph nothing but praise can be given for the splendid support she gives him.

At the top of a very strong programme we have Harry Tate in Flying. As may be supposed, this causes many a laugh. That popular chorus comedienne, Miss Dora Lyric, has an enthusiastic reception and gives of her best in two numbers, viz., "Hello, Mr. Captain, are there any girls below?" and "Give us a grip of your hand." The choruses of these, especially the latter, are most heartily taken up, and it is a long while before the house will let her go. A very droll comedian, Jack Pleasants, causes intense amusement by his quaint rendering of "'Liza had hold of my hand" and "I'm shy.' The Calcotts, in a wayside episode entitled "Rags and Tatters," contribute an excellent singing and dancing number, and Learto, assisted by his clever poodle Pom Pom, seems to be able to extract music from anything. A comedienne who scores well is Marie Blaymen, with a most taking style. Her two numbers "Don't take me home" and "Send them along to me" are tunefully rendered. Mildred Parr at the piano is a great success. Amongst other songs, she gives a very pathetic number entitled "He is only a little 'un," which is immensely appreciated.

The weird dancing of the Phydoras, in which the male member excels, is cleverly executed, and other items towards a most pleasant evening include Harry Simms, Albert St. Clair, Em Roll, O'Malley and Brown, Tom Moore, and Hayes and Watson. Edward's bioscope is responsible for some capital pictures. The seating arrangements have recently been considerably improved by making an aisle through the centre of the stalls, which adds much to the comfort of the audience.

"AN INDIAN ROMANCE."

Scena, Produced on Monday, July 11, at the Queen's, Poplar, by Leonard Robson and company.

Black Eagle .....MR. T. WATTS
Jack Rayson .....MR. LEONARD ROBSON
White Lily .....MISS ELMIE KEMP

The prologue of this scena is projected on the screen by the Bioscope. It shows us Black Eagle as an unsuccessful suitor for the hand of Jack Rayson's mother. Taunts against his colour madden him. He vows vengeance, and with the help of other members of his tribe murders the woman who has spurned him, and carries off her daughter to his home on the prairie. Twelve years elapse between the prologue and the play proper. White Lily has grown into a charming girl. Black Eagle wishes her to marry him, but she revolts from the idea. He threatens her, and is about to use force, when Jack Rayson—who has been steadily tracking down the murderer of his mother—arrives in time to protect his sister from harm. He struggles with the Indian, and after a desperate encounter, shoots him dead. The sketch was very well received. Mr. Leonard Robson was a manly Jack Rayson, and played vigorously. The rôle of Black Eagle was effectively portrayed by Mr. T. Watts. The honours of the evening were with Miss Elmie Kemp for a natural and pretty rendering of the character of White Lily.

The programme also included Harry Ormonde, comedian; Cyrus Dare, the popular entertainer; Winnie Melville, comedienne; Herbert Clifton; Harry Brettell, a new mimic with some life-like impersonations of Gus Elen, Wilkie Bard, and Mark Sheridan. Harry should most certainly go far, as he is without doubt clever. Ferguson, Mack, and company have a new comedy sketch in A Military Pickle, which, although somewhat similar to their previous sketch, is genuinely funny. Their comedy-tragedy acting is quite good, and their efforts were greatly appreciated by the crowded house. The Sisters Hall have a couple of good songs, and render them well; Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist; Kisbey; and Fred Karno's company of comedians, in Skating, also appear.

Pleasure Beach Rink, Blackpool.

THE popularity of the South Shore Pleasure Beach rink is being demonstrated by the large throngs of visitors, who daily present a scene of bright, animated gaiety. The spacious floor has an excellent skating surface of 16,200 feet of finest American kiln-dried rock maple, and it is the scene of happy pleasure-seekers obtaining the maximum amount of enjoyment. With admirable music supplied by a full military band, there is nothing wanting to complete the success of the rink. Special provision is made whereby the rink can be converted into an open-air skating pavilion by the removal of the wooden partitions which form the walls. This advantage will commend itself to those rinkers who wish to pursue the fashionable pastime under the most healthy and exhilarating conditions. The rink hockey matches which take place here periodically are very attractive and much enjoyed.

West Stanley Skating Rink.

THE hockey competition, which has been some time in progress, was concluded on Friday night, the 8th, in the presence of a large number of spectators. A fancy dress carnival was held on Wednesday, for which several valuable prizes were given. It was well attended.

A CHAT WITH HARRY RICKARDS.

It was in 1872 that Mr. Harry Rickards, then a young and successful comic singer, first set foot in Australia, having taken out a small company, with which he went through the now prosperous Commonwealth and New Zealand. He did not then anticipate the great development of entertainment that obtained later in Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide, and for some years pursued with unquestioned success the even tenor of his way as a comic singer, becoming, with James Fawn, Arthur Roberts, Chirgwin, Macdermott, and others, what may be termed one of the stock company at the London Pavilion. About four or five of the principal halls and spells in the provinces were sufficient in those days to keep a star variety comedian going. But this was long before the period of one week engagements and two houses a night.

The full history of the growth of Mr. Rickards's enterprises, were we to give it, would read like a chapter of romance, but a few minutes' chat with him enables one to immediately grasp the fact that the popular Australian pioneer of variety is a stickler for exactitude, and that he is peculiarly modest in his own estimate of his success. "The opportunities seemed to come my way, and I took them," said he casually to The Era representative who endeavoured to break down the barrier of his reticence and get him to talk about himself. It was in the late eighties that Mr. Rickards began to make his influence felt as a caterer "down under." When he appeared at the St. George's Hall, Melbourne, in the eighties, he did not anticipate becoming the owner of that fine freehold property the Melbourne Opera House.

Alert, up-to-date, and preserving admirably a youthful appearance, Mr. Rickards confesses an affection for some of the usages of the early music hall. The salaries were small, he admits, but the engagements were long; but now, even in Australia, he has had to shorten his tour from twenty-six weeks to twelve, a necessity that, of course, adds largely to his expenses for journeys overseas. His public are very staunch but very exacting. The best artists only are good enough for them; and from July to October Mr. Rickards divides his time between England and the Continent in his search for high-class novelties for his circuit, which includes the Opera House, Melbourne, the Tivoli, Sydney (the most up-to-date house in Greater Britain, rebuilt by its owner, with all the latest improvements, after it was burnt down); the Tivoli Theatre, Adelaide, of which Mr. Rickards has just acquired a further lease; and the Palace Gardens, Perth.

When asked as to the possibilities of a linking up of Colonial variety interests, Mr. Rickards does not become prophetic. Of course, like ourselves, he has heard of gigantic schemes of outspreading variety, but at the moment of writing he is not by way of merging, though as a 'cute business man he would treat with every consideration an offer from any well-established and wealthy corporation.

He is not yet tired of being a one-man proprietor, and if he should become so there is the substantial offer of £120,000 from a prominent Colonial financier as the purchase price of the Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, and Perth properties to be moulded into a syndicate, with Mr. Rickards as managing-director. This offer holds good until Mr. Rickards's return in October, and, if accepted, it will be only under the condition that all engagements made by him are to be ratified by any new management that may be in power. In Mr. Rickards's opinion there is no chance for the two-houses-a-night music hall in the cities of Australia; the population is not large enough. The plan when tried resulted in an ignominious failure. With the branch of the Variety Artists' Federation established in Australia he is the best of friends, and all of his musicians are union men except two, one of whom has been in his service seventeen years. Mr. Rickards, like all Colonists, loves the Old Country, and is enjoying immensely his residence at his charming house and grounds near Margate. He looks particularly well, and regards as his most agreeable experience the greetings of old friends. He will shortly be visiting the various capitals of the Continent on business and pleasure bent, and will not turn his back on dear old England until October.

THE popularity of the Palace steamers is more evident than ever, vast numbers of passengers being carried daily on holiday bent to Southend, Margate, and Ramsgate, or enjoying the delightful trip to Deal and Dover, with its exquisite views of the Kentish coast. The Kohinoor and Royal Sovereign still maintain their position as the best appointed and most luxurious of the boats that throng the waterway between London and the seaside. Members of the profession largely avail themselves of the opportunities thus afforded of combining business with pleasure, the presence on deck of professional baskets of properties showing that artists on tour frequently avail themselves of so cheap and pleasant a means of transit from one engagement to another.

Newark Skating Rink.

THE directors of the Newark Skating Rink are carrying out extensive alterations, including the erection of a movable stage equipped with scenery, &c., for theatrical performances. The hall is to be fitted with tip-up chairs, heating apparatus, and modern conveniences. Arrangements have been made with Mr. W. Payne Seddon, lessee of the Lincoln and Gainsborough Theatres, to provide theatrical entertainments for three nights per week throughout the coming season.

St. James's Hall, Plymouth.

THE St. James's Hall, Plymouth, which has been occupied by Messrs. A. and H. Andrews, will be reopened on Aug. 2 by Mr. Henry N. Phillips with the British Animated Pictures. Mr. Phillips has taken a long lease of the above premises.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

The report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee on Tuesday's L.C.C. agenda contained the following paragraph:—"The Council on 6th July, 1909, referred it to us to consider and report whether the Council should not seek power to inspect the Royal Albert Hall and any other place of public entertainment at present unlicensed by the Council, with a view to enforcing the usual regulations for the protection of the public against dangers of fire and panic. In connection with our consideration of this reference our attention was drawn to the fact that public performances of stage plays were frequently given in the theatre at the Albert Hall. The theatre is not licensed for stage plays, and we were advised that the Royal Charter, dated 8th April, 1867, under which the hall was erected, and the supplemental charter, dated 25th October, 1888, did not authorise the use of the premises for theatrical performances. The attention of the corporation in whom the management of the hall is vested was accordingly drawn to the illegality of the performances, and an assurance was asked for that the premises would not be used for the performance of stage plays unless and until a licence under the Theatres Act, 1843, and a certificate, with regard to the structural fitness of the premises, under section 12 of the Metropolis Management and Building Acts Amendment Act, 1878, had been obtained.

"The corporation, however, contended that the Royal Charters authorised the performances, and refused to give the assurance asked for. We therefore gave instructions for proceedings to be taken to determine whether the Council had any responsibility for the safety of the public frequenting the theatre. The case was heard by Mr. Horace Smith, at Westminster Police Court, on June 10, 11, and 18, and was then adjourned until June 23, 1910, in order that the magistrate might consider his decision. For the defence it was contended that the Council was not the proper authority to take proceedings, as the theatre was in the area over which the Lord Chamberlain exercised jurisdiction under the Theatres Act, 1843, and further that the theatre was kept open under letters patent by virtue of the charters granted by Her Majesty Queen Victoria. The magistrate decided that the Council had the right to take proceedings, and that the Royal Charters did not entitle the corporation to use the theatre for stage plays, and he imposed a penalty of £20, which will be paid to the Council. Upon the application of the defendants the magistrate consented to state a case for the opinion of the High Court, and we have instructed the solicitor to take the necessary steps to uphold the magistrate's decision in the event of the case being proceeded with. We will, in due course, report on the reference to us with regard to the Albert Hall premises generally."

The Council on Tuesday approved of drawings of the proposed electric and gas lighting installations at the Finsbury Park Empire.

SUNDAY OPENING OF CINEMATOGRAPH SHOWS.

In the report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee the original paragraph relating to the opening of the Picture Palace and Cinematograph Theatre, Borough High-street, was brought up again. The proprietors of the establishment were summoned for infringing the conditions laid down by the London County Council, in granting the licence, that there should be no Sunday exhibitions; but Mr. Chapman, the Stipendiary, ruled that the Council had acted ultra vires in prohibiting the shows on Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas Day, and therefore dismissed the summons with five guineas costs. Against this decision the County Council are now appealing.

On the motion for the reception of the report, which was simply a recital of the facts without any recommendation,

Mr. Jesson, Labour member, offered strong opposition on behalf of members of the entertainment profession to the decision of the magistrate, which he contended would, if upheld, mean to them a seven days' week. If facilities for Sunday opening were given to these cinematograph places indiscriminately, they could not deny them to the music halls. In a couple of years or so the boom in cinematograph shows would be over; but in the meantime very serious competition to the music halls would have arisen, and that placed artists and employers at a very serious disadvantage. The electric theatres, as they were called, made a boast of it that they could run their shows on £20 a week, earning dividends of £40, £50, and £60 per cent. If these cinematograph places were given the privilege of Sunday opening, it would come to it that there would be Sunday opening all round; and Sunday work for musicians and employees in every case. The conditions would be that if a man was not prepared to work on a Sunday neither should he be employed on a week-day; and then the position for the workers would be the same as in America and on the Continent, which all those who had to do with places of entertainment would very much deplore. He asked the Council to look upon the matter, not from the spectator's point of view, but simply from the point of view of the thousands engaged in work at the halls and shows. It was quite clear that in this matter what London did to-day the country would do to-morrow. The musical profession, on their part, would be very sorry to have their Sunday rest abolished. They had quite enough of Sunday work at the seaside resorts. They had found that in supporting the Sunday League they had been backing the wrong horse. By the action of the Council, the League had been able to compete successfully with individual proprietors, and the consequence must be that in time there would be Sunday opening all round, just as it was in America and on the Continent. There would, however, be a big movement on the part of the musical profession to do away with all Sunday labour, but for the moment it was desired to so control Sunday entertainments as to inflict the least hardship upon artists and employers. The professional men claimed the same right of Sunday leisure as others did. He could imagine the indignation which would be aroused if it were proposed that shopkeepers should keep their places open on Sundays and demand the services of their employees for people who never came to them on any other day. When the Sunday movement was first started, the entertainments were confined to town halls and such like places. There was no idea that it would be extended to theatres and music halls; but when the Council in a moment of weakness gave permission to the opening of those places on Sunday, they at once inflicted a great hardship on the musical and other members of the profession. The Theatre and Music Halls Committee, he contended, should not have been so liberal in granting permission for Sunday opening to all who came along. There was the case of the Women's Health Association, who undertook work which should be done by the sanitary authorities, and which by no stretch of the imagination could be called a philanthropic institution. Musicians, variety artists, and stage employes alike claimed that they were vitally interested in this question of Sunday opening; and it was unfair that they should be put in the position of having to fight for a privilege which the County Council had taken away from them.

Mr. Rogers supported the views of Mr. Jesson. There was creeping in upon them a seven days' week, and the cinematograph shows were the effect rather than the cause of the change. Mr. Chapman's decision seemed to have been based upon the Cinematograph Act; but whatever that might be, he thought the Council could claim power under the Act of George III.—which had never been repealed—which prohibited the opening of any place of amusement on the Lord's Day. It was cruel that variety artists and cinematograph employés should be robbed of their Sundays. He was one who believed in an eight hours day and a six day week, and he thought the Council should do all in its power to prevent a seven-day week from creeping in under the Cinematograph Act.

Mr. Greenwood, chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, thought it rather unfortunate that a discussion on the subject should have been raised at the present moment—that the Committee should be asked to rescind its regulations when the appeal against Mr. Chapman's decision had been lodged in Court, which it was hoped would give its decision before the Long Vacation. He thought it was undesirable and unfair to draw any distinctions in the matter of Sunday opening between theatres and music halls, and the halls where simply cinematograph shows were given, between the places frequented by the wealthy and those frequented by the poorer classes. The cinematograph exhibitions were enjoyed by the poor, and to say that they should be stopped on account of the crowds which assembled at them, any more than concerts, was not right. He hoped that whatever might be done in the matter of Sunday opening would be done fairly as between the two great classes of the community. He repudiated the idea that the applications for cinematograph licenses were not carefully scrutinised. So far as they could learn, nothing improper had taken place at any of the shows. All cinematograph cases were treated alike, and the Council might rest assured that the Committee would do all in its power to guard against any irregularity. As to the Women's Health Association, he understood that it had done a large amount of good.

The report was then received.

PRIZE FIGHT PICTURES.

On the plea of urgency, the Rev. J. Scott Lidgett obtained permission to bring forward the following motion:—"That in the opinion of the Council the public exhibition, at places of entertainment in London, of pictures representing the recent prize fight in the United States of America is undesirable; and that the proprietors of London music halls and other places licensed by the Council for cinematograph performances be so informed." He said he wished to clear himself of any imputation of being animated by narrow views with regard to sport. As a matter of fact, he was in favour of every kind of manly sport, and he had not the slightest objection to an exhibition of scientific boxing. He had no desire to put down any such exercises, which he held to be good, both physically and morally, for those who practised them. The objection he felt for the proposed exhibition was best expressed by a writer in a daily paper, who, referring to the fight, said it was quite impossible to forecast the result because the abyssmal brute which was latent in us all had been thoroughly aroused in the two men engaged in the fight. That exactly represented the standpoint from which he viewed the proposed exhibition. Such pictures were calculated to arouse the abyssmal brute in those who looked upon them. The fight had attracted an assemblage of undesirables from all parts of the world, and it had stirred up racial animosities because the premier pugilist of the world happened to be a man of dark skin. The fight had been followed by deplorable consequences, and throughout America and in the British Colonies a movement was on foot to prohibit the exhibition of the pictures of the fight. After referring to the fact that the proprietors of the halls would be coming to the Council before long for the renewal of their licences, the speaker suggested that by passing this resolution the Council would be voicing the general sentiment of the vast majority of the community, as well as the general desire of those who frequented these public performances, and also of those who did not want to cater for a demoralised taste. He would not inflict upon the Council many expressions of public opinion, but he might mention that he had received from the Bishop of London a communication expressing the hope that the Council would pass the resolution; another from the Bishop of Southwark, who wrote: "The whole thing gives an unpleasant shock, and I look upon it as a real outcrop of barbarism"; and a third, equally strongly worded, from Mr. Silvester Horne, M.P.

Captain Swinton, in seconding the motion, said it was not an ordinary prize fight or an ordinary glove fight, for long before the event it was boomed as a fight between a black man and a white man, and he thought that was a very dangerous thing. Although there was no racial difficulty in London, he wished that members would realise that a number of coloured races were included in the British Empire.

Mr. C. J. Matthew opposed the motion, as he held that the Council ought not to legislate for faddists. It was new to him that boxing was degrading, and he pointed out that in the films that would illustrate the Johnson-Jeffries fight all the unpleasant features would be eliminated. As showing that it was an exhibition of scientific boxing he quoted the remark of Jeffries "that he could not hit the beastly man." He was strongly of opinion that all the fuss which was now being made was because the white man was beaten. With regard to the statement that the pictures would be likely to corrupt children, he pointed out that already there had been films shown illustrating fights since 1896; and he further submitted that the power of the Council should be enforced on grave occasions only. He appealed to the Council to pause before doing what was proposed, and objected to any communication of the kind being made to the proprietors of shows, as it was in the nature of a threat.

Mr. Dennison-Pender also opposed the motion, pointing out that the view held in England regarding the colour question was entirely different from what it was in America. He saw no reason why pictures of the fight should be withheld from the people of London.

Other members rose to continue the discussion, but there were loud cries of "Vote, vote!"

The Chairman thereupon put the motion, and on a show of hands declared it carried by 45 votes to 29.

"HER LADYSHIP'S GUEST."

Sketch, in One Act, by Harry M. Vernon, Produced at the Hippodrome, Leeds, on Monday, July 11.

Lady Arlington .....MISS MARY GRIFFITHS
Servant .....MR. W. F. STIRLING
Tricky Dugan .....MR. MERVYN RENTOUL

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Herbert Sleath's London company has met with great success in the production here of the above well-written sketch. The plot of the story is as follows: Cyril Arlington, heir to a noble family, leaves his father's house as a protest against the unhappy state of domestic affairs there, eventually finding himself in New York in a state of destitution. Chance throws him into the society of the burglar Jim—alias Tricky Dugan—who, discovering who the youth is, and being deeply impressed by his manly, upright character, reforms, and comes to England to seek the boy's relations. He succeeds, and obtains an interview with Lady Arlington, Cyril's grandmother, to whom he discloses all he knows, and influences her ladyship to seek the return of her grandson. The police, however, get wind of the presence of Dugan in the neighbourhood, and they call to arrest him on suspicion, but he is saved by Lady Arlington informing them the "gentleman" is "her guest."

Miss Mary Griffiths was excellent in the rôle of Lady Arlington, and played the part with much impressiveness; Tricky Dugan is a character which requires some clever acting to do it justice, and Mr. Mervyn's conception of it was most praiseworthy; Mr. W. F. Stirling made a typical butler, and with such a clever trio of artists the performance met with conspicuous success.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD

Fairs Ahead.

The fairs ahead for next week are: Baildon Feast, on the Midland; Darwen, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Dursley, on the Midland; Spilsby, on the Great Northern; Kingsbridge, on the Great Western; Swaffham, on the Great Eastern; Brierfield, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Tipton, on the London and North Western and Great Western; Chesham, on the Metropolitan; Haworth, on the Midland; Nelson, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Chiddingley, on the London, Brighton, and South Coast; Dewsbury, on the London and North Western, Lancashire and Yorkshire, and Great Northern; Glemsford, on the Great Eastern; Hatherlow; Hollinwood, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Longsight, on the London and North Western; Normanton, on the Midland, Lancashire and Yorkshire, and North Eastern; Stalybridge, on the London and North Western, Great Central, and Lancashire and Yorkshire; Walton, on the Lancashire, Derbyshire, and East Coast; Forfar, on the Caledonian; Dunfermline, on the North British; Rothesay, on the Caledonian; Helensburgh, on the North British; Kirkcudbright, on the Glasgow and South Western; and Leven, on the North British Railways.

The Irish Bearded Lady.

Stewart's Waxworks, in Dundee, are doing a record business with the Irish bearded lady, Miss Maud Temple. This attractive lady is considered the only bearded lady living, and in time will outrival the great Annie Jones.

Alf. Ball's Great Loss.

We are confident that Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Ball's many friends in Showland will sympathise with them in this hour of calamitous loss. The destruction of the costly and beautiful Electric Lyceum by fire at Tilbury Docks last week will be a shock to many people, and its consequences terrible to Mr. and Mrs. Ball and family. It is no exaggeration to say that the hard work and well-won savings of a lifetime were spent upon the show, and now comes calamity and loss, not by any neglect on their part, but in the mysterious providence of events, struck by lightning and fired. On the Metropolitan circuit of fairs, where Ball's show is a household word, and where Alf. Ball ranks as a leader and champion of Showland, the consternation and grief will be widespread, and the sympathy most personal and real. We trust that response for contributions to the Ball Show Fire Fund will be both immediate and adequate. We strongly commend this matter to the ever generous heart of Showland.

Mr. Ball writes to us to say that he has received so great a number of sympathetic letters from his brother showmen that he is unable to reply to them individually. He asks us to acknowledge these kind expressions, and to say that in the time of trouble and calamity it is a great comfort to himself and family to find how dear a place they have in the hearts of hosts of friends.

Notes from Wales.

Mr. Henry Studt's annual summer pleasure fair at Maesteg is being held this week. The attractions include motor-cars, gondolas, Mme. Howard, the lion-faced lady, Prof. A. B. Ennett's novelties, freaks of nature, &c., W. Thomas's zoological collection, Davies's coalmine exhibition, Prof. Thomas (tattooist), and houp-las and shooting ranges by Messrs. J. and W. North, J. Chedwick, and W. Emma.

Messrs. Hy. Studt and Son attended the annual fête and gala at Neath Abbey last week, with several other attractions, such as palmistry, shooters, etc., in aid of the Church Fund of Neath Abbey. The Rev. T. C. Philips, hon. local Guild Chaplain, was in attendance. Through the generosity of Messrs. Hy. Studt and Son a good sum was realised and handed over to the Vicar, who passed a hearty vote of thanks to all who assisted in making the fête such a success.

Messrs. Wadbrooke's premier show paid Porthcawl and Kinfig Hill a welcome visit, and with some of the newest and best bioscope subjects, interspersed with varieties, commanded good houses. Mr. Glover makes a capital guide, assisted by our old friend Mr. Jeffries, in recitations, &c.

Messrs. Haggar, at Milford Haven, had a good reception from his old friends. Some excellent pictures are shown to crowded audiences, ably introduced by Mr. Walter Haggar. Some excellent varieties are introduced nightly. Mr. Roberts, who is looking well, joins Mr. Haggar at Neyland with big wheel, houp-la, swings, and shooters.

Mr. John Studt is advertised for his annual visit at Cogan with his beautiful motors and bioscope show with an excellent array of star artists.

Mr. S. White is in the Rhymney Valley with bioscope show, tunnel railway, shute tower, houp-la, &c.

Messrs. Crescraft are building their new show at Llanelly, showing they are keeping abreast of the times.

The many friends of Mr. Arthur Noice, Mr. Vint's popular manager at Neath, will be glad to hear of his little boy's recovery following the operation on Sunday last.

Opening of Cinema House.

The Duchess of Portland on Thursday opened the new cinematograph theatre in Cinema House, a handsome building constructed by the London Cinematograph Co. (1909), Ltd., at 225, Oxford-street, close to Oxford-circus. Her Grace made a few suitable remarks to the effect that the object was to provide healthy and popular recreation of an educational character at moderate prices. The entertainments given, she added, would be of the highest character. After the Duchess of Portland had declared the theatre open, the orchestra played the National Anthem, and a portrait in colour of King George was displayed on the fixed white surface—not a sheet—on which the films are shown. An exhibition of moving pictures was given, the first being an excerpt from Fra Diavolo, then an amusing domestic comedy arising out of Baby's First Tooth, interesting aviation experiences at Rheims, with airships performing evolutions aloft, and rowing finals at Henley Regatta. The theatre is sumptuously upholstered, the tip-up chairs being of the most modern type. Dark oak panelling and broad beams, with white interstices, form the ceiling and side walls, and the interior is spacious and well-proportioned. It is intended to open the theatre at noon and close at eleven p.m. each day, and to change the programme every Monday and Thursday. Continuous performances will be given, so that visitors can enter the theatre at any time to suit their convenience, and without waiting are assured of seeing the whole of the entertainment. The series of pictures will last about one hour and a quarter, and the repetition of any particular film will denote that the visitors have seen the entire series. Popular prices will be charged for admission, ranging from 6d. to 1s. for seats on the ground floor, and 3s. for seats in the circle tier.

THE MITCHAM CONSERVATORS AND THE FAIR.

MR. H. MALLABY DEELEY, M.P., ON THE BOARD'S POSITION.

An important statement as to the future of Mitcham Fair was made by Mr. H. Mallaby Deeley, M.P., the chairman of the Mitcham Common Board of Conservators, at their meeting on Tuesday night.

After mentioning the attitude taken up by the Press on the question, Mr. Deeley said that did not concern that Board, but he did think that when statements were made with regard to the attitude of that Board, it was only fair that a statement should be made as to how the matter really did stand. In that connection he was bound to review the action he had undertaken some years ago on behalf of that Board. He might say at once, as so many misstatements had appeared in the Press, that personally he was against the continuance of the fair in Mitcham. With regard to his public position he was neither for the fair nor against it. It would be remembered some years ago, when the question as to how to deal with the Fair came before the Board, they passed a resolution leaving the matter in his hands, and he was instructed to see the Home Secretary (Mr. Gladstone) in order to put right the difficult position in which all parties found themselves. He saw the Home Secretary, also Mr. Horne, the Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, and the Secretary, and he met with a considerable degree of success from both parties. Both the Home Secretary and the Guild were perfectly willing to leave the matter in his hands, to make some amicable arrangement. They met him perfectly frankly and fairly, and told him so. Mr. Gladstone asked his opinion on the question personally, and also the view he took as the Chairman of that Board. He told him that personally he was against the continuation of the fair, but as the Chairman of the Board he was neither for nor against, but was anxious for an amicable settlement for the sake of all parties. They might remember that when he had reached that stage of the proceedings he reported the matter to the Board, and it was moved and seconded that the matter be further left in his hands. On the Mitcham members voting against that resolution, he declined to go on with the negotiations. That was the present position of the Board with regard to the Fair, and he thought himself that it was an unfortunate thing that his negotiations were not allowed to continue, because he honestly believed that by now there would have been an amicable settlement arrived at, and the fair would have been moved away from where it was held now by an agreement signed by all parties. He thought it his duty to let the Mitcham people know exactly his position with regard to the fair, and also the Board's position. Personally he always took the view that to pursue a course of legal proceedings every year the fair came round was unsatisfactory in every sense. Although they had got a good number of injunctions against people coming to the fair, it was no guarantee that others were wrong in coming to the fair. That was the Board's difficulty, and that was why he objected to legal proceedings. The Conservators were anxious to have the matter amicably settled, and he felt certain that his negotiations, had they been allowed to have gone through, would have been successful.

Mr. Willcocks: What is our position with regard to the coming year?

Mr. Deeley: Exactly the same.

Mr. Willcocks: Here we have a possible revenue of £200 or £300 every year, and I say I am not against the fair if it is removed to a place beyond reproach. I think steps should be taken now to bring about an amicable settlement.

Councillor Johnson said he would like more powerful testimony as to the views of the inhabitants of Mitcham on the subject. Simply changing the venue of the fair would not correct the morals of the people who came down to prey on the public.

Mr. Willcocks: A parish meeting was held, and it was wholly in favour of the continuance of the fair.

Mr. Cubison: Half in the room were boys under twenty-one.

The question was postponed until the Board had settled the matter of securing the fair rights of the common.

Vindication of the Guild Policy.

It is with great satisfaction that we give the above clear statement of the position of the Mitcham Board of Conservators with regard to the Fair controversy. Mr. Mallaby Deeley's attitude towards the question is both manly and dignified. Whilst in his individual view he is against the Fair, he recognises fully that as chairman of the Board of Conservators he has a public trust to administer for the benefit of the people of Mitcham, and that whatever his own private views might be, he is conscientiously bound to administer the public office he holds for the general good of all parties concerned.

Ever since he has held the chairmanship of the Board he has done his best to effect an amicable settlement of the question at issue between the abolitionists of the Fair and the people who do not wish that it should be taken from them.

This obviously impartial treatment of a public question reflects the greatest possible credit upon Mr. Mallaby Deeley, and we are glad to notice that the Board under his public-spirited guidance has not, nor will it, lend itself to further legal proceedings to prevent showpeople frequenting the Fair until the Board is in actual possession of the Fair rights.

This brings us to the very point we have aimed at all through the dispute. Mr. Mallaby Deeley's desire to bring about a just settlement is all fours with the action taken by the Showmen's Guild. The people of Mitcham desire the continuance of their Fair; they are ready to admit that the Fair has outgrown its present site, and, whilst rejecting abolition, favour removal.

The first step towards a settlement is the one decided upon by the Board that the Conservators should become the possessors of the Fair rights. After that, both the showpeople and the people of Mitcham would be able to approach the Board with regard to the removal of the Fair to a better site on the Common Lands under the control of the Conservators.

In every way possible the Showmen's Guild will assist the Board in arriving at a mutually satisfactory conclusion of the matter.

"BABS," THE CLEVER LITTLE ELEPHANT PURCHASED BY CLIFFE BERZAC FOR £150.

There were a large number of buyers and representatives of menageries and circuses at the sale of Mr. Robert Leadbetter's valuable menagerie of wild animals. The sale took place on Thursday at East Croydon, and the various items came under the hammer of Mr. Jameson, of the firm of Moss and Jameson. Amongst those who attended to catch the auctioneer's eye were Mr. William Pinder, Mr. Sam Lockhart, Mr. John Sanger, Mr. Ted Bostock, Mr. Frank Bostock, Mr. Douglas Bostock, Mr. T. Read, Mr. Jamrach, Mr. Billy Sedgwick, Mr. Fred Ginnett, jun., Mr. Frank Wilson, Mr. Hyatt, Mr. Henry, Mr. Tom Norman, Mr. Manders, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Cliffe Berzac, Mr. Hamlyn, Mrs. Robert Fossett, Mr. John Emberson, Mrs. Chittock, Mr. Picard, Mr. Cross (of Liverpool), and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift.

One of the most attractive items in the catalogue was No. 2, a young male elephant, "Babs," five years old. This was secured by Mr. Cliffe Berzac for the sum of £150. We understand that "Babs," amongst other things, is credited with the feat of having walked up the stairs of the Children's Hospital in Great Ormond-street, and delighted the little patients by strolling round the wards. We give a picture of "Babs." The highest price fetched was £190, given for "Lowla," a fine elephant, nine years old. This was purchased by Mr. E. H. Bostock. A very fine Bengal tiger realised £105. "Prince," an African lion, five years old, went for £100. A male dromedary fetched £40; a male camel, £16; a female camel, £27; a male Llama, a fine-looking animal, only £12 10s.; three yaks fetched £3, £6 10s., and £9 respectively. Lions and lionesses were cheap. "Valeni," a Nubian lioness, £30; "Umbala," three-year-old lioness, £27; "Prince Edward," seven-year-old lion, £47; "Princess Alice," six-year-old lioness, £25. Dingoes fetched from £1 2s. 6d. to £2, and jackals 25s. and 35s. Foxes went for 25s. each, wolves from £1 each to £4 10s. a pair, and a six-year-old male emu, destined for the Glasgow Zoo, realised £1. Cockatoos, parakeets, and monkeys were cheap. A number of menagerie wagons were also sold.

Park Fêtes, Hanley.

The Park Fêtes encountered bad weather, and, therefore, considerable loss in takings. The fair-ground was very animated. There were Mr. Pat Collins's No. 1 Wonderland, No. 2 motors and bicycles; J. Collins's four-abreast horses, yachts, motors, cake-walk, and haunted castle; Miller's helter-skelter; Hughes' assault-at-arms; Davies' horses; Wright's shooters and gem horses; Mercer's houp-la; Hughes' little Wonderland; Cordwell's glass and china bazaar. Varities were supplied by Dixon, Hodgkiss, Birch, Malaren, Gunthorpe, Jewel, Campfield, Beaumont, Clough, Dace, and Mills.

Kensington Picture Theatre.

At this popular and luxurious family rendezvous the following films have been included in the week's fine programme: A Valuable Hat (Itala), After the Fall of the Eagle (Eclair), Scenes in the Austrian Tyrol (Urban), Absent-minded Max (Pathé), The Princess and the Outlaw (Cines), An Affair of Hearts (A.B.), and Muscite's Caprice (Eclair).

ALF. BALL SUBSCRIPTION FUND.

The president of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain writes as follows:—

"To the Editor, The Era, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"Dear Sir,—

"I shall feel obliged by you inserting the enclosed appeal and opening up a subscription list in The Era for the Alf. Ball Fund.

"On Monday, July 4, Mr. Alf. Ball's cinematograph show, whilst located at Tilbury Dock, was struck by lightning, and was completely burnt to the ground. Not being covered by insurance, it has resulted in a most deplorable loss—the life's work of Alf. Ball.

"I have known Alf. Ball for many years—indeed, he is well known to the travellers of the United Kingdom—and have always found him a very hard-working and industrious person, ever ready to lend a helping hand to those in need; and now to lose in a few hours what has taken his lifetime to get together is exceedingly sad.

"As president of the Showmen's Guild, I am opening up a subscription list in The Era, and feel sure that my fellow travellers will readily respond by contributing what they can so as to make this subscription list a very substantial one, worthy of the fraternity, and one that will show our practical sympathy in our friend Ball's great and heavy loss.

"I am, yours as ever,
"Patrick Collins,
"President of the Showmen's Guild."

In a letter, under date July 9, enclosing a cheque for £5, Mr. Frank Turner, of the Agricultural Hall and Liverpool-road, Islington, writes:—

"Herewith my small contribution to list for Alf. Ball. I am sure every showman will sympathise with a man who was always ready to help others, and I trust you will get a good list.—Yours faithfully, Frank Turner."

Subscriptions.—First List.

Patrick Collins, £10; Frank Turner, £5; Wm. Taylor, £5; Charles Thurston, £5; Robert Fossett, £2; Joseph Ball, £2; Mrs. E. Ball, £2; Mrs. J. Ball, £2; Mrs. J. Whiting, £1; Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, £1; Mrs. Mitchell, 10s.; "Princess Pauline" (Midget), 10s.

Additional subscriptions may be sent to the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Offices, and will be duly acknowledged in our columns.

Benefit Performance at Tilbury Dock.

Organised by the local clergy and the Town Council of Tilbury Dock a grand benefit performance in aid of the Alf. Ball Fund will take place in a large booth erected on the site of the burnt-out Electric Lyceum.

Many members of the Council will be present; the Vicar of Tilbury is taking the kindest interest in the matter. He at once came to the rescue by giving Mr. Ball the free use of the school yard and outbuildings as temporary workshops during the reconstruction of the show. This he was able to do as the school holidays are now on. All the local talent and many London music-hall artists have volunteered to appear and a big programme will be submitted.

THE "FIGHTING PARSON" CASE.

In the King's Bench Division on Thursday Mr. George Gray was the defendant in the case of Barrasford and Macnaghten v. Gray, in which £130 was claimed from him as damages for breach of contract.

Mr. Hume-Williams, for the plaintiff, said the late Mr. Barrasford was lessee of the Britannia Music Hall, and Mr. Macnaghten was manager. The defendant was an actor, engaged in giving at music halls a sketch called The Fighting Parson, in which he appeared in clerical attire. In 1906 the defendant entered into a contract with Mr. Barrasford and Mr. Macnaghten, by which he was to appear in The Fighting Parson at various music halls, including the Britannia, at which he was to give performances for one week from December 3 for £130, one of the terms being that he should pay plaintiffs £130 if he failed to fulfil his contract. Afterwards he appeared to have entered into another contract with the proprietors of the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palaces to perform at those music halls, and at no others within two miles of them. After his first day's appearances in Hoxton, the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush people applied for an injunction against him—the Britannia being within two miles of the Hackney Hall—and obtained it. Mr. Gray went to the Britannia Theatre on the Tuesday, and explained to the audience why he was unable to continue his performances. Counsel went on to explain various causes which had, he said, delayed the bringing of his action into court, the latest being the death of Mr. Barrasford, whose widow and executrix had since been joined in the action. The defence set forth in the pleadings was that Mr. Gray had not signed the alleged agreement, or that if he had the plaintiffs had suffered no damage by its breach; and he put in a counterclaim for £50 for the performances actually given.

Mr. Shearman for the defence said that the agreement was made with Mr. Barrasford only; that the action was begun without Mr. Barrasford's consent, and was not proceeded with during his lifetime; and that plaintiffs, having obtained three performances of The Fighting Parson without paying for them had suffered no damage.

His lordship having suggested a settlement, Mr. Hume-Williams said his clients would be quite satisfied if Mr. Gray would now give a week's performances at the Britannia.

Mr. Shearman: Yes, for £130.

No settlement was arrived at, and Mr. Baugh, who had acted for plaintiffs as manager at the Britannia Theatre, and gave evidence in support of the claim, emphatically stated that Mr. Barrasford had been a consenting party to the action.

The hearing was adjourned.

Wales and Sunday Picture Shows.

At the monthly meeting of the Rhyl Council, on Monday, Mr. T. D. Jones, as chairman of the General Purposes Committee, moved that, in the granting of cinematograph licences that a clause should be inserted prohibiting Sunday exhibitions. He urged that people in Wales did not ask for that sort of thing, and that they should keep the Sabbath as quiet as possible. Several members supported the proposition, and urged that the Welsh people were very conservative as to their Sundays; while other members contended that, as the Council had allowed pictures to be shown by a lantern in their own pavilion, they should not prevent the living pictures elsewhere. On a vote being taken, it was decided by a large majority to restrict the cinematograph licences to six days.

New North Shields Picture Palace.

In a remarkably short space of time, out of the ashes of the old popular Borough Theatre, North Shields, a beautiful new edifice has been erected by the enterprising Black Brothers. The palatial edifice will be a handsome adjunct to the town. The building operations have proceeded steadily yet rapidly. The fine structure is now nearing completion, and will open its doors to the public on August Bank Holiday. The picture entertainments, of which the late Mr. George Black was the pioneer in North Shields, will be continued, and with more perfect pictures and mechanical improvements being put on the market every day a high standard of excellence can now be reached. A special departure will be the catering for the children on Saturday afternoons, when special selections of films will be shown, comprising educational items of travel and history, and, of course, the necessary leavening of comedy.

FILM GOSSIP.

Johnson-Jeffries Pictures.

Sir H. Davies (Bristol S., Min.), in the House of Commons on Monday, asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he had power to prohibit photographs of the recent prize fight in America being exhibited at cinematograph shows in this country; and, if so, would he, in the interest of public decency, exercise his power of prohibition. Sir F. Channing (Northants, E., Min.) asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he would take steps or recommend to local authorities to take steps to prevent the exhibition of cinematograph pictures of the recent prize fight in America. Mr. Winston Churchill (Dundee): With the permission of my hon. friend the member for the Eastern Division of Northampton I will answer at the same time his question which appears on the paper. I am advised that I have no powers in the matter. Mr. Clough (Yorks, W.R., Skipton, Min.): Will the local benches in the provinces have any discretionary powers to suppress these exhibitions? ("No.") The Speaker: The hon. member must give notice.

L.C.C. and Boxing Pictures.

The London County Council, by 45 votes to 29, on Tuesday adopted a motion declaring that the public exhibition of pictures of the Johnson-Jeffries boxing contest is undesirable, and decided that the proprietors of places licensed for cinematograph performances should be so informed.

Objection to Fight Films.

The question of the possible exhibition of Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures at Wolverhampton came up for discussion at Wolverhampton Town Council meeting on Monday. Councillor Bantock asked the chairman of the Watch Committee whether, if any attempt was made to exhibit pictures portraying the fight, he would take steps to prevent it. Alderman Gibbons said that the Watch Committee should be called together immediately. Personally, as chairman, he should not do anything in the matter. He would rather like to see the pictures. Councillor Bantock moved that it be an instruction to the Watch Committee to prevent an exhibition of this wretched affair should an attempt be made. Councillor Weaver seconded, saying that such a show would lower the tone of the town. Several members were against the instruction being given. Alderman Craddock said that the steps proposed seemed dictatory. After all, the Council might safely depend that nothing would be allowed in Wolverhampton until it came before the Watch Committee. Alderman Gibbons intimated that he intended to call a meeting of the Committee at the earliest possible moment, and the matter then dropped.

Cinematograph Defence League and Fight Films.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Cinematograph Defence League, held on Tuesday afternoon, the question of the Johnson and Jeffries fight film was considered, and a resolution passed to the effect that the executive committee felt that whilst they had no desire to dictate to cinematograph proprietors as to the particular films they should or should not show, it is in a general way against the best interests of the business to encourage the production and use of films of this character.

C.D.L. and Advertising Films.

An advertising film now being offered to showmen for exhibition at their halls, with in some cases a high rent demanded for the use of same, was under full consideration, and it was eventually decided that a circular letter be sent to members of the League, and to film manufacturers and hirers, expressing the opinion of the executive committee that the use of advertising films of any description whatsoever is likely to prove a serious detriment to the cinematograph business, and that, in the opinion of the executive committee, showmen would be well advised in the interests of the future of this business to refrain from showing such advertising film.

Bournemouth's Electric Theatre.

Comedy and drama, interspersed with panoramic views and other topical matter, are being served up in lavish style at the new Empire Electric Theatre, situated in the Square, Bournemouth. The existing arrangement of "come in when you like and go when you like" is providing a long-felt want in the town, and proving a great convenience to those who do not like to be tied down to fixed times. The pictures are going continuously from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 10.30, and it takes two hours to go through the entire programme.

Stoll's Panopticon, Cardiff.

The possibilities of cinematographic effort were shown to perfection last week at Stoll's Panopticon, Cardiff, in a series of splendid new pictures, including Elektra, a marvel in acting and a masterpiece in pictorial art. Another triumph of cinematographic progress is seen in the sensational production Father and Son, presenting the finest coalmine pictures ever yet seen, and a realistic and touching story of parental estrangement and final reconciliation. The "prehistoric age" is seen under queer circumstances. The Sweets of Forgiveness is a pretty and charming drama in seven tableaux, and there are other pictures of various sorts, some instructive in character, others sensational and awe-inspiring, others, again, provocative of most uproarious merriment.

New Picture Theatre in Manchester.

The directors of Victoria Picture Theatres, Ltd., whose registered offices are at 45, Deansgate-arcade, Manchester, have now completed their arrangements for the purchase of a well-known site at the corner of Hyde-road and Stockport-road, Ardwick, Manchester, where now stands Apsley House. The commanding position of this corner, where seven different tram routes converge, renders it unique for its prominence, and it is most accessible from all parts of the city and suburbs. Elaborate plans for a spacious and lofty theatre have been prepared by the architect, Mr. Longworth, and special provision has been made for the public safety and for the full supply of emergency exits, enabling the theatre to be emptied in less than a couple of minutes. At the back of the theatre there will be an elegantly appointed café lounge, slightly raised from the main floor of the house, which will permit of patrons enjoying light refreshment amidst refined and luxurious conditions, whilst at the same time seeing the pictures. The floor will be made with an unusually liberal amount of fall or rake, so as to ensure a full and uninterrupted view of the pictures from all parts.

Attractive Programme Promised.

It is intended to give the popular continuous (hourly) entertainment a trial, and therefore from 3 p.m. until 10.30 p.m. or 11.0 p.m. patrons can enter or leave at any time, and for 3d., 6d., or 9d. can secure a good seat from which they can view the latest events of the day portrayed in moving pictures. With the aid of mechanical devices for synchronising the picture projector with the gramophone it is intended to present talking and singing pictures, and to include in this department abbreviated operas of the highest class. The theatre, built upon a net area of about 1,200 square yards, will provide seating accommodation for over 1,000, whilst the café lounge will accommodate nearly 200 more.

"LOOKING FOR TROUBLE."
A Farcical Play, in three Acts.
By Helene Gingold and Lesser Columbus.
Produced last week at the West Pier Theatre, Brighton, with enormous success to enormous business. Refer W. H. Gibson, Esq., Chairman, West Pier Company, Brighton.
Brighton West Pier Company, Brighton, July 11, 1910.

Dear Mr. Cowen,—
"LOOKING FOR TROUBLE."
I am so delighted at the success achieved by this play on the occasion of its production at this theatre that I am writing you my congratulations on your good fortune in securing so clever and so amusing an attraction.
The unexpectedly large business which has resulted during the week is proof of its drawing powers, and on all sides I have heard nothing but eulogistic comments.
Speaking from an experience of many years at this theatre, your play is, in my opinion, the first produced here that has proved an unqualified success. It is bound to be received elsewhere with the same chorus of appreciation and delight that has been its lot here, and I should be glad to recommend it to other managements as the cleverest and funniest farce produced for many a long day.
Yours faithfully,
W. H. Gibson, Chairman.

WANTED, by Sisters Geretti, July 25, Aug. 1, 8, 15. Dewsbury Press Opinions:—The News, July 9: The Sisters Geretti are styled on the programme as double trapeze wonders, and they thoroughly deserve the title. The refined pair go through a series of lightning tricks in a manner which earns them unstinted applause. Their tricks are entirely new to Empire goers, which makes the performance all the more delightful. The Weekly, July 8: The Sisters Geretti are aptly described as double trapeze wonders. At the very outset of their performance they arose the enthusiasm of the audience, which is maintained to the end, when they are the recipients of loud and enthusiastic cheering. It is one of the cleverest shows of the kind yet seen here. The Reporter, July 9: The Sisters Geretti earn for themselves torrents of applause by the rapidity and ease with which they perform a numer of particularly daring trapeze feats. Their performance is a combination of skill and grace in a unique degree.—Address, Empire, Ton-y-Pandy, Wales.

SPECIAL NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.
EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to CO-OPERATIVE OFFICES, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (London), Solicitor.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS—

THE ENCORE, May 26, 1910.
We have just received the third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's book on Theatrical and Musical Law, which is published at "The Era" Office, 5, Tavistock Street, Strand. Since the second edition of this work was published—nine years—many changes have taken place in the laws relating to entertainments, and these have necessitated a considerable enlargement of the volume. Full texts of the recent Berlin Convention and the United States Copyright Law are included in this edition, in which is also published the awards governing the relations between artists, agents, and managers. A number of new cases are also cited illustrating the effects of the barring clause. The Musical Copyright Act, children on the stage, the sketch question, and the Workmen's Compensation Act are all fully dealt with and in a readable and easy style, as free as possible from legal phraseology and echnicalities. It is a legal axiom that ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it, and, therefore, it behoves everyone connected with the entertainment world to make himself acquainted with the law as it stands in relation to the profession or business in which he may be engaged. To everyone connected with the Drama or Variety Mr. Strong's book is a necessity, and this last edition is so comprehensive that anyone who consults it can have no possible excuse for infringing the law on the ground of ignorance. The work will, no doubt, have a ready and rapid sale, for all artists, managers, and agents should have it at hand.

THE FINANCIER, June 8, 1910.
"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Mr. A. A. Strong, LL.B., has reached a third edition, and gives in simple language such parts of the law as relate to subjects with which the profession is concerned.

SPORTING LIFE, May 16, 1910.
Dramatic authors, composers, and all of those interested in dramatic enterprise will find much that is useful and instructive in "Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert Strong.

REFEREE, May 15, 1910.
Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable work "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at "The Era" Office, Tavistock-street, has reached its third edition. The author has made every effort to bring the book right up to date.

SUNDAY TIMES, May 29, 1910.
A third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" is just published. The work has already established its value, as a comprehensive and accurate book of reference, and the new edition has been brought up to date by the inclusion of all recent decisions of the courts, and the texts of the Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Law of the United States.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS, June 13, 1910.
In view of the frequent litigation concerning theatrical matters there can be no doubt as to the usefulness of this little book to those whom it concerns, and, apart from its usefulness, it is really quite an interesting little volume, in saying which we are paying tribute to Mr. Strong's lucid methods of explaining the intricacies of the law. He has avoided legal terms as far as possible, and theatrical cases exemplifying legal principles he has given in full. To make this, the third, edition as complete and useful as possible, Acts of Parliament relating to theatrical matters and the regulations of the Lord Chamberlain and London County Council are set out in full in the appendix, with the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States.

THE PERFORMER, May 12, 1910.
THE ARTIST'S LEGAL HANDBOOK.
We welcome a third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" Offices), as it is nine years since the second appeared, and much has happened since then, not least the foundation of the V.A.F. and the resultant Award of 1907. This will be found incorporated in the now greatly-improved and extended Appendix of Statutes, ranging from the Disorderly Houses Act of 1751, to last year's L.C.C. Cinematograph regulations. As far as is possible with further developments in daily progress, this invaluable work of legal reference for all interested in the entertainment profession has been brought up-to-date. Sixty pages have been added, and the whole revised and rendered easier of reference by the re-arrangements that have been made, and the numerous marginal headings that have been introduced. Strong, on "Dramatic and Musical Law," may be regarded as the layman's complete authority on the subject, whether he be PROPRIETOR, MANAGER, or ARTIST, and with a lucid explanation of the law so readily available, the artist will be wise to consult its pages before venturing on new contracts and agreements, whether as employed or—in these days of "combinations," sketches, troupes, and what not—as employer.

THE MUSIC HALL, May 12, 1910.
Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable treatise on "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at the offices of "The Era," has reached a third edition. This includes the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States, also all the important decisions of the Courts, since the last edition, on which the compiler has been able to lay hands. As Mr. Strong remarks, "There is probably no more fruitful source of litigation than the ordinary theatrical contract." If the work under notice achieved no other object than to impress this fact on the parties concerned, it would still be worth its weight in gold.

SPORTSMAN, May 14, 1910.
"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. ("Era" Office, W.C.), has gone into a third edition, which would seem to prove its usefulness.

To the Publisher.
1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, S.E.
15th June, 1910.

My Dear Sir,—
I have had an opportunity of looking into the third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published from your office recently, and I have pleasure in testifying to the great value I have found the previous editions in my practice among ladies and gentlemen connected with the profession for which your valuable paper caters so admirably.
That Mr. Strong has had a wide experience in the matters with which he deals so ably in his book is evidenced by the lucid yet exhaustive manner in which he has treated the various subjects therein, and this last edition is eloquent testimony of the care and ability which he bestows upon his work.
Brought thoroughly up to date it will without doubt find a wide circle of usefulness among the profession whose contracts, Mr. Strong aptly remarks, are so fruitful a source of litigation.
Believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
W. H. ARMSTRONG.

Third Edition. Price 5/- Post free 5/4.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—After a brief vacation His Majesty's Theatre reopened this week, when Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company presented the dramatic version of Ouida's popular novel "Under Two Flags." The company is a capable one. Miss Agnes Verity makes a charming Cigarette; Mr. Wernham S. Ryott represents the hero with fidelity; Mr. Charles E. Johnson makes a typical villain; and Mr. Harry Benson as Rake provides the more humorous side of the play in a very satisfactory manner. Miss O'Neill as the Silver Pheasant, Mr. David Hawthorne as Lord Rockingham, Mr. Wilfred Jessop as Bertie Cecil Royallieu, Mr. Charles Brooke as Lord Royallieu, Mr. Arthur Redmond as Captain Claude de Chanrellon, Miss Marion Lockie as Lady Beatrice Guinevere, and Miss Mary Morrell as the maid Levina all give satisfactory representations.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—The Palace reopened this week with an excellent variety programme. Reano's band is the star attraction, the playing of the talented instrumentalists being strong and harmonious; the Twelve Georgians sing and dance delightfully; the Three Torontos exhibit weight-lifting feats of startling power; Courtney and Wilton are seen in an amusing sketch, A Marble Flirtation; Scholey and Scholey present an admirable skit, Winning a Wager; Mima Thornton dances gracefully; and Lily Edwards rounds off the programme with several popular songs.

The Tivoli.—Proprietors, The Tivoli (Aberdeen), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Tivoli opened its doors for the first time with an interesting variety programme. The Harmony Four are appreciated musical experts; the Creo Brothers give a clever acrobatic display of much originality; the Avolos are gymnasts of a high order; Morny Cash's Lancashire dialect songs are greatly enjoyed; Dix and Dox play skilfully on a number of grotesque instruments; the Sisters Herbert sing and dance admirably; Tom Lee is a smart light comedian; Ethel Ra-Leslie sings attractively.

ACCRINGTON.—New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The Stavordale Quintetee, in a very entertaining and refined musical turn, are particularly good; Lindsay and Hart, in their Scotch comedy act, win golden opinions; Adelaide Waldorf is a capital vocalist; Carl Cynski, instrumentalist, is deservedly popular, and Harry Conlin is successful. Kitty Kearnes, in song and dance, provides a pleasing turn; Bert and Dora, comedy entertainers, are seen to advantage; and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A capital variety programme is presented at this popular house of amusement this week. Marie Santoi and her Merry Japs, in their scena A Night in Japan, sing and dance well; the Spanish Goldini Troupe's unique performance includes marvellous acrobatic feats and carpet-spinning; the Tintos, in their double acrobatic comedy act African Gambols, cause much amusement; De Lilo and Metz, styled the beautiful lady bender and the comedy juggler and champion ball bouncer respectively, perform extraordinary feats; E. J. Sheldon gives a capital turn in patter and song; and Minnie Warner, "the Rubber Girl," finds favour with her dainty dances and catchy songs. Others who go to make up a capital bill are George Doonan, comedian; and Minnie Wheaton, comedienne and dancer.

ASHINGTON.—Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietors, Hirst Pavilion, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Stoker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Curry.—Rozel, the King of the Air, in his flying trapeze turn, is excellent; Marquis and Truly, eccentrics, are very good; and Tiny Ashton is a pleasing vocalist. The pictures prove very attractive.

Buffalo Palace.—Proprietors, J. and E. Lamb; Business-Manager, Mr. W. P. Carr.—The Eldras, in their canine acrobatic novelty act, are particularly clever; Cade Burnett is well received in his descriptive songs; and the pictures are up to the usual standard.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. W. Graham Arthur's company is here with The Mockery of Marriage, and has revived local theatricals somewhat in Ashton for the week. Mr. W. Graham Arthurs as Dick Kenyon of the prologue, which takes place at the goldfields, Klondyke, and afterwards as Sir Montague Jepson, of Richmond-on-Thames, has evidently evolved from the author's creation a sturdy and intelligent man of the world; Mr. Ernest Wingfield was a manly Jack Stanley; Seth Pearse had a strong delineator in Mr. Lowe Mackenzie; Alva Kenyon, the heroine, found in Miss Mabel Elliott an actress of conspicuous ability; a charming Rose Verham was submitted by Miss C. Middleton; Mr. D. Phillips as Toby and Miss Ada Bond, in the humour of the piece, are very sparkling.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Buralem.—The present visit of Mr. Rayner and company to the Empire is being prolonged for another week.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—A first-class programme of pictures is submitted here this week. Variety turns are introduced by Sabino, whose musical act is highly appreciated; and Little George Gregory, in popular chorus songs.

Picture Palace.—Lessee, Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—This week's list of pictures includes a highly dramatic series, Shadow to Sunshine, Over Silent Paths, and Never Despair. Comedy is represented by Chantecler Hat, and His New Appointment. Helen and Florence, vocalists, are appearing with success. Mr. W. A. Guest's Scarlet Band is still an attractive feature of the programme.

BARRY DOCK.—Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Manager, Mr. W. W. Minto.—Heading the bill here are the Victor Bros., a pair of clever acrobats; a singer with a fine voice is Sam Williams; The Frohmans are a good musical turn; and there is the Bioscope.

BATH.—Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Mr. Chas. Schuberth, back from his foreign travels, submits a fine all-round bill here. Miss Kittie Corelli sings delightful ballads; Wat Tyler meets with a cordial reception; Elsie Hulbert and her Dancing Girls in vocalism, sabot, sand, and clog dancing arouse much enthusiasm; the rapidity with which a young lady named Arabella performs a series of wire feats is wonderful; Pat Lynch wins further laurels for his marvellous step-dancing; and a popular turn is Wiliams's Jubilee Singers, an octett of coloured lady and gentleman vocalists.

Electric Theatre.—Always to the fore with the latest stirring events of the day, the management are showing a particularly fine film of the army dirigible previous to its flight round St. Paul's, with excellent portraits of the King and Queen. The other pictures are of a varied and amusing description.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Mr. John Levey's company opened here on Monday with The Scapegrace. Mr. F. Dudley sustained the rôle of Sir John Fanshaw, Bart., with credit, and Mr. W. A. Buckstone deserves commendation for his fine acting as Captain Harry Fanshaw; Miss Beatrice Weston was a capable Margaret Marsden, and congratulations are due to Mr. A. T. Cresswell for his skilful handling of the rôle of Jack Fanshaw. Mr. John Levey was convincing as Bill Burke, the Avenger, and a powerful impersonation of Ralph Marsden was submitted by Mr. Wallace Curnock. The humour of the piece was in the capable hands of Miss Maude Lambert as Mary and Mr. Harry Ives as Larry McGehan; and Miss Nellie Lambert furnished a clever impersonation of Nellie Burke; Miss Maudie Western appeared to advantage as Dick, and other rôles were efficiently sustained by Messrs. T. Chapman and J. Ballard. The Dumb Man of Manchester was on the bill for Friday.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading attraction here is provided by the Great Verona Troupe of trick cyclists; James Eadie and Cissie Ramsden are an entertaining comedy duo; and that smart monologue artist Mr. R. H. Douglas furnished a clever and amusing performance; Cullen and Carthy (assisted by Little Cluley) are paying a welcome return visit; Miss Helene Martin is loudly encored for her capable vocalism, and Talberto and Douglas are capable comedy artists. Also appearing are Dollie and Elsie, comediennes and dancers; Miss Mabel Florence, comedienne; Wilman, speciality artist; and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The star here is the favourite comedienne Miss Minnie Cunningham, whose clever rendering of Irish and other songs have gained her repeated encores; The Kirbys, comedy and burlesque entertainers, speedily make themselves favourites; Gilbert's performing dogs furnish a clever performance; and the fine contralto of Miss Iva Voyce has been heard to advantage; Miss Alice Maydue is a characteristic comedienne of ability; and Chris Van Bern stages his clever act, in which the unexpected always happens. The Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. J. M. Gilney, completes.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the direction of this popular manager many beautiful pictures have been presented, including The Hand of Fate, A Mad Infatuation, Hidden in the Camp Fire, &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by Mr. Andy Fagan, comedian, and the Wedburns, clever burlesque instrumentalists.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Some capital films have been shown here, including Paid in Full, As It is in Life, The Miner, Camille, &c. Ritt and Ritt, duettists, appear at each performance with acclamation.

Princess Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Captain T. A. Blake. The programme of pictures exhibited here includes A Cowboy's Sweetheart, On the Border Line, The Telephone Call, &c. Mr. Tom Wotherspoon, humorist, appears with success.

BILSTON.—Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—A capital entertainment is provided here this week by the Yissots, living marionettes, and Vi Eplett, a charming vocalist. A capital series of pictures is also shown.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—The drama twice nightly continues to exercise a healthy stimulant here. This week we have Dottridge and Longden's company in The Midnight Mail drama, possessing a particular fascination to the popular parts of the house. Mr. George Harvard as Harry Steyne plays with great discrimination and effect, the impersonation being a thoroughly popular one. Mr. H. W. Hatchman is well suited as Leonard Royle, and Miss T. Humphreys is in every respect excellent as the heroine. Remaining characters are all ably represented, and the scenic effects are realistic. Both company and piece have produced an excellent impression.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Mr. Horace Hunter and his capable company, in a splendid performance of the interesting sketch Under Suspicion, are deservedly the premier attraction; the Whittakers, in their clever comedy act Dick Whittington, with Fred Whittaker as the cat, is brimful of humour; and Doody and Wright, clever Australian comedians, are well received; Alec Kendall, a resourceful comedian; Billy Hobbs, an entertaining coon-vocalist; Miss Bertha Winder, an expert dancer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope, with some good films, complete an excellent programme. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

Hippodrome.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown's company, in the strong drama Geoffrey Langdon's Wife, command extensive patronage. Mr. Wilson Coleman gives an incisive and telling performance of Felix Beverley; Miss Amy Ellam makes many friends by a faultless performance of Mary. The cast is most efficient throughout, and brisk business is being done.

Winter Gardens, Rock Ferry.—General-Managers, Messrs. B. Alandale and L. Blattner; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry A. Dooley.—Mr. Adeler Sutton and Alandale's party of Pierrots, including Mr. C. D. Reekie, the popular comedian; Dave Stewart, D. Jenkins, Miss Edith Heron-Brown, Miss Alice O'Connor, J. A. Tunbridge, and Master Charlie Bray in a tabloid musical comedy, entitled The Mountaineers, are very popular here.

BIRMINGHAM.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—It would be difficult to find a play which preserves its freshness and attraction so well as Sapho, which is not belying its reputation here this week. Mrs. Frank Bateman shines in the title-rôle and shows a thorough grasp of the character, and Mr. Fred W. Goddard as Jean Gaussen displays great dramatic ability, and Mr. Percy Shaw in the humorous part of Uncle Cesaire is responsible for much mirth. The other members of the company are well chosen.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—Mr. W. V. Garrod's company, in A Country Girl in London, is claiming much attention this week, the production being a very strong one. The story is on original lines, and whilst there are plenty of thrilling incidents to engage one's attention the humorous side has not been overlooked. Miss Maude Merrick acts with natural charm in the title-rôle; Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson capably fills the character of Gwendoline Gordon; Mr. Charles Halling earns approval for a good study as Frank Gordon, and excellent impersonations are given by Mr. Scott Leighton, Mr. Frank Dallas, Mr. Seymour Perry, Miss Alice Clarke, &c.

The Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Business excellent, and a good programme. Harry Weldon is a genuinely funny man, and his performance merits the repeated encores; a screaming farce, entitled Dotty, by the Ten Loonies, creates roars of laughter; Peggy Pryde is in great form, and is a big favourite; Mlle. Camille Ober is justly described as the pheuomenal Parisian star vocalist, her voice being sweet and powerful; Will Polnski, jun., is a quaint comedian, who keeps the audiences in merry mood; Luis Alvarez is loudly applauded for his operatic selections; an interesting exhibition of spinning hoops is given by the Kratons; the Sisters Jerome are pretty girls, who sing and dance very prettily; and a clever cycling act is given by "the beautiful Lillian."

Grand.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—George Robey is a big favourite here and he is enjoying a big welcome. He is as amusing as ever, and his new material is up to his usual high standard. Another expert mirth-maker is Ernie Mayne, who has quaint and funny songs and patter; James Stewart, "the tramp pianist," is a merry entertainer; Maude Esmond has some bright, catchy chorus songs; a pleasing entertainment is provided by Chas. Fisher's Vocalesques, which combination, in comedy, burlesque, and harmony, are highly successful; skilful and graceful dances are executed by the Dancing Gilberts; and Burley and Burley are a couple of quaint acrobatic comedians.

Gaiety.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The re-engagement of the Six Charming Daughters of Eve is proving one of the greatest successes of the season. Theirs is an entertainment of artistic value, and their tableaux-vivants have a big reception each evening. Les Piccolinos are a smart midget combination whose feats are deservedly appreciated; the Laurie Bros. in an acrobatic turn of much merit introduce some excellent comedy business; Mlle. Dalmere's performing dogs, cats, doves, and rats perform astonishing feats; the Martineks are well received in a musical act; and the bill is also contributed to in capable style by the Markies, La Belle Alva, Jack Lane, and Edie Anderson.

Aston Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—The sketch Pride of the Regiment, by Nevill Graham and company, contains elements of pathos that at once ensure its success, and audiences show lively appreciation. Clara Coverdale's Nine Dainty Dots take a high place in public appreciation in a pretty vocal scena, "The Gipsies' Revels"; The Three Welsh Girls are popular singers, and Adeline Yohle and company create endless mirth in a musical interlude entitled Difficulties. Little Vera Elmore is a mimic of great promise; Elmo and Rego are amusing knockabouts; T. W. Barrett causes many laughs with his funny talk, and his songs are well received; Tom E. Dean is an up-to-date comedian, and the Hipposcope pictures are an interesting feature.

Curzon Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—A reproduction of the popular Shakespearean tragedy Macbeth is a popular feature in a good programme of animated pictures. The incidents of the play are represented with wonderful clearness, and the film is accorded a good reception. Amongst other films of a popular nature are Theatrical Garden Party at the Botanical Gardens, The Animated Gazette, and The Bride of the Haunted Castle. There were also some excellent amusing subjects.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing Director, Signor Pepi.—A capital bill is again provided here, Louis Hardt giving a fine exhibition of muscular strength; Phil Percival is a wonderful burlesque comedy pianist; Jennie Moore, in her comedy studies, is excellent; "Smith" is a fine comedian; and Crosby and Walker are especially noticeable for their smart songs; Max Merlin is a good contortionist; and Garti and Law, in their harmonious duo, do well. The Hipposcope films are interesting.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddleston.—An excellent company is here this week playing The Little Damozel. The title-part is in the capable hands of Miss Emelie Polini; Mr. Alick Chumley is very successful as Recklaw Poole; and Mr. Guy Newall presents a highly creditable portrayal of the Hon. Fitzroy Lock; Mr. G. R. Brandram, as Captain Partington and Miss Marion Lockie as Sybil Craven, also merit commendation. Curing a Selfish Husband is the title of an admirable curtain-raiser.

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—Mr. John E. Watson and company is playing The New Boy here this week. Mr. A. B. Tapping causes great fun as Archibald Rennick; and Bullock Major is cleverly impersonated by Mr. H. F. Widdy; whilst Dr. Candy is ably accounted for by Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood. The minor parts are in efficient hands.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Harry Lauder is retained here another week, and is giving delight to huge crowds; The Gaudsmidts are clever clown acrobats; Carney and Armstrong are comedians of a new school; F. V. St. Clair sings the latest topical songs; Jennie Johns pays a welcome return visit with new songs; Harry Levaine is a great fun-provider; The Blessings shine as equilibrists; Tom Gott sings Yorkshire songs with success; and Archie Royer is a smart comedian and dancer.

BOLTON.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Mephisto the Mysterious, assisted by a clever company, heads the bill here, with twelve original illusions. Other turns are Harry Lamore, versatile entertainer; Zeta Russell, a dainty comedienne and dancer; Percy Johnson, comedian; John Donald, Scottish baritone, in an original scena A Scottish Exile's Dream; the Adras, novelty acrobats and head-to-head balancers; Katie Butler, character comedienne; the Cromwells, in their unique and novel juggling act; Ada Tilley and Harold Wagner and company, in their farcical sketch The Lodger; F. E. Ford, dancer, &c.; and the Premier Imperial Pictures.

BOOTLE.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler Sutton, and Allandale; Managers, Mr. Ludwig Blattner and Mr. Bobbie Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Boult.—The bill of fare provided this week at the Winter Gardens is an excellent one. Blanco White was loudly applauded for his coon impersonations and dances, and Jimmy Watson proved himself a capable comedian. Other items of merit were contributed by Mr. Jackson Collis, Mr. Chas. North, Miss Mimie Fisher, Mr. Andy Williams, Miss Emilie Clifford, Miss Ethel James, and the Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—Hippodrome, Ltd.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Maurice Mahony; Musical-Director, Mr. F. Shackleton.—The Bros. Horne this week present their comedy boxing sketch The Biter Bit; Ernie Myers, comedian, keeps the audience in roars of laughter; the Rawsons are a clever young pair of society entertainers; Lily Lonsdale, vocalist, is heartily applauded; the Three Orleans have a refined singing and dancing entertainment; Walter King, the doleful comedian, is droll; Shirley Liggins and Co., in A Twilight Serenade, are well received; Selby and Myers are also good as comedians and dancers; and the Hippo Pictures conclude.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Bernard Shaw's Candida is being performed here this week by Mr. Edwin T. Heys and Miss Horniman's company, with Miss Marie O'Neill in the title-rôle, her delightful Irish accent contributing to make her finished acting very attractive; Mr. Leonard Mudie plays with earnestness as Eugene Marchbank; Mr. Ian Maclaren displays considerable power as the Rev. James Morell; Miss Muriel Pratt, as Prosperine, makes her character prominent, and deserves special mention; Mr. Frank D'Arch is good as the Curate; and Mr. Francis Hope as Mr. Burgess presents a clever character study. Delicate Ground precedes, in which Messrs. Ian Maclaren, Frank D'Arch, and Miss Muriel Pratt took part.

BRADFORD.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—A good all-round company is this week appearing here in Mr. Walter Howard's drama, Two Little Drummer Boys, and Miss Maggie English and Miss Maudie B. Douglas, exponents of the title-rôles respectively, Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith, achieve distinction; Mr. J. L. Leigh is an excellent representative of the hero, Captain Carsdale, and his rival, Captain Darrell, is effectively played by Mr. Polson Turner. The part of the dissolute Margaret Rivers Miss Ada Champion represents with marked ability and skill; Mr. Wilson Holmes' Jim Barker is a capital character sketch; and the humour in the piece is well sustained by Miss Patrica Connaughton, Mr. W. Percy, and Mr. A. Selwood.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—La Milo is well received here; Bert Coote, the delightfully humorous comedian, is capitally supported in his excellent sketch, A Lamb on Wall Street; Richard Taylor presents a clever turn as a ventriloquist; May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, is a big favourite; The Little Puritan, is a bright sketch, smartly presented by France and Stewart; Nell Emerald, comedienne, wins favour in her buoyant and animated impersonations. With perfect ease and composure the De Wynne Brothers accomplish some clever feats in head and hand balancing; and Frank Lynne, with quaint comic songs, and Pat Rafferty, with his Irish humour, complete a fine company, supplemented with Bioscope pictures.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—In American song and dance, Fred Russell and Lilian Held are successful here this week; and Joe Belmont very realistically imitates the singing of birds; the Welsh bass vocalist, Ford Williams, sings well; in a capital sketch, My Friend the Enemy, Edgar Forest and company amuse the audience; Sophie, a clever juvenile, acts, sings, and dances in a manner which wins her unstinted applause; Ruhart is very entertaining as a comedy parodist; Maud Mortimer's catchy songs and pleasing style win favour; and Irene Meldon, "the dainty dot," and the Perfection pictures make up the excellent programme.

BRIDLINGTON.—Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. W. L. Cockburn, Scotch baritone, who has returned from a most successful winter season in America, gives great delight to the crowded audiences here. In the Grand Pavilion Mr. Walter George and his Smart Set entertainers are drawing crowded houses, and on Wednesday night at a grand carnival and fireworks night the newly-installed electric illuminations were especially fine.

New Spa and Gardens and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Luxton.—The celebrated Wingates Prize Band are a great attraction here. The confetti carnivals are an attractive feature in the Spa. In the Opera House Mr. Alexander Lee's Gay Birds are giving a most attractive programme daily.

BRIGHTON.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Mr. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday with A Girl's Temptation. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne gave a charming and sympathetic treatment of the character of the wayward Kate Sterling; Mr. Frank V. Fenn was very popular as the hero, Guy Warren; Mr. Charles Herbert's Basil Warren and Mr. Gerald Nolan's Geoffrey Sterling were admirable impersonations; Mr. Clifton Earle was well suited as Mark Klaw; Miss Winnie Donovan's Lady Constance Heathfield merits warm praise; Mr. Fred J. Mace achieved success as Jim Judd; and the comic element, in the hands of Miss Amy Coraille as Jemima Jossop and Mr. Albert E. Mann as Sammy Sniggles, was well sustained. The play, well staged and mounted, has attracted good houses.

Alhambra.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Alice Hollander, a gifted Australian contralto vocalist, is enthusiastically applauded for her songs; the Seven Walfrunas, comedy acrobats, are very amusing in Fun in a Café; Little Dando is a very eccentric comedian; Dan Hendy is a capital acrobatic comedian; Lane and Lambert prove entertaining comedians and patterers; Millie Doris wins hearty applause for her character comedy selections; Marie Lea, character comedian, is also well received; the Two Lees are very effective in their musical speciality; Hugo and Smit are clever comedy acrobats; and the Alhambra Picturegraph.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Resident Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Kitty Gordon's songs are very enthusiastically appreciated; Paul Cinquevalli is as clever and popular as ever; he is undoubtedly "the incomparable." The Romps, a bevy of pretty young ladies, give a charming turn; little Jack Marks, comedian, is favourably received, his business being very amusing; George Newburn is a capital mimic; Les Ados give a fine exhibition of athletic skill; and pleasing turns are also contributed by the Sisters Wingrove, the Jason Troupe, Hughes and Elliott, and S. W. Wyndham.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris's company is doing good business here this week with John Glayde's Honour. Mr. Ernest E. Norris gave a masterly impersonation of John Glayde; Miss Kathleen Russell is distinctly successful as Muriel Glayde; Mr. T. Edgar Stevenson as Trevor Lerode, Mr. Herbert Garthorne as Howard Collingham, and Mr. F. Sutherland as Christopher Branley add materially to the success of the performance; Mr. Fred Castleman is well placed as Michael Shurmur; Miss May Norris is a graceful Princess de Castagnary; and able support is given by Miss Keith Lytton (Lady Lerode), Miss Una Earle (Mrs. Rennick), and Miss Marjorie Palgrave (Dora Longman).

Palace Pier Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jay and Mann; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wilfred H. Kent.—Picture plays are still the great attraction, and are dramatic and amusing.

Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—This place of entertainment worthily retains its popularity. The series of animated pictures exhibited here this week are interesting and amusing. The Common Enemy is a strong drama; The Way of the World and An Old Story are intensely interesting stories; Lumbering in Sweden is instructive; and the comic films include Mr. Tubby's Triumph, Calino at the Bar, and Tontilini, Bullfighter. Mr. Osland Denner contributes baritone songs in good style.

Theatre de Luxe.—Proprietors, Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. H. Cousens.—A capital series of pictures is exhibited here this week, and attracts crowded houses. The Angel of Dawson's Claim, The Sheriff's Young Bride, and From Gipsy Lands convey dramatic stories; and much amusement is afforded by Coco Policeman, Her Golden Locks, and What Gentleman won the Million?

BRISTOL.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here for a second week, the romantic drama Send Him Victorious being staged. Miss Sidney Crowe acts splendidly as the Countess Kara Von Mechlinberg; Mr. G. M. Montanini displays considerable power as Colonel Heinrich Kaufman; Mr. Herbert Skardon and Miss Netta Mitchell are both very pleasing in their respective parts of Captain Frank Allison and Ethel Harding; and Miss Madge Palmer and Mr. Bert Woodin are really clever in their comic parts of Gretchen Holtz and Geordie Walker. Other characters are effectively taken by Messrs. Charles Russell, Howard Hardy, James Archer, Charles Higgins, Lionel Garteret, and Albert Mellitt. The uniforms, dresses, and scenery are appropriate.

Palace.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Treasurer and Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Sable Fern and company head the programme with their musical scena Boy Scouts in Camp; Miss Fern sings several songs in pleasing style, and the scena is both interesting and appropriately staged; Graham presents a fine turn with his imitations in miniature of past and present music-hall stars; the Simms (two ladies) are exceptionally clever dancers, and their songs are also appreciated; Rastus and Banks are highly successful as coloured song and dance artists; the Czar's troupe of Russian dancers display much agility in their quaint national dances; Charles Woodward, light comedian, is successful; Smarte Brothers are clever acrobatic eccentrics; Gené Morelle amuses with his burlesque musical act; and Waul Langtry, patter comedian, obtains considerable applause. The interesting animated pictures include The Vanderbilt Coach Trip to Brighton and the Lieutenant's Dinner.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—This week we have an amateur carnival for the best local talent in all lines of music-hall business. There are four money prizes, and the absolute winner at the second house on Friday evening is to be awarded an engagement for six consecutive weeks at the variety houses under the control of the management. It is stated that there are 150 entries, and the competitions so far are interesting. Perrier amuses with his ventriloquial act; Lily Arthur, comedienne, is a smart dancer; Cameron Matthews and company interest with their dramatic sketch A Dilemma; Lace and Leno score as comedy artists and eccentric dancers; Johnson and Bert do well with their speciality, A Queer Customer; Harry Claff and Alice Tremayne amuse with their burlesque The Demon and the Fairy; the Four Marzipans are pleasing singers and dancers; and Parks and Price are successful as musical entertainers.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Rome: Past and Present is a highly educational and pleasing picture, and among the dramatic films The Planter's Wife is received with approbation.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The Three Van Dammes are extremely smart in original acrobatics; Sinclair and Whiteford are a refreshing couple; Miss Elsie and "Bob" give a series of clever and well-executed feats; Valenche demonstrates to what extent dogs can be trained; and the Four Rosebuds are pleasant dancers; Walter Read, banjoist, and Harry Keeble, ventriloquist, are very good; and the Palace pictures conclude.

On their garments not a blemish.
But fresher than before.—The Tempest.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. De Hague Body.—Good variety turns include Rapoli, a smart balancer and weight-bearer; the Vigorato Trio, clever acrobats; Lynn and Collingwood, in an entertaining comedy and dancing act; Cherry Lass and Marie Kay, two bright comediennes; Gladys Vernon, in a good comedy duologue; Norman Holt, skilful manipulator of the concertina; and up-to-date films on the New Bioscope.

BURY (Lancs.). — Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—At the World's Mercy is presented this week by Carr Loates' company, prominent among whom is Miss Cissie Milford, a clever actress in the parts of Kitty Knott and Skittles the Stowaway; Captain Frank Manley is admirably played by Mr. Fred Muntz; and Mr. Carr Loates appears to advantage as Jabez Barker; Messrs. A. Burrows and W. H. Irving, as Morris Goldstein and Charlie Smart respectively, give good representations; Miss Alice Hunter is a delightful Rosie; and Alice Lloyd is well played by Miss Maggie Hobart. The remaining parts are in the capable hands of Mr. F. Overton as Slouching Sam, Mr. Walter Leonard as Dan, Miss Clare Hall as Mrs. Rourke, and Miss May Douglas as Dot.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Resident-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—Miss Mildred Bryan, vocalist, pays a return visit, and her excellently rendered songs prove very enjoyable; and a clever exhibition of club juggling is submitted by the Brothers de Hais. A series of interesting pictures complete the bill.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Miss Zerlina Harrington appears in a strong dramatic sketch, presented by J. G. Grahame, and gives a most excellent performance as Olga Orloff, Messrs. J. G. Grahame, George E. Butler, J. Sherwood, and Miss Dulcie Lawrence render valuable assistance; Arthur Sharp is amusing as the Facial King; Harry Luck is a clever comedian; Clifton and Gibson are successful as eccentric comedians; Phyllis Seymour is a charming singer and dancer; Hartley Wonders give a clever exhibition of jumping; and Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire Singing Mill Girl, is a popular turn.

BUXTON. — Opera House. — Proprietors, The Buxton Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—Mr. Alan Wilkie and his Shakespearean company opened their tour here on Monday evening with The Taming of the Shrew. Mr. Allan Wilkie made a rollicking Petruchio; and Mr. Henry Hargreaves was an excellent Lucentio. Mr. G. Edward Dunstan played capitally as Tranio; and Mr. Sinclair Neill was a capable Baptista. Mr. John Paley made the Pedant amusing; and Mr. Houston McLarry missed no opportunity as Biondello. Mr. Philip Gordon's Grumio was excellently played; and Mr. Herbert Mansfield was successful as Hortensio. Miss F. Hunter Watts played Katharina with all the fire and spirit so essential to this character; and Miss Hilda Plowright was a sweet and graceful Bianca. Miss May Dallas was satisfactory as the Widow; and Miss Mary Lovett played intelligently as Curtis. During the week The School for Scandal, The Sleigh Bells and The King and the Miller, The Merry Wives of Windsor, She Stoops to Conquer, and Twelfth Night were produced.

CARDIFF.—Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—The programme at the Empire this week is a strong one. Horace Goldin, the well-known illusionist, is the star turn, and mystifies his audiences with his amazing tricks. A hit is made by Anna Chandler, American comedienne; Rauschle, impersonator, supplies an interesting turn; big favourites are Sam Lowenwirth and Charles Cohan, original Hebrew comedians; Alf Gibson is a droll comedian; Roze and Calvert's sketch, Captain Kettle and His Charming Mate, causes much merriment; Frank Couch, the pattering comedian, is funny; Rosa Loader, the "happy slavey at the piano," commands attention; and the Bioscope concludes.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The versatile Arthur Carlton is here this week, presenting his burlesque on "The Circus," assisted by the Two Hillands and Jock Walker; also his clever card manipulation and his bewildering rendition of "The Mysterious Cross." Other contributors to the performance are Fred Maitland, supported by Miss Pauline Walker, in a funny skit, Roots, Rash Chemist; Jessie Broughton and Dennis Creedon, in a refined vocal and instrumental scena; Dolly Ross, a dainty comedienne and dancer; and Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, in a pleasing comedy sketch; while the Bioscope shows interesting films.

CARLISLE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Variety still holds sway here, and judging by the large and enthusiastic audiences at every performance is distinctly popular. The Great Raymond, who heads the bill, is a wonderfully successful conjurer and illusionist, and as he adds much humour to the mystery of his performance he is already a big favourite. A precocious little lady is Little Sunbeam, described as the "miniature Marie Lloyd"; Morris and Moore's clever step-dancing is encored nightly; Frank Solbey is a comedian with excellent songs; Ryde and Beeman's originality is a strong feature of their smart performance; Snella Cross's efforts as a comedienne and vocalist are much appreciated; and a quite uncommon dancing act is contributed by Les Grossi, Continental dancers.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—A delightful sketch brimful of bright and sparkling comedy is The Sleepwalker, played for all it is worth by Walter Ellis, Miss Nydia Marcelle, and Miss Elsie Craig. It is a real screamer. A sketch of an entirely different character and quite as clever in its way is Her Return, given with fine dramatic effect by Florence Creagh and Dick Cruikshanks. We do not often see a loose-wire act nowadays, so that it almost appears as a novelty. Ada Gatley, who now introduces it, is so clever and graceful that she compelled the admiration of her audience from start to finish. Something quite new in pantomimical acrobatic work is contributed by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alaskas, hard and successful workers; Sim Maree, on a return visit, repeats his previous success; Guest and Newlyn have some excellent comic patter as the Hebrew and the soubrette, but score most in their nimble dancing. Rose and Jeanette, singers and dancers of merit, and some fine pictures complete.

CASTLEFORD.—Queen's Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and Will H. Emerson.—A fine range of films is shown here this week, all being remarkably clear and interesting. A couple of excellent variety turns are given. This theatre will be closed from to-day until August Bank Holiday.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have the Four Kahns, in an interesting illusory act; the Four Flying Orevins, in a daring gymnastic and flying act; Billy Rex, a versatile entertainer; Alex. Keith and Co. in The Notorious Mrs. Eggflip; Phil Kauffman, with chorus songs; Dalveri and Wallace, in laughter and song; and May Mack, comedienne.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. George Humphries.—The Chinese Idol, as played by Miss Lily Langley and company, proves amusing; Edgar Budden surprises all by his dexterity as a roller skate dancer; Madame Pollo displays ability in her trapeze act; Zimpa's mimicry is much appreciated; Miss Gwen Zalska shows merit as a dancer; and the Claymore Trio are deservedly applauded in club juggling and dancing.

CHESTER. — Royalty Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton.—The theatre reopened on Monday for Pageant Week with an attractive variety programme. The Dauntons-Shaw troupe of Australian trick cyclists top the bill with a marvellous show of wheeled feats; George Russell is a good vocal comedian; May Knight is an ideal chorus singer; and the Florias are undoubtedly wonderful novelty equilibrists and comedy slack-wire artists. The Levans are tuneful and clever in up-to-date illustrated songs; Hylton and Wallace, mirth-provoking cross-talk comedians and simultaneous dancers, and the Sutcliffe Troupe, in full Highland costume, are skilful pipers, dancers, and acrobats. Biographic pictures conclude the entertainment.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—West Cliff Gardens.—Proprietors, Messrs. Graham, Russell and Bentley.—Here we find an exceptionally strong and attractive programme this week. Bert Graham's "Water Scenes" is a funny number in which he is heard at his best; Bernard Russell is excellent in "Archibald, certainly not!"; and Will Bentley's humorous item "When the bugle calls" keeps the audience rocking with laughter. Fred Vallance, a clever conjurer, also provides a good ventriloquial entertainment; Joseph Boddy has a tenor voice of exceptional quality; and Miss Maude Niner contributes some clever violin solos. Mr. Cyril Weller ably accompanies.

Palace of Varieties and Skating Rink.—Business-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Thomas Butt.—Lockhart's Elephants, at the top of the bill here, give a wonderful turn; Mabel Sinclair, ventriloquist, submits a clever performance; Marie Pera and Mr. Thomas Kennard bring down the house in their comedy duologue Two Doors and a Passage; Ruby Roya is a smart comedienne and dancer; Harry Rogerson and the Pearl Trio appear successfully in the comedy sketch, entitled The Bad Boy of the Family; and Ethel Campbell, comedienne, is also a pleasing turn.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—For the first three nights this week the attraction was Mr. Chas. Gibbon and company in The Little Stranger. As Tom Pennyman little Hetty Hornsby supplied an admirable impersonation; Mr. Chas. Gibbon worked assiduously as Paul Vronsky; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson made a characteristic Eames; whilst as Nurse Miss Carrie Young was well placed. Mr. Bruce Lindley made the most of the part of Sir George Peacock; Miss Nellie Clyde was splendid as Mrs. Dick Allenby; and as the latter's husband Mr. Charles Dancourt was good; Mr. Edward Jephson was convincing as the Hon. Alec.; and the other characters were cleverly depicted. Last (Friday) night was allotted as Mr. Fred Graham Macdona's annual benefit, and the bill was Mr. H. G. Pelissier and company in "The Follies"; the bookings made a crammed house a foregone conclusion.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Moulliot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The Elliott-Savonas are nightly receiving a splendid reception for their fine performance; Yangar, the West African mystery man, is a big success; Fred Lincoln's eccentric comedy songs go well; the Prince Milner Trio give a versatile entertainment; Metz and Metz, cross-talkers and dancers, are popular; Senorita Eloina, gymnast, and Mlle. Florence, with illustrated songs, bid successfully for popular favour.

COVENTRY.—Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsone; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Miss Margaret Cooper, the celebrated singer, had a magnificent reception on Monday, the audience applauding enthusiastically after each of her songs. The Five X Rays, "mad athletes," gave a clever entertainment; Victor Widdicombe and company presented an excellent sketch, entitled Her Devonshire Dad; the Four Sydney Girls sang and danced excellently; the Sisters Train did some good juggling; Walter Emerson sang some funny songs; Beatrice Allen is a dainty comedienne and vocalist; and Harry Raymond and his little daughter are clever dancers.

CROYDON. — Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Charles Austin and company are here in the comic sketch Parker, P.C.; Percy C. Ford and E. C. Webb's company present the dramatic episode The Spy; Dorothy Rose is a charming comedienne; Alf. Passmore is a quaint comedian; Madge Allan, comedienne and dancer, is entertaining; Walker and Lake are funny patter comedians; Hurman and Arthur are clever in comedy juggling; Talbot and Pearce are entertaining in Over the Garden Wall; Victoria Dagmar and comedy assistant win applause in their gymnastic display; and the Bioscope pictures.

Queen's Hall.—Manager, Mr. Dicks.—An excellent programme of Bioscope pictures is attracting good audiences here. A noteworthy feature is the fine performance on the piano of Mr. G. Corfield. The singing pictures are appreciated.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The programme this week, twice nightly, is drawing large houses. The principal turn is the Sarnthaler Troupe of Tyrolean singers and dancers, who received a hearty welcome. Mr. Arthur Milton causes heaps of fun in the sketch The Puzzled Coroner; Priscarry is a clever hat juggler; Jimmy Grant, Scotch comedian, goes well; the Stanley Bros. are marvellous on the cycle and motor-cycle; the Sisters Lavender are perfect comediennes and dancers; George Shurley is responsible for much humour in his comedy songs; and the Darloscope shows some very humorous pictures.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The premier attraction this week is the Wolkowsky Troupe of Russian dancers, vocalists, and instrumentalists. Their performance is in every way excellent, and is successful throughout. Bros. O'Brien, in their horizontal bar act, are extremely workmanlike, and earn all-round recognition; Joe Almasio is both clever and diverting in his juggling turn, and is well supported by Yamina, a graceful Arab lady tumbler; Syd. Cotterell and company appear to advantage in a sketch entitled The Substitute, in which there are many amusing situations; Nellie Denver, juvenile comedienne, sings and dances with grace and charm; Sam Fay, the novel comedian, is responsible for much merriment; the Sisters Ely are pleasing duettists and dancers; Duncan and Foster, clever eccentrics and dancers, and C. Allen is successful in his song-scena. The Bio. contributes to the general enjoyment.

DEVONPORT.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. G. Prance.—Florrie Forde is a strong draw here, her various songs, to all of which there are most catchy choruses, taking well in all parts of the house. James Willard and company have an excellently-rendered dramatic episode, entitled The Devil's Box of Bricks; the Newmans provide some interesting cycling, culminating with an amusing boxing match on wheels; Russell Carr as a ventriloquist is far above the average; Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire collier with a beautifully mellow tenor voice, is heard to great advantage in a couple of well-known ballads; Haidee St. George provides a high-class vocal number; and the Musical Keiths complete.

DEWSBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—The attraction here is Mr. Hubert Helliwell's company in The Passion of Life. Mr. F. Owen-Chambers is an excellent Captain Horace O'Neal; Miss Ada Hender submits a pleasing rendition of Belle O'Neal; the hero, Jack Kenny, is ably presented by Mr. Hubert Helliwell; Miss Maud Garth as Nita O'Neal is responsible for some good acting; Alice Kenny is in the capable hands of Miss Madge Maher; and the comedy element is well sustained by Miss Emily Lewis as Tilly Tripp, Mr. Fred Luard as Dan Sprouts, and Mr. Owen Edwin as Fergus McKenna.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—At the head of the bill here is Seeley, West, and Rhodesia, who in juggling, music, and comedy score well. Bromley and Fontein in a sketch, The Man Behind the Music-stand, are heartily appreciated; Barrie and Wood, the comedy duo, achieve success; Alice Cheshire and company in a comedy sketch, Wanted, a Wife, evoke much laughter and applause; W. B. Raby, a smart comedian, goes well; Jack Rae, gymnastic comedian, provides another good turn; and C. E. Stelling and Kiswaski, Jessie Wilton, comedienne, and animated pictures complete.

DONCASTER.—Grand Theatre and Empire.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—With a programme of such generous proportions, and each unit being really clever, there are crowded houses here at this week's variety entertainment. Pleasant memories are awakened by the great Fasolo, the famous Indian fakir, whose sensational feats have lost none of their attractiveness. Harry Bland, comedian, is popular; the Sisters Gaye, duettists and dancers, furnish an acceptable turn; the Codys, lasso experts, impress with their adroitness; Ivy Mona, comedienne, sings with good effect; Silverstone, mimic, has a big reputation, which was enhanced by his representation of Sally in our Alley; a Yorkshire reception awaited the Lannons, vocalists and pedal dancers, in their comedy act The Policeman and the Maid, and they were roundly applauded; Leon and Tee made a great hit in their musical act, their musical farm being a novelty of striking modernity. The concluding item was happily conceived, viz., a beauty competition, which put on view the charms of Doncaster womanhood, by no means insignificant. Well-favoured, prettily-attired, and engaging girls came up by the score, the semi-final and the final being awarded respectively at the first and second houses on Friday evening.

DOUGLAS. — Grand Theatre. — Proprietors, The Grand Theatre Co.; Chairman, Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—The Cingalee was presented here on Monday. Mr. Haldane Crichton, who engineers the show, has an artistic company. The Nanoya of Miss Isa Bowman is vivacious and picturesque; Miss Florrie Greensmith makes a charming Peggy; Miss Winifred Stone an excellent Miss Pinkerton; Miss Ray Anderson an attractive Lady Patricia; Mr. Frank Barclay a bright Harry Feruker; the Chambhuddy Ram of Mr. Hylton Warde was Kiplingesque; Mr. Frank Lennard was an amusing Boobhamba; the Sir Peter Loftus of Mr. Grafton Williams was well conceived; and Mr. Herbert Franklyn's Bobby Warren was an exhilarating piece of work. Miss Winifred Stone contributed a graceful dance.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—Don was presented here on Monday by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's London company. Miss Emma Hutchison was effective in provoking laughter as the Mother; Mr. Charles Harley made a great impression as the ex-soldier and revivalist; Don, as played by Mr. Gordon Bailey, was earnest and painstaking; Mr. Arthur Willoughby as Canon Bonington subtly suggested the clergyman of Anthony Trollope. Miss Ethel Royale had too little to do as Mrs. Sinclair; Miss Violet Harley made the most of all her chances as Elizabeth, and Miss Viola Garland was pleasing as Ann. The play of the evening was preceded by Mr. Eille Norwood's little piece Chalk and Cheese.

The Palace.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—A most popular variety entertainment is presented here this week. Mr. George Bastow, an original comedian, is thoroughly appreciated by the numerous visitors; Mr. Harry Tate's No. 1 company evoked much laughter by their quaint interpretation of the sketch Fishing; Miss Lola Patey sings clever songs with emphasis; Boden and Bell are chic little dancers and vocalists; the Athos Troupe are really expert acrobats and ball manipulators; Barrington has collateral security on a piano; and the Four Royal Scots meet with enthusiastic applause.

Derby Castle.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Kelly.—The management here realise the value of the old proverb, let well alone, so they still retain that ever popular Scotch comedian, Mr. Jack Lorimer, Miss Stella Stahl, and the Humpsti Bumpsti, a most clever turn. Also Farr and Farland, a novelty which takes; Ross and Grayson, expert with humour at the piano; Miss Ruth Lytton, who sings delightfully; and Jack and Evelyn, smart duettists, are also of the company.

Connor's Grand Circus.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred J. Connor.—All goes right merrily at this well-conducted place of entertainment. Wednesday was the birthday of Little Mona Connor, who for fifteen years has been a popular idol with the Manx public and the island's visitors. She is a plucky and a graceful horsewoman, who revives the best traditions of the arena. The function, a most charming one, was under the patronage of the Mayor of Douglas, the Mayoress, members of the Town Council, and a large number of people of importance. The lady was honoured with many recognitions of her talent.

Messrs. Allandale and Adeler Sutton's Pierrots give an entertainment in the Palace Grounds every evening at 7.30. The artists number Mr. Harry Merrylees, Mr. Alf. Johnson, Miss Ethel Dunford, Mr. Joe Dale, Mr. Harold Knight, Miss Mira de Freece, Miss Vera Vere, and Mr. T. Nelldom. These are all brainy people, and they exploit an ideal al-fresco show.

Other amusements in Douglas are Buxton's enterprises, the Onchans, Mr. Charles Daro's Empire and White Minstrels on the Head. All excellent attractions and all attracting.

DUBLIN. — Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—Mr. Andrew Emm's company occupies the boards here this week with The Diver's Luck. Mr. William Macready achieves success as Martin Faber; Miss Chrissie Bicerstaff is exceedingly good as Helen Wyngate; the rôle of Barney Rawn is in the capable hands of Mr. Edmond O'Grady; and Miss Edna Godfrey Turner as Peggy Mahoney fills the part well; Tom Hall has an able exponent in Mr. Herbert Vere, and Miss Marie Stewart is excellent as Daffodil Bolter; Mr. Herbert J. Walton makes a capital Maurice Wyngate, and Miss Phyllis Spalding as Winnie Hall gives a good portrayal.

Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—The ever-popular Bransby Williams is the attraction here, drawing crowded houses nightly. An addition to the programme is the clever turn of Mr. Hymack, chameleon comedian, who is loudly applauded. The Will Douglass troupe of Five Jolly Bakers gave a smart and entertaining acrobatic performance; and Moon and Morris, comedians and dancers, are well appreciated. Jack Horton and Mlle. La Triska, the clown and human doll, score a success; Jemmy Danver and Eva Rosslyn, in their vocal burlesque, A Pantomime Boy, meet with a good reception; the Eight Empire Girls are very pleasing in song and dance; and the Bioscope shows an amusing picture entitled Poorluck's Misfortunes.

Empire. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Marsh.—The principal item here this week is a series of artistic living statues styled "Makers of History," which brings forth loud applause; in a laughter-provoking sketch Mr. and Mrs. Harold Findon score a decided success, and Vi Laurie is an attractive comedienne and dancer; Barney Murphy, a comedian of more than ordinary merit, is recalled again and again, and Lena Verdi, vocalist and mimic, is popular in all parts of the house; Arthur Slater is a capital siffleur, and the Three Sisters Kilner, acrobatic dancers, meet with warm appreciation; a delightful musical act is presented by Vardon, Perry, and Wilbur, and the Empire pictures complete.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Peter Birmingham, Scotch humorist, is very successful here; Tray and Rich present an excellent turn of song, dance, and patter; the Two Lillys are clever acrobatic performers; Ross and Lewis, "Yankee Doodle Dancers," are well received; and others on the bill are Witt and Wynn, the comedy couple; Harry Friskey, American comedy juggler; little Pam Child, comedian and eccentric dancer; Andre Romanoff, Russian Violin virtuoso; Fred Hallam, comedian, and the Bioscope.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietors, Brothers Sprengel.—The company engaged here this week includes the Sisters Hibbert, harmonising vocalists; Bell and Bell, comedy duo; Miss Norah Howard, comedienne; Miss Ida Parr, serio and dancer; and Miss Amy Wilton, ballad vocalist.

The Pavilion, Kingstown.—Manager, Mr. Bert Lester.—The Will o' the Wisps this week are drawing capital houses here. Mr. Arthur Gourlay is well appreciated for his excellent vocalism, and Miss Ethel Walker is entertaining at the piano; Mr. Conway George's quaint humour is greatly enjoyed, and other artists deserving of mention are Mr. R. Bagnall, Miss Cynthia Cooper, Mr. Tom Sutton, Miss Sara Venbell, and Mr. Claude Russell.

Arcadia, Bray.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—Miss Lilian Wesson delights all here with her singing, and as a comedian Mr. Frank Dunlop would be hard to excel; Miss Irene Vere is heartily recalled for her singing and dancing; Mr. Archie Watts' quaint songs are much enjoyed; and others who contribute successfully are Mr. Francis Rayne, tenor; Mr. Alfred Leslie, comedian; and Mr. Leslie Leonard, solo pianist and accompanist.

DUNDEE.—King's Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Topping the bill here is Amy Augarde, who has scored a success in the entertaining musical farce, The Sicilians, in which she is ably assisted by Harry Turner, James Roy, and Wilfred Howard. The Three Comedy Chanters, in a jolly jumble of harmony and humour, are vociferously applauded; Charles Santon, the male soprano, meets with a cordial reception; Wynnie Darrell dances with grace and charm; the Three Warringtons perform daring equilibristic feats in finished style; Ciss and Will are dainty juveniles; Ernesto's juggling is marked with considerable neatness and precision; Cash and Clair win favour with their brilliant dancing; and a fine picture of the Motor Cycle Races at Douglas on the Kingscope completes a capital bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. K. Stewart.—The Ticket-of-Leave Man on Monday evening proved a decided hit as interpreted by Miss Dora Hammersley's company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Kean. A thorough and convincing study of Robert Brierly was given by Mr. Charles Kean; Miss Dora Hammersley scored a success as May Edwards; Mr. Edwin Morton fully realised the part of James Dalton; and Mr. James Sommerville was very good indeed as Melter Moss. Hawkshaw was played to perfection by Mr. Leslie Vyner; Mr. Ernest C. Edwards submitted a polished and consistent delineation of Mr. Gibson; Mrs. Willoughby was excellently portrayed by Miss Bella Power; and Miss Clarise Jenner was an amusing Sam Willoughby. Miss Maud Henderson and Mr. Will Henderson capably sustained their parts.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company is appearing here in The Mummy and the Humming Bird. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart undertakes the part of Lord Lumley, and contributes a characteristic performance; Mr. Lewin Mannering is a clever D'Orelli, Mr. Percy Marmont is entertaining as Lieutenant Lord Ronalds, Mr. Charles Groves, jun., realises the possibilities of the rôle of Guiseppe, and makes it interesting, and Mr. Eric Morden is an excellent Judson. Miss A. Bruce-Joy does able and earnest work as Lady Lumley, Miss Constance Barton is bright and pleasing as Ruth, and Miss Eva Turnour does good duty as Annette.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Miss Madge Crichton and company are appearing here in Caste and The Artfulness of Ada. In the first of these Mr. Frank Tennant introduced spirit and manliness as George D'Alroy; Mr. Douglas Vigors was natural and polished as Captain Hawtree; Mr. George Delaforce contributed a clever performance as Eccles, and Mr. Geoffrey Berwick was an amusing Sam Gerridge. Miss Madge Crichton was a girlish and enthusiastic Polly; Miss Ida Phillips played with womanly sympathy and feeling as Esther, and Miss Lucy Beaumont enacted the Marquise de St. Maur in artistic fashion. Later in the week Messrs. Jay and Mann's company appeared in The Truants.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. T. Edward Ward is this week presenting his répertoire company. On Monday night Moths was produced. Mr. Chas. Yorke as Prince Zouroff gave a capital delineation of the character; Mr. Clifford Rean as Raphael de Corrèze was all that could be desired; as Lord Jura Mr. Bernard Elliott acted with distinction; Mr. H. Macaulay as the Duke of Mull proved himself a capable exponent of the part; Miss Ward as Vere Herbert was successful, being ably assisted by Miss Esmai Ellys as Lady Dolly and Miss Clarrie Yandell as Fuchsia Leach. Trilby and Her Wedding Day are also in the repertory.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—For the concluding week of their season, the Scottish Repetory Theatre company, under the direction of Mr. Alfred Wareing, appeared in Dr. Neil Munro's interesting and agreeable comedy Macpherson, of which a most enjoyable performance was given. The piece has the merit of improving as it proceeds, and the players too seemed to gather force as the play developed, so that the last act rippled along in continuous laughter from start to finish. Mr. Campbell Gullan and Miss Elspeth Dudgeon were delightful in their rôles of Mr. and Mrs. Latimer, and Mr. Walter Roy was in every way excellent as Archie Macpherson. The characterisation of their parts by these leading performers cannot be too highly commended, the pithy and pawky humour of the author being most happily interpreted by all three. Miss Muriel Pope made a very winsome Clotilda Fortune, and her lover Charles Stuart was well represented by Mr. Leslie. A quartet of Glasgow culture-club members were successfully and not unfairly caricatured by Miss Lola Duncan, Miss Winifred Gunn, Mr. Norman McKeown, and Mr. Cyril Griffiths; and the minor part of George Archibald became noteworthy from the strenuous but perfectly natural way in which it was rendered by Mr. R. Ridley.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—After a fortnight's recess, the King's reopened on Monday evening with an exceptionally strong variety programme. Francini-Ollioms and his page appear in an attractive musical and acrobatic turn, with juggling and other clever interpolations, the xylophone and concertina playing—the latter to an accompaniment of somersaulting by the performer—being among the more notable features of a smart entertainment. The celebrated première danseuse, Ray Espinosa, from the London Lyceum, gives an exhilarating display of her accomplishments in a reminiscence of Taglioni, a skirt dance, and American buck dancing; Pick, Tholl, and Taylor show to great advantage in their amusing sketch The Dancing Master; and the Corcoran Brothers are very happy in an enjoyable musical speciality and quick-change act; while Damerell and Rutland put a great deal of fun into their humorous conversation. Cling and Clancy, comedians and dancers, Miss Frankie Manners, the Brothers Hannaway (who patter successfully), and Bioscope pictures, all contribute to the gaiety of an enjoyable bill.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Dan Crawley is the head-liner of this week's bill, and the popular comedian's versatility and quaint methods are so vastly entertaining that the audiences are unwilling to let him go; Nina Wood sings several pretty songs at the piano in a particularly pleasing way; and Nellie Wigley, as Prince Charming, is most acceptable in selections from her répertoire of ballads and lyrics; the well-known dancer, My Fancy, presents her latest scena, Winter, Spring, and Summer, in the course of which she introduces, among other terpsichorean specialities, a dance upon ice skates. Dancing is also included in an act entitled Not A Crook, contributed by Phil Rees' Stable Lads, who likewise sing, box, and whistle; and Harry Marte, a promising comedian, adds eccentric step dancing to his singing turn; Shirley and Ransome are outstanding in an interesting episode, styled Jim's Pal, which is played by both artists most effectively; The Gothams, old favourites here as elsewhere, provide great enjoyment with their many vocal numbers, all most melodiously rendered; the Seven Pezeroffs cause the usual bewildering sense of wonderment by the skill with which they carry through the comic juggling pantomime In a Parisian Café, the finale giving rise to considerable hilarity; and Bioscope pictures complete a strong holiday programme.

Operetta House.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—A film showing the Johnson-Burns fight is the great draw here, and has created considerable interest and curiosity this week. Among other attractive pictures there are also shown several dramatic Wild West episodes and cinematograph comedies, including a due proportion of mirth-provokers, of which Tubby's Triumph and Betty in Hot Water are remarkably successful. Crowded houses have enjoyed the generous fare provided for holiday folk by the enterprise of the management.

Pringle's Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. George Edmunds.—A return visit of Bandonie, "the One-Man Band," has been well timed for the local trades holiday week. This expert performer appears able to play on any number of musical instruments at the same time, and he imitates on the concertina alone bugle calls, posthorns, and so forth with extraordinary skill. The Bioscope pictures are up to the usual standard of excellence, comprising not only stories of pathetic interest, but also notable productions of such sterling works as Fra Diavolo and The Common Enemy.

Marine Gardens.—Manager, Mr. G. B. Smith.—The famous Italian Band of the Royal Piedmont Hussars have been engaged here this week, this being their first appearance in Britain; and the performances in the Band Court, under the direction of Signor J. Zanfi, have merited and received most earnest attention from crowds of visitors. In the Concert Hall a pleasant variety programme is provided by Graham Moffat's Scotch Players, Mozzetto's juggling séances, and Mr. Philip Malcolm, the eminent baritone vocalist. The skating rink and the lately opened ballroom continue to be well patronised; and the many outdoor attractions have been added to by Dickinson's Merry Mascots, who give open-air entertainments at intervals during the day.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—On Monday night Mr. Walter Maxwell presented Mr. R. C. Carton's amusing farce, Mr. Preedy and the Countess. The rôle of Hamilton Preedy is in the hands of Mr. A. W. Bascombe, and he is responsible for a fine interpretation of the part; Miss Nolla Powys is natural as Joanna Countess of Rushmore; and John Bounsall is capitally enacted by Mr. John Nesbitt. The part of the Earl of Rushmore is in the safe hands of Mr. Cecil Humphreys; and an amusing portraiture of the Hon. Robert Jennerway is given by Mr. Hamilton Deane. Mr. J. D. Goddes scores a success as the aged Lord Kinslow, and Mr. Edward Beresford is very effective as Mr. Sidgrave. The remaining characters are excellently enacted by Mr. J. McClintock Clive as Reginald Saunders, Miss Violet Greville as Mrs. Sidgrave, Miss Ruth Bidwell as Emma Sidgrave, and Miss Ninon Dudley as Harriet Budgen.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—Heading a strong bill here this week is a dramatic playlet, Before the Dawn, excellently played by Messrs. George Sheldon and F. Rawson Buckley's company, which includes Mr. Buckley (Major Stetson), Master R. Connor (Dick), and Messrs. F. Levison (the Colonel), and J. Hampden (the Ramah). Norman Telma is a contortionist of remarkable ability; Carmen and Redwin pay a welcome return turn visit with their refined drawing-room act; The Armions are seen to advantage in a musical act; The Melbournes present a lively comedy turn; Henry A. Moore presents some faithful impersonations; Chas. Grantley sings and talks with much success, and the Kingscope completes.

Metropole Theatre. — Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—The Ticket-of-Leave Man is being staged here this week. Mr. John B. Shinton does well as Brierly; Mr. Fred Elvin is an excellent Dalton; Hawkshaw is quite well done by Mr. Stanley Bedwell; Mr. Bert

Invaluable for the Complexion.—LAIT-LAROLA is delightfully cooling and refreshing during the summer after motoring, golfing, cycling, tennis, &c. The daily use of "Lait-Larola" effectually prevents all Roughness, Redness, Heat, and Irritation, and gives a resisting power to the skin surface in changeable weather. Gentlemen will find it wonderfully soothing if applied after shaving. Bottles, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, of all chemists and stores.—M. Beetham and Son, Cheltenham.—[Advt.]

Atherton is seen to advantage as Melter Moss; Miss Ada M. Ryder gracefully depicts May Edwards; Emily St. Evremond is in the capable hands of Miss Lilian Earle, and Mrs. Willoughby is well done by Miss Annie Brunnette.

GLASGOW. — METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. R. Marriss-Davis presents Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company in the sensational drama The King of Crime. Mr. F. B. Woulfe gives due effect to the part of Ronjarre; Miss Edith Loraine is a pathetic Henriette; Louis Mascarot has a good interpretation at the hands of Mr. R. Marriss-Davis; and Miss Josephine Richards acts excellently as Mathilde. Simon Gandelu is ably filled by Mr. Leonard Thackeray, and Mr. Alfred G. Raymond gives a capital performance of Mick Maloney, Miss Florrie Lyndon being a vivacious Clarisse. On Thursday The Two Orphans of Paris was presented.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—Mike S. Whalien is here again with amusing stories; Lottie Lennox sings "A little ray of sunshine" and "Put on your old plaid shawl"; the five Mowatts display wonderful club-juggling; the Bros. Dean are dancers of ability; the Warsaw Bros., droll instrumentalists, are deputising for J. W. Hall; and the Three Laurels (acrobats), Harry Bancroft (vocalist), Marie Adair (entertainer), and Emmie Ames (comedienne) also contribute.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—Wilkie Bard is here once again, and is crowding the house twice nightly, his new songs and his "Door-keeper" scena being one and all intensely funny. The Kennedy Girls give a most enjoyable song and dance turn; Mlle. de Rose, the lady baritone, sings "The Wolf" in good style; J. H. Hawtrey takes well in "Good-bye, Australia"; Flora Cromer's chorus songs are joined in heartily by the audience; the Four Garricks give a charming pot-pourri of songs and dances; Francis and his assistant Alfred make a hit in their juggling display, with comedy interspersed; Alec Lawson takes well as the dancing acrobat; and Connie Mascot is a charming comedienne, and is well received.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Minola Hurst, a clever and refined comedienne, ably assisted by two midgets, who cause much humour, is a great attraction here. Everhart, the hoop expert, is as entertaining as of old; Jay Laurier, comedian, is a favourite; the Rosses are excellent dancers; Randell and Rene deputise for Valery with much success; Gordon Stretton is a clever coon singer; and Dort and Leonard, acrobats, and Belle Sylvia, contralto, complete.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—George Formby is again keeping the audiences here rocking with laughter at his eccentric comedy, and the holiday crowds have been lavish in their appreciation of him. Horace and company are well received in Sir A. W. Pinero's comedietta Hester's Mystery; Orpheus contributes a musical turn that is clever, well staged, and most enjoyable; Cassie Walmer's coon songs as sung by various types of singer soon put her on good terms with her audience; Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardner are responsible for some good comedy in their sketch Dooley and the Diamond; Charles Torbay's silhouettes are extremely clever, and his reception is hearty; Phillips and Merritt are a smart couple, and in song, comedy, and dance items were equally successful; and Hasse and Mariette, whirlwind dancers, and Stuart Macmillan, juvenile Scotch comedian, complete an enjoyable performance.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—A variety of films, both humorous and serious, have been arranged to meet the tastes of the holiday audiences, and the patrons of the Gaiety have shown their appreciation of the fact, both by their attendance and the heartiness of their applause.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Manager, Mr. William Sinclair.—Following his usual practice, Mr. Pickard opened his doors at 6 a.m. during the Fair holidays, and provided a continuous variety show from 12 noon. Peter Gill, the battle-axe swinger, is attempting to create a new record; clever turns are given by Murray and Murray, Nelly Ellaine, Tony Clarke, Annie Casey, and Charles Chard, and the attendance throughout the week has been most gratifying.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Albert Hengler; Manager, Mr. Harry Milne.—Pictures grave and gay again form the principal part of the programme here, and a wonderful variety of these is given. In addition, smart turns are contributed by Charles Clifford, the harpist; Dave Abbott, comedian and eccentric dancer; and the Victors, who give an enjoyable vocal and comedy act.

STAR.—General-Manager, Mr. Guss Lazenberg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Chandos.—The holiday spirit has been much in evidence here during the week, and the number of people who, after a day at coast or country, finish the evening in a hall is steadily on the increase.

SCOTTISH ZOO AND CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The combined attractions of the fine collection of animals here and the clever performance of the ponies, dogs, monkeys, &c., which are introduced by the Bros. Volpi, have proved a great source of enjoyment to the crowds of amusement-seekers during Glasgow Fair, and as the wild animals are still being added to by fresh consignments there is always the charm of novelty to be found.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Hainsworth.—Another attractive programme is presented here this week. The Sisters Delmore, vocalists and dancers, are highly successful; the Walrich Trio give an enjoyable comedy and harmony turn; the Walons are successful in comedy duo; Mabel Robarts is an excellent soprano vocalist; Phil Lester provides a capital musical turn; and Arthur Richards is seen to advantage in burlesque tragedy. The Monarchscope pictures are also worthy of praise.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN.—Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. George A. Deighton.—Mr. Charles Constant's company in Florodora is proving a delightful change here. The chief laughter-maker is Mr. Johnnie Schofield, who as Tweedlepunch keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Cyrus Gilfain is capably undertaken by Mr. Stanley White; Mr. Johnnie Junior sings and acts breezily as Captain Donegal; Mr. Coutier R. Dutton makes a hit as Frank Abercoed; Miss Daisy Lake is a fascinating Dolores; Miss Kate Leicester is a charming Lady Holyrood; Miss Florence Hersee is a delightful Angela Gilfain. The end of the week is filled in with electric pictures, and an exceptional turn is provided in "Vonnetta," whose marvellous performances are well known.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—The Society Idols, including Miss Nellie Bowman and Mr. Harry Benet and company, are here giving refined entertainments.

CANDIE GARDENS.—Mr. Wilson James and the Gaieties are still here.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Miss Olga Audre's company are here with The Great Awakening. Miss Audre gives an excellent portrayal of Lola Selby; Mr. Herbert Barrs is a good James Selby; Mr. C. H. Mortimer acts with distinction as Captain Lambert; and capable support is given by Mr. A. Winpenny (Jack Merton), Mr. T. Arkinstall (Guy Logan), Mr. A. Francis (Billy Brass), Miss E. Conway (Molly Merton), and Miss D. Oswald (Selina Worts).

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Susan's Revenge is one of the funniest pictures exhibited here for a long time. Les Reanos are equilibrists of a high standard; Rogerson Bros., the happy Scotchmen, give a much-appreciated turn; and the Kings have a good singing and dancing act.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Charles Baron's Burlesque Menagerie displays the perfection of animal training, the cats being especially good; the Marvellous Days give an interesting exhibition of second sight; the Bros. Webb, musical Grimaldis, are another excellent turn; the Eight Lancashire Lads keep up their standard of merit; Harold Heath is a good coon singer and dancer; and Ada Fawn, comedienne, Myrtle Grove, child actress and vocalist, Sissie Brand, comedienne, and excellent pictures, complete.

HANLEY. — GRAND. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A good all-round programme here includes Dolly Clare, who shows much promise; Archie Pitt, eccentric comedian; the Narow Brothers, comedy cyclists; Bradshaw Brothers, funny and clever acrobatic eccentrics; Mitchell and Cain, in a novel act; Stanley and Greenop, banjo players of decided skill; Frank Elliston and company in My Lady Betty; and, as a star attraction, the Vampire Dance, presented by T. Terriss and M. Deverez.

KING'S.—Lessee, Mr. J. P. Moore; Manager, Capt. F. Shaw; Acting-Manager, Mr. Colin Hazlewood.—This popular theatre continues to do good business. Among the chief pictures are Halley's Comet and A Knot in the Handkerchief. The vaudeville items are by George St. Helen, with a clever song-scena.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—For the first three nights of the week Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Hanworth Browning's company appeared in Dolly Reforming Herself. Miss Dorothy Giles was excellent as Dolly; and Mr. Ethelbert Edwards was very good as her husband, Harry Telfer. Mr. Frank Storrey as Matthew Barron was well placed; and Captain Lucas Wentworth had an admirable exponent in Mr. Hanworth Browning. Mr. Arthur Vezin made a typical parson as Mr. Pilcher; and Miss Florence Steventon was very good as Mrs. Sturgess. Smaller parts were in good hands. Dolly Reforming Herself was preceded by Jerry and a Sunbeam, finely played by Mr. Edwards and Miss Steventon. For the rest of the week Miss Lena Ashwell's company staged Diana of Dobson's.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—The management continue to provide excellent variety turns to supplement the capital display of pictures by the Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. This week Zero and Zema are heading the bill, and give a marvellous display of hand-balancing feats, for which they are repeatedly applauded; Henry Curwen is popular in Yorkshire comedy; and Annie Lang, a dainty and fascinating comedienne, has a splendid style and takes well.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Scutt.—For the present week Messrs. Chappell and Co., Ltd., have provided the attraction here with the Grotesques. Some Impressions of a Ballad Concert are hugely entertaining, and A Village Concert, at which Mr. Cecil Cook as the Vicar, presides, is a merry burlesque; and "Short Stories," contributed as an interlude by Mr. Leslie Maurice, are singularly witty and original.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Maxwell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hawker.—Mr. Courtice Pounds and company are holding the boards here with short sketches and scenes from Shakespeare. Mr. Courtice Pounds in the principal parts sings with great expressiveness, and is ably supported by Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, an excellent actor, Harry T. Davies, and the Misses Gladys Ivory, Mary Sheridan, and Mary Forbes. The selected pieces are The Voice of the Charmer, Cox and Box, two scenes from Twelfth Night, and Charles, His Friend.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—Mr. Wallis Arthur is singularly fortunate this season in securing good audiences for his accomplished vocalists. As a composer as well as a humorous singer Mr. George Blackmore quite excels. Mr. Oldbury Brough's popularity gains him much applause; Miss Nellie Perryer sings with sweetness and expression; Miss Gladys Hill submits delightful renderings of her songs; Mr. Harry Kemp has a baritone voice of excellent quality; and Mr. Harold Vincent achieves a distinct success.

HEATON-ON-TYNE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—The Harringtons, in comedy juggling combination, receive a good reception; Cissy Madcap proves herself a speciality dancer of ability. The pictures this week include Flower of the Ranch, Muriel's Stratagem, Lobster-Catching, and The Spirit of the Sword.

BRINKBURN PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. McHary; Manager, Mr. G. T. Edminson.—Little Minnie Langtre, a smart juvenile comedienne, is here. The principal films this week are In the Season of Buds, An Affair of the Heart, and The Cowboy's Devotion.

SUN PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, The North-Eastern Picture Co.—Victoria May, comedienne and dancer, is a popular turn here. Pictures worthy of note are Jane Eyre and A Daring Performance.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson. — An excellent company is occupying these boards, playing C. Watson Mill's drama, The Love of the Princess. The principal parts are capably played by Mr. Frank Harvey, who is well placed in the rôle of Prince Conrad; Miss May Beatrice, a charming Princess Idalia; Mr. John Burton, whose ripe experience is effectively displayed as the crafty old King of Ilarnia; and Mr. John Worth, a manly Lieut. Zaroff. The mounting and dressing of the play are highly commendable.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—The variety turns are Billy Howard and Miss Kathryn Harris, comedy entertainers; Ryder Slone, comedian; Arthur Harris, vocal comedian; the Vaudeville Trio of expert dancers; Thiessen's clever troupe of trained dogs; the Three Delaries, in a good trapeze act; the Seddons, comedy jugglers; and interesting pictures on the bioscope.

HULL.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A Woman's Past is a play that has all those qualities that attract, and is popular with local playgoers. Mr. Percy Dawson is an excellent David Heath; Mr. Chas. Lock fills the rôle of Fred Delaunay with success; while Mr. Clifford Hamilton is a good Uriah Craven. Miss Dora Pass is a distinct success as Bessie; Miss Phyllis Elton plays the heavy rôle with good effect. The play is well mounted.

THE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lillian Rosebery submit a new and original comedy playlet, entitled An Amateur Anarchist, with much success; the Leslie Brothers create merriment with Music Mad; distinctly novel is the ventriloquial part of the entertainment given by Charlier, the French comedian; effective comedy is supplied by Griff with his jest and juggling; and Wilson and Waring, in a mélange of song, dance, and jest. Other artists include Leo Stormont, the well-known baritone; the Jackley Trio, acrobatic comedians; the Six Lancashire Lasses, vocalists and dancers; and Aida Martine, comedienne. The Bioscope completes.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Bentley.—The all-round excellent programme here includes Dale and O'Malley, a pair of really funny comedians; Fun on the Links, an act full of comedy, is exploited by the Four Burnells; Harry Brown, the coloured comedian, is a favourite; Harry Cotton, eccentric comedian, and Kendrick and Lauri, comedians and dancers, keep the audience entertained; whilst Maggie Fraser (comedienne), Dalvaine's life-like Marionettes, and Eugene (the girl baritone) all submit enjoyable contributions.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hy. Slingsby.—A good bill of fare is here, the top-liners being the Four Mayos, clever skaters; Cora Duncan and Albert Brasque, in My Lancashire Wife, receive many plaudits; the Northcotes, operatic duettists, are a popular item; whilst the following turns receive due approbation: Doyle and Gibson (comedians), Preston Holme (in a musical speciality act), Jackson and Marie (patter comedians), and Kitty Keyworth (comedienne).

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—This week variety is meeting with success here. J. H. Greener, the singing Pit Lad; Irene and Morton, high class comedy artists; Mme. Adah Payne, the original Australian Nightingale; J. P. Carrol, the military tambourinist; Hamilton and Gillespie, in a refined comedy act; Les Wambas, with their instrumental and trapeze act; and Miraculous Misticus form the company.

THE PALACE.—Lessees, Jarrow Palace Co.; Manager, Mr. John V. Kane.—This palace of amusement is showing some fine pictures. Variety is introduced by Mr. Jimmy Lowry, the singing furnaceman, and Frank Pickard and Miss Marie West in a novel athletic and vocal pot-pourri act.

THE GEM PICTURE HALL.—Lessees and Managers, J. Tweedie and Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Rabey.—In addition to excellent pictures Mr. Tom Berrick, the black tit-bit, and Mr. Ben F. Bailey, baritone, are entertaining.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lesley Edwards.—Consul, "the almost man," is the great attraction here this week. Mlle. Haydon's Miniature Theatre is a fine entertainment; the Delafiores do a good musical turn; the Brothers Erard give a clever acrobatic act; the Saxony Sisters are graceful dancers; Miss Lena Leslie is a taking comedienne; Bernard and Weston are smart patterers; and Mr. Harry Drew has a good voice.

ROYAL HALL.—West's pictures are drawing good houses here. The orchestra is under the direction of Leslie Curzon, Mus.Bac.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietor, Mr. Louis Marks.—The Seven Victors are appearing here this week, and prove highly successful.

TRIANGLE PARK.—The Dandies remain here for this week.

ALHAMBRA.—Proprietors, Messrs. Langlers and Pontain.—Electric pictures continue to be the chief draw here, whilst the principal variety turn is Eva Ward, who is a good burlesque actress.

KEIGHLEY.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Barrasford.—Dr. Walford Bodie, the electric wizard, is drawing crowded audiences; Leoni Clarke's cats, monkeys, &c., win rounds of applause, the turn being a very popular one; Lillie Le Main introduces her living marionettes with much success; Tom Gold, comedian, is well received; Dolly Robson sings in good style; and Jack Diamond, Bella Skene, and La Belle Electra complete the bill.

LEEDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nathaniel Hepworth.—In The Heathen and the Christian, presented here, Mr. Frank Adair is very successful as Li, and Miss Louie Adair ably fills the rôle of Mira; Mr. Dudley Wynton is satisfactory as a missionary, and the humorous parts are well taken by Mr. Charles Luck and Miss Connie Meadows.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley. Fred Karno's company in The Boy 'Ero makes a hit; Harry Ford is on a welcome return visit, and the Bensons are warmly greeted; Lilian Dundas and company appear in a sketch, Convict Nance, and Frank and Free, Billy French, Ryan and Hall, and Phil Parsons are all capable turns.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Captain Spaulding gives a unique demonstration of swallowing boiling molten lead and eating hot liquid sealing wax; Elise Loubert's splendid voice is much admired; one of the hits of the bill is the clever dancing of the Four Ascots, and Coeman's Juveniles are likewise successful; Miss Teddy Edmonds and company appear in a popular sketch, The Lady Jockey; Juno Salmo is a clever contortionist; and Philip Levard, Sisters Bartholomew, and the Six Ceylons also entertain.

THE VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—A sensational dramatic sketch, Yellow Fang, tops the bill. Also appearing and taking well are Hayton's Manchester, Wallace Whitney, Queenie Mayer, Billy Farrell, and Beattie Foster.

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Another Man's Wife, the third of a series of dramas, is this week presented by Mr. Fred Granville's company.

THE ARCADIAN PAVILION, under the directorship of Mr. Arthur G. Hart, is drawing good audiences. The capable company of artists assisting him includes Misses Nellie Mascotte and Edith Devonshire, and Messrs. Alf. Shaw (humorist), Reg. Hamilton (tenor), Cliffe Owen (comedian), and Mr. Arthur G. Hart himself. Leslie Whittam acts as accompanist.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—The leading attraction in an excellent programme this week is a welcome return visit of Arthur Roberts and company in the farcical sketch The Importance of being Another Man's Wife. Mr. Roberts keeps the audience in a continual roar of merriment, and receives capital support from his company, Miss Ruby Celeste being especially good as Mrs. Thunder. Ella Retford, a smart and attractive comedienne, is making a hit; Fred Earle is as mirth-provoking as ever with his songs and antics; Duncan's Royal Scotch Collies give a remarkably fine performance; the Musical McGregors play well on cornets and concertinas; the Three Merrills, trick and comedy cyclists, make a decided success; Lilly Lassah is a smart comedienne and dancer; Harry Herbert, eccentric comedian, creates plenty of laughter; the Four Royals are amusing in their absurdity Bella; and the Bioscope is also retained.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—Topping this week's bill is Joe Peterman and Geo. Rickett's company in The Pawnbroker. G. W. Blythe's musical scena The Toilers, introducing Lancashire pit brow lassies, is making a big success; Harry Rousby and Nell Rene are good in their comedy study in Lancashire, entitled Fine Feathers; Susie and Protti display smartness in their novel dancing creation; Lestree does some clever feats as a juggler, his concluding performance with two fireballs being effective. Henriette and Selina deserve praise for their instrumental selections; Walter Price, a successful débutant at the trial matinée here, is displaying his skill as a fancy skater, and in connection with his engagement a competition is also being held. A Race for a Monkey and other pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—A first-class picture programme is submitted here, the most attractive films being Lieut. Rose, R.N., and the Robbers of Fingal Cave, A Mountaineer's Honour, Foolshead at the Ball, Visits in Japan, Why they Married, The Lamplighter, A Cowboy's Romance, Grandsire, The Scientist's Nightmare, and a Child's Forgiveness. An additional attraction is a return visit of Annie Adams, a favourite vocalist.

LIVERPOOL.—STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction here this week is The Black Mask, presented by Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Usher's company. In the part of Henri Le Noir, Mr. Watson displays sound dramatic judgment, earning much commendation; Miss Florence E. Florence handles the rôle of Nellie Cunninghame in a manner which wins for her a deal of favour; Phillip Cunninghame is capitally played by Mr. J. Chippendale; an excellent Walter Blackmore comes from Mr. J. Woodall Bird; Miss Mabel Harland plays Stella in strong fashion; and others who deserve praise are Messrs. Fred Imbert (Samuel Winkle), James Abbott (Thomas Bryant), Miss Dot Forde (Philip Le Noir), Miss Hettie Senior (Emma Burt), and Miss Flo Norman (Mother One-Eye).

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—A big line here is R. G. Knowles, whose stories are enjoyed as much as ever; Rinaldo exhibits remarkable powers as a violinist; Dan Fraser, the Scotch comedian, keeps his audience in excellent humour; Chris. Richards has a deal of amusing patter, which is richly enjoyed; Gwennie Llewellyn, possessed of a wonderful voice, delights everybody with her songs; as Continental jugglers Alf and Mme. Agoust would be hard to beat, many of their tricks being novel and new; the Westwoods go through a daring and original cycling performance; and John Scott's company, including Iris Hoey, please greatly with the farcical episode, Dolly's Deception.

LYRIC.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Charles Harrington's company are here this week with Uncle Tom's Cabin, played twice nightly. Mr. J. H. Boehm as Uncle Tom is effective; Mr. Eric Williams ably presents the character of George Harris; Miss Annie Watson proves an exceedingly amusing Topsy; as Aunt Ophelia Miss Ethel Vernon plays with much tact; Mr. Claude Graveley makes a capital St. Clair; Miss Gem Lloyd affords every satisfaction as Eva; a powerful Dan Haley comes from Mr. E. Leonard; and Mr. A. Hayes worthily fills the rôle of Phineas Fletcher. A plantation festival is introduced into one of the scenes.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—That jolly little Dutch girl, May Moore Duprez, is here this week, renewing acquaintances in "Bits of Vaudeville"; Lottie Bellman, assisted by Bay Russell, affords every satisfaction the turn being greatly admired; a smart singing and dancing speciality is provided by Ted Curtis and Pics; Sterling and Love present an able musical act; the Goodlow Trio of novelty acrobats earn great applause; Max Laube whistles in fine style; Cissie Lupino, transformation dancer, is an admirable turn; Hanvarr and Lee go through an able comedy club juggling act; and George D'Albert brings his latest successes.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock company here this week is presenting For Love of a Woman, from the pen of Nita Rae. Mr. Harry Tresham plays Ned Merrick in effective style; a powerful Guy Manor comes from Mr. Sydney Grant; Miss Lina Nazeby well suits the rôle of Jane Manor; Miss Gertrude Entwistle plays Nell Paget with much discretion; and others who lend good support are Messrs. Cecil Ravenswood (Allen Paget), R. Seath Innes (Major Hulmes), Leo. Montgomery (Everemond), Tom H. Solly (Sam Halland), E. D. Allen (Walter Tom Jones), and Miss Florence Cameron (Marjory Hulmes). Brown's bioscope shows Cheese and Kisses.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. M. Slater.—The top line here this week is Joseph Hart's Futurity Winner, which is enjoyed as greatly as ever; Sandford and Lyons delight everybody with their songs and simultaneous dancing; the Haytors (Frank, Walter, and Winnie) cause endless laughter by reason of the sketch The Electrician; one of the best turns of the evening is that provided by the Quaint Q's, four harmonious comedians, who sing and dance in fine style; Millie Payne, with her everyday characters, pleases immensely; and J. H. Milburn, topical and descriptive vocalist; Chas. Vincent, parody comedian; the Brothers Durant, with their airship; and Gladys Soman, contralto, also appear.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Here this week good audiences are enjoying Mr. Herbert Darnley's merry sketch, John Jay, jun., which seems to have lost none of its drawing powers; the popular Barney Armstrong and Kelly are causing endless laughter; Robins and Collier have an exceedingly funny trifle, entitled Miss Bacon's Easter Egg; Grace Lawn sings and dances in pleasing manner; the Three Romas have a clever hand-balancing turn; Little Sadie Lundy sings agreeably; Penstone and Sango present a neat vaudeville entertainment; Rex and Ford have some amusing patter; and Frank Hartley shows remarkable skill as a youthful juggler.

LLANDUDNO.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—This theatre opened on Monday, the 18th, for the season, and for the first three nights Miss Lena Ashwell's No. 1 company appeared in Diana of Dobson's. Miss Eva Leonard Boyne makes a typical Diana; Miss Lake is good as Miss Pringle; Miss Mary Crewe is well placed as Mrs. Whyte Frazer; Mr. Thos. Pauncefort as Sir Jabez Grinlay and Mr. Brisco Owen as Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton are excellent. Mr. Leigh Lovel and Miss Octavia Kenmore appeared on Thursday in A Pair of Spectacles.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—VINT'S ELECTRIC HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The popularity of "Vint's" is still growing, and good houses are attracted at each of the two nightly performances. An excellent set of pictures this week includes Hunting in France, Mr. Tubby's Triumph, Indian Blood, The Foundling, The Modern Messenger, and other interesting films. Clare and Pastor, comedy and speciality artists, give a smart variety turn; and Ella Blair's Bowery Boys and Girls are responsible for clever dancing.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Evanson.—Loyal Leeder, comedian and mimic, supplies a good vaudeville turn, and the pictures maintain their high standard.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—For the first part of the week we have Mr. Chas. Graham's company in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. Mr. Arthur Poole makes a realistic Captain Harry Peyton; and Miss Olive Noble scores a genuine success as Elizabeth. They are splendidly supported. For the remainder of the week Mr Charles Gibbon and company appeared in The Little Stranger.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—The variety bill includes Milton and Horton, bar performers; the Rangers, comedy cyclists; and the St. John's, in a capital musical act. The pictures include the recent motor-cycle race in the Isle of Man.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Morton Powell's company are here this week in the appealing human drama, How Girls are Brought to Ruin. Miss Geraldine Verner as Jessie Burton, the workgirl, and Mr. Harry Scott as Harry Halling efficiently sustain the heroic interest; and Mrs. Morton Powell has a strong part as Winnie Waters, in which she shows to great advantage. Mr. Richard Vane's depiction of the villainous Philip Edge is admirably done; a good piece of work is that of Miss Kathryne Eckhart as the stepmother, Mrs. Burton; and Mr. Sydney Bryant shines in the light rôle of Jack Jossie, a London lad.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Morton Powell's company are appearing here in Driving a Girl to Destruction, a play full of exciting incident and clever characterisation. Miss Edith Wallis is especially good as Ruth Wright, a victim; and Miss Maud M. Powell, as Ruby Wright, the girl who is driven to destruction, displays considerable power and sympathy in the part. As Robert Ray, who is in love with Ruby, Mr. Leslie Austin gives a telling performance; and other commendable delineations are added by Miss Lilla Nordon, Mr. E. Swinton, and Mr. Macintosh Clyde. There is plenty of humorous relief, and the play is well staged.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Oswald Cray and company are here in When It Was Dark, which was played with success at the Metropole Theatre last week.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—A new play, A Woman of Two Lives, was produced here on Monday by Miss Hilda Beverley. A notice appears elsewhere.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Big houses are attracted here by Fred Kitchen, who appears with Herbert Darnley's company in Private Potts; and Chas. T. Aldrich, the well-known quick-change comedy impersonator; while Fred Conquest and company are also to the fore in a clever and well-acted farce, Something for Nothing. Other good turns are Jennie Hartley, an engaging comedienne and dancer; Harry May Hemsley, entertainer; Azella Wilson, a graceful lady gymnast; Harry Leybourne, entertainer at the piano; and the Five Vernons, expert xylophonists.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Victoria Monks, a favourite comedienne, is the top star attraction here this week, and scores a big success. The Six Brothers Luck are highly amusing in a well-staged comedy sketch, H.M.S. Perhaps; Smite and Smote provide an exceedingly funny turn, which is well received; the Mezzettis make a hit in a finished and laughable triple-bar performance; Gwennie Hasto charms with her dancing and singing; Matthews and Cowper play well in the sketch When the Clock Went Wrong; Frank Cass, character comedian, is good; and George Antill is smart as a comedian and legmania artist. Up-to-date pictures complete a good all-round show.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—A novelty is provided here this week by Mlle. Denarber, who receives applause for her French songs, one of which she sings while floating over the auditorium in a balloon. Tschernoff's Animals are very cleverly trained, and give an interesting performance; the Pasquali Brothers are tumblers and equilibrists of exceptional ability; Gus Harris earns his usual success by his Hebrew songs; Ferguson and Mack excite much laughter by their patter and eccentric drolleries; Sam Stern arouses merriment by his Hebrew and Italian characterisations; Natalie and Diana are good trapeze artists; Lucia Collins—daughter of the late Lottie Collins—sings nicely; the Soho Trio contribute good sentimental songs and clever dancing; and the pictures are up to their usual high standard.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Henri De Vries, who tops the bill here this week, is highly successful in an effective sketch, A Moving Picture. He meets with a deserved big reception. Mr. and Mrs. William Calvert play well in On the Quiet; and Laura Leycester and company are good in a dramatic episode, Who Was the Woman? Doon and Dixey provide a smart musical act; Elise Malpass is a very clever child mimic and dancer; Eva Weigh gives a charming turn; whilst other enjoyable items are those of Nellie Nestle, comedienne; Frank Jester, comedian; and the Dainties, vocalists and dancers. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures complete.

KING'S THEATRE, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—The Eve of Her Wedding, a new domestic play, is well presented here this week by Mr. Wilson Benge and company. As George Tremain, the hero, Mr. Benge plays with care; Mr. Louis Lingard, in a dual rôle, scores a big success; Mr. Frederick F. Lloyd and Miss Florence Zillwood are effective in sinister parts; and Miss Pauline Nanton as Mavis Leverton acts with charm. Support is rendered by Messrs. Jay Kay, Ben Carr, W. H. Pointon, Herbert Hastings, and Miss Amy Milstead; whilst the humorous element is in the safe hands of Miss Sybil Hare as Kinkie and Messrs. Charles Digby and K. Arthur.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Jake Friedman and company, including Florence Hanton, score their usual success here this week with Happy Holland. Tennyson and Wallis, comedians, provide an excellent turn; the Geraldos go through their wonderfully clever juggling performance, and are loudly applauded; Tom Taylor and company cause endless laughter with their sketch The Plumbers; and other good turns are offered by Michael Madden, comedian, with funny business; Richards Trio, in clever eccentric acrobatic act; and the Sisters Lawson, vocalists and dancers. The Gold Seekers on the Bioscope is a good film.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—The So and So's are here this week, and a smart and clever combination of artists, including Stuart Alexander, tenor; Pattie Biddulph, contralto; Gilbert Leslie, light comedian; Maude Davis, soprano; Madge White, comedienne and mimic; Harry Quiningborough, comedian; and Miss Alma, at the piano.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. F. Weathersby; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Lamb.—Mr. George Dance's company has been the attraction this week in the musical play The Girl from Kay's. The principal characters have been delightfully sustained by Miss Florence Millington as Winnie Harborough, and Mr. J. W. Hooper has been remarkably successful as Max Hoggenheimer. A very capable all-round company gives admirable support, the singing is good, the chorus full and effective, and the trio sung by the Misses May Wiltshire, Leamy Green, and Jameson Thomas has been loudly applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, South of England Hippodromes, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mayall.—The always welcome and versatile Marie Lloyd heads the excellent programme presented here this week, and, as usual, she has met with a rousing reception; the Tokio Troupe, ladderists, in their "slide for life," cause a sensation; and the other contributors to the programme, all of whom receive most cordial receptions, include Stevens and Brett, comedians; L. W. Harris, comedian; Addie Adell, actress vocalist; Mark Leslie, coon comedian and dancer; Captain Kettle, conjurer, who has been making a welcome re-appearance; and the entertaining pictures have also been much enjoyed.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—Marguerite Ismay and girls are appearing here this week in a series of dancing and vocal scenas, and they have had a very flattering reception; Trillo, ventriloquist, is also much enjoyed; Russell Brandow, special dancer, gives an attractive turn; the Leedons, double club jugglers, ball punchers, and boxers, give an entertaining show; Dresda and Mona, comedy specialists, with "The Birthday Teddy Bear," cause great amusement; and Dainty Doretta, serio; with Niagara and Falls, eccentric acrobats, make plenty of fun and cause unrestrained laughter.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Imeson.—Mr. Robert Hewland and company are giving creditable performances of The Shadow of a Crime, in which Mr. Hewland appears with much success as Captain Harry Billington; Mr. Whitmore Ledger does full justice to the part of Jim Murdock; Miss Ethel Savill capably portrays the wronged Loyale Norman; and Miss Ada Arthur is a capable Winnie Murdock.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—The Brooklyn Comedy Four provide harmony and humour in a manner which meets with well-earned approval; Goodfellow and Gregson, comedy artists, go well; Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, as presented by Arnold Richardson and company, creates much laughter; Wyndham and Kitty give a capital wire act; Miss Bella Belmont is well received; Barney Stuart, an old favourite on Teesside, goes well; Dan Whitley, comedian, gives satisfaction; and the Empirescope pictures are much appreciated.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—Capital pictures continue at the Hippodrome, and the programme is this week relieved by a pleasing turn submitted by Adelina, who impersonates many celebrities.

MORLEY.—ALEXANDRA PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Izon.—Maud May Murray is the bright particular star at this popular rendezvous of amusement this week, and her electrical dances are accorded a very enthusiastic reception; Pastor and Rene, comedy and musical duettists, contribute several capital numbers; Alf. Warner is a versatile comedian; and a really charming vocalist is Gracie Bard.

NEATH.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—An excellent programme of pictures is presented here. The varieties consist of Bonair and Jess, four clever quick-change artists; Renz Brothers, comedy acrobats; and Bekker, a first-class conjurer.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—On Tuesday evening the "House full" boards were exhibited at this very popular resort, where an excellent programme is presented. Sandy McNab and company head the bill, and gain loud laughter; Carlos Menard scores a success with his violin and piano playing; the Harrison Brothers are responsible for much mirth; and Spry and Monti, in a comedy and dancing act; Master Harcourt Mills, a clever young actor; Walter Lawley and Miss Gallafeat, in delightful song scena, and Harry Morris, in song and story, all greatly please the audience.

TOWER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. H. Davy.—Crowds daily flock to the Tower and grounds, and in the theatre animated pictures and variety are given afternoon and evening. The company includes Watson and McQue, comedians; Sisters Langley, vocalists and dancers; and Godfrey, conjurer. The films are good, and depict both dramatic and humorous subjects.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale.—This week we have some old favourites, together with one or two new artists. Mr. Leo Carle, in quick change act; Mona Vivian, clever child performer; Bert Byrne, comedian; Miss G. Fall, soubrette; Douglas Campbell, comedian; Miss Elise Kahn, vocalist, and last, but not least, the Quality Quartette of Singers, all add to the general success.

NEWPORT.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Major Gallagher; Assisting-Manager, Mr. Percy Wilde; Musical Director, Mr. C. Bye.—The top of the bill here is filled by that well-known comedian, Sam Mayo, whose songs are in the best comedy vein, and win abundant favour; the Two Anartos, as the musical swell and the talkative postman, are very amusing; Hilda Jacobsen, a vivacious musical comedy artist, has a good reception; rare skill and daring are exhibited in the clever cycling feats done by the famous Jackson Family; Eily Adair, in a couple of characteristic Irish ditties, wins hearty applause; and Kitty Wager is warmly greeted for her daintily rendered songs. Others contributing are Fred Poplar and the McConnell Trio.

NORTHAMPTON.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—Secretary, Mr. G. Skempton; Resident-Manager for Andrew's Pictures, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—The Rock Climber is a good travel picture, and Ramona, Her First Appearance, St. Elmo, and Western Justice are interesting and dramatic. Miss Margaret Payne sings "Sweet Dreams" and "Santa Fe" most pleasingly.

THE COUNTY ELECTRIC PAVILION.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Lyle Edwards.—A good sporting film is Buffalo Hunting in Cochin China; The Grasshopper and the Ant is a splendid colour picture; Fruits of Vengeance, Carlo's Devotion (a fine story of a faithful dog), and The Conqueror are all good dramatic pictures, and the comics are up to the mark.

PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. E. Bentley; General-Manager, Mr. J. W. Borrowman.—A successful succession of pictures is presented here. The leading subjects are: Lieutenant Rose and the Gun-runners, The Reign of Terror, Love Among the Roses, the Mystery of Temple Court, and The Isle of Capri.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—This is the last week of a highly successful stock season, The Mysteries of London proving a great attraction. Mr. Albert Sember appears as Victor Levigne, and presents a well-finished performance; Mr. Ernest R. Allen displays much ability as the Rev. Phil Conway; Mr. George Wallace provides a good impersonation of William Rawson; Mr. Lonnen Meadows is well to the front as Dick Coppin; and Mr. C. Alan Hineson deserves commendation for his enactment of Robert Best. As La Zaleska, Miss Kate Froude portrays the character with distinct success; Miss Fay Garnet Vayne supplies a capital study of Lena North; Miss Effie Macintosh is smart as Lila Stumps; and Miss Violet Crauford does well as Charity Rawson.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Some choice pictures are presented this week, and Miss Marie Altino pleases in well selected illustrated songs.

THE OLD SPRING GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt.—This week the Merry Mirth Makers, seven in number, present a pleasing entertainment; Miss Edie Day is a pleasing singer and dancer; Miss Doreen Day is successful as a vocalist and mimic; Mr. Fred Merry is well received; Mr. Gerald Mount is a good singer; Mr. Wilfred Burnard gets applause for his imitations of music hall celebrities; and Wee Jock Laird causes hearty laughter.

THORPE GARDENS.—Mr. Frank Lynne's company of Madcaps sustain their reputation. Miss Vie Huntley and Miss Marjorie Cecil sing their pleasing songs in a charming manner; Mr. Harry Cove's fine baritone voice is heard to advantage; Sandy Lawson is amusing with his Scotch melodies; Will Pim is a capital comedian; whilst Mr. Bert Gordon is exceedingly popular; Mr. Will Hoppe as a pianist is entertaining. It is pleasing to say Miss Cecil was able to reappear after a brief rest.

CHAPEL FIELD GARDENS.—At a musical fête held here on Monday, Mr. E. V. Barr gave his popular entertainment of humorous sketches.

NOTTINGHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—No more delightful and artistic entertainment can be imagined than the musical treat offered by the Zigeuner Quartette; Miss Winifred Hare renders several songs in tasteful manner; Peter Davy and company give an amusing Chantecler skit; the burlesque business of Billy Merson is an excellent piece of comedy; and Edward Ford's facial contortions; Johnny Fuller, cat impersonator; Ike and Will Scott, dancers; May B. Brilliant, comedienne; and Les Marco Bell, comedy conjurers, are all well received.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—J. W. Rickaby's spontaneous humour is capitally exploited in several skits that make him a huge favourite; a sketch on dramatic lines, The Last of the Desmonds, is successfully played by P. Pherman and Co.; a striking contrast is seen in the sketch The Village Shiftem, given by the Three Prestons, to the accompaniment of hearty laughter; Slippere, a blind musician, supplies an enjoyable item; the comedy acrobatic juggling of Cestria is both novel and clever; Phil Herman, vocalist; Chiko, contortionist; dancing by the Milfords, and Clarice Sefton, comedienne, add their quota to the general satisfaction of the audience.

NUNEATON.—EMPIRE ELECTRIC THEATRE AND MUSIC HALL.—The great sensational novelty, Man v. Motor, by Hall and Wilson, is proving an immense attraction; Les Ralis, as The Artist and His Monkey, are clever and amusing; Wal Owen keeps the house in a constant state of hilarity; Zelda is a charming instrumentalist; Harwood's Juveniles present a delightful song scena entitled Christmas Eve; and the turns are interspersed with first rate films.

OLDHAM.—ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The Two Brothers is a fine dramatic film, the scenes taking place in Spain, and is well worth seeing; A Daring Performance is shown, wherein two animal trainers are seen giving a show with twenty-two lions, the title being well earned; An Episode of 1812 is a good historical military drama, in which the great Napoleon figures; She Wanted a Bow-wow causes hearty laughter, and To-Morrow is Pay Day is very funny. The bill also includes other capital films, and Mr. Roger Alwyn sings a new song.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The Buried Man of Tebessa is a fine film, and is much appreciated; A Call of the Heart is also very good. The amusing element is well supplied, and includes Accidents Will Happen, Poorluck's First Tiff, and The Merry Widow Takes Another Partner. An amusing competition is being held. Mr. King also contributes a song.

OSBORNE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. William Hughes.—The well-known story of St. Elmo is the top-liner, and is being well patronised. The Sheriff's Sacrifice is a capital study in black and white, and As It is in Life and A Mother's Evil Dream are very good dramas; The Female Sherlock Holmes, To-Morrow's Pay Day, and Mistaken Identity are amongst the comics. Mr. H. Entwistle is the vocalist.

BROWN'S ASSEMBLY.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Brown.—Brown's Weekly Journal is proving to be very popular, showing events in which Sir E. Wood at Chelmsford and the Wreck of the Zeppelin Airship are notable features. Taming a Grandfather is a fine production, and An Old Soldier is very sympathetic; Off for the Holidays is a good comic, amongst other capital pictures.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Varieties continue to hold the boards here. An entirely new programme, under the direction of Mr. J. Leigh Cameron, includes the Brothers Watson, interesting blind vocalists and smart patterers; Spry Palmer, an amusing comedian; Miss Lucy Bell, a charming comedienne and coon impersonator; Ronald Graham, a descriptive vocalist with a good voice; Almyr Vane, who is successful as a character actor; Mercer and Thomas, amusing comedians and cross-talkers; and Miss Olive Young, an admirable male impersonator. The programme concludes with a dramatic episode, The Chorister.

PAISLEY.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—A high standard of pictures is being twice nightly shown at this place of entertainment. Refined comedy is presenetd by Miss Madge Field.

PLYMOUTH.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Daisy James, the well-known metropolitan comedienne, scores in her latest successes, the popular "Ship, ahoy!" song going great guns; the original Amasis, described as the Wizard of the Nile, is responsible for some skilfully executed conjuring tricks; Minnie Kauffman performs daring evolutions on the bicycle with noticeable grace; Chinko executes some charming bits of juggling; Arthur Pier as an actor-vocalist has unquestionable ability; Williams and Warden have some amusing patter; Edna Deno completes.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur A. Horner.—By arrangement with Mr. George Alexander Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus's company are presenting here The Thief. The play goes strongly from start to finish, Mr. Bernard Limpus giving a vigorous portrayal of Richard Chelford, being splendidly supported by Miss Barbara Everest as Marise. Raymond Leyton was delineated with effective restraint by Mr. F. Morland; and an admirable impersonation of Detective Protheroe was submitted by Mr. W. Somerset. The lovesick Harry was well played by Mr. Carl W. Lindsay; Miss Mary Forrester doing justice to Isabel. The Man in the Street, affording opportunities to Messrs. R. Ashby (Philip Adair), W. Protheroe (Jabez), and Miss May de Launey (Minnie), was an interesting curtain-raiser.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Mr. Frank Bertram is this week successfully presenting the sensational drama Ten Nights in a Bar Room. Mr. Frank Stone gives a good impersonation of Edward Milton; Miss Gwendoline Hay takes the part of Grace Milton with much feeling; Kate Adams, a salvation lass, finds an excellent counterpart in Miss Verita Vivien; Mr. Alec Forbes successfully portrays Jabez Hawke; and the remaining artists give creditable renderings to their respective parts.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Olga, Elgar, and Eli Hudson are delightful in a refined and unique musical act; 'All-a-Dollar is a comical sketch, well presented by Haines, Borthwick, and company; Albert Letine is a comedian whose female characterisations are very clever; the Sisters Caselli are successful in song and dance; Walter Stanley scores in quaint humour; and other good turns include Lylie Read, juvenile vocalist; Gibbon and Bell, acrobats; and Ruby Emmerson, comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Packed houses testify nightly their keen appreciation of the bountiful menu provided. Clark and Hamilton, in their amusingly clever comedy duologue, command attention; T. E. Dunville, in his railway song, &c., evokes unbounded laughter; Phil Ray likewise is loudly applauded, his particular style being new to the audience; the Palace Girls sing and dance most gracefully; Mildred Parr's abilities were heard to advantage on piano, and in short recitation from King John; Mart and Pep, young acrobats, are smart head and hand balancers; Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls sing in good style; an amusing ventriloquist is Tom E. Clifford; and Addie Lennard's singing and dancing pleases. The orchestra, under Mr. Amos Parker, deserves special mention.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—Another wondrous illusionary entertainment by Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, when men and women are produced from nowhere with baffling rapidity, is the star turn this week; the Bros. Egbert centre their fun in the beating of a carpet; the well-favoured young Bertisch, after exhibiting his muscle development, demonstrates the result with heavy weights and carrying three attendants on a triple chair; the Three Cape Girls display their skill as long boot dancers; a welcome musical turn is the prison scene by the Faust Operatic Trio; Athas and Collins are bright fun-makers; Irene Velma is a smart little dancer; and Frank Melvin's songs go well.

SOUTH PARADE PIER.—Manager, Mr. A. Lalande.—A symphony concert of unusual excellence was the feature on Sunday afternoon and evening by the full strength of the R.M.A. string band, nearly fifty strong, under Bandmaster Mr. B. S. Green. Harry's Leslie's Comedy Cadets and the Merry Boys and The Mascots supplying the entertainments during the week.

GOSPORT THEATRE.—This house continues to do very well, the unseasonable weather favouring indoor amusement. Helena Roberto and The Girl and the Coon, performed by the Lafrasers, are attractions; the chief films being The Call of the Heart, The Sheriff's Sacrifice, and Hunting Wolves in Russia.

PRESTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Clarkson.—Mr. Sydney Spenser's No. 1 répertoire company is paying a welcome visit here in My Sweetheart, Pegg Woffington, and A Wonderful Woman. Mr. Edward Rawlinson as Tony in My Sweetheart is excellent; Miss Lizzie Hall is a vivacious and captivating Tina; Mr. Sydney Spenser a capital Joe Shotwell; Mr. A. W. Thompson a breezy Dr. Oliver; and Miss Hilda Eyre as Peek-a-Boo, Miss Elsie Heap as Christie, and Miss Violet Etherington, are each most successful in their respective parts. Miss Gipsy Alexander is a really excellent Mrs. Fletcher; and Miss Belle Russell as Mrs. Hatzell is equally a success; Mr. Arthur L. Read is a realistic Harold Bartlett; Mr. Fred Russell a most amusing Dudley Harcourt; and Mr. Harry Jackson a typical Farmer Hatzell.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—W. C. Fields, the silent humorist and exceedingly clever juggler, tops the bill here; Jock Whiteford brings down the house with his songs and football match item; Miss Ada Pagini, Italian Court violinist, creates a sensation; Henri Cazman, the one-man music hall, is most versatile; Florence Yaymen, American coon caricaturist, is at the top of her particular line; the Aza Boys are a clever Trio; the Spadonis (Madge and Sylvia) are chic duettists and dancers; and an interesting film is A Twisted Trail.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Under the sole direction of Mr. Chas. Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's production, For Wife and Kingdom, a military drama, has been played to good audiences during the past week. The company responsible for the play is a strong one. Mr. Matthew H. Glenville as Captain Maximilian Lubeck makes a first-rate hero, and Mr. Fred Osmond does well as Karl Ludhayr. As Baron Maurice Breslaw, a scoundrel of the worst type, Mr. Albert Guyon is extremely good; while Mr. Frank Setterfield makes a capital General von Nestold. Miss Hettie Zillwood and Miss Margaret Frame as the heroine and the villain's accomplice respectively, both act in good style; and Miss Alice Buckland gives a pleasing study of a pert little lady's maid. The remaining characters are all in efficient hands, and the play is exceedingly well staged.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. T. R. Price; Entertainment Manager, Mr. C. Price.—Miss Lancashire, Limited, was presented on the first three evenings of the week. Miss Florence Baines makes a welcome appearance in the principal part, and her humorous and clever interpretation of the character elicits the hearty admiration of the audiences. The other parts were excellently handled. On Thursday the ever-popular Charley's Aunt was put on by Mr. Brandon Thomas's company.

MARINA THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Attack.—Large audiences have assembled at the Marina Theatre this week at the twice-nightly shows. The animated pictures are thoroughly admirable, and Elroy, the armless wonder, has given astonishingly clever performances.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—This is the closing week of the variety season here. The theatre will be closed next week, and reopened for the regular dramatic season on Bank Holiday. Miss Adrienne Augarde presents her original comedy duologue, Dick's

Sister, with great success; Dick Tubb, the grotesque comedian, creates immense merriment. The Five Musical Tritons give a most effective turn, the scene being gorgeously illuminated by electricity. The performances of the quintette on various instruments, tubular bells, etc., are well harmonised and excellently rendered. Walter Barrett, the renowned Lancashire baritone, is an accomplished vocalist; Jules Kiaro performs some clever equilibrist feats; Ted Karno and company are exceedingly funny in their pantomimical sketch, The Hotel de Quick; Jessie Brickley, vocalistic comedienne, sings very pleasingly, and some good films on the Bioscope complete an excellent programme.

RHYL. — MARINE PAVILION AND GARDENS. — Lessees, Messrs. Baring Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Mellard.—A clever company of entertainers, "The Gay Lieutenants," are here this week. Griff Hodson is a humorous comedian; Nan Taylor possesses a sweet soprano voice; Cis O'Shea's singing and dancing is much admired; Alex. Rubinoff is a talented vocalist; Arthur Holland an excellent light comedian; Eric Thornton and Fred Shepherd both contribute good turns; Hambourg's Russian Orchestra continues to give three concerts daily in the Gardens, and their delightful music attracts many people.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale.—This week's company includes Signor Torti, who pleases the audience with his fine rendering of tenor songs; Marriot Edgar is a favourite comedian; Jack Hughes receives warm appreciation for his songs; Millie Williams, comedienne; Maud Hughes, soprano; Dave Kidd, baritone; and James Haddock, accompanist, complete a good bill.

PIER AMPHITHEATRE.—Mr. Will Letters and company present a musical farce entitled They would be Pierrots; Hal Hutton, Charles Calvert, Victor Crawford, René Retford, Ennis Parkes, J. Walker, Chas. Moore, and Will Letters work well together.

QUEEN SKATING RINK.—Skating is a very popular amusement, and the New Electric Picture Theatre shows a fine selection of the latest films. Chester and Lees, marionettes, are also an attraction.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—John Power and Robert Faulkner's company have an interesting domestic drama, For Wife and Home, which drew a good house on Monday. Mr. Robert Faulkner made a fine hero of Roland St. Pierre; Mr. Wilton Llewellyn does good work as the villainous half-brother, Henri St. Pierre; Miss Marion Ryder portrays the heroine, Rosette Legrand, with ability; comedy is presented by Mr. G. Hardie as Cicard Picole and Miss Nancy Harvey as Nanceu; the short part of Miladi St. Pierre is well done by Miss Alice Bradshaw; good work is also done by Mr. E. Maydew (Gaspard-le-Farge), Mr. F. Lisle as Jean Legrand, Mr. Edward De Vere (Abbé Latouche), and Miss M. Monte (Celeste Legrand).

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—Ida Millais' company, under the direction of Henry Herne (who takes the part of the hero), presents No Man's Land. Herbert Cecil as Silas Moore and Harry Cullenford as Matt Marsden present good studies of those villainous parts; Miss Marie Kildare is a charming Lady Mary Bathurst; comedy is kept to the fore by Geo. Marriott, jun., as Solomon Jacobs and Miss Lottie Pearce as Bessie Poodle. The programme also includes acceptable turns by Charles Wilson, a clever jumper; Alick Lauder, Scotch comedian; Bruce Green, talkative dame comedian; Golden and Chance, in novel eccentric act; and Gertie Rex, character comedienne.

WIGAN. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—A welcome return visit is being paid here by Mr. C. Watson Mill's company in A Wrecker of Men. Miss Ruth Zillwood is a powerful Risca Mallinson; Miss Gwendoline Talbot a sympathetic and charming Doris Melville; Mr. A. S. Pitt does full justice to the character of Jem Murley; Mr. Victor Rae deserves special mention for his delineation of Pharosaphus; and Mr. Victor Rae is conspicuous as Railton, the silent servant.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—L

SUNDAY CLOSING OF THEATRES.

A meeting of variety artists, actors, musicians, and theatre employees was held at Terry's Theatre on Friday, under the auspices of the Sunday Defence Committee, to urge the establishment of conditions in licences prohibiting the opening of theatres by way of trade on Sundays. There was a numerous attendance. Mr. J. Ramsay Macdonald, M.P., presided, and among those who supported him were the Bishop of Southwark, Canon Bickersteth, H. Ottley (hon. sec., Imperial Sunday Alliance), Mr. W. H. Clemart (chairman Variety Artists' Federation), Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Charles Jesson, L.C.C. (secretary London Branch Musicians' Union), Mr. J. A. Seddon, M.P., the Rev. Donald Hole (organising secretary, the Actors' Church Union), Mr. J. B. Mulholland (theatrical manager), and Mr. William Johnson (hon. sec., the Sunday Defence Committee).

At the opening of the proceedings, Mr. William Johnson read letters supporting the movement from the Bishop of London, Bishop Welldon, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. David Shackleton, M.P., Mr. Arthur Henderson, M.P., Mr. Harry Lauder, and Mr. R. A. Roberts. These letters have already been published in The Era. In an opening address, Mr. J. R. Macdonald, M.P., declared that they were not there as Sabbatarians. He was one of those who was brought up under the conditions known as a dull Sunday. It was very irksome, and, looking back upon it, he was not quite sure that he could honestly say that he enjoyed it. Nevertheless, and on the other hand, he did not think he could honestly say that he was very much the worse for it. However, be that as it might, they must banish from their minds—and the public must do the same—all idea that that was a movement to re-establish the dull Sunday or to prevent any sort of rational recreation that may have been growing up within recent years in connection with the Sunday. The point was a very simple one. What the Sunday Defence Committee asked and what it said was this: "Men and women should not work seven days every week." (Applause.) Modern conditions of things were becoming very complicated indeed, and he was afraid, for good or for ill, they must put behind them the idea that on Sunday all work and all labour must stop. (Hear, hear.) That was impossible. He would like it if it were possible. What they could say was what he hoped the people would always be intelligent enough to say, that "six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work." The seventh must be a day of rest and peace, quiet and recuperation. That was what the Sunday Defence Committee were demanding, and also the friends of the Sunday movement. If employees worked for seven days a week for week after week they became mere mechanical drudges. Art consisted in spontaneity, and the commercial value of the members of the theatrical profession to their employers consisted in initiative in the power to think and act naturally and in striking their audience as being natural artists, as men and women who were not forcing things, but whose heart and soul was in the profession—not merely men and women who worked as marionettes. The whole commercial value that was attached to those who were in the profession depended upon their being fresh, spontaneous, and feeling their parts. Let the managers be in too great a hurry to pile up profit and to keep their places open seven days a week under whatever pretext—let them do that, and what were they doing? They were drawing upon their (the employees) artistic capital; they were making them bankrupt; they were destroying their ultimate profit-making efficiency—that was putting it at its lowest level—they were degrading the whole of the profession and making it ineffective. The Sunday Defence Movement was far-seeing in that it knew that nothing was more disastrous to the profession than that those who were engaged in it should be compelled to go upon the stage weary and worn and tired workmen. That was the ultimate and unassailable defence of the Sunday Defence Movement. The managers to-day were not any worse than they used to be; they were driven by the force of circumstances to make the most out of the artists and to take short-sighted views of their benefit and of the benefit of the artists. It was all part and parcel of the modern cut-throat suicidal and altogether disastrous competition. But there were good managers, and the good manager was often handicapped by his very qualities. The bad manager could very often drive the good manager into conduct which the good manager knew perfectly was foolish conduct, but which for the time being he was compelled to adopt. They had got to resort to legislation to protect the good manager against the bad manager. They must go to the whole of the managers and to the profession, and if they could not go to them directly they must go to them through the House of Commons, through the London County Council, and through the municipal authorities. The whole conditions under which they worked must be regularised and levelled up, so that every manager was put on precisely the same footing as every other manager. He was rather sorry that even the question of charity should be an exception. They never could define charity. He had known a great many people flourishing upon charity, and he was afraid it was going to be his fate before he died to know a great many more. (Laughter.) Charities could not flourish in that sort of way. If hospitals wanted £1,000 a year more, let them appeal for it in the proper way. Why should not he go to the House of Commons on Sunday and charge sixpence for being looked at by country cousins, and make a stump speech for the occasion? Mr. Seddon might act as Speaker and wear a full-bottomed wig, the Bishop of Southwark might sit in the chair, and they might create all that tomfoolery for the sake of showing American sightseers how the House of Commons did its business, and then excuse the whole thing by saying that every brass farthing collected by the Sergeant-at-Arms standing with his hat at the door was going to relieve the charities of London. (Laughter.) It was silly, and it was all nonsense. (Hear, hear.) Six days' work a week was enough. Let them have one day to renew their bodies and spirits, and to think about something else, so that they might go back to work fresh men and women, and so that their humour was real humour, and their art was spontaneous art. (Cheers.)

Mr. W. H. Clemart moved:—"That, in order to avert the imposition of a compulsory seven days' working week upon variety artists, actors, musicians, and employees, this meeting declares it to be imperative that the licence of any place licensed for public amusement should prohibit the opening of such premises on Sunday by way of trade or personal gain." He said the present position had been brought about by the popularity of electric theatres, and the question that had arisen in regard to opening them on Sunday. He would like to make it clear that they had no animosity towards the cinematograph industry. (Hear, hear.) But if they were living next door to a man who filled his cellars with barrels of gunpowder, and then went down to smoke a cigar, he thought they had a perfect right to object. They were at present awaiting the result of an appeal in a case tried at the Tower Bridge Police-court. Mr. Chapman ruled that the London County Council had no power whatever to insist upon the closing of cinematograph theatres on Sunday. If this was established such music hall managers as wished to open on Sunday would have every right to do so. He pointed out that this would ultimately result in artists working seven days a week, because if they had a day off during the week the public would not know what they were going to see, and there would be confusion. He assured them they were much nearer to Sunday work than they dreamed of, unless they could bring pressure to bear on the licensing authorities, and it was always much more difficult to pull down than it was to prevent the growth of an abuse. (Applause.)

Mr. Charles Jesson referred to the National Sunday League, which, not content with what had happened in our Sunday trading, had been propagating the opening of theatres and music halls on Sunday. It was all right until they persuaded the County Council to allow them to use theatres and music halls on Sundays. As soon as that permission was given the position of the employees in those theatres and music halls was given away. The same organisation brought into competition with musicians all kinds of military bands and amateur bands, and the Musicians' Union were compelled, as a matter of self-defence, to see that the thing was guided on lines which would not be inimical to their interests. Proceeding, he referred to the Paragon Music Hall, which, he said, had broken out into Sunday entertainments on the two-shows-a-night principle, ostensibly under the patronage and for the benefit of the London Hospital. The musicians in that hall had to give two performances a night averaging two hours each for 6s. The musical director was offered 10s., and declined it. As he would not take it on the management asked him to get the leader to do it for 7s. 6d. (Laughter.) The London Hospital had absolutely nothing to do with the management of the concerts being run ostensibly by the hospital. Every one of the County Council's regulations was being regulated, and the secretary himself said they could not carry out all the conditions if they felt disposed, for the simple reason that they were a hospital and a charity, and could not use their funds for speculative purposes. He pointed out that in one case a music hall handed over something like £5 a week to a hospital for permission to use the name of the hospital as a cloak to run their show under. They saw exactly how the thing was going. Unless they put their foot down at once and stop that kind of thing it would lead to a worse position for them all.

Mr. William Johnson (secretary of the Sunday Defence Committee) said, with regard to the Paragon, there was additional evidence on behalf of the manager to show that they did not pay the Award rate for the six days a week. With regard to the statement that the electric theatre proprietors had sought out societies whose names they could use, Mr. Johnson remarked that, as an interrupter had denied that, he would refer him to the Bioscope official organ. The Sunday Defence Committee had no concern, directly or indirectly, with any Sunday entertainment; they did not propose to encourage or assist in organising any Sunday entertainment for any purpose whatsoever. They wanted equality of opportunities with the licence given to every proprietor, so that that equality might be the foundation of equal treatment of all employers. But he spoke more particularly for the employees, of which there were two sections—night and day. With regard to the former, many of them did other work in the day, and to subject men who worked from six in the morning till midnight to Sunday labour was making their life a mere existence. Sunday was becoming a more valuable asset in the reform movement than ever it was. In every industry they were speeding up human energies to almost breaking point, and more than ever they needed a period of rest and reflection. They would resist to the utmost of their power any attempt to hand the Sunday over to amusement, advocate that by what specious arguments they might.

The Bishop of Southwark said he thought it was a comparatively poor job, if he might say so, to guard the Sunday on behalf of people who did not care enough about it to guard it for themselves. It might be necessary or charitable to do so, but he called it a very poor job. But when persons who were themselves concerned saw what it was that was at stake and valued it at its right worth, and were determined to defend it, then he thought it was for the public to come in and show their sympathy by lending a hand. If anyone in the chair would convince them that that was not a movement of one class trying to legislate for another, but a movement simply of one class trying to secure what was right for itself, he thought Mr. Ramsay Macdonald was that man. That was a profession to which they all owed so much because it had borne so much on their account; a profession on the surface of whose life all was sparkling and delight and freedom, but those who had an inkling of what the profession meant behind the scenes and what effect it had on the physical and moral strength and the nervous system knew that if there was a profession which needs its opportunities of repose it was the theatrical profession in all its parts. Then it seemed to him they were going about their business in the right sort of way. He was thankful that the L.C.C. had taken the highest and best line in that matter. They said to the L.C.C.: "Be true to your policy; do not allow it to be twisted out of your hands. Do not allow your intention to be frustrated and other people to be deprived of the treatment you would give them by ingenious devices, and by the mere fact that you have not got the proper instrument to enforce what you want. He had been the recipient on more than one occasion of generous treatment from managers of theatres with regard to charities, he hoped wholesome and useful for the community in which he was engaged; but those, he was glad to say, were not Sunday performances. He for his part would far rather that there was no use of those places for charitable purposes on Sunday than that it should be the cloak and means of bringing about what they had heard from the speakers who had preceded him. They were going about the thing in the right way by supporting the London County Council, and they were also going to other local authorities in the country and asking them to "level up," if they still needed it, to the level of the L.C.C. With regard to his clerical friends and himself they were not there under any false pretences. They were not there as though every person present was piously desirous of a religious Sunday on which he would go to church twice. (Laughter.) There were two parties. They desired to see a Sunday which was a day of rest, but which was also a day of piety and religion. They found their fellow-citizens were ready to go with them in the first stage of the journey. The place to which they reached in company was not a place merely which they wished to pass through and leave behind. They wanted a day of rest, and of the physical, moral, and mental effects which it gave to the community at large. They were not hopeless of increasing the number of their fellow citizens who would take the remaining stage. It was well to ask to what use they would put that day of rest. It was a day in which they must, whatever they meant by it, come into purer air than the air of the daily working life, and find room for the exercise of the more delicate and sublimer faculties of human nature for which on the weekday there was no opportunity. They had come away a great deal from the dull Sunday; they had come towards others in that respect, but for his own part he was thankful that he was so brought up that what was called the dull Sunday was a happy day to him. (Laughter.) Still, that dull Sunday left a great deal for the community at large, who had not his advantages. He hoped they would go forward in the race of progress and civilisation. (Applause.)

Mr. J. B. Mulholland said it seemed to him that the Sunday League policy was more or less within the four corners of the Council's regulations that Sunday opening should not be for the purpose of trade or private gain. He was inclined to think that the systematic opening on Sunday was more the fault of the authorities than of the lessees or managers. Men responsible for Sunday opening disguised themselves under the mask of charity, and "charity covers a multitude of sins." (Laughter.) The operation of the Licensing Acts as they were applied in London were making a large number of entertainment caterers not only liars, but hypocrites. (Hear, hear.)

Canon Bickersteth, Ottley, reminded the meeting of the last message to the London Police from the late King Edward intimating His Majesty's gratification upon the granting of the weekly rest day, and stated he had reason for believing that the purpose for which that meeting had been called had been made known to His Majesty King George. While for obvious reasons it would not have been possible for the King to depart from the usual precedent by sending any communication relative to the special object before that meeting, yet he (the speaker) intimated that there was good reason for knowing that, like our late Sovereign, the present King heartily sympathised with any movement towards assuring to working people rest on Sunday. (Hear, hear.) So they might well rejoice to feel assured of the Royal interest in and sympathy with the efforts of those "working people" who were so fully represented on that occasion to safeguard their Sunday rest. (Cheers.)

Mr. J. A. Seddon, M.P., supported the resolution. He criticised certain "philanthropic" efforts, and said he believed people who were anxious to do good at other people's expense were not always actuated by the purest motives.

Mr. W. H. Broughton, who has a proprietary interest in cinematograph theatres, stated that Mr. Jesson had suggested to him that the Sunday performances should be for the benefit of the Musicians' Union.

Mr. Jesson: That is not true.

Mr. Broughton said the cinematograph trade were prepared to close to-morrow if everybody else closed. He said that Mr. Jesson's presence on the platform was indefensible, as he was running almost more entertainments than anybody in London, his desire being to crush the Sunday League and take the work out of their hands.

Mr. W. Johnson, in replying, attacked the methods of Mr. Broughton. With regard to payment for Sunday work, he said a man employed by Mr. Broughton stated, "You can put down what you like for Sunday duty, but if you put down more than you are getting, you get the sack."

Mr. Broughton: Name!

Mr. Johnson: Do you think I am going to give you the name so that you can sack him?

Mr. Broughton: Tell the truth.

Mr. George Gray (President of the Scotch Artists' Association) said there was an Act of Parliament whereby anyone exercising his calling on a Sunday was liable to a fine. All they had to do was to put that law into force. He would like them to add to the resolution words urging that where places of entertainment were open to the public on Sunday for charitable purposes there should be legislation subjecting to a heavy penalty any manager or representative of a manager who coerced of intimidated any employee to work on the Sunday. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Mason suggested an amendment providing that places of entertainment should not be opened on Sunday for any purpose, charitable or otherwise.

The Chairman thought the amendment would not be advisable, and it was not put to the meeting.

The resolution was carried, the only dissentient being Mr. Mason, who thought it did not go far enough.

The proceedings closed with votes of thanks to the speakers and to Mr. Edward Terry for lending his theatre.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Roller-skating Under Sail.

In Berlin and its suburbs most of the streets are paved with asphalte—an inducement to roller-skaters of which they have been quick to take advantage. Lately, we read, there has been a new development—skating under sail. The skater supplies himself or herself—ladies are as keen on the sport as men—with an oblong-shaped light bamboo frame, covered with canvas and held on to by a vertical mid-rib. The frame averages some 5ft. 9in. in length by a yard, all but half an inch, in width. With anything of a breeze the skater speeds along gaily, and quick and clever manœuvring in and out among the passers-by is sometimes witnessed. It is quite easy to stop by holding the sail up horizontally overhead.

Aberdeen Olympia Rink.

So long as the Olympia Rink is run under the conditions obtaining at present, Aberdeen will always have a first-class roller skating establishment where all the latest novelties in that pastime are submitted to the public without loss of time. The rink is being most efficiently managed, and this no doubt is the secret of its sustained popularity. The Beach Rink is also liberally patronised, and with the increase in the number of visitors there has been a corresponding increase in the number who take advantage of the splendid facilities which this establishment affords for pursuing the recreation.

Chorlton-cum-Hardy Rink.

The spacious rink here is open thrice daily, with a good band in attendance. Mr. Ormsby Trench is the manager.

Charity Carnival at Garston.

To augment the funds in connection with the recent Garston Cycle Carnival, spoiled by the inclement weather on the night of the parade, a fancy dress seaside rink carnival was held on the Garston Skating Rink recently. There was a large attendance, both of skaters and spectators, and considerable interest was taken in the proceedings. The arrangements were carried out by a sub-committee of the general Carnival Committee, with Mr. G. H. Ubsdell as chairman and Mr. E. W. Minshull secretary.

Newcastle Skating Rinks.

The management of the White City Rinkerie have decided to allow the White City to remain open until further notice. Had previous arrangements been carried into effect, the rinkerie would have closed last week, but at the expressed desire of a large patronage, and taking into account the cold weather of the past few weeks, the management felt justified in the step taken. That the action is being appreciated is shown by the increased attendance at all sessions. The St. Mary's Rink, Exhibition Hall, the Grand Stand Skating Rink, and other rinks in the city continue to do good business. Each has made a point of cooling their rinks for the summer, and therefore comfort is assured.

Cannot Keep off the "Rollers."

The New Empress Rink, Nottingham, is closed for the season, reopening in September. The manager, Mr. George Holt, cannot, however, keep off the "rollers." He is taking a month's trip up the Baltic, and writing to us from Wiborg, Finland, says he is feeling quite in the "pink," and ready for the coming season. Lucky man!

West Stanley Rink.

The fancy dress carnival held last week at the West Stanley Skating Rink proved such an immense success that a gymkhana is now advertised, which will no doubt prove equally attractive.

MISS BELLE ELMORE'S DEATH.

Miss Belle Elmore, who is supposed to have been the victim in the Crippen murder case, opened her career at the Old Marylebone Music Hall some twelve years or so ago, where she appeared in a small operetta and wore an embroidered gipsy gown. She appeared at the Grand, Clapham, and the Holborn. She also toured in the provinces. She last appeared at the Bedford Music Hall early in 1907, when she sang a song called "Down Lovers' Walk," and also a coon song. She wore a short spangled dress. She also sang a costume song called "The Major," and appeared in a musical duologue entitled, "The Unknown Quantity." In one of the scenes she had to hold a sheaf of £5 notes. Crippen's desire for realism was so great that he gave her a bundle of genuine bank-notes, which she left on the stage the first night. Fortunately they were seen by her leading man, Mr. Douglas. Others of her songs were, "She never went further than that" and "Sister Mary Ann." In the costume song called "The Major" she appeared in full military costume.

Mr. Harry Goodson, the stage superintendent of the Bedford, says he became acquainted with Belle Elmore about ten years ago. She was at that time a singer whose turn consisted of a tuneful song with a catchy chorus. He wrote two songs for her, which she sang at the Foresters' and the South London. About five or six years ago Belle Elmore left the stage, but, the Bedford being within easy distance of Hilldrop-crescent, she occasionally used to go there with her husband.

The letter from the stepson, Mr. H. Otto Crippen, which confirmed the suspicions of the friends of Mrs. Crippen in the Music Hall Ladies' Guild that Crippen's story of the death of his wife while on a visit to her stepson at Los Angeles, in California, was untrue, was written in response to an inquiry for any details of his stepmother's death. It ran:

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9, 1910.

Music Hall Ladies' Guild.

Miss Melinda May.

Dear Madam,—Received your letter forwarded to me from the County Clerk, April 23, 1910, but owing to many misfortunes, sickness ,and death of our son, I overlooked your letter until this date.

The death of my stepmother was as great a surprise to me as to any one. She died in San Francisco, and the first I heard of it was through my father, who wrote to me immediately afterwards. He asked me to forward all letters to him, and he would make necessary explanations.

He said he had, through a mistake, given out my name and address as my stepmother's death-place.

I would be glad, if you find out any particulars of her death, if you would let me know of them, as all I know is the fact that she died in San Francisco.—Yours very sincerely,

H. Otto Crippen.

1,612, Holmby-avenue, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Smythson, vice-president of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, on March 31 gave information of Mrs. Crippen's disappearance to Scotland Yard, and said that she had suspicions. The officials asked her if she could bring any definite charge against any one, and when she refused to do this they replied that they could do nothing. She then went to the American Embassy in Victoria-street, and was there given the name of an official in Saratoga. Mrs. Smythson wrote to him asking if Mrs. Crippen had died there, but got no answer, and she inquired the address where Belle Elmore died from Dr. Crippen. At last he said that she had been cremated. He also gave Mrs. Smythson his son's address. She wrote to the son, and in reply was told that his step-mother had not died there, and that the address had been named in mistake. Mrs. Smythson then went to the house in Hilldrop-crescent, and made inquiries of the neighbours on either side. She asked them if they had seen any luggage leave the house, and they replied in the negative. Afterwards she saw Dr. Crippen, and inquired if he had any news concerning his wife's death. "Oh, yes," he replied, "she was cremated, and I have the ashes at home." The point that first aroused the Guild's suspicions in the letter Miss Elmore sent to the Guild announcing her departure was that she suggested the appointment of a treasurer till her return. That was quite unlike her. She was proud of the position. Then, too, Mrs. Smythson saw Miss Le Neve wearing a brooch which had belonged to Mrs. Crippen at a dance, and frequently saw her with Dr. Crippen.

Dr. Danford Thomas held an inquest on Monday afternoon, at the Islington Coroner's Court, on the human remains supposed to be those of Mrs. Crippen (Belle Elmore). Several prominent members of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild were present in court, including Mr. H. O. Seyd, the honorary solicitor, Miss Melinda May, honorary secretary, Mrs. Smythson, vice-president, Mrs. Paul Martinetti, Miss Lil Hawthorne, Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Mrs. C. C. Bartram, Mrs. Gentiro, and Mrs. Fawkes. Chief Inspector Dew, of New Scotland Yard, represented the police authorities.

The main facts of the case are familiar to our readers, and we gladly spare them the evidence relating to the ghastly details of the discovery.

Mr. John Edward Nash, theatrical manager, of Park-mansions, Vauxhall Park, said his wife, Miss Lil Hawthorne, and himself were great friends of Mrs. Crippen, who was the wife of Dr. Crippen, and was theatrically known as Belle Elmore.

The Crippens had dinner at his house on Jan. 19 of this year. That was the last time he saw her alive. On Feb. 2 he heard through his wife that Belle Elmore had resigned from the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. That week Miss Hawthorne was playing at the Tottenham Empire, and he thought it was strange that she should resign so suddenly. My wife, said Mr. Nash, got me to send to her saying we would call on Saturday night, as we wanted to try and talk her into withdrawing her resignation. No one was there; the place was closed, and on Feb. 6 we heard that Belle Elmore had left for California.

From whom did you hear that?—From Miss May, the secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. It was a big surprise to everyone. On Feb. 27 there was a dinner of the Benevolent Institution, presided over by Mr. Joe Elvin. My wife and I were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martinetti. I was very much surprised to see Mr. Crippen enter with his typist. They sat right opposite to us. Mrs. Paul Martinetti recognised that she was wearing one of Mrs. Crippen's brooches, and it made a great impression on me. On March 23 my wife and I sailed for New York. In the first week in May over there we received a letter from Mrs. Paul Martinetti telling us that "poor Belle" had died. About the middle of May we met Mrs. Fred Ginnett, president of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, in New York, and she was very much upset over Belle Elmore dying. She did not like the look of affairs, so she wrote to the authorities at Los Angeles. She did not get a satisfactory reply. She got the police of Rochelle, a village where she was staying, to make official inquiries, and then she got a reply to the effect that no such person as Belle Elmore or Mrs. Crippen had died at Los Angeles. Then we felt very bad about it, and thought it was a very mysterious affair. We sailed from New York on June 15. Mrs. Ginnett was there to see us off, and to say "Good-bye," and I promised her that as soon as I arrived in London I would go and interview Mr. Crippen. On June 28 I visited, in company with my wife, Dr. Crippen at his office. That is the first time we had seen him since the reported death of Belle Elmore. We went to offer condolence, and he seemed to be very much cut up. In fact, he sobbed. He seemed to be very nervous, and he was twitching a piece of paper throughout the interview. He gave it out at first that she had died at Los Angeles. When I questioned him he said it was not Los Angeles, but some little town near San Francisco. Not knowing that I had lived for two and a half years in San Francisco, he was rather surprised when I questioned him about a number of the districts. I mentioned several small towns, and he said it was some little Spanish town. I tried to refresh his memory, and I mentioned Alemeda, and he said he thought that was the place. I asked him if he was sure of this, and he said "No," and I said to him, "Peter, do you mean to say that you don't know where your wife has died?" He said he could not remember the place. I then said to him, "I hear you have received her ashes," and he said, "Yes, I have got them in the safe." I asked him the name of the crematorium and about the certificate of death, and he then commenced to get very nervous. He added, "You know there are about four crematoria round there. I think it is one of those." I said, "Surely you have received a certificate?" and he replied, "I think I have got it somewhere."

He was getting very nervous then, and at this time I began to feel that there was something wrong. When a man cannot tell where his wife had died, and whence he has received the ashes of her remains, I make up my mind that there is something wrong, and in this case I determined to communicate with Scotland Yard at once. That was the last occasion I saw him. In company with my wife I went straight to Scotland Yard, and I made an appointment to see Superintendent Froest and Inspector Dew on June 30. I know Superintendent Froest personally. I came over here, and found that no one had had the courage and pluck to take up this matter. I therefore felt it my duty to take action myself.

Mr. H. O. Seyd, solicitor to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, said he did not know the deceased woman very well, although he had met her on one or two occasions. He added that she fulfilled her duties as hon. treasurer in a very satisfactory way.

Mr. Paul Martinetti said he was a retired music hall artist, and he lived at King Edward's-mansions, Shaftesbury-avenue. He had known Mr. and Mrs. Crippen for about a year. On a certain occasion, said Mr. Martinetti, Crippen called at my flat, and told me his wife had gone to America on very important legal business, and that she might be away for six months. He said something about the possibility of it leading to a title. He also said he should sell his furniture, as he had never liked the house. I called on him next day, and advised him to take the first steamer to America. He did not make any reply to that suggestion, but he said something about his wife having double pneumonia. I offered to assist him in selling his furniture, and in packing his things, but he did not accept the offer, and he never gave me any decisive answers to my questions. I next saw him at the Music Hall Benevolent Fund Ball, with his lady typist. The next time I saw him he called and asked me and my wife to go to dinner with him and the lady typist, and to a theatre afterwards, but we declined the invitation.

Mrs. Clara Martinetti said she became acquainted with Mrs. Crippen about a year and a half ago at "Pony" Moore's house. Belle Elmore persuaded witness to join the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, and they met frequently at Guild functions. On Monday, Jan. 31, she and her husband dined with the Crippens, and left their house about half-past one on Tuesday morning, Feb. 1. That was the last time witness saw Mrs. Crippen alive.

This concluded the evidence taken on Monday, and the inquiry was adjourned till Aug. 15.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The river outing which took place last Sunday under the auspices of the Heads of Departments Association was a great success, in spite of the unsettled weather during the earlier part of the day. Among those present were Messrs. J. Cullen, Raphael, and McCrae, the St. James's Theatre; Mr. W. Smith (electrician), the London Coliseum; Mr. Hickman (master carpenter) and Mr. Barker, London Hippodrome; Mr. C. T. Cory (master carpenter) and Mr. F. Sheffield (electrician), the Vaudeville Theatre; Mr. W. B. Willcox (property master), the Garrick Theatre, and Mrs. Willcox; Mr. Philip Raphael, Mr. A. George (master carpenter), and Mr. F. B. Fidge (electrician), Lyceum Theatre; Mr. H. S. Henby (who recently went to America with Miss Maud Allan as her stage manager), Mr. Philip Sheridan (electrician), the Strand Theatre; Mr. David Sheridan (electrician), Mrs. Philip Raphael, Mrs. A. George, Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Woolnought, Mr. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. Thompson, jun., Mr. Valeriani, Mr. Metzen, Mr. Spiers and Mr. Spiers, jun., Mrs. Kent, Miss Blackner, Mr. Green, Mrs. Green, Mr. R. J. Carter (electrician), Terry's Theatre; Mr. and Mrs. Absolam, Mr. Townsend, Miss Merriman, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnson, and others.

The party left Paddington by the 9.40 a.m. train for Bourne End in reserved corridor carriages. The river launch La Burgoine, a most commodious and comfortable launch, took the party from Bourne End to Henley-on-Thames, where lunch was provided at the Catherine Wheel Hotel at 2 o'clock. After lunch a toast to the success of the Association was proposed by the chairman, Mr. J. Cullen, who also proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Philip Sheridan (hon. secretary) and Mr. Wm. Johnson for their services in arranging the outing. The party then proceeded up the river, tea being provided on board, and a musical entertainment, arranged by Mr. A. George, to which the following contributed: Mrs. Julia Richardson, Mr. J. Hutchins, Mr. Dan Barker, Mrs. J. Hutchins, Mrs. Raphael, Mr. and Mrs. McCare, Mr. Willie Smith, Miss Clarke, Mr. Metzen (who sang songs in several different languages), Mr. F. Hutchins, and Mr. H. Gilbert. Mr. Philip Raphael brought a gramophone and numerous records, and Mr. C. T. Cory also brought some very fine records.

Arriving at Bourne End about 8 o'clock, the party returned to London by the 8.55 for Paddington.

The Sunday Defence Committee have received the following communication, dated July 15, from the General Purposes Committee of the Cumberland County Council:—"I am directed to inform you that your letter of March was before the General Purposes Committee of the Cumberland County Council at their quarterly meeting held to-day, and the following resolution was passed thereon, viz.: 'Resolved, that this committee is heartily in sympathy with the Sunday Defence Committee, and recommend the County Council to express their opinion that permission should not be given to hold entertainments on Sunday by way of trade or for personal gain on any licensed premises, inasmuch as it will be prejudicial to the best interests of the people.'—Yours faithfully, G. W. Allan Hodgson, Clerk of Committees."

A notice of the meeting held in Terry's Theatre on Friday, under the auspices of the Sunday Defence Committee, will be found in another column.

The first staff benefit ever given at Wakefield was held at the Hippodrome on the 11th and 12th, and realised over £38. The orchestra, stage, and front staff wish to return their thanks to Mr. Sidney Tolfree for generously placing the hall at their service, to Messrs. T. Sherwood and Harry Burns for kindly giving permission to the artists, and to the latter for their kindly assistance in making the benefit such a success.

MR. MANNERS'S SCHEME.

Mr. Charles Manners is desirous of securing the co-operation of influential people who are interested in the subject of "United Empire Grand Opera," and who are willing to take shares in a limited liability company to place grand opera in English at popular prices before all classes of the community in all parts of the Empire, beginning with London and the provinces. Mr. Manners does not desire any portion of the profits or any emolument of any kind whatever for the services of his wife or himself, or for the use of his property. These he is willing to give freely.

Mr. and Mrs. Manners propose to found a company to be constituted for a period of three years only, since a short period of this length will represent a suitable opportunity for consideration of the effects of its operations. At the end of that time the shareholders can decide whether the profits made shall be devoted to the continuance and development of any scheme, or whether the capital shall be returned plus a bonus derived from the balance in hand at the time of winding up.

The company would be floated for the sum of £12,500, in 100,000 2s. 6d. shares; no shareholder to be allowed to hold more than eight shares, and the shares to be not negotiable. The object is not to form the company for the purpose of paving a dividend, but to secure the interest in the undertaking on the part of the general public, which would arise from the fact that large numbers of that general public would be in the position of holders of shares, preferably not more than one each.

It is not proposed to devote the profits to paying dividends. The surplus will be carried forward. Holders of share certificates will have the privilege of obtaining first choice of seats in all parts of the theatre, and of always taking precedence over the general public in booking seats. Each shareholder will also have the privilege of taking his unreserved seat at the theatre a quarter of an hour before the doors open to the general public. A Voluntary Committee of six will be elected each year by the shareholders, and this committee will submit or answer any questions the shareholders may wish. Preference in allotments of shares will be given to representative applicants and those whom it may be deemed will prove most useful to the scheme.

Mr. and Mrs. Manners do not intend to appear in the operas. They promise to give their services as managers, and the use of scenery, properties, costumes, band parts, with storage (except book of words), connected with the operas they have had in their répertoire of the past thirteen years; and they will take one half-crown share each. Such new material as may be required for operas that have not been performed by Mr. and Mrs. Manners to be furnished by the United Empire Grand Opera, Ltd., and to remain its sole property.

Mr. Manners will have the complete management of the company in every detail, except that the committee shall have the right to investigate financially to their own satisfaction anything they may deem necessary. After each week's visit to a town, a financial statement, signed by one of the committee, or an accountant appointed by it, will make public the profit or loss sustained by the company in that town. Should the 100,000 subscriptions not be forthcoming, the company will not be formed.

A COMPANY CATECHISM.

Mr. Charles Manners, who is forming a company to produce grand opera in English in London and the provinces under the title of the "United Empire Grand Opera," has drawn up the following list of questions and answers, which may be studied by intending shareholders:—

Question.—How do you know that there will be any profit at the end of three years?

Answer.—Because, the first year I took out a company, twelve years ago, it was, financially speaking, my worst year, and that year I made £1,200 profit. Since then we have made sufficient to make us independent.

Question.—How much of the capital will you spend before starting out?

Answer.—Not £200, as the company will be already equipped.

Question.—Then you do not want any capital at all?

Answer.—None.

Question.—Then why ask for it?

Answer.—First. To find out if there are enough people interested in National Opera before I give my work and property to the scheme;

Second. To have as much capital in the bank as I can at the end of the three years to further help National Opera; and Third. Because the more shareholders we have the more interest the progress of the company will obtain throughout the Empire.

Question.—Then you would prefer eight 2s. 6d. shareholders rather than one shareholder with eight shares?

Answer.—Yes, ever so much more.

Question.—How much do you think you will have in the bank at the end of three years?

Answer.—Well, after giving some forty weeks' performances each year for three years, both in London and the provinces, far superior to anything I have done up to now, together with perhaps a company or two sent to the Dominions, I cannot see how there could possibly be less than £25,000 to £30,000, including the capital.

Question.—Why do you limit all this to three years?

Answer.—Because by actual experience I have found that everything is gained by experience, and at the end of three years everyone concerned will have gained experience that will put us in a position to map out more safely a further step towards eventually permanently establishing opera, and it would be well for the majority to be free to carry out the step for advancement as the result of this three years' experience.

In the Court of Bankruptcy, on the 15th inst., before Mr. Registrar Linklater, an application for discharge was made by Norman J. Norman, of Ridgmount-gardens, Holborn, who failed in August last. The liabilities were returned at £4,162, and the assets at £3,601, but only a small amount had so far been realised. The debtor, an American citizen, came to England in 1898, and for some time carried on a tourist and theatrical agency in the Haymarket, S.W. Early in 1907 he became associated with a person who had taken a lease of the Shaftesbury Theatre. It was alleged that he was a partner in the venture, and was liable for half the loss—estimated at £1,598—which had accrued, but this he disputed. The only offence alleged was the insufficiency of the assets to pay 10s. in the £, and his honour granted the order of discharge, subject to the minimum suspension of two years.

Norman against Norman.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN, who went, with Miss Beatrice Wilson, to play for a week in Mr. Walter Maxwell's new venture, the Hastings Pier Pavilion, arranged to display some flags on which was painted his name in large scarlet letters. Walking behind a lady accompanied by a small boy, who were apparently deciding what place of amusement they would patronise, Mr. Norman saw the boy suddenly catch sight of the flag, and heard him exclaim to the lady: "Oh, mother, look! What is that? Norman against Norman, what match is that?" "It is evidently water-polo, my dear," replied the lady. "Oh, I would rather see that than anything else," said the boy, and the mother went to the box office to purchase two seats. There is a great deal in a name.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS MARY FORBES.

Miss Mary Forbes started her career on the concert platform and at "At Homes," giving scenes from Shakespeare and recitations. Her first appearance on the stage was as juvenile lead in a sketch, after which she played in several similar productions, both comedy and tragedy, gaining some very useful experience on the halls. At one time the company were doing four houses a night, going from one to the other in a motor. All went well until one night in a poor part of London one of the wheels came off the vehicle, and they were turned out. Fortunately no one was hurt, but great excitement was caused amongst the onlookers by the company's appearance in their costumes and make-up.

Miss Forbes is a very quick study. On one occasion she played the part of the Countess Shulah in Her Love Against the World after a few hours' notice, never having seen the play before, and was afterwards congratulated by the author. Her next engagement was as Fairy Queen, and in connection with that part an exciting incident occurred. She was waiting at the wings to go on, when, to her horror, she saw her dress in flames. One of the sequins on her dress must have touched a live electric wire, setting her dress alight. With great presence of mind she gathered the filmy costume up in her hands, and so extinguished the flames, just as her cue was given. She went on with her part quite calmly, though her hands were smarting terribly and her pretty dress was much damaged. Soon after Miss Forbes joined Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton's company, playing in As You Like It, Taming of the Shrew, and Othello—very delightful work with a very delightful company. Miss Forbes, who is the fortunate possessor of a beautiful speaking voice, has recently been achieving further triumphs as Princess Iris in Her Love Against the World. She recently concluded an engagement as Mrs. Vanstart in The Fighting Chance at the Lyceum, and on May 1 distinguished herself in the Play Actors' production of The Red Herring at the Court.

MR. CHAS. A. STEPHENSON.

The first appearance of Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson was made at the tender age of four as Harry in Uncle Tom's Cabin, in his father's (Mr. R. H. Stephenson's) company. He also figured as Willie in East Lynne, Tiny Tim in Christmas Carol, &c. Later he joined Victor Rosini's Royal Spectral Opera Company, and at fifteen was playing principal comedy parts. Seeking fresh fields and pastures new, Mr. Stephenson went with a number of companies, both stock and touring, not disdaining the wood roof or portable theatre. "To my mind," says Mr. Stephenson, "there is no better school for a young actor to gain confidence and alertness in an emergency. For instance, one week's record consisted of Duke of Gloucester in Jane Shore, Tigellinus in Sign of the Cross, Talbot in Our Boys, Charley in Charley's Aunt, and Bob Brierly in Ticket-of-Leave Man, with for Saturday afternoon a grand pantomime for the children, and in the evening Jacques Strop in Robert Macaire and William Corder in Maria Martin. We used to be not far short of perfect; in fact, there's very little gagging done in a good portable, and I never forget many a happy time I spent under the wood roof and king pole."

Mr. Stephenson played juvenile lead in Harry Bruce's A (K)night in Armour company, and figured as one of the robbers in Terence Ramsdale's pantomime Babes in the Wood. Later he undertook juvenile lead with Mr. L. Gilbert's Sons of Toil company, an engagement which involved a bit of quick study. Mr. Stephenson, who had never seen the piece before, joined the company at the Star Theatre, Wolverhampton, by the 3 p.m. train on the Monday, had the part given him, and played the juvenile lead at night without a wait or a stick in any of the lines. A tour with Mr. Esmonde Bramley's company as Dè Rochefort in The Three Musketeers, as Chateau Renaud in The Corsican Brothers, and as Archibald Carlyle in East Lynne, was followed by an engagement with Mr. J. Steele's company, playing the title-rôle in The Jack o' Hearts. His next tour was with Miss Winifred Maude's company, playing the title-rôle in The Convict, and at the end of that tour he joined Mr. D'Arcy Clayton's concert party as the Jester in his "Star Dominoes," "The Gipsies," &c. For pantomime he was with Mr. F. Mouillot's company, playing Billy Crusoe, and next appeared as Captain Donegal in Mr. J. B. Howard's Florodora company. More pantomime, same part and same management as before, more Florodora, and then pantomime at Leicester, again the same part and management. Mr. Stephenson next went to Terry's Theatre with Mr. W. H. C. Nation to play Dick in Weighed in the Balance and the Jester in The Last of the Legends, and then joined Mr. Chas. Macdona's Three Little Maids company, playing Lord Cheyne, principal comedian. After four tours as Private Charley Taylor with Mr. F. Mouillot's Blue Moon company Mr. Stephenson joined Mr. E. Marris's Dandy Doctor company, to play Brown, the millionaire, the principal comedy part, and was next with the Six Brothers Luck in Liftem's, Ltd. Mr. Stephenson has played in nearly 200 pieces, and been with over forty companies. His favourite part is Scrooge in The Christmas Carol, and his pet aversion "looking for digs. on a snowy night with a large basket and a small pair of boots."

MISS ROSAMOND MAYNE YOUNG.

Miss Rosamond Mayne Young is a great granddaughter of the tragedian, Charles Mayne Young. The first months of her professional career were spent walking on, understudying, and playing small parts at Drury Lane, and with Mr. Charles Hawtrey, but she was soon engaged by Messrs. Thalberg Corbett and Gerald Gurney for the part of Ottilia in their production of Stephenson's Prince Otto at Glasgow. Subsequently she went on tour with Mr. Corbett and Miss Marion Terry in Lady Windermere's Fan as Lady Plymdale and understudy to Miss Terry. Next Miss Young joined Mrs. Lewis Waller, to play Alice, the ingénue, in Zaza on tour, and she was re-engaged for the same part when Mrs. Waller brought the play to the Royalty for a London season. At the same theatre she then played Lady Maisie Mull, the sentimental heroine of Mr. Anstey's Lyre and Lancet during Mr. George Giddens' season in 1902.

Since then Miss Young has enacted a number of leading parts, including those of Lady Windermere, Lady Harding, The Idler; Ruth, the American heiress, in Mr. Walter Reynolds's Mr. Smith; Mrs. Chieveley, in Mr. Edward O'Neill's tour of An Ideal Husband; entire lead in a round of dramas for two stock seasons at Mr. Robert Arthur's theatres; Lady Isabel for Mr. R. C. Buchanan; and during the last two years Lady Mary in Peter's Mother, for Mr. Percy Hutchison—in which she was Miss Terry's understudy during the Haymarket revival—and for Mr. F. R. Benson, Lady Macbeth, Portia, Rosalind, Katherine (the Shrew), Ophelia, Lydia Languish, and Regan.

Miss Young's favourite line is Shakespearean, and for several years she has taken out her own company each summer in pastoral plays from the Poet. Miss Young played Mrs. Dane in Mrs. Dane's Defence, and the title-rôle in Candida for the late Mme. Illing's German tour in November and December last. Most recently she won popular favour as Caroline in Two Merry Monarchs at the Savoy.

MR. LONNEN MEADOWS.

As he was born in the dressing-room of the old Queen's Theatre, Hull, Mr. Lonnen Meadows claims to be a Yorkshireman. He belongs to an old theatrical family, his father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Champion, being both in the profession, while his brothers were the late E. J. Lonnen, of Gaiety fame, Walter Lonnen, and Victor Champion, musical conductor, now in Australia. Mr. Meadows' first appearance on any stage was made at the tender age of twelve months, when he was carried on in long clothes at the old Lyceum Theatre, Sunderland, in a piece called Gin and Water. His next appearance was as a girl, that of the child's part in Ten Nights in a Bar-room. After that he joined Charles Adams' Circus, working two performances a day and six towns a week. Then came an engagement with Frank Frayne's Kentucky Rifle Team, in a piece called Si Slocum, his duties including that of standing stock still while an apple was shot off his head and a pipe out of his mouth.

When he was fifteen Mr. Meadows played the second low comedy parts and most of the first with the late Barry Sullivan. He also had three tours with the late Charles Dillon, as assistant stage manager and comedian, and travelled with Mme. Modjeska and Miss Marriott, appearing with the latter actress at Sadler's Wells Theatre. His ability as a pantomimist and broadswordsman enabled him to play such parts as the Dumb Man of Manchester, the Monkey in Jack Robinson, the Monster in Frankenstein, and Chalet the Ferryman with the late Andrew Melville, with whom he remained four seasons. An engagement followed with Walter Hatton in My Partner and Still Waters Run Deep, as comedian and stage manager, and subsequently he produced True to the Core for the late Osmond Tearle. His next venture was to lease the Marylebone Theatre—now the West London—for six months, during which he produced a number of plays. Then came a long engagement with J. F. Elliston as his principal comedian and producer, among the various pantomimes he has produced for him being Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty and Yellow Dwarf, Dick Whittington, and Jack and the Beanstalk, and he also went to the Grand, Islington, to play Fitzwarren in Dick Whittington. The dramas produced by Mr. Meadows in the provinces are Alone in London, The Cotton King, The Union Jack, and Light at Last, in all of which he played the comedy parts. He has also fulfilled four stock seasons with Mr. Elliston, and holds the record for the Grand, Bolton, where he stayed twelve weeks without a break, writing and producing a new sketch each week. He produced Tommy Atkins for Mr. Milton Bode, playing Sergeant Paddy Molloy for a season, and also The Plunger for Hardie and Von Leer. For two years Mr. Meadows toured the principal music halls of the kingdom with his sketches The Little Gutter-snipe and Kiss Your Father. Last August he began an engagement as general manager for Mr. Walter Melville. Mr. Meadows was always very fond of athletic games, boxing and wrestling being among the most favoured.

MR. ALICK CHUMLEY.

Like a number of other actors, Mr. Alick Chumley started his career as an engineer, and he does not think that the seven years he devoted to that calling were wasted. "I consider," says he, "that the opportunities I then had, knocking about the world, of studying character, among all sorts and conditions of people, has been invaluable to me since I adopted the stage as a profession." Mr. Chumley made his first appearance on any stage, amateur or professional, at the Grand Theatre, Llandudno, in the summer of 1906, with Miss Annie Hughes, and since that time he has been associated with that lady in quite a number of successes.

At that time Mr. Chumley was, among other things, an assistant stage-manager, and apparently an energetic one, for he tells how, on one occasion, a tree being required for the performance, and the local property one looking more like a windmill, he and the property man went forth armed with an axe and saw, and returned triumphantly with a laburnum, the result being "most realistic." His first important part was that of Algernon Grey (Mr. Martin Harvey's original part) in a revival of Sweet Nancy, which was later followed by nearly a year's engagement to play the lead on tour with Miss Hughes in A Bit of Old Chelsea. Another successful appearance with that lady was as Tom Clodd in Jerome K. Jerome's comedy, Miss Tommy. His next important engagement was for the part of Mr. Baxter in Sir Charles Wyndham's company of The

MR. ALICK CHUMLEY.

Mollusc, in the autumn of 1908, at the conclusion of which he went under the management of Messrs. Murray King and Clark, to play the juvenile lead in their production of Toddles. Shortly after he was kindly released by that management to take up the part of Rian Hobart, in the first company that Mr. Frank Curzon sent on tour with An Englishman's Home, at the conclusion of which he went under the management of Mr. Robert Arthur, followed again by engagements as Lord Bantock in Jerome K. Jerome's play Fanny and the Servant Problem, George Allerton in Somerset Maugham's Explorer, Mr. Bourchier's part in Simple Simon, and Mr. Lorraine's part in G. B. Shaw's Press Cuttings. He also created the part of Tom Senoakes with Miss Madge Crichton in a new play of Arthur Shirley's. Mr. Chumley has been playing Mr. Charles Hawtrey's part in The Little Damozel, in the provinces. His favourite pursuits are walking and yachting.

THE ENGLISH THEATRE.

(SEEN THROUGH GERMAN GLASSES.)

"The theatre in England differs from that in Berlin in that in the former the goings-on do not resemble the Battle of Waterloo. During premières in Berlin all concerned have always the feeling that the fate of Europe is being decided. If I, during my time with Reinhardt," writes Mr. Hermann Bahr, the husband of the famous singer Frau von Bahr-Mildenburg, recently heard at Covent Garden, and himself an actor of note, in a feuilleton to the Berliner Tageblatt, "ventured to hint at times that there might exist in this great cosmos of ours matters more important, or at any rate quite as important, as the casting of Kosinsky, they all got very frightened, Holländer thought me mad, and even those of milder temperament declared it a certainty that I possessed no theatrical instincts. This Berlin idea of being imbued with theatrical instinct, as though the rest of creation existed merely for furnishing material for running theatres, does not appear to be harboured in England. The English public certainly does not merit its reputation for coldness. I never witnessed such scenes of enthusiasm as at the London première of Elektra, and again when on the occasion of its fifth performance Strauss appeared in the conductor's chair. The Englishman, on the other hand, never forgets that there exist such matters as cancer research, redistribution of wealth, and kindred questions. The Berlin idealism, capable of forgetting in a world of make-believe all the stern realities of the actual world, does not flourish among Englishmen. Such idealism is fostered by them only in the cases of football or golf.

"Another difference is to be found in the fact that, according to British ideas, the drama has really nothing to do with art or with literature. The Englishman, as a rule, is not in the habit of asking what anything is supposed to represent, but contents himself with what it is; but demands that whatever it is must be of the highest quality. Thus our criticisms of theatrical amusements, constantly striving to connect them somehow with the whole life of the nation, is to him incomprehensible. He understands that a poet may at times make use of the dramatic form; but he does not see why he should have it performed in a theatre, a place where even the few spectators who are in any way in touch with art or poetry least expect to encounter either. I once expressed my surprise to an eminent English critic that Shakespeare was so rarely seen on the English stage. He replied that the Englishman thought too much of Shakespeare to allow him to be desecrated by such performances. And he asked me whether the Germans could seriously bear it to see Faust sacrificed on the stage. We did not arrive at any agreement, and to this day I am not sure whether our difference arose from the fact that the Englishman does not regard the theatre as something so closely connected with art as we do, or perhaps because he looks upon art from a more artistic standpoint than ourselves, and for that reason does not wish to have it mixed up with all sorts of things. Just as little do I know whether the English are so furious with Shaw because he disturbs their comfortable theatre habits by his earnestness, or because to them an earnestness which is displayed in so common a place as a theatre does not appear earnest enough. We are occasionally inclined to treat our theatre as our church. And we are proud to show the theatre such high esteem. To the Englishman it seems rather as though we thereby testify our contempt for the church. I have never succeeded in making it plain to an Englishman that there can be any vestige of sense in producing things which properly belong to the pulpit, the rostrum, or into a book, before a congregation of digesting human beings, who are entitled for their money to expect to be pleasantly excited, sensuously amused, and to be relieved of their accumulated internal ponderousness by means of all sorts of adventures.

The Englishman does not dream of turning the theatre into an institution of morality: he has quite enough of these. Neither does Wagner's idea to give us heroic life in the theatre appeal to him; for that purpose he prefers India or South Africa. He does not look upon the theatre as a matter for the people, for what he regards as the people cannot be accommodated in boxes and dress circles. The theatre in England is nothing more or less than a social function. Not quite so ceremonious as an English dinner party, and always with a slight flavour, dating from puritanical days, of something not quite permissible, something rather improper, a concession to sinful pleasure on which the intrepid sense of freedom of the British middle classes insists. This coincides with the British tendency of contemplating the possibilities of immorality without taking any moral harm. Strong emotions they avoid, convinced that in this respect the stage cannot compete with sport. The latter forms the centre of the national life, influencing religion, art, and politics. No such attempt is made by the theatre. It suffices to serve up slightly sensual pleasures, not entirely devoid of spiritual charm, with discreet ceremonial, after dinner to well-to-do, fashionably dressed, and by nature somewhat taciturn people, who could not possibly be expected to undergo the exertions of conversation before dropping off to sleep. Let us not overlook the fact that the old German Court theatres were much the same until they became alarmed at the assumptions of bourgeois idealism. Just such another old German Court theatre, only adapted to the broader and soberer tastes of the middle classes, is the English theatre of to-day. It disappoints the large demands which the German stage pretends to cater for.

"In England there exists but one maxim, to please as many as possible, which is regarded with us in the light of a disgrace; the German despises what pleases him, and believes to have a sure test for the beautiful in the secret knowledge that it displeases him. In England playwright and actor have no other object but to entertain the spectator, and he, in turn, only desires to be entertained. Thus with determined goodwill on both sides their object is easily attained. Englishmen sit in the theatre with astounding devotion, something like the Italians, who also look forward with joy like children to the promised play. And, like children, if it pleases them, they are so grateful that they never stop to ask themselves whether they really ought to be pleased. For that reason dramatic criticism is of less importance in England than in Germany. The principal trait of British dramatic art is the outcome of the fact that it has to deal with children. Children insist on having the same stories told them over and over again, always with as many thrills as possible. This is the nucleus of British dramatic art. For centuries past it has told the same stories, but provides surprises in competitions of technical skill. A great German actor is one who is somebody out of the ordinary, a specimen of strong, intense humanity; a great English actor is one who can do something out of the ordinary, a being of unusual and striking aptitude. The power of a great German actor consists in being able to show how much a man can achieve. Whilst the Germans demand nature from their actor, the Englishman asks for arts. The great English actors never quite come up to German expectations as regards to soul: they appear too artificial. On the other hand, many of the smaller artists, who are scarcely appreciated in England, show a skilled knowledge of their profession which is almost unknown in Germany. The greatest praise, too, is due to the good taste displayed on English stages in the matter of costumes, decorations, and lighting, which are not approached on German stages."

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

"PROGRESS."

Robertson's Progress, produced at the Globe Theatre in 1869, was adapted from Victorien Sardou's Les Ganaches. It may be interesting to note the cast of the play as then presented:—Lord Mompesson, Mr. Charles Collette; Hon. Arthur Mompesson, Mr. Henry Neville; Dr. Brown, Mr. John Clarke, Mr. Bunnythorne, Mr. Parselle; Bob Bunnythorne, Mr. E. Marshall; John Ferne, Mr. John Billington; Mr. Danby, Mr. H. Westland; Eva, Miss Lydia Foote; Miss Myrnie, Mrs. Stephens. Mr. Collette is now the only survivor of the original cast.

Progress preaches the gospel of progress against prejudice, science versus sentiment, trade combating tradition, invention allied to iconoclasm in the grips with insular irresponsibility. The play is full of strong characterisation and many quiet touches of humour, but it at times deteriorates into mere melodrama, bald and unconvincing. It is the usual tale of the course of true love which only runs smoothly at the end of the chapter, but it serves as a vehicle for some excellent pictures of the manners and thought of the times. The fierce opposition to the destruction of the old Abbey to make way for a railway is one of the chief features of the plot. The recent innovation of railways, velocipedes, penny papers, and other such-like atrocities are held up to scorn and contumely. In these days of motor-cars, aviation, and universal cheap literature it is necessary to dress the play to the period to preserve its impressiveness and reality. Mr. Edward Sass acts with authority and a splendid sense of character and feeling as Dr. Brown; Mr. Arthur Wontner is particularly good as the Hon. Arthur Mompesson, quietly scoring all his points; Mr. O. B. Clarence is most amusing as the muddle-headed old advocate of "the good old times," Mr. Bunnythorne, sen., and as his young hopeful, Bob Bunnythorne, Mr. J. H. Brewer is distinctly droll, his poetic utterances and sublime self-conceit being excruciatingly funny. Mr. James Carew is strong and impressive as the engineer, John Ferne, a part most skilfully handled by this promising actor; Miss Nell Compton is an attractive and sympathetic heroine, Eva Summers, and the Miss Myrnie of Miss Annie Brunton is chock-full of feline spitefulness and ascerbity. Mr. James la Fane as old Lord Mompesson, a part which he fills with ability, and Mr. Whitford Kane as Mr. Danby and Mr. William Rokeby as Wykeham do good service in small parts. The rendering of Grieg's music by the Chamber Quartet gains frequent applause. Altogether this is a most interesting and enjoyable revival.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama, entitled

"THE SORROWS OF SATAN."

This week Mr. Fred Melville is presenting the version by Mr. Maurice H. Hoffman of this popular novel. The stock company give a capital interpretation of the play, and have become favourites with local playgoers. Mr. Maurice H. Hoffman well realises the character of Prince Lucio, and is admirably supported by Miss Ethel King as Lady Sybil Elton, whose meritorious acting is deserving of warm eulogy. Miss Marie McAulay does good work as Miss Fitzroy; Mr. Newman Maurice is highly popular with Brixtonians, and deserves the applause he receives for his impersonation of the Earl of Elton. Mr. Frederic Serjeant is good as Geoffrey Tempest; Mr. W. H. Porter stands out prominently as Viscount Lynton; and Mr. Walter Howe makes the most of Capt. Forbes. Mr. Victor Loraine does justice as Mr. Morgerson; and Mr. Will Smith is a capital James. Miss Marie Duncan is very good as Diana Chesney; and Miss May Day is capital as Mavis Clare. Miss Norah Layton deserves commendation as Mrs. Hardeen; and Miss Essie Baulsh is also capital as Ernest. The Sorrows of Satan is well mounted and dressed, and the production deserves praise.

"TILL DEATH US DO PART."

A Dramatic Episode by W. T. Gliddon, Produced for the first time, at the Brixton Theatre, on Monday, July 18, 1910.

Lady Carholme ..... Miss Marie McAulay
Lord Carholme ..... Mr. Will Smith
Jimmy Jorkins ..... Mr. Newman Maurice
Mr. Chanley ..... Mr. Victor Loraine
Sam Bredford ..... Mr. Will H. Porter

This little play, written by Mr. W. T. Gliddon, who has so long been honourably associated with this theatre as musical conductor, had a warm and encouraging send-off on its initial production. It is a well-constructed and powerful "episode," and should have a prosperous career. The opening scene takes place in the drawing-room at Lord Carholme's, where his lordship and Mr. Chanley (his lawyer) are discovered arranging for the disposal of the estate in case of his lordship's demise. Lord Carholme decides to leave everything to his wife, and Mr. Chanley reminds him that his son, whom the family have not heard of for twenty years, may be alive. His lordship, however, will not alter his will, and signs it in favour of her ladyship. At this moment a tramp, named Sam Bredford, calls and asks for employment. In this disreputable fellow poor Lady Carholme finds, to her astonishment, her first husband, whom she long supposed dead. Sam promises to leave her in peace on certain terms, but she will not consent. A bitter quarrel follows, in which her ladyship is injured, and Sam bolts through the open window. Lady Carholme fears to tell the horrible truth to her husband, and shields Sam, explaining that her condition is due to faintness. Her engagements for that evening, for the opera, she cancels, in order that she may meet Bredford, and come to some arrangement. This gentleman, however, had noticed the safe in the Carholme mansion, and returns to rob it. Lord Carholme, who hears a noise, enters the room, which is darkened, and is shot dead by Bredford. Then her ladyship comes into the room, picks up the revolver, and is accused by Sam of murdering her husband. Luckily, Jimmy Jorkins, the valet, has been hiding in a suit of armour, and is a witness of the tragedy. When the lights are turned on in the darkened room Sam discovers that he has killed his own father, and turns the revolver on himself. Mr. W. T. Gliddon must be highly congratulated on his début as an author of a strong dramatic story, although he is well known as the writer of several successful musical plays, especially that favourite musical comedy The Flower Girl. Miss Marie McAulay gave a powerful rendering of the part of Lady Carholme, and Mr. Will Smith was, as usual, capital as Lord Carholme; Mr. Newman Maurice was amusing as Jimmy Jorkins; Mr. W. H. Porter did good work as Sam Bredford, and Mr. Victor Loraine made an admirable lawyer.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama entitled

"THE SILVER KING."

The revival of that well-known and ever-popular drama The Silver King by Mr. Robert Arthur's Répertoire company at the Kennington Theatre on Monday was received with every mark of appreciation by a packed house. The part of Wilfred Denver was taken by Mr. Walter Gay, who added yet another to his long series of triumphs at this house. As Nellie Denver, Miss Jessie Winter was in her most winsome and attractive mood; as Cissie, Denver's daughter, Miss Ethel Videan showed considerable talent; and in the rôle of Captain Herbert Skinner, the Spider, Mr. Fred Morgan made one of his greatest hits; the little peculiarities of Mr. Elijah Coombe, the ancient Thameside marine store-dealer, who acts as one of the Spider's assistants, caused roars of laughter, the character being taken with great credit by Mr. Herbert Lloyd; Crippa, the locksmith, another partner of the Spider's, was ably impersonated by Mr. G. P. Polson; Mr. Frank R. Crimp, as Samuel Baxter, the detective who tracks down the Spider, looked the part to perfection; whilst a fine piece of acting was that of Miss Winifred White as Olive Skinner, the wife of the Spider; Mr. Arthur Wright earned considerable applause for his rendering of the character of Jacques, the devoted servant of the Denvers; and Mr. Ralph Leon gave a life-like representation of Henry Corket, clerk to Geoffrey Ware, the young engineer whom the Silver King is supposed to have murdered. The numerous other characters which make up the large cast were excellently drawn, and altogether the piece was highly successful. Cinematograph pictures were shown before and after the performance.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama entitled

"GUILTY GOLD."

The series of sterling melodramas which Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett is producing at his popular house at Clapham Junction is proving very attractive, and throughout this week crowded houses have thoroughly enjoyed the presentation of Mr. Horace Stanley's powerful drama Guilty Gold. The play is acted by a company admirably suited to the various rôles, and the success of the production is enhanced by the scenery. Mr. Ernest J. Fare shows considerable ability in his delineation of Martin Haldane, and makes the character very interesting. The villainy of Ralph Bartlett is pictured with striking force by Mr. George Arthur, who ably emphasises the callous nature of the man; John Hampton is well portrayed by Mr. T. B. Brabazon, who acts with dramatic power; Mr. T. Arthur Plummer, as Frank Seymour, is a manly clergyman, and his excellent methods of delivery give every value to his stirring lines. Mr. Horace Stanley, whose comic resource is infinite, makes the character of Timothy Titmouse laughable, and keeps the audience in a state of merriment. Other contributors to the humour are Mr. Edwin Clarke as Uriah Fudge, Mr. Arthur E. Francis as Charlie Wragg, and Mr. Evan Roland as Peter Bell; Miss Violet Agnew is a pleasant and attractive Hetty Hampton; Miss Ida Fane as Euphenia Wragg acquits herself with credit; Miss Bernice Fielding as Rhoda Hampton gives a meritorious presentation, and Miss Kate Kilpack lends good support as Selina Naggett.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, July 18, the Drama,

"HER SECRET LOVER."

Messrs. Barnards are to be congratulated on their capital booking this week, in the shape of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, in that spirited play Her Secret Lover. We have in this a play with a simple, but interesting plot, which is well interpreted by a distinctly capable company. Mr. Arthur St. John is the hero, Gilbert Seymour, who afterwards takes the name of Elmore; his performance is worthy of much commendation. Mr. Walter H. Wilson does well as the "good fellow," Captain Darrell Rose; Mr. Alfred Stretton makes a distinguished villain as John Strange; Mr. Robert Lord plays in lifelike manner as old Mr. Muirfield; Mr. Victor Vernon is a comedian of no mean order, and scores greatly as Billy Burley; Mr. J. Newton Colling is also humorous as Jim Jones; Miss Laura Walker plays naturally as the much-tried heroine, Ivy Seymour, bringing a handsome presence to the aid of some good acting; Miss Flora Leslie brings out all the wickedness of the adventuress, Alicia Royale; Miss Lynn Darlington is aptly described on the bill as a funny servant, and her rendering of the part of Jane Maria Wilkes is responsible for much laughter, and is a bright, amusing piece of acting; Mr. Harry Cob is the good-hearted Warder Phillips. The drama is well staged.

"THE TURQUOISE NECKLACE."

Play in One Act, by Constance Meredyth, Produced at the Criterion Theatre on Thursday afternoon, July 21.

Major Robert Sinclair.... Mr. Dawson Milward
Lady Tallents ..... Lady Clarke-Jervoise
Miss Araminta Smith ..... Miss Alice Bett
Telegraph Boy..... Master Maurice Edmonds
Dorothy Morgan..... Miss Constance Meredyth

Not much need be written of the above play, which, though pleasing in idea, is slight in treatment, and did not give its exponents any great opportunities of distinction. The story is that of a certain Dorothy Morgan, whose lover, Major Sinclair, returns from India, having on the journey home become engaged to a rich young widow. Dorothy, who is introduced to the lady, conceals the Major's fickleness, and gives the widow a turquoise necklace which he had sent Dorothy from Colombo. That capable actor Mr. Dawson Milward and Miss Alice Bett made the most of their material. In the general entertainment, which was for the benefit of the King Edward Memorial Pensioners of the Blind Relief Society, Miss Dorothy Varick's recitations at the piano were agreeable and interesting; Mr. Percy French's "Chuckles in Chalk" created amusement; Mr. Barclay Gammon, with a piano, was again acceptable; Miss N. de Silva and Mr. Henry Ainley, in An Hour of Seven Days, made a contribution to the bill which atoned for many deficiencies; Miss Edith Kirkwood sang three of Mr. F. Lambert's songs with ability; and Mr. Fraser Gange, Miss Cecilia Loftus, and Lady Constance Stewart Richardson also appeared with credit.

The Great Western Railway's new route between London and Birmingham, Wolverhampton, and Shrewsbury, has been made by building an entirely new piece of line between the villages of Ashendon and Aynho. 1906 saw the opening of what has now become the first portion from London of the new route, by the inauguration of the line through Beaconsfield, High Wycombe, and Princes Risborough, and by cutting across country from a point a few miles north of the latter place, at Ashendon, to a point near Banbury, and it has been possible to rejoin the G.W.R. line from Oxford and avoid the journey round by Reading, Didcot, and the University city, and effect a saving of twenty minutes. Of this new route, the G.W.R. intends to make full use, and a magnificent service of weekday express trains in each direction is announced. Shrewsbury, Chester, Liverpool, and Manchester share equally in the benefits afforded to the great metropolis of the Midlands, and the times to Leamington, Warwick, and "Shakespeare's Country" generally have also been accelerated.

Florence Rhoda Emma Bainton, aged 18, a costumier's assistant, of Turret-grove, Clapham, was charged, on remand, before Mr. Mead, at Marlborough-street, on Saturday, with stealing five £10 notes belonging to Miss Fanny Ward, actress, living in Berkeley-square. On the afternoon of June 23 Miss Ward was being fitted at Lucile's, Ltd., Hanover-square, with a costume, and left her purse on a table. On arrival at her hotel she found that five £10 notes had been stolen from the purse, which was of a kind that could not open automatically and let things drop out. When arrested the girl said: "I stole them. You know where I work—at Lucile's. Miss Ward must have dropped them." Witness added that the prisoner had spent about £30 of the money, and the firm who employed her were prepared to refund that sum to Miss Ward. He had recovered £21 5s. Among other articles she purchased was a cigarette case and jewellery, the cigarette case being recovered from her sweetheart, who had asked her not to send him presents. The prisoner was sentenced to seven days in the second division.

A copyright performance of a drama in four acts, by Miriam Michelson, entitled The Duchess Barbara, was given at the Court Theatre on the 11th inst.

"NIGHT AND MORNING."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Frank Libdo, Performed at the New Lyric, Hammersmith, on Monday, July 18.

Richard Sefton ..... Mr. Stanley Carlton
Lionel Mildmay ..... Mr. Bertram Damer
Dr. Gilmour ..... Mr. Claude Aymond
Lucas Hardshore ..... Mr. John Croudace
Bob Barleycorn ..... Mr. Willis H. Vernon
M. Dupois ..... Mr. Chas. Wilson
Peter Sharkley ..... Mr. James Fielding
Muggins ..... Mr. Frank Fortescue
Rev. Samuel Holmes .. Mr. Arthur Merdaunt
Sowerby ..... Mr. Alfred Dean
Bolton ..... Mr. Tom Murray
Jonathan Crisp ..... Mr. Dan Warden
Thomas Hammond ..... Mr. Percy Roland
Jenkins ..... Mr. G. E. Gilmour
Charlie ..... Little Gertie Renaud
Mary ..... Miss Nora Bond
Mrs. Barleycorn ..... Miss Jenny Bostock
Selina ..... Miss Marion Holly
Alice Wylford ..... Miss Rubie Maude

The above drama, which was produced at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, on Feb. 4, 1901, abounds in strong action. There is a wealth of brightness and humour in it, relieving the tension of the plot, which keeps the audience up to a high pitch of eager interest. There are some particularly well-conceived characters, and the piece moves along in a most entertaining manner, the sequence of incidents being clear and direct.

The story deals with a fortune coveted by Lucas Hardshore, an important official in the G.P.O., who has misappropriated Government money. His two step-children, Alice Willford and her small brother Charlie, stand between him and a fortune. Charlie is put in charge of Dr. Gilmour, a schoolmaster, with instructions to kill him by ill-treatment; and Alice is placed at Dr. Gilmour's college as a teacher and his ward. Lionel Mildmay, an assistant master at the school, is to marry the heiress and share the fortune with Hardshore. Richard Sefton, however, another assistant master, becomes betrothed to Alice, in defiance of the scheme, thrashes Hardshore, who is about to beat Charlie, and leaves the school, taking Alice and Charlie with him. The trio find refuge in the lodgings of Bob Barleycorn, a showman; employment is found by the teachers, and the wedding-day is fixed, but the bridal is prevented by the plotters, who accuse Sefton of theft; the latter is arrested, but a clergyman protects Alice. The nature of the drama may be gathered from this opening, the progress of the plot involving several effective mechanical effects, including a scene in which the hero hangs on to a mail-bag, is caught by a passing train, and is thus able to prevent the villain from throwing the heroine out into a quarry.

The acting throughout is of a very high order, and the cast has been very happily chosen. Mr. Stanley Carlton as Richard Sefton fills the part with a completeness which convinces, and his work is clean and dignified. Lionel Mildmay could hardly have been in better hands than in those of Mr. Bertram Damer, whose fine and stalwart figure harmonises well with the character. His make-up is excellent. The part of Dr. Gilmour is given its full value, and well characterised by Mr. Claude Aymond. Mr. John Croudace supplies a crisp rendering of Lucas Hardshore. Miss Rubie Maude's impersonation of Alice Wylford mirrors the tenderness and sweetness of the author's conception. Miss Marion Holly as Selina keeps the house in peals of merriment. The baker's boy, Muggins, is ably enacted by Mr. Frank Fortescue, who earns golden opinions. Miss Jenny Bostock as Mrs. Barleycorn is a round peg in a round hole. As Bob Barleycorn Mr. Willis H. Vernon is delightfully hearty and genuine. Mr. Arthur Merdaunt's Rev. Samuel Holmes commands respect and admiration; and Mr. G. E. Gilmour as Jenkins, the constable, is droll and amusing. Thomas Hammond and Jonathan Crisp are cleverly portrayed by Mr. Percy Roland and Mr. Dan Warden, who, together with Mr. Alfred Dean as Sowerby and Mr. Tom Murray as Bolton, give satisfactory performances. Remaining members of a promising cast are Miss Nora Bond as the servant Mary, Mr. James Fielding as Peter Sharkley, and Mr. Chas. Wilson as M. Dupois. Little Gertie Renaud as Charlie is excellent. The scenery, by the Lyric Studio and R. Berre, of Earl Studio, Hastings, deserves mention, and the music, specially composed by Charles Cross, is very appropriate. The general-management is in the hands of Mr. Stanley Carlton, and the stage management is controlled by Mr. Frank Fortescue, assisted by Mr. John Croudace. Mr. G. E. Gilmour is acting-manager.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

A vocal recital by the students of Miss Fannie Kreuz was given at the Trinity College on Monday afternoon. Mr. Harold Treadaway sang "Hear ye, ye winds and waves" (Handel), and Miss Evelyn Matthews was applauded for her intelligent rendering of Liszt's song "The Loreley." One of Miss Kreuz's most successful pupils was Miss Agnes Browning, who sang "Down in the forest" and "A little winding road," both by Landon Ronald, and Liza Lehmann's "Thoughts have wings" with admirable purity of tone and enunciation. It is not a bad plan for students to try and sing well in English before attempting any other language. This, of course, applies chiefly to native pupils, for Mr. Rudolph Gaillard sang Massenet's "Herodiade" with considerable confidence and success. No student vocal recital would be complete without the "Jewel Song" from Faust, of which Miss Edith Roder gave a fair average performance; while Miss Alice Booth displayed intelligence in her singing of Mozart's Rondo from Titus. Mr. Harold Treadaway was again heard in "Du bist wie eine Blume" (Schumann) and "Hedge roses" (Schubert). In "Sändmannchen" (Brahms) and Stange's "Demon" Miss Evelyn Matthews had perhaps greater success than the difficult "Loreley." Mr. Rudolph Gaillard gave two songs from Cycle "Dichterliebe," "Wenn ich in deine Augen seh" and "Ich will meine Seele tauchen" (Schumann), and Mozart's "Warnung"; while Miss Alice Booth and Miss Edith Roder were again again heard in songs of Landon Ronald and Tosti, the recital ending with Florence Aylward's song "Beloved, it is morn" (organ accompaniment by Harry Gray), sung by Miss Agnes Browning.

On Tuesday afternoon the College Choir of the Trinity College of Music, conducted by Dr. H. T. Pringuer, gave Handel's Acis and Galatea. The solo parts were undertaken by the Misses Florence Griffiths, Bertha Tomlin, and C. Wisdom, and Messrs. J. Watts Daunton, M. Henderson, J. Myers, A. Collini, and S. W. Sharvell. All the students did credit to their professor, and some displayed exceptional talent. Strangely enough, the most difficult solo in Acis and Galatea—the recit. "I rage, I melt, I burn," and air "O ruddier than the cherry"—was capitally sung; while next in importance and successful interpretation came the solo "When beauty's the prize." Greatly applauded also was the fine trio "The flock shall leave the mountain" and the tenor solo "Softly, gently, kindly treat her." The beautiful solo "Love in her eyes is playing" was rendered with intelligence, and Galatea's air "Bring my Acis back to my sight" was sung with good expression; but, on the whole, the male vocalists were most successful. Two duets were well sung, and the chorus produced an excellent tone. Handel's serenata, although a somewhat ambitious work for students, was performed with earnest care that did great credit to the pupils of Dr. H. T. Pringuer.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The annual meeting of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music was held at twelve o'clock on Tuesday at the Royal Society's Rooms, Burlington House. Sir William B. Bigge took the chair, and among those present were Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie (Principal of the Royal Academy of Music), Sir C. Hubert Parry (Director of the Royal College of Music), Mrs. T. P. Lockwood, Miss Newlyn, Mr. Oscar Browning, Mr. Louis Cohen (New Zealand), Mr. Frank Cundall (Jamaica), Mr. Eaton Faning, Mr. Edward A. Harvey, Sir J. Herbert Marshall, Mr. Ernest Mathews, Cav. Alberto Randegger, Mr. Franklin Taylor, Mr. Hans Wessely, and Mr. James Muir (secretary).

Sir William Bigge, in moving the adoption of the report, said: "This is a very sad occasion, and the first paragraph of the report, which has just been read, indicates, so to speak, the minor key that must predominate at our proceedings to-day.

"We deplore the great national calamity of the death of his late Majesty King Edward the Seventh, which has been felt with peculiar poignancy by the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music, and by ourselves. It has brought in its train the loss of our President, a loss which is emphasised by the place in which we are meeting to-day, and the person who to-day has the honour of presiding. I am very thankful to be able to announce that his Majesty King George the Fifth has been graciously pleased to become our Patron, and to express, on behalf of the Board, our loyal thanks for his consideration and condescension.

"It will certainly not be out of place to put before you the record of our work during the reign of his late Majesty, as illustrating what you have just heard, that he saw the work increase from small beginnings to its present vast dimensions. In the year 1901-2, the first year of his late Majesty's accession, the number of our local centre entries was 3,057, and our school entries 8,687, while in the period 1909-1910 they were respectively 4,373 and 18,679, making a total in the first period of 11,744, and in the period that has just closed of 23,052. In Australasia, during the same period, the entries were 3,469, as against 8,908; in Canada, about 100, as against 459; in Gibraltar, 60, as against 86; and in Malta and Jamaica, where examinations were not established in the first period, we have had respectively 148 and 154 candidates; while in South Africa, where the increase is extraordinarily marked, in the first period the entries were 788, while in the latter period they were 2,800, the totals respectively being 16,161, as against 35,607. Turning to our exhibitions, in the United Kingdom in 1901-2 they were tenable for two years, and twelve were actually current, while in the period that has just closed they were tenable for three years, and twenty-five were actually current, and six others were granted, but have not yet been taken up, and altogether, in the whole period of our existence, we have examined over 300,000 candidates and have awarded eighty-two exhibitions.

"Before I pass to other matters connected with the report, I have the greatest pleasure, in the name of the board, in expressing our warmest thanks to the President and Council of the Royal Society for their great kindness in permitting us to hold our annual meeting here in this shrine of science.

"It is a significant and most encouraging fact that last year, out of three gold medals two were gained for harmony, while out of five silver medals four were awarded for the same subject, for up to only a very few years ago but few medals were awarded for harmony, which shows that the study of this all-important subject is gaining ground amongst our candidates.

"The increasing number of public distributions of certificates is a most satisfactory feature of last year's work. These distributions bring our work into contact with the healthy breezes of public life and opinion, and they establish personal and friendly relations between the members of the board, its examiners, and the teachers. My only regret is that as so many of these distributions, perforce, take place during term time, it is well-nigh impossible, as you will readily understand, for either the Principal of the Royal Academy of Music, or the Director of the Royal College of Music, or the musical members of the board, to attend (though they would very much like to do so), having regard to the enormous amount of work that devolves upon them all here during the session of the great colleges.

"In last year's report, you will remember that it was announced that, following on the expiration of the agreement between the Associated Board and McGill University, the board had taken effective steps for again conducting its own examinations in the Dominion of Canada independently of their late partner, and it will be very gratifying to you to hear that the Canadian entries, since April 30, 1910, show an increase of 50 per cent. over those of last year.

"I would reiterate and endorse our sense of obligation to the Honorary Local Representatives throughout the Empire, and I should like to welcome amongst us to-day Mr. Cohen, of Wanganui, New Zealand, and Mr. Cundall, of Jamaica. The Honorary Local Representatives are the all-important factor in our organisation, as supplying the links which bring us into touch with the teachers, who, in their turn, provided the candidates for our examinations. These, as I have said, number about 300,000 since the board came into existence, which speaks eloquently for the support we have received in the past, and enables us to look forward with all confidence to the future.

"Lastly, I would specially thank the municipal and other bodies who have helped us, and ask that their valuable co-operation may always be ours, for it is of the highest importance to our work that we should receive the continuous countenance and support of those whose high office it is to safeguard and develop our civic and municipal life.

"I move that the report and balance-sheet be received and adopted."

This motion was seconded by Mr. Ernest Mathews, and was adopted unanimously. A vote of thanks to Sir William Bigge, proposed by Sir Alexander Mackenzie and seconded by Sir Hubert Parry, was carried unanimously, and the proceedings then terminated.

The annual distribution of prizes to the successful students of the Royal Academy of Music took place at the Scala Theatre on Thursday afternoon. A short selection of music by the students commenced the proceedings. Conducted by Mr. Hans Wessely, the violin ensemble class gave an excellent account of Sir A. C. Mackenzie's "A Song of Thanksgiving," Méhul's "Gavotte," and a very crisp performance of Bohm's "Moto perpetuo." The selected female choir, conducted by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, sang two part songs, "Bonnie Annie Laurie," arranged by Charles Macpherson, and Mr. F. Corder's "Gentle Night," with admirable tone, and were warmly applauded. The accompanists were Mr. Rowsby Woof and Mr. S. Hartley Braithwaite.

In giving his annual address, Sir Alexander Mackenzie (who had a very hearty reception), said: "During the last few days the Academy has been moving so much beyond its customary grooves, performing unusual ceremonies on unfamiliar spots, and there are so many important changes looming in the near future, that it seems quite in keeping with the roving spirit it has developed in its old age that we should find ourselves in this unwonted locale at the final meeting of this eventful year.

"Truly eventful has this year been to us in the sad share we bear in the calamity which befel the nation so recently. The death of King Edward is felt as a personal loss, and as an Institution we lose a generous patron. The most important moment in our history was that in which our kind Vice-President, Lord Strathcona, laid the first stone of our future home, and when the Chairman, Mr. Alderman Cooper, read the Duke of Connaught's telegram: 'Congratulate you on stone of our new building being laid.'" In speaking of Tenterden-street the Principal said: "It may be cramped and dingy, its passages tortuous and many, and certainly our needs have long outgrown its capacity nevertheless many treasured associations and traditions have accumulated with the years, which are not likely to be effaced. It has been the nursery of many of the best-known musicians our country has produced. Some of the most honoured names in English musical history were made there, even while their owners were still students. In the concert hall of our new school will be placed the largest of three new organs which by the generous assistance of the widow of our late chairman are to be erected in memory of one who, alas! was not permitted to witness the completion of a scheme the earlier stages of which he earnestly furthered until the day of his untimely death. These instruments will bear the name of Thomas Threlfall. During the year no fewer than four past students have been called to the staff of Professors, Mr. York Bowen, Mr. Benjamin Dale, Mr. Rowsby Woof, and Mr. Felix Swinstead. Mr. E. J. Hickox is now also on the long list of pianoforte teachers." Sir Alexander spoke of the loss the Academy had sustained by the death of Mr. Ebenezer Prout, and a valued ex-student and professor, Mr. Alfred Izard. "Our Chamber and Orchestral Concerts have maintained their intrinsic interest in a satisfactory manner, and several effective new compositions were produced. The most important essay on our little dramatic stage was that of Gilbert's Palace of Truth. The operatic class also made an exceptionally spirited effort in the performance of Colomba, and on a subsequent occasion the second act of Lohengrin was followed by one of the merriest and best performances of Sullivan's Trial by Jury which I have ever seen. One is glad to note the increasing interest taken in opera in our own tongue, and to think it is now on a fair road towards permanent recognition. The value of operatic training in our music schools has been receiving a considerable amount of attention. As a matter of fact there is quite a number of our past students now on the operatic stage. It gives me much satisfaction to see just now in His Majesty's Theatre the names of at least a couple of ex-students worthily representing the Academy. In the production of Feuersnot I noted three of them. Under enlarged and more favourable conditions which await us we shall be able to take a fuller share in the national project. The wings of the Dove Prize bring no peace or rest to me. The Dove has hovered between a couple of female students, and has finally settled on one who is an excellent violinist, a good pianist and accompanist, while never absent from her seat in the orchestra. I award it to Miss Phyllis Parker. Messrs. Chappell and Co. and Messrs. Challen and Sons have given two gold medals. The Chappell medal goes to Mr. Frank Hutchens and the Challen medal to Miss Adela Hamaton. The names of Grisi and Mario are household words in England, and the daughter of those world-famous artists, Mrs. Cecilia Maria Pearse, to perpetuate the memory of her parents, has founded an annual prize of ten guineas for vocalists. Finally, I should mention the beautiful bust by Signor Manzoni of the great 'cellist, Alfredo Piatti, presented in February to us by his daughter, the Countess Piatti-Lochis."

After Sir Alexander Mackenzie's interesting address, Mrs. Edward E. Cooper, wife of the honorary treasurer, distributed the numerous prizes and awards to the successful students. One prize calls for special mention, and that is the Rutson Memorial Prize, the gift of Mr. John Rutson in memory of his brother, for clear enunciation of words and steadiness of intonation in singing, was divided between Miss Molly Smyly, Cynlais Gibbs, and Cecil Pearson. Also important was the Betjemann Gold Medal for operatic singing, won by Mr. William J. Samuell.

After a vote of thanks to Mrs. Cooper the proceedings terminated with the National Anthem.

THE "RICHELIEU" FAILURE.

In the King's Bench Division on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Phillimore and a Common Jury, was heard the case of Palmer v. Bickers. This was an action brought by Mr. Palmer, trustee in the bankruptcy of Mr. John Arthur Harrison, theatrical costumier, against Mr. H. Sheridan Bickers, described as a dramatic critic, to recover £760 5s. 6d., under a guarantee given by the defendant to Mr. Harrison. The defendant denied liability. Mr. Dickens, K.C., and Mr. Henn Collins (instructed by Messrs. Stanley, Woodhouse, and Hodderwick) appeared for the plaintiff; while Mr. H. McKenna (instructed by Messrs. Bircham and Co.) represented the defendant. Mr. Dickens, opening the case for the plaintiff, said that last January Mr. Harrison took a lease of the Strand Theatre from the liquidators of the Law Guarantee Society, with the object of sub-letting it. He entered into negotiations with Mr. Robert Hilton, who was anxious to have the theatre in order to produce the play Richelieu, and Mr. Hilton agreed to take the theatre for three months at a rental of £175 a week, payable fortnightly in advance, and to deposit the sum of £350. Mr. Hilton was unable to find the necessary money, and Mr. Harrison said he would not allow the theatre to be opened until the agreement had been completed. On February 10 the defendant, with three other persons, guaranteed the payment of £760 5s. 6d. by noon on February 12, and the further sum of £350 at a later date. Mr. Hilton was accordingly allowed to open the theatre, but after three performances it was again closed. The first sum due under the guarantee was not paid, and an action was commenced against the guarantors. Judgment had been entered against the defendant's co-guarantors, and the only question for the jury was whether the defendant was informed at the time he signed the guarantee that he would not be held responsible under it until Mr. Harrison had brought an action against Mr. Hilton and failed to recover the money.

Mr. John Woodhouse, solicitor, who acted for Mr. Harrison in connection with this matter, said that the guarantee was fully explained to Mr. Bickers before he signed it.

Mr. Gerald Lindley, who was engaged to play in Richelieu by Hilton, said the latter asked if he would give his signature to a document as a matter of form to guarantee a sum of money. When he and the others signed Hilton assured them that the money was on the way, and would be in town on the Friday.

The defendant, in the course of his evidence, said that on Feb. 8 Hilton called upon him. He explained that his backers were prepared to find several thousand pounds, but the following day informed him that for the moment he was short of cash, and asked if witness could find anyone who could lend him a little on good security. He added that he would give a charge on the scenery and drapes, upon which he had spent £1,600.

Witness then proceeded to give his versions of the interviews which took place at Mr. Woodhouse's office and the theatre.

Mr. Harry Raphael, who also signed the document, said he understood Mr. Woodhouse to say Hilton would be used first, and W. Hilton, Mr. Farquhar, and Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, who were supposed to be his guarantors. Witness added that he had signed other guarantees for Hilton, and lent him money.

The jury found in favour of plaintiff, for whom judgment was entered, with costs.

An Original Burlesque in One Act, by Mrs. Henry De La Pasture, Produced at a Matinée at His Majesty's Theatre on Friday, July 15.

Mr. Chubb ..... Mr. Frederick Volpé
Mrs. Chubb ..... Miss Hilda Hamilton
Aunt Emily ..... Miss Alice Beet
Mr. Higginbotham ..... Mr. Ernest Thesiger
The Papuan Chief ..... Mr. Henry Ainley
Dreamy Dorothea .. Miss Edmée De La Pasture
Careless Charles ..... Master Desmond Urwick
Busy Matilda ..... Miss Betty Hamilton
Clumsy Caroline ..... Miss Gabrielle Urwick
Greedy George ..... Master Frank Thorndike
Selfish Cissie ..... Miss Mimi Crawford
Wilful William ..... Master Philip Tonge
Sharp Little Emily ..... Miss Florrie Lewis
Princess Fulanga ..... Miss Nora Mond
Princess Kambara ..... Miss Mary Mond
Prince Savu ..... Master Richard Cave
Prince Koro ..... Miss Margaret Morris
Princess Vanna ..... Miss Isabel Urwick

This burlesque, by the author of Peter's Mother, was produced at a matinée, postponed from May 23, given in aid of the Royal Waterloo Hospital for Children and Women, and the Infants' Hospital, Westminster. The piece, which was of a somewhat old-fashioned type, served as a means of introducing the clever performances of some well-trained children. The characters were divided into grown-ups, the children, the little Papuans, and the big Papuans. Mr. Chubb, of Upper Tooting, takes his wife and family, together with Aunt Emily, on a yachting trip, but being an inexperienced seaman, manages to run the vessel ashore on the coast of Papua. There are no fewer than nine children, including infant twins; and as they have no provisions the position of the Chubb family is exceedingly awkward. Clumsy Caroline breaks a couple of plates, but as there is no food to put on them it does not much matter. Greedy George, however, succeeds in finding a box of chocolates, but they are speedily appropriated by his equally greedy father, who, while condemning the conduct of his son, calmly proceeds to devour them himself. The family having gone upon an exploring expedition, there appears upon the scene another Englishman, Mr. Higginbotham, a missionary, who has, it seems, been appointed schoolmaster to the Papuans. Through some dereliction of duty he has, however, incurred the displeasure of the natives, and they decide to put him to death. He is accordingly bound by a rope to a tree, and the Papuans, after the custom of their kind, encircle their prisoner and execute a death dance, with much shouting and many menacing gesticulations. Their purpose, it would seem, is to roast the unfortunate missionary, but during the temporary disappearance of the savages the Chubbs return, and release the prisoner. The scene closes with the return of the Papuans and a repetition of the uproar which invariably accompanied their erratic proceedings. The piece was produced for the author by Mr. Norman Page; the dresses, grouping, and direction of the Papuan children were kindly undertaken by Miss Viola Tree, the dances were arranged and taught by Miss Margaret Morris, and the lyrics composed by Mr. C. E. N. Charrington.

Mr. Frederick Volpé gave a capital embodiment of Mr. Chubb, and Miss Hilda Hamilton did well as Mrs. Chubb. Miss Alice Beet was amusing as Aunt Emily. Mr. Ernest Thesiger comically depicted the terror of Mr. Higginbotham, and sang a humorous song in good style. Mr. Henry Ainley was a handsome representative of the youthful Papuan chief, and Miss Edmée De La Pasture scored in the rôle of Dreamy Dorothea, described as a beautiful maiden. Masters Desmond Urwick, Frank Thorndike, and Philip Tonge as Careless Charles, Greedy George, and Wilful William all did excellently, and the Misses Betty Hamilton, Gabrielle Urwick, and Mimi Crawford were praiseworthy as Busy Matilda, Clumsy Caroline, and Selfish Cissie. Miss Florrie Lewis as Sharp Little Emily was loudly applauded for a charming song and dance. Specially deserving of favourable mention was the Prince Koro of Miss Margaret Morris, and Miss Isabel Urwick as Princess Vanna, Miss Nora Mond as Princess Fulanga, Miss Mary Mond as Princess Kambara, and Master Richard Cave as Prince Savu all contributed to the success of the performance.

A presentation of purses to Her Royal Highness Princess Alexander of Teck on behalf of the Boys' and Girls' Guild afterwards took place on the stage. Amongst the ladies who had the honour of being presented to Her Royal Highness were Miss Viola Tree and Miss Margaret Morris.

The second part of the programme consisted of a "Soirée Watteau," arranged by Lady Mond, and sung and danced by Miss Margery Maude, Mrs. George Swinton, Mr. Hans Lissmann, and Mr. Hubert Bromilow. The dances were arranged by M. Louis Hervey d'Egville. M. Raymond Lanzeste gave a recitation, "Hommage à Watteau," with orchestral accompaniment. The orchestra was under the direction of Mr. Thomas Beecham.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, July 29. Present:—Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Chris Walker, C. F. Collings, Henry Le Grand, Fred Annerley, Edward Morgan, and Misses Cottell, Rose Cazalet, Vita Spencer, Beatrice Chester, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 12th inst., and the meeting confirmed and the chairman signed same.

Mr. Derwent suggested that a letter of congratulation be sent by the council to Mr. Robert Loraine on his success as an aviator, and this was agreed to.

Three matters were referred to the hon. solicitors to deal with.

On the motion of Mr. Chris Walker, seconded by Miss Cottell, the secretary was directed to thank Mr. Robson Paige for his letter, and to say that the council accepted his offer to occupy the position (during the secretary's absence) with many thanks.

The secretary submitted Messrs. Bowman Bros.' estimate for cleaning of furniture, which was referred to the House Committee, to be dealt with and reported on at the next meeting of the council.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. C. F. Collings and adopted.

On the motion of Mr. Chris Walker, seconded by Miss Cottell, the council agreed that a half-yearly membership (to take effect from July 1), with a total fee, including entrance fee, of 12s. 6d., be instituted, and that quarterly members who have already paid two quarters may have the option of paying the remaining portion of the year at the rate of half-yearly members. Carried unanimously.

Mr. Le Grand proposed and Miss Chester seconded that a special letter be sent to twenty members as a test, informing them that their subscriptions were overdue, and an amendment proposed by Mr. Chris Walker and seconded by Miss Spencer that the names of those whose subscriptions were unpaid be submitted to the L.A.P.T. on Sept. 1. The amendment was put to the meeting; the voting being 5 to 2, the amendment was declared carried.

On the recommendation of Mr. Story Gofton, Dr. F. W. Hewitt, of Ilford, was suggested as a hon. medical officer, and the secretary was instructed to make the usual inquiries and report.

Elections: Margaret Drew and Martha Cowper.
Nominations: Rita Salvage and Janet Hope.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

"FAITH OF OUR FATHERS."

Romantic Roman Drama, in Five Acts, by Miss May Irene Wright, Produced for the First Time on any Stage at the Theatre Royal, West Stanley, on July 13.

Vulpian ..... Mr. F. B. Woulfe
Aurelius Varro ..... Mr. Leonard Thackeray
Justus Gratian ..... Mr. Edwin C. Coates
Argobast ..... Mr. Henry Parr
Symphorian ..... Mr. Eddie Vane
Stilico ..... Mr. Frank Brandon
Tombs ..... Mr. Maris Davis
Bombastus ..... Mr. Cyril Jarvis
Colossus ..... Mr. Alf Raymond
Lady Angela ..... Miss Edith Lorraine
Campaspe ..... Miss May Irene Wright
Milorie ..... Miss Josephine Richards
Eros ..... Miss Florrie Lyndon
Cymballa ..... Miss Minnie Holmes

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Miss May Irene Wright, in Faith of Our Fathers, has still further demonstrated her ability as a playwright in her new and picturesque drama, of which the period is the early days of Rome. During the reign of Honorius, 408 A.D., Vulpian, the high priest of the Pagans, is fighting for supremacy against Christianity. We are introduced to Justus Gratian, a ruined patrician, whose wife is coveted by Aurelius Varro. Gratian is loved by Campaspe, Varro's discarded mistress. He further incurs the Tribune's hatred by refusing to sell Argobast his slave, who has proved his strength by killing a tiger which had escaped from the circus and wounded Eros, a boy owned by Orestes, an Athenian, who leaves him in Angela's care. Campaspe persuades Vulpian to seize Angela and sacrifice her to his idol, Serapis. Vulpian is confronted by Symphorian, head of the Christian Church, and Angela is rescued by Argobast.

In Act 2 the Tribune is plotting to gain possession of Argobast in order to match him against his Nubian slave at the coming sports. He lays a wager with Gratian, in which, if Argobast overthrows the negro, the black slave shall become the property of Gratian and vice-versa. The men meet, and Argobast breaks the Nubian's neck. The scene changes to Symphorian's dwelling, where Vulpian now lives under his protection as a servant and pretended convert to Christianity. Milorie, Symphorian's daughter, is betrayed by Vulpian to the Tribune. The father, who believes his child guilty, drives her from her home. Symphorian is tempted by Vulpian to renounce his faith in exchange for his child's restoration; but he refuses, and goes forth to find her.

In Act 3 Angela is denounced by Campaspe as a Christian, and Gratian sends his wife to the Mamertine prison to avert death in the arena. Argobast waylays the guard and rescues the prisoner, whom he carries to his hut, where Symphorian and his daughter are reconciled. Aurelius pursues his prisoner, and Argobast defends the hut and saves his master's wife.

In Act 4 Vulpian, having discovered a breach in the Roman wall, comes to the Gothic camp to seek an audience of Argobast, who is now a Gothic chieftain. He offers to the Gothic forces the key of the secret entrance on condition that they will massacre the Christians. The offer is rejected, and Vulpian returns to the temple a maniac. Angela returns to prison, and offers herself in exchange for the boy Eros, who has been captured by Aurelius and tortured. Eros dies, and Gratian finds his wife in prison. He kills Aurelius, and under the Emperor's mandate releases the prisoners of the Cross.

In Act 5 Vulpian—still a maniac—fires the temple, and Justus, who has embraced Christianity, again rejects Campaspe. She persuades Vulpian to seize upon Angela and make of her the last sacrifice to Serapis. The maniac turns upon her as the final victim. Symphorian, who has discovered in Vulpian his long lost brother, is commanded to pronounce upon the Pagan's head the curse of the Church. He is slain by Vulpian, to whom he reveals himself. Vulpian, stricken with remorse, is suddenly restored to sanity, repents, and is received by "faith alone" into the Way, the Truth, and the Light.

The play was most favourably received by a large and appreciative audience. Mr. F. B. Woulfe in the rôle of Vulpian was, as usual, in his best vein; and as Argobast Mr. Henry Parr looked a veritable athlete; as Symphorian Mr. Eddie Vane was very effective; Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Aurelius and Mr. Edwin C. Coates as Gratian were very telling in their respective parts. Miss Edith Lorraine as Lady Angela displayed great talent; and as Milorie Miss Josephine Richards was equally good. Miss May Irene Wright was perfect in the part of Campaspe; and as Eros Miss Florrie Lyndon gave entire satisfaction.

In the Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday, before Mr. H. M. Winearls, Official Receiver, the creditors and shareholders met under the winding-up order made against the Amusements Development Syndicate (Ltd.). The company was formed in June of last year to acquire places of entertainment, public gardens, &c. In October it entered into an agreement for the tenancy of the Britannia Theatre and the Britannia Tavern, Hoxton, but possession of the latter was never obtained. The directors state that the company suffered considerable damage in consequence, and attribute its failure to that fact. The theatre was opened with Dick Whittington, but the enterprise was not financially successful. The accounts showed liabilities £3,754, of which £2,467 is expected to rank, and assets £1,800, of which all but £512 is required to meet loans on Debenture bonds and preferential payments. The liquidation was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, July 14.—Herr Wagner may be thoroughly satisfied with the reception of his latest work, and with his own welcome also. He has been fêted ever since his arrival in Berlin, and as soon as he entered the theatre he received an ovation from the crowded house that must have gratified him extremely. It may at once be said that Der Kobald is an exceedingly pleasing opera; the music is at its best when in lighter vein. The folk-songs are charming; the music to the more humorous passages is wonderfully bright, merry, and characteristic; when, however, the composer attempts tragedy or dramatic moments there is a falling off. Great dramatic effects such as Richard Wagner understood in so masterly a manner have not cast their mantle upon his son. The music does not thrill its hearers, but it pleases them mightily and puts them in a good humour; the orchestration is particularly harmonious and admirably constructed. As to the libretto, it is enigmatical in the extreme, even with the aid of the text-book. A "kobold" means in its proper signification a merry wight—a Puck—but the title of Herr Wagner's opera has nothing in common with anything so frivolous. His kobold is the spirit of a murdered child whom he calls Seelchen (little soul), who cannot find rest in his grave until all the members of his family die to save him. Seelchen—who wanders about with the fatal dagger in his breast—is, or was, the son of Gertrud, the village inkeeper. One night he appears to his sister Verena, and implores her to save him, but she, not recognising him, understands as little as we do about the whole matter. So Seelchen goes away disappointed, but leaves his sister a talisman—a bright and shining stone—which has the power of making a lover faithful. The scene changes to a merry village festival, with strolling singers and players, among whom is Verena's lover Frederich. The Count and Countess also come to look on; the latter has heard of the talisman and determines to gain possession of it. Verena declines to give it up, and the Countess persuades Gertrud to sell it her, which she does, with the chain Frederich had given to his sweetheart on her birthday. Trouble comes now thick and fast. The naughty Countess begins a flirtation with Frederich, and the Count makes violent love to Verena, who in a struggle with him, wounds him with his own dagger. The lady, tired of her play, accuses Frederich—who has obtained possession of the talisman—of theft, and the Count declares Trutz, the leader of the singers, to be a murderer, he having been found with the dagger that he took from the frightened Verena's hand. The artists take to flight and conceal themselves in a barn, which the Count's minions set fire to. Frederich attempts to escape, and would have fallen a victim to the watching servants, but the faithful Verena receives for him the fatal stab. She expires in her lover's arms, and Seelchen is released from his torment; we hearing him singing his song of joy somewhere up in the clouds. This, in a few words, is the astonishing plot. The interpretation was almost faultless. Frau Gura-Hummel was a delightful Verena, and she was in capital voice; Herr vom Scheidt was admirable as Trutz; and other very good renderings were those of Fräulein Pahren, Herr Lattermann, and Herr Hochheim. Orchestra and chorus were everything that could be desired. The composer conducted in his own masterly style, and was compelled to bow his acknowledgments to the audience more times than one could count.

"FALSCHSPIELER," at the Volks-Oper is still running at intervals, but there is so little to be said in its favour that any description of the plot is superfluous. The author is Karl Schüler, an amateur of no talent to speak of, and it is a matter of surprise that any stage could put it on.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, July 21.—Among the dearth of novelties which marks our dull season, anything should prove welcome. The reception, nevertheless, accorded to the latest effort of two well-known collaborators was not altogether cordial. The authors made a mistake in calling their farce a "political comedy," which led to false expectations. They have begun in fine style, with a very funny idea as main scheme, but—for some utterly unknown reason—have let it drop just when it promised interesting development, and have wandered off into banalities. The amusing "idea" is the fact of a hard-up student being taken by the country people for a Reichstag candidate. The action passes in Bavaria, where beer-drinking students abound, and the two sons of Alma Mater, Ferdi Meyer and Rudi Zifferer, are more devoted to their mugs than their studies. They are both "burnt up"—which is the German equivalent for stony broke—and are dunned to the verge of desperation by landlady, tailor, and other creditors, when the mistake concerning the Reichstag candidate occurs. The fun begins, but, as has been already said, dies away very soon. The plot fades into nothingness, and all sorts of incidental and superfluous incidents are introduced. Some of the characters are well-drawn types, and say laughable things. There is a pastor, who is far more concerned about the welfare of his prize pigs than about his parish, and there is a Jew who, for diplomatic reasons, is the chief prop of the orthodox party. But, taking it as a whole, the new farce is little short of a failure, notwithstanding very excellent acting. Some of the scenes were heartily applauded, but others met with scant favour, the audience testifying to their disapproval in the usual unflattering manner.

ANOTHER performance of the Nibelung Ring is being given at the Gura Opera (New Royal Opera), and meeting with the same success. Siegfried was particularly good. The title-rôle was rendered by Herr Knote, the famous tenor from the Munich Royal Opera, and the rôle of Brunhilde was in the capable hands of Frau Leffler-Burckhardt, of the Imperial Theatre at Wiesbaden. The latter was an impersonation of exceptional artistic taste, while all the qualifications of an ideal Wagnerian singer are possessed by this fine actress. I am told it will not be long before Frau Leffler-Burckhardt, who is a great favourite of the Emperor's, is transferred from Wiesbaden to Berlin, which would be a distinct gain for our own Opera House.

THE Gura Opera put Leoncavallo's Bajazzi into the bill last week, but it was not nearly so successful as the German performances. Frau Gura, who sang the part of Nedda, was in good voice, but her talents do not lie in the direction of Italian opera, although she is a delightful Elsa and Elisabeth. The tenor of the evening, Herr Hochheim, was not up to his work, and was even described—cruelly enough—by one of our critics as a parody upon Caruso. This meant, by the way, no disparagement to the former artist's good voice, but to his exaggerated style of acting.

AT the Deutsches Theatre, under the summer management of Dr. Geyer, an excellent performance of Goethe's graceful little play Die Laune des Verliebten met with an enthusiastic reception, and the piece has been given nearly every night this week. The classical play is proving a curtain-raiser to Nestroy's clever parody Judith and Holofernes, which was produced for the first time over sixty years ago, but which has lost none of its powers to amuse. Altogether, Dr. Geyer and his excellent company are to be congratulated. Kleist's play Amphitryon was given at the Deutsches one day last week by the Literary Association. The interpretation was good all round, and it was a pity that the performance could not be repeated. Heinrich von Kleist, the ill-fated German writer of such great talent and promise, termed his play "a comedy in the style of Molière," which is a very good designation.

THE threatened theatre and entertainment tax proposes a uniform charge of thirty marks upon each cabaret performance, and a tax of two marks upon every space of four square metres in a concert-room. The latter arrangement is also to apply to garden restaurant entertainments, which are so usual here in summer. All performances extending beyond eleven o'clock will be taxed doubly.

MM. STEINMANN and Ritterfeldt have adapted from Dumas' well-known novel a very effective play entitled Der Graf von Monte Christi, which was produced at the Luisen Theatre last week with the best results. Acting and mounting being alike commendable, the piece will certainly have a lengthy run.

DEPARTURE OF MR. CHAS. FROHMAN'S COMPANY, "OUR MISS GIBBS," TO U.S.A. GROUP, LEFT TO RIGHT—MISS STICKMAN, MISS MOLLIE LOWELL, MR. F. WRIGHT, JUN., MISS GERTIE MILLAR, MISS JEAN ALWYN, MR. ERNEST LAMBART.

A SOCIAL EVENING.

In aid of the committee of the Grocers' First Aid Personal Work, a concert and social evening was given in the charming Doré Picture Gallery, New Bond-street, W., on Thursday evening, under the patronage of Lady Fairbairn. Mr. W. Davenport (of Messrs. Cadbury Bros., Ltd.) presided, and the musical programme was arranged by Miss Bertha Bird. The concert commenced with a piano solo of Rachmaninoff, Prelude in C sharp minor, well executed by Mr. J. W. Francis, after which, to the great pleasure of the audience, Miss Bertha Bird gave her delightful rendering of "Lo here the gentle lark," with an admirable flute obbligato by Mr. Ernest J. Spink. Miss Bird is renowned for her wonderful compass and the purity of her high notes, and Bishop's famous air suits the vocalist to perfection. After the interval Miss Bird was again heard in "Pale white is the rose" and "Elfin music" by Miss M. S. Whitcombe and accompanied by the composer. Mr. Robert Anthony sang Wallace's "Son of mine" and "The Rebel" with great spirit, while Mr. Montague Marshall was also very successful in "For you alone," a pretty song by H. Sheel. Miss Olive M. Allen thrilled the audience in her recitation with music, "The Last Token." Two excellent flute solos, "Souvenir" and "Saltarello" (Ed. German) were given by Mr. Ernest J. Spink. In the latter part of the programme Mr. Robert Anthony again sang, and Miss Olive M. Allen recited, the concert concluding with the trio, "The Minstrel Boy," sung by Miss Bertha Bird, Mr. Robert Anthony, and Mr. Montague Marshall. An excellent speech by the chairman, Mr. W. Davenport, was given on behalf of the Grocers' First Aid Personal Work, and Mr. Davenport concluded with a vote of thanks to Miss Bird for her valuable assistance, and to the other artists who gave their services in so good a cause.

MR. E. W. WINGATE-SAUL, with a jury, sat in the Sheriff's Court, at the Manchester Assize Courts, last week, to assess damages in an undefended action, the plaintiff in which was Michael Barry Kirwan, an advertising contractor, of Ackers-street, Manchester, and the defendant, Z. Andrews, secretary and manager of the New Theatre, Aberdare, and a former lessee of the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly. Mr. E. Crosfield Pearson, who appeared for the plaintiff, explained that this client entered into a contract with the defendant in January of this year for the advertising right for twelve months of the curtain and the programmes at the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly. That contract the defendant repudiated in June, and the plaintiff now sued him for the loss he had sustained by reason of the repudiation. In the previous year, when the plaintiff and defendant entered into similar contract, plaintiff made a profit of £122 12s., and he (Mr. Pearson) asked the jury to award him a similar sum in respect of this year. Mr. Wingate-Saul read a letter from the defendant in which he said he never entered into the contract, but was unable to defend the action through lack of means. The jury awarded the plaintiff £122 12s.

FOR the first three nights of the week Mr. Brandon Thomas's company played Charley's Aunt to appreciative audiences at the Town Hall, Westgate-on-Sea.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

If Mr. King's piece has a fault it is that he has, here and there, slightly over-elaborated the side issues revolving round the main plot; otherwise it is an effort far ahead of anything which the manager of the Metropole has previously placed on the boards. It is no exaggeration to say that from 7.30 to 11.30 on Monday night a full house was held by a story which is quite out of the beaten track—by situations as powerful as they are novel, and by dialogue which is always strong, convincing, and to the point. Every character is imbued with life and reality, and the result was a success as conspicuous as it was deserved.

Simon Bravo, under the impression that Mark Holmes, a farmer at Denver, in the Isle of Ely, has, out of friendship for his dead father, brought him up and educated him, consents, at Mark's request, to marry his benefactor's elder daughter Joan, although he is really in love with May, her younger sister. Only a few days after his marriage with Joan, Simon, now in charge of the farm, learns from Luke, Mark's outcast son, that he was not left in penury, as Mark had always asserted, but that he had been left £2,000 by his father, and that Mark had, as his father's trustee, embezzled the whole of that amount. Luke, down at heel and literally starving, comes late at night to rob his father, but Simon dissuades him from so doing, and gives Luke £5 to help him in his present need; and in return Luke gives Simon a letter he had found at the farm two years before, which amply bears out Mark's duplicity and roguery. Luke departs, but not before May has overheard of the useless sacrifice Simon has made in marrying Joan to please his supposed benefactor. Simon now endeavours to persuade May to leave her father's roof and to go to London with him; but this, although passionately in love with him, she, out of love for her sister Joan, refuses to do, and instead packs up her few belongings and leaves Denver.

Simon strives to bear his lot with a wife for whom he cares nothing and with a father-in-law he silently hates, and is only stirred out of the lethargy into which he has fallen by the brutal maiming of cattle which takes place on Holmes' farm, and which he attributes to Daft Manshed, a farmhand in love with Joan. One day in the harvest field Simon, stung by Mark's defense of Daft Manshed, whom he openly accuses of the stabbing of a cart-horse, informs Mark that he knows how he (Holmes) has swindled him out of his birthright. Angry words ensue, Mark eventually leaving to go by train to Fordham to dispose of some sheep. Joan, concealed behind a shock of corn, has heard the quarrel between her husband and her father, and implores Simon to believe that she did not know of Mark's treachery and fraud to his dear friend, Simon's father. Simon here learns for the first time that Joan really loves him, and he is inclined to believe her.

We need not follow the complicated and eventful story through all its ramifications. Suffice it to say that within twenty minutes of Mark's departure a fire breaks out in the barns on the farm, and afterwards his dead body is discovered at Blackwater Waste. By the side of the body is found Simon's mackintosh, covered with blood, and he is arrested. But at the trial of Simon for murder Luke confesses that he, unknown to May, travelled in the same train as herself, met his father, who was watching from Blackwater Waste the fire he had started in his own barns in order to secure the money for which they were insured, asked him for a gift of money that he (Luke) might get cured of the disease from which he suffered, and, on being refused, did Mark to death. Luke does not live to bear the punishment of the law, and the curtain falls on Simon and Joan's happiness.

Miss Dolly Gilroy as May was thoroughly charming and clever, and her depiction of the anguish of the unhappy girl in the scene with Luke in the third act was full of feeling and earnestness. Miss Jessie Yatman was easy and attractive as Nina Staart; and her agreeable performance give importance to a minor character. As Simon Bravo, Mr. Leonard Aardale acted with marked ability, and his efforts were keenly appreciated. He rendered the rôle with admirable skill and spirit. Mr. John Sargent as Mark Holmes and Mr. Charles Vivian as Daft Manshed supplied excellent impersonations of rough fen-men, their delivery of the dialect being extremely natural and correct. Mr. Charles Lincoln as Detective Ransom played the part with keenness and appreciation, and with true and accurate emphasis. Mr. Ullick Burke as Luke Holmes gave a striking and subtle performance. The part is a peculiar and critical one, and Mr. Burke's rendering of it, carefully analysed and acutely interpreted, conferred great credit on its representative. Mr. Burke deserves warm praise for an embodiment which must have cost him much pains and thought; Miss Rita Sponti made an interesting Joan, Miss S. Coy being quaint as Mrs. Green; and Mr. Leonard Aardale excellent as Simon Bravo. The drama had a hearty reception.

AT Caxton Hall, Westminster, on the 15th inst., at the resumed proceedings of the Public Morals Conference, Mr. W. T. Stead, who spoke on the "Influence of the Stage on Morals," said that if the conference was to carry weight with the public or the Home Secretary the members should define in their resolutions what they meant by impropriety. He knew of a waiting-maid who had been indescribably shocked by seeing a Highlander walk down the street in uniform. Some said that it was beside the question to refer to the private life of actors, but to his mind it was of paramount importance, for to many people, say between the ages of fifteen and thirty, the actor was a patron saint, to be worshipped with the adoration of a neophyte. The presence of twelve curates in the Divorce Court was of less consequence than one actor or actress. The Rev. Hugh Chapman stated that the aims of the music hall and the Church were not antagonistic. What mattered was that the music hall, the theatre, and the Church should be controlled by men full of the spirit of Christianity.

A third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" is just published. The work has already established its value as a comprehensive and accurate book of reference, and the new edition has been brought up to date by the inclusion of all recent decisions of the courts, and the texts of the Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Law of the United States.—Sunday Times.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

SIR JOHN HARE, the President of the Irving Memorial Fund, has received a communication from Mr. Thos. Brock, R.A., to the effect that he finds it impossible to satisfactorily complete the Irving Statue until August. As it would be most undesirable that the unveiling should take place at a season of the year when the majority of subscribers will be absent from London, the committee have decided not to fix the actual date for the ceremony until after the holidays.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING'S production, at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Birmingham, of the new and original five-act play entitled Margaret Catchpole, by Mr. Walter Frith, the author of A Man of Forty, and other well-known successful plays, comes off next Saturday. Mr. Frith has followed closely the traditional story as told by Cobbold. The first four acts take place in the neighbourhood of Ipswich, and the fifth in Australia. Miss Mabel Hackney (Mrs. Laurence Irving) has a strong part in that of Margaret, and as Luff, an old smuggler, Mr. Laurence Irving has a grim character which should exactly suit his particular bent. Mr. Irving will produce in Birmingham on Thursday, Aug. 4, for the first time in England, his own dramatic version of Dostoievski's novel, "Crime and Punishment." The version is entitled The Unwritten Law, and has been performed in America with great success by Mr. E. H. Sothern.

AFTER their visit to Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Irving will produce both plays in the principal provincial towns, and will also give some matinées of The Incubus, which was so successfully produced in London two years ago, and has proved a great draw in America.

MR. EDWARD TERRY, on his autumn tour, opening on Thursday at the Theatre Royal, Margate, will be supported by the folowing artists:—Mr. Robert Pateman, Mr. Templer Powell, Mr. Wm. Dexter, Mr. Percival Madgewick, Mr. Christopher Steele, Misses Kathleen Leigh, Dorothy Radford, Christine Rayner, Eugenie Vernie, Adah Barton, and Ella Dixon. The stage managers of the company are Messrs. George Byrne and Percy Bell, and the advance representative is Mr. Walter Dean. The business management will be in the hands of Mr. Arthur Graeme.

MR. FRANK B. O'NEILL and Miss Mary Vincent were married very quietly at Hampstead last Saturday, and are spending the honeymoon at various places on the Norfolk coast. The following members of the profession sent presents and good wishes. The presents numbered over 100:—Mr. Martin Harvey, Miss N. de Silva, Miss Muriel Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glenney, Mr. Percy Foster, Mr. Norman O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. T. Helmsley, Miss Ada Allen, the members of Mr. Martin Harvey's company, Mr. and Mrs. Shee, Mr. Owen Roughwood, Miss Hilda Antony, Mr. and Mrs. R. Neville, Mr. Malcolm Wilson, Miss Dorothy Radcliffe, Mr. G. T. Minshull, Mr. Arthur Lawrence, Mr. W. F. Morton, Mr. W. Peacock, Mr. Arthur Armstrong, Mr. J. W. Chancellor, Mr. George Battersby, Mr. John Kurkamp, Mr. A. Bertram, Mr. E. Bertram, Miss Bessie Elder, Mr. W. F. Crowe, Mr. P. Raphael, Mr. H. L. Carlo, Mr. Walter Maxwell, Mr. Harvey Braban, Mr. John Waddington, Mr. Ralph Leach, Miss Ethel Jacobs, Mr. Alexander Morton, Mr. W. A. Ogg, Mr. Stafford Picton, Mrs. Benson, Mr. H. Orme, Miss Maudie Vaughan, Mr. Frederick Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rivers, and Miss Maie Hoey. Mr. O'Neill is an M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford, and has been with Mr. Harvey for nearly ten years.

THE Committee of "The Queen's Own Rifles," Toronto, Canada, who have just held their historical pageant, which has proved one of the greatest financial and artistic successes ever held in Canada, have awarded to Mr. Leolyn Hart, the famous London scenic artist, a bronze medal of merit—only two were issued—and have forwarded him through Mr. John Henderson, the producer, the following delightful letter:—"Dear Sirs,—I wish on behalf of the Committee in charge of the Queen's Own Historical Pageant of Ontario to express to you their hearty appreciation of the beautiful woodland scenery you sent out for our picture. We have already stated this more in detail to Mr. Henderson, who has some excellent photographs of the picture as it stood. Thanking you for your excellent work, I remain, Gentlemen, yours truly, G. J. RIDDELL. P.S.—Medals are being sent by Mr. Henderson." The scenery referred to consisted of over 65,000 square yards of painting, and when erected extended the full length of the Grand Stand, over 600ft., and on an average 60ft. high.

THE Freedom of the Borough of Stratford-upon-Avon will be presented to Mr. F. R. Benson by the Town Council in the Guildhall, at 5 p.m., on Monday. The last recipient of this honour was David Garrick, who was steward of the Stratford Jubilee in 1769.

THE marriage took place on Monday at All Saints', Highgate, of Mr. Henry Richard Pigeon (son of Mr. E. M. Pigeon, of 10, Lewes-crescent, Brighton) and Miss Minnie Melville (daughter of the late Mr. Andrew Melville, of London). The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. F. H. A. Hawkins. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Fred Melville, wore a dress of soft white satin, draped with ninon and trimmed with Brussels lace, her fine tulle veil, embroidered with true lovers' knots, covered a coronet of orange sprays, and white exotics composed her bouquet. Miss May Horsey was the only bridesmaid, wearing a dress of pearl grey ninon de soie and a veiled Tagal hat. The bridegroom presented her with a gold mesh purse and a bouquet of shaded mauve sweet peas. Mr. J. P. Searight acted as best man. The reception was held at "Oakleigh," Shepherd-hill, Highgate, by Mrs. Walter Melville, and early in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Pigeon left for Bernival, near Dieppe, the bride going away in a grey shantung coat and skirt.

THE KING has sent £3 to Mr. James Doughty, an old-time clown, who will be ninety-two next month, and who claims to be the oldest active actor in his Majesty's dominions. Doughty is a survivor of the race of clowns made famous by Grimaldi. He has appeared on every stage in the United Kingdom, with the exception of Cork. He performed at Covent Garden under the management of the father of the late Augustus Harris. Mr. Doughty, who is still appearing with his performing dogs at Brighton West Pier, wrote to the King the other day, telling his Majesty that he—Doughty—was old and feeble, and mentioning that he had performed before Queen Victoria and the late King. Mr. Doughty received a reply from Lieut.-Colonel Sir William Carrington, acknowledging the receipt of the letter, and enclosing a Post Office order for £3 from his Majesty's privy purse. Mr. Doughty will celebrate his ninety-second birthday on Aug. 27 by giving a benefit performance, when he will again appear in his clown's costume.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE will, after a brief holiday, make his reappearance as "Jimmy" Cottenham at the Playhouse on Monday, when the 163rd performance of that delightfully humorous play Tantalising Tommy will be given.

MISS LENA ASHWELL'S career has been most interestingly dealt with by Miss Jean Milne in the Busy Man's Magazine. Miss Ashwell is the daughter of Captain Pocock, R.N., who gave up steering ships and became a clergyman in the Church of England in Canada. Her brother, Captain Roger Pocock, is the well-known traveller and author. The foundation of Miss Ashwell's career was laid in Bishop Strachan School, in Toronto. She next went to Switzerland, Paris, and finally finished her education at the Royal Academy of Music in London. Miss Ashwell was originally intended to adorn the musical profession as a singer, and only abandoned this idea on the strong advice of Miss Ellen Terry.

MISS ASHWELL has had many triumphs, but she herself thinks Irene Wycherley, in the play of that name, one of her finest parts. Among the many notable players with whom she has been happily associated may be mentioned the late Sir Henry Irving. She took the part of Elaine in King Arthur at the Lyceum in 1895, and she was with him again in Richard III. Then she played the leading feminine rôles in Dante at Drury Lane with Irving. And she has appeared with the recently knighted Beerbohm Tree as Katusha in Resurrection at His Majesty's, and as Yo San in The Darling of the Gods (1903). Another part that must be referred to as being an artistic triumph is Leah Kleschna in The Shulamite.

MISS ASHWELL is the wife of Dr. H. J. Forbes Simson, whom she married in October, 1908. He is the eldest son of a well-known Bengal Civil servant, and carries on a large practice. Miss Ashwell is very fond of motoring, and delights in week-ends at her seaside home. When asked if she intended to go in for management again, she replied: "I may some day, but it takes up all one's time, and one has no leisure for home."

IN the Shakespeare season at Stratford-upon-Avon from July 25 to Aug. 13, when Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their company will give a number of performances at the Memorial Theatre, nine plays of Shakespeare will be presented, including the whole of Hamlet, which will be given in two consecutive performances, and Masks and Faces, by Tom Taylor and Charles Reade. The Piper (the prize play), by Josephine Preston Peabody, the production of which was to take place during the festival in May, and was postponed owing to the death of King Edward, will be produced on July 26, with Miss Marion Terry in the part of Veronika, and the prize of £300 will be presented to the successful author after the first performance.

MISS MAGGIE TEYTE, we are glad to hear, is now on the high road to recovery from her recent illness, and she hopes to be well enough to travel to the country in order to take a short rest prior to her Continental engagements during August and September. Miss Teyte will return to London in time to fulfil her operatic engagements with the Thomas Beecham season of grand opera at Covent Garden in October.

MR. ARTHUR LEE MITCHELL (of Old Bond-street), who toured In the Shadow of Night last spring, begs to thank the numerous friends who have made kind inquiries. He was successfully operated on the week before last by Mr. Chas. Ryall at the Cancer Hospital, and is progressing favourably. He hopes to be wheeled into the garden next week, but it will be a long time before he will be about or able to attend to any business.

THE Guildhall School of Music, following the example of the Paris Conservatoire of Music, is inviting Press representatives to the various prize competitions in which the students of the school take part. From Tuesday till Friday this week singing, piano, organ, violin, and elocution competitions have been given, and amongst the judges are singers from the Royal Opera and other persons who are prominent in the artistic world. It may be noted that the Guildhall is the only musical and dramatic school in England which is provided with a fully-equipped stage.

MISS HELEN FERRERS presented her husband, Mr. E. F. Mayeur, with a fine girl baby on Saturday last. Miss Ferrers was married in 1906, and served her apprenticeship to the stage with Mr. F. R. Benson, with whom she first appeared in 1890. After several tours with him she came to London, where she has made for herself an enviable reputation under many managements.

WE regret to have to record the death of Mr. W. Moy Thomas, at Eastbourne, on Thursday, at the age of eighty-two. From 1868 to 1901 he was dramatic critic for the Daily News, and he acted in a similar capacity for the Academy and the Graphic. Mr. Thomas was much interested in the copyright question, both as regarded books and plays. He was an all-round journalist, a vivacious and various writer, and a most amiable and popular man. He wrote a novel called "A Fight for Life," which was dramatised. For some time past Mr. Thomas had been suffering from illness, but his last years were passed at the beautiful seaside resort in the devoted care of his daughter.

MR. ROBERT LORAINE, who has been flying so successfully lately under the name of "Mr. Jones," made his return flight from the Isle of Wight to Bournemouth on Tuesday evening in under half an hour. Having travelled during the day from London to Alum Bay, he boarded his Farman biplane shortly before 6.30, at a spot known as Needle Point Cliff, above Alum Bay. After flying over Yarmouth, he headed straight across the sea for Bournemouth, and arrived at the aerodrome about 6.53. Upon alighting within a short distance of his shed he was warmly cheered by a large crowd, and had to sign his name in the autograph books of a number of girls who surrounded him. Mr. Loraine attained an altitude of 1,500ft., and covered a distance of about fifteen miles.

WHEN The Master Builder was first presented to an English audience exception was taken to Mrs. Solness's fondness for her dolls. An interviewer has discovered that Miss Alexandra Carlisle is very fond of rag dolls, and keeps several in her dressing-room. Miss Carlisle's dolls are of giant size, and are washed and undressed now and then.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN and Miss Beatrice Wilson are playing with the greatest success in The Marriage of Kitty, and have usually succeeded in drawing crowded and enthusiastic audiences to witness their performance in this brilliant and clever comedy.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS, who has spent some thousands of pounds in trying to establish grand opera in London, recently told the members of the Concert Goers' Club that if he could ensure that every seat in Drury Lane would be taken, he could give grand opera there with a chorus of 150, a band of 100, a prima donna and a tenor "at not more than £600 a performance," baritone and bass at £200, and contralto at £50, and have between £200 and £300 over each week. This, too, at popular prices—sixpence in the gallery, and the highest-priced seats at 6s.

MR. WILLIAMSON'S Australian company, with The Whip, which sailed for the Antipodes on Friday, includes Miss Winifred Scott, late of Mr. Bourchier's Garrick Theatre company, who is playing heavy lead (Miss Nancy Price's part) in the Drury Lane drama, and Mr. Charles Graham, who is cast for Mr. Basil Gill's part. Mr. Graham has been appearing with his own company in the provinces in Mr. Lewis Waller's rôle in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, with Miss Scott as Miss Elizabeth, and he has secured many popular plays, including An Enemy to the King, which had a forty weeks' run in New York, and an unproduced play, Clementina's Highwayman, by the late Robert Neilson Stephens and Caleb Porter, both of which, as well as Elizabeth's Prisoner, Mr. Graham hopes to produce in Australia after The Whip. Mr. T. J. Holmyard, late business-manager for Mr. W. S. Penley's companies, has charge of Mr. Graham's Elizabeth company in England during his absence.

"THE PASSING OF THE THIRD FLOOR BACK" will go on tour in England on Aug. 1, under the excellent management of Mr. Harold C. Lloyd, with a very fine company. Mr. Hudson-Taylor plays the part of the Stranger; 'Stasia is well represented; and Miss Elizabeth Dexter, who has returned from America, takes the part of Vivian.

THE niece of His Excellency the ex-United States Ambassador, Miss Elizabeth Choate, a fellow-countrywoman of Miss Dexter, has signified her intention of being present with a party of friends to witness and enjoy Mr. Jerome's wonderful play on Aug. 1 at Tenby. Miss Choate is spending the summer in Wales.

MR. F. ANSTEY'S amusing and successful farcical play The Brass Bottle, from the Vaudeville Theatre, starts a long provincial tour at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on July 25. Mr. Gaston Mayer, an astute entrepreneur who leaves nothing to chance, is sending along Mr. Holman Clark, Mr. Rudge Harding, and Miss Mary Brough in their original parts, and these, together with Mr. Langhorne Burton, Mr. Percy Marshall, Mr. Robert Ayrton, Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., Miss Edith Hunter, Miss Hilda Sims, Miss Phyllis Birkett, and Miss Marjorie Chard, form an exceedingly strong company. Mr. Alfred Rivers is stage manager and Mr. E. H. Bull is the general manager.

THE latest theatre projected in New York, which will be erected immediately, is to be owned jointly by Messrs. Henry B. Harris and Jesse L. Lasky, two well-known managers. It is to be built on a plot of ground at Nos. 206 to 212, West Forty-sixth-street, just west of Broadway and alongside the Gaiety Theatre. Mr. Harris owns the Hudson and Hackett Theatres, and Mr. Lasky is identified with large vaudeville productions.

MESSRS. GEORGE COHAN AND SAM HARRIS, the American entrepreneurs, will engage more English actors this season than ever before, Hartley Manners' new play, The Girl in Waiting, calling for an all-English cast. Those engaged are Messrs. Galwey Herbert, Fredk. Powell, Wallace Erskine, Arthur Lewis, H.T. Carvill, Norman Tharp, Frank Hollins, Herbert Budd, J. M. Troughton, and Misses Nina Herbert, Marion Abbott, Mary Keogh, and Miss Laurette Taylor, who is featured as the Girl in Waiting. The play will open its New York season at the Gaiety Theatre early in August.

MR. NAT GOULD'S sporting drama, The Chance of a Lifetime, was successfully produced at the King's Theatre, Melbourne, Australia, on Saturday, the 16th inst. The piece was well received and enthusiastically applauded. Mr. William Anderson, the lessee, and Mr. Frank Gerald, the producer of the play, who undertook the powerful part of Captain Clinch, were called upon for speeches, and a cablegram was sent to the author announcing the success.

MR. HENRY HALLATT, who to-day completes a ten weeks' stock engagement at Messrs. Moss and Stoll's Alexandra Theatre, N., playing the juvenile parts in many of the favourite old English farces, Done on Both Sides, Turn Him Out, &c., is now rehearsing for the juvenile lead, Prince Olaf, in Messrs. Paumier and Howard's Lyceum success, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, at West Hartlepool, where he will open on August Bank Holiday. It is interesting to note that Mr. Hallatt is one of the youngest members of the profession playing leading business, his age being only twenty-two.

MR. ALEXANDER MARSH'S Shakespearian tour, which commenced on June 27 last, will extend until June 10, 1911. In these days of short tours this, for a Shakespearean company, will probably constitute a record. Particular care has been taken with the mounting of Mr. Marsh's productions, the scenery being specially painted by Mr. Fred Green (late of the Prince's Theatre, Manchester) and the properties made by Mr. James Flanagan, of the Queen's Theatre, Manchester.

IT is seldom that a composer of opera illustrates a Chinese subject, but the scene of M. Pons' Le Voile du Bonheur, the libretto of which is by M. Georges Clemenceau, formerly President of the Council of Ministers, is laid in China. The hero, on the principle that "what the eye doesn't see the heart doesn't miss," blinds himself in order that he may be spared mental suffering, and the music is rich in local colour. It will be produced at the Opéra Comique, Paris, in the autumn. Another of the composer's operas, Laura, in which Mlle. Alice Verlet created the title-rôle, was given with great success at Aix-les-Bains.

LAST week a boy about 14, named Daniel Boland, while bathing in the Shannon near Plassey, in Ireland, with some companions, got into fifteen feet of water and sank immediately. Fortunately two ladies and two gentlemen happened to be passing at the time, and one of the party, Mr. S. J. Waddell, of Limerick, without divesting himself of his clothes, jumped into the river and brought the drowning boy to the surface. Mr. Waddell's gallant act is to be brought before the Royal Humane Society for recognition. Mr. Waddell is "Rutherford Mayne," of the Ulster Literary Theatre, the talented author of The Drone and Captain of the Hosts.

MESSRS. LEEDHAM BANTOCK AND LESLIE MORETON are about to produce, for copyright purposes, a new two-act musical comedy dealing with the present craze for Pageantry. The comedy, which is entitled The Girl in the Pageant, will be toured for a few weeks in the country prior to a West End production.

"THE VOICE OF THE EMPIRE," a new one-act play, by "Stephen Grace," the nom de plume of a well-known naval officer, will shortly be produced in London by Mr. Henry Bagge. It is a dramatised version of The Brass-Bound Cap, which appears in Mr. Grace's "Yarns." There is much realism about this little piece, the scene being laid on the deck of a destroyer during a torpedo attack upon a hostile squadron. The play is attracting great interest in Service circles, as it is the first time that an episode of this kind has ever been placed upon the stage. Mr. Bagge has just returned from Devonport, where he has been spending three days studying every technical detail, so as to ensure absolute accuracy.

APROPOS of Mr. Robert Arthur's revival at the Coronet, under Mr. Eade Montefiore's auspices, of Robertson's comedy Progress, it may be interesting to note that the play was written specially to order for Buckstone and the Haymarket Company. When Robertson read it to Buckstone, the celebrated comedian looked aghast, saying, "My God, they are all old people in it?" "Why not?" said Robertson, "I've written a play for your company." It can be easily called to mind that at that time the principals of the Haymarket company consisted of Buckstone, Howe, Chippendale, Compton, Braid, &c., and none of them were very young in years. Bunnythorne was meant for Buckstone, and Bob Bunnythorne for Buckstone's son, who was then making his first appearance. But Buckstone was very angry with Robertson, and refused it.

MR. FRED MOULE, the well-known author and producer of playlets, has made the following statement in reference to the death of Mr. Weldon Atherstone: "On May 21 last I wrote to Anderson giving him an engagement to play in The Grip of the Law, and forwarding the words of the part he had to play. This letter was sent to 17, Prince of Wales-road, and in it I asked him to meet me in Bedford-street, Strand, at 1 p.m. on Monday, May 23. At 2 p.m. he turned up and expressed surprise at the idea of an appointment. I told him I had written to Prince of Wales-road. He said: 'That explains it; I have not been home all night.' He then said he would go and fetch the letter and the part, but explained that he was leaving his lodgings there and would in future live at 14, Great Percy-street, King's Cross.

"On the Wednesday or Thursday following, after a rehearsal, he told me he left 17, Prince of Wales-road because he was jealous—of whom, or on account of whom, he did not say. He added that he felt very keenly the parting with an old friend of his family and charming lady in whose flat he had lodged for many years. He spoke of her as an intellectual companion, one who sympathised with him in his love of books and could talk to him."

"He mentioned no one by name, but he was clearly very upset about the affair and the cause of the breaking of this friendship. Starting on the following Monday, May 30, at Bow Palace, he played with me at Sadler's Wells, the Foresters', the Battersea Palace, and at the Surrey Theatre, finishing on July 2. While we were at the Battersea Palace I said: 'It's a pity you do not live at Prince of Wales-road still; you would not have so far to go home.' He replied: 'It's finished; that will never be opened up again.'"

MR. WILLIAM P. SHEEN writes:—"In reference to the sad end of Weldon Atherstone, I note that last night's Star, in giving a list of his engagements, etc., mentions that he made a great success in my play The Temptress. This is quite true. With the exception of one tour, he played the part of Lucas Denbeigh for the whole of the time the play was running, and with the greatest success, and to prove my appreciation of his talent, I, on Saturday evening last, just about the time the poor fellow was murdered, was suggesting to Mr. Newman Maurice that he should resume the part in the forthcoming Bank Holiday production of the play at the Brixton Theatre."

MR. PERCY MARMONT and Miss Elsie Davison have been engaged by Mr. Cyril Maude for his forthcoming tour of Sir Walter Ralegh, Miss Davison to understudy Miss Winifred Emery and Mr. Marmont to play the Earl of Essex.

MR. J. A. CAMPBELL will produce his latest play, The Hand that Rocks the Cradle, on Monday at the Junction Theatre, Manchester, where it will run for two weeks. Mr. Campbell will also have touring his beautiful production of romantic drama, From Convent to Throne, also the domestic play, The Old Folks at Home. His theatre, the Royal at Grantham, has been entirely redecorated insire and out, the circles entirely re-carpeted and re-seated.

No person in theatrical circles in Birmingham is more respected and esteemed than Mr. Goodwin Woodward, and the news of his retirement from the managership of Bordesley Palace Theatre has occasioned considerable surprise. Mr. Woodward has had considerable experience in all branches of theatrical work, and for three years he has worked like a Trojan at Bordesley. Mr. Woodward has not decided definitely upon what rôle to adopt in the future.

THE Berlin City Council intends to impose a municipal tax on all kinds of public entertainments and amusements, such as theatre performances, recitals, concerts, circus performances, biograph pictures, public dances, masked balls, races, bazaars, and so forth. It is proposed that there shall be a tax of one halfpenny on tickets to such entertainments and amusements costing not more than sixpence, and that there shall be a further tax of one halfpenny on each additional sixpence charged for the ticket. On all performances which take place or extend later than 11 p.m. it is proposed that a double tax shall be levied. Several meetings of protest against the proposals have has been held already.

MISS LILA FIELD'S sixth dramatic and musical matinée, at the Court Theatre on Tuesday, was as successful as its predecessors. Miss Field's charming play, The Goldfish, and the first scene of The Lily Queen were nicely performed by a company of clever children; and in Miss Grete Hahn's sketch, Outside the Window, Miss Mona Sinclair played a little crossing-sweeper very prettily. Miss Edna Maude and Miss Olive Goff danced daintily; and the song and dances of Misses Irene and Maxine Hyman and Miss Alma Samuel were well received. Part of the proceeds of the entertainment were given to the Maurice Hostel, Hoxton.

ON the occasion of her benefit, at the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, on the 15th ult., Miss Ida Heron, who has made such a success as Lady Isabel in the original Bullock version of East Lynne, toured by Mr. Tom Watt, was presented with a magnificent bouquet from her admirers in Glasgow. In response to the demands for a speech, Mr. Frank Beresford, the popular young actor, well known to Glasgow audiences, thanked the huge assembly on Miss Heron's behalf in a few well-chosen words. In addition to East Lynne, Mr. Joe Rowland produced A Lively Hibernian, playing his original part, supported by Misses Pardy and Forbes and Messrs. Manville and Mansfield, the little farce being received with shrieks of laughter.

"THE NAKED TRUTH," the merry play which is crowding Wyndham's Theatre nightly, will make its first appearance out of London on Monday next at Brighton, with Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's No. 1 company, which will visit all the principal towns this autumn. Mr. Stanley Logan will be the "Bunny." The cast includes Messrs. Townsend Whitling, Besley Beltram, Erskine Lang, James Heddon, J. Sinclair, Miss Violet Ley, Miss Ormonde Wynne, Miss Dora Fellowes, Miss L. M. Russell, Miss Violet Temple, and Miss Kathleen Maude, and the business arrangements for the company are in the hands of Mr. Arthur Law Raynor.

MR. OSWALD CRAY has acquired the rights from Mr. T. Morton Powell of The Mystery of Edwin Drood and The Woman who Gambles, which two pieces he will shortly produce, and possibly play in conjunction with his present great success, When it was Dark. Mr. Cray is still further extending his répertoire in the immediate future, and intends putting on The Lyons Mail and A Tale of Two Cities. These five well-known attractions will make a very interesting and varied répertoire, and give considerable scope to his own talents, as well as to those of his exceedingly clever and versatile provincial company.

THE 100th performance of The Islander will take place at the Apollo Theatre on Monday next. The success which we predicted for the piece has been fully attained, and we are glad to see its many merits have been appreciated by the public.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES has engaged Miss Alice O'Brien, of the Opéra Comique, Paris, to appear for one month at Daly's Theatre on Aug. 1 in the title-rôle of The Dollar Princess while Miss Lily Elsie is away on her holiday. Miss Alice O'Brien was one of the principals at Covent Garden Opera during the grand season last year. This will be her first appearance in musical comedy.

THE fiftieth performance of Mr. George Edwardes's successful production The Girl in the Train will be given at the Vaudeville Theatre this evening.

MR. LIONEL ATWILL sailed yesterday for Australia on the S.S. Omrah under contract with Mr. J. C. Williamson as leading man for six months It will be remembered that Mr. Atwill was leading man on the first tours of The Bondman, The Flag Lieutenant, and The Prisoner of the Bastille.

THE Compton Comedy Company starts its autumn tour at the Opera House, Buxton, on Aug. 8. The répertoire includes Davy Garrick, The School for Scandal, She Stoops to Conquer, The Rivals, A Reformed Rake, The Road to Ruin, Tomorrow, or the Eighteenth Century; and Mr. Compton's latest success, Used Up, or The Blasé Baronet, played in conjunction with Cool as a Cucumber.

THE Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, will be re-opened on Aug. 1 with a revival of Stanley Houghton's comedy, Independent Means. The company will include Miss Darragh, Miss Holbrook, Miss Isabel Roland, Mr. Henry Austin, Mr. Esme Percy, Mr. Whitford Kane, etc. Cupid and the Styx, by Dr. J. Sackville Martin, will be played on Aug. 8.

MR. STUART LOMATH has been compelled to postpone the opening date of his autumn tour until early in September, owing to the dangerous illness of his wife, Miss Ellen Owen, who is now lying in Guy's Hospital, after having undergone a very serious operation. She is happily making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON AND MR. PERCY HUTCHISON'S Smith company will make its début before the provincial public at Lowestoft on Monday. Rehearsals have been taking place for the last two weeks at Southport, and Mr. Hutchison has taken great pains to ensure the production being in every way a complete replica of the original London production. So great is Mr. Hutchison's faith in Smith that he is sending out No. 1 tours of it this autumn.

THE Sussex Daily News, in dealing with the production at the Brighton West Pier Theatre on the 4th inst. of Miss Hélène Gingold's new play Looking for Trouble, says:—"Mr. Walter Pearce acted with a pleasant sense of style, and ensures for Captain Porches a military smartness and gentlemanly bonhomie, and makes up very cleverly for the disguise of his father."

MISS EDITH COLE is now again undertaking a short tour as the Empress Josephine in A Royal Divorce. As at present arranged, Miss Cole (Mrs. W. W. Kelly) will only appear in a few cities, making a feature of special appearances in Dublin and Belfast, which cities she has been specially asked to visit.

MR. W. W. KELLY will reopen his successful Liverpool theatre, Kelly's, in Paradise-street, for the autumn dramatic season on Saturday next, the initial programme being Mr. Lester Collingwood's company in When London Sleeps.

MISS BEATRICE WILSON, whose charming performance of Kitty Silverton in The Marriage of Kitty aroused great admiration, was the recipient of a large bouquet in Hastings the other day, presented by eleven different people who had witnessed the performance and admired Miss Wilson's impersonation.

MR. MARK LORNE, who has been appointed by Mr. Oswald Stoll as manager of the Palace Theatre, Bordesley, has for the past three years been connected with the Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatre, Ltd. He left the Grand, Mansfield, to take up the general-management of the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, which, under his spirited management last season, proved most successful.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD is adding to the many attractions of The Earl and the Girl, the charming musical play which will start its autumn tour on Saturday, July 30, at the Marlborough Theatre, N., a bonne bouche in the form of a merry musical scena in Act 2, founded on the celebrated Chantecler play, costumed in wonderful original Chantecler dresses, designed and executed by Willie Clarkson, and never before seen in suburban London.

MISS MARY BROUGH has presented Mr. Tom Craven with a dressing-case which was formerly the property of the late Lionel Brough.

THE conclusion of a very successful season at the Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, was celebrated in a fitting manner by the members of the stock company, who have been performing there during the past fourteen weeks. A farewell dinner took place on the stage after the performance on Thursday evening, July 14, the guest of the evening being Mr. James Alexander, the popular manager of the theatre. In a neat little speech Mr. Alexander thanked the members of the company for their work during the season, and remarked that they had broken all records in Birmingham. He hoped to see them all back again next year, and that they would prove as big favourites as they had done during the past season. The festivities extended until early on Friday morning. The season came to an end on Saturday evening, July 16, and many presents and souvenirs were bestowed on members of the company, including the Misses Nellie Thorne Hallam, Yoxo Summers, Marguerite Thorne, and Nancy Mitchell, and Messrs. Victor Gardom, Norman Tracy, Geoffrey Broughton, Newton Pearce, Frank Holyoake, and Willis Collins. At the conclusion of the performance all the artists joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne," which was taken up heartily by the audience. The final curtain descended amidst tumultuous applause, bringing to a close a red-letter night at the Carlton Theatre.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

How the Ghost Walked.

"How and when the 'ghost walks,'" writes a correspondent of experience, "is naturally of interest to the actor, touching, as it does, not his 'inmost heart,' but his 'inner pocket'; but accustomed as we are now to receiving our little packets on the Friday evening during or after the performance, it was not always thus, as my more than thirty years' experience can testify. What would an actor say now if he were to be at the theatre at 12 o'clock Saturday, and although the treasury might be punctually opened at that hour if anyone holding a subordinate position in the company had to wait, as I have done, until 2 o'clock before receiving the reward of merit?

The Old Plan.

"THE rule in those days held that we had to enter the sacred portals of the treasury in rotation, according to our status in the company. If two or more leading members of the theatre were inclined to be garrulous—as our 'old woman' invariably was—woe betide the unfortunate 'second walking gentleman' or 'responsible utility' waiting for his or her turn. On one occasion I remember the dear old lady in question—much as she was loved and called 'Granny' by us all—had so little thought for us poor small fry that she remained gossiping for twenty-five minutes with our worthy treasurer. This occurred at a theatre bordering on the Strand, and under a well-known and respected actor-management.

Quick Work.

"IN contrast to this, I remember on one of my earliest tours—Lord Clancarty—under the management of the late Richard Yonge, that delightful actor and gentleman used to pay the entire company in about five minutes. At 12 'sharp' he would appear on the stage with his lucky bag, and, dipping his fingers into the same, handed to each one his or her little packet, with no distinction as to one's position in the company—'first come, first served.' Thus, the baggage man, as it occurred on one occasion, was paid the first and the leading man the very last, much to the amusement of the company. The leading man was my dear old friend George Rignold.

Friday Payments.

"ONE of the first managers to introduce payment of salaries on the Friday night was the late Charles Rice, of the Theatre Royal, Bradford, where in the past E. S. Willard, George Sinclair, Mark Melford, and H. C. Arnold were members of the company. Mr. Rice was extremely partial to notices, printed or otherwise, both before and behind the curtain—some excellent in their way, such as, 'All the staff to wear list slippers, under penalty of dismissal,' &c. Whether this was intended, as one of our comics observed, to prevent the said stage staff from crossing the road to obtain their refreshment instead of having to pay their coppers into the theatre canteen, I cannot say; anyway, it was to the advantage of the artists, especially in their 'quiet' scenes.

An Odd Order.

"A CERTAIN treasury notice was a wondrous concoction. I remember distinctly the wording of a portion of it. 'In order to enable the ladies and gentlemen of the company to complete their marketing before rehearsal on Saturday treasury will be held for the future at 10 o'clock Friday night in the green-room.' Some wicked wag in the company drew a most amusing picture of one of the company as he appeared on the Saturday morning, and had the audacity to place the same on the call-board. The actor was depicted with a joint of meat under his arm, groceries bulging out of every pocket, and potatoes and other vegetables in a sack on his back. This humorous culprit, though well known to the company, was never discovered by the management, or I am afraid his career at the Theatre Royal might have been prematurely cut short.

"THE late Mr. Newcombe, of the Theatre Royal, Plymouth—that wonderful old gentleman who used to 'don the pink' and follow the hounds in the daytime whilst appearing in pantomime at night, singing and dancing when over seventy years of age, used to hold his treasury on the Tuesday—a most unusual time in the week. Tuesday was his regular day, but, members being allowed to 'sub' regularly on the Saturday, they had the pleasing experience of receiving two treasuries in one week. On one occasion, owing to the managers being away on a holiday and my name not being on the treasury list, I had to wait for my salary until they returned in four or five weeks—this at a West End theatre. It is needless to add that when the managers returned I received my money in full with apologies for delay."

The Hero's Part.

THE following appears this week in the Sporting Times:—"'Who plays the hero?' asked the new stage manager, as he stepped upon the stage for the first rehearsal of the great sensational moral and religious drama. Then it was that the unhappy little man in the obscure corner who had been seduced into putting up the money asserted his position. 'I do,' he replied, firmly, withal modestly."

A Weird Experience.

"I REMEMBER a weird experience that befell me under a well-known American management," says Mr. Lawrence Grossmith in an interview in the Whitehall Review. "In America they do not provide understudies in burlesques. In Philadelphia one evening, just as the curtain was rising, the manager was informed that George Beban, the actor playing the part of a Frenchman, was unable to appear. A hurried consultation was held. The omission of the Frenchman's part would have ruined the play, as all Mr. Fielder's big scenes were with him; so Mr. Fieldes asked me if I would consent to go on and play it in addition to my own. I agreed. To add to my difficulties I did not know a line of the part, but Mr. Fieldes implored me to attempt it, assuring me it would not matter what I said, so long as we got through the scene somehow or other.

"NOT the least of my difficulties was that I had to be continually whisking out of one make-up into another and putting on a moustache and a black wig. The climax was reached in the last act, where we were all supposed to be on the scene together playing a rubber of bridge, the four card-players being a Dutch Jew (Lew Fieldes), a theatrical manager (Peter Daley), the absent Frenchman, and myself in the shape of an effeminate brainless dude, an English earl.

"THIS was got over by playing dummy bridge. The Frenchman's part was ostensibly cut out, but, dressed as his vapid lordship, I had to extemporise the Frenchman's lines with a Piccadilly accent. We got through it somehow, and the audience, who had received an announcement that George Beban was indisposed, bore the contretemps with a very good grace. These American burlesques are more like a 'revue,' or the programme of a performance of Monsieur Pelissier's 'Follies,' than anything else I can liken them to; the actors have licence to 'gag' as much as they please. It is hard work touring with such a company, as they alter the bill every three weeks. I have played in the States, too, under Mrs. Langtry's management."

Mr. Edwin Milton Royle's play A White Man, which was performed for the first time in England at the Lyric Theatre on Jan. 11, 1908, is a strong, direct, and telling drama, romantic, pathetic, and powerful, with much picturesqueness both in subject and treatment. In the Lyric production Mr. Lewis Waller played Captain James Wynnegate and Mr. Herbert Sleath the Earl of Kerhill, Miss Nora Lancaster being the Countess of Kerhill and Miss Mary Rorke the Dowager. As our readers will remember, the young Earl of Kerhill embezzles the funds of a military orphanage of which he is president, and also commits forgery. The chivalrous Captain Wynnegate, his cousin, to save the family honour, takes the blame of Kerhill's crime, and decides to emigrate. The Countess of Kerhill has a deep, though perfectly pure, affection for Wynnegate, and guesses the reason for his departure. We next find him living in the Western State of Wyoming, where he incurs the enmity of Cash Hawkins, a cattle-stealer, and narrowly escapes being shot or hanged. His life having been saved by Nat-u-rich, an Indian chief's daughter, Wynnegate marries her. Kerhill dies, and the Captain becomes heir to the estate; but he refuses to desert Nat-u-rich, though he consents that Little Hal shall go to England to be educated. Nat-u-rich, however, cannot endure to part from the boy, and shoots herself, leaving Wynnegate free to return to England and marry the Countess.

An enthusiastic and optimistic audience welcomed the return of A White Man to the Lyceum last Wednesday, under the leaseeship of Messrs. Walter and Frederick Melville; and, judging by the way in which the drama was received and the number of calls before the curtain which were insisted upon, the play will in all probability be as successful as it was under the régime of Mr. Waller at the Lyric. Mr. Herbert Sleath's performance as Captain James Wynnegate was full of reserved energy and strong, firm feeling. It was excellent all round, and Mr. Sleath was especially striking in the scene in the second act, the Long Horn Saloon, in which Wynnegate so successfully "bests" the cattle-stealing Cash Hawkins. Mr. Eric Mayne admirably portrayed the weak, erring Earl of Kerhill, though the part gave him no opportunity of displaying his strongest points. Mr. R. A. Brandon made a decided hit as the foreman Big Bill, his delivery of his lines being especially telling and humorous. The powerful and realistic performance of the part of Cash Hawkins given by Mr. Frank Mayo was decidedly one of the features of the performance. The rôle offers excellent scope, and its opportunities were taken full advantage of. Mr. William F. Grant was business-like and incisive as Malcolm Petrie, the Kerhill family lawyer, and made the most of his opportunity in the ranch scene, in which Petrie urges Jim to send his little son Hal home to England. Miss Georgina Wynter won all hearts with her excellent portrayal of Diana Countess of Kerhill, being most effective in the saloon scene, where Diana recognises in Jim Carston Captain James Wynnegate, V.C. The Nat-u-rich of Miss Violet Vorley was excellent, and the actress made a deep impression in the third act, in which Nat-u-rich learns that her boy has to go to England. Little Kitty Rogers spoke her lines very well indeed as Little Hal, being seen to special advantage in the scene in which Jim says "good-bye" to his son. Special mention must be made of the clever work done by Mr. S. Major Jones as Bud Hardy, the County Sheriff. His make-up, gait, and appearance, as well as his American accent, all deserved high praise. As Tab-y-wana, the Indian chief, Mr. Frederick Ross was dignified and solemn, his declamation of the Indian tongue being very impressive. His clever make-up and general appearance helped him greatly to score, as he did in the "Long Horn Saloon" scene, in which Cash Hawkins makes the chief drunk in order to get him to sign a paper. The part of Baco White, whose work chiefly consists of interpreting Tab-y-wana's conversaiton with Jim Carston in the fourth act, was made the most of by Mr. F. Thornton. Mr. Harry Cane deserves praise for his excellent work as the Dean of Trantham. Mr. Frank Elliott supplied some delightfully humorous relief as the dandified Sir John Applegate, a friend of the Kerhill family. Mr. J. Floyd made the most of the rôle of Nick, the bar-keeper of the Long Horn Saloon. The three cowboys, Shorty, Andy, and Grouchy, were admirably portrayed by Messrs. Gerald Valentine, Stanley Warmington, and Hugh Taylor. Miss Gladys Storey gave a breezy and clever impersonation of Lady Mabel Wynnegate. As Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Doolittle Mr. W. Fletcher and Miss Lilian Tweed were responsible for much amusement in the saloon scene, in which the travellers find the company of cowboys quite a contrast to their usual acquaintances. Miss Dorothy Duncan did all that was possible with the small part of the music-hall artist. The parts of Pete, Parson, and Punk, cowboys of the Long Horn Saloon, were safely placed in the hands of Messrs. Gerald Earle, John Rogerson, and Alfred Gordon respectively. Mr. David Douglas made the most of his little rôle of Clark, the Sheriff's deputy; and Mr. John Bell and Mr. Jack Coutts did sound work as the engine driver and conductor of the train. The private secretary, Mr. Chiswick, was well hit off by Mr. Henry Ashmead; and Mr. Wilton James played Bates after an approved method. The three lieutenants, Henry George, Alex Leslie, and Charles Magarth, had able exponents in Messrs. William Heal, Sydney Hope, and George Norton. The scenery was picturesque and effective, and praise is certainly due to the excellent stage-management of Mr. S. Major Jones. The waits between the acts were considerably shortened by the delightful selections given by the Lyceum orchestra, under the baton of Mr. H. Sullivan Brooke. The production was under the direct supervision of Mr. Herbert Sleath, who may be congratulated on the result of his enterprise.

DEATH OF ALICE BARTH.

It will be with considerable regret that older readers of The Era will hear of the death of Mme. Alice Barth (Mrs. Campbell Bishop), who passed away after a short illness on Monday afternoon. It was at the Gaiety on Feb. 17, 1873, that Alice Barth made her first appearance in Robert Reece's Don Giovanni in Venice, in which she played the part of Donna Elvira. Mr. J. L. Toole was the Don, Nellie Farren the Leporello, Miss Alice Cook the Zerlina, Mr. John Maclean the Commendatore, Mr. Alfred Bishop the Don Ottavio, being now the only survivor of a famous cast. It was at the Alexandra Opera House, Camden Town, run by Mr. Thomas Thorpe Pede, that she created one of the singing rôles in The Magic Pearl, which opened the autumn season of that house on Sept. 29, 1873, and on Dec. 8 of the same year appeared at the same house as Celiante in In the Clouds: A Glimpse of Utopia, by Gilbert A'Beckett. Such was her versatility that she played the principal boy in Mother Redcap, the first Alexandra Theatre pantomime. For two years she left the stage, but love of her art induced her to return, and for a time she devoted herself to concert and oratorio work chiefly, appearing at the St. James's Hall ballad and other leading concerts. A season of English opera at Her Majesty's Theatre followed, where Miss Barth played Arline, in Balfe's evergreen opera The Bohemian Girl, for the first time, without rehearsal, and at a few hours' notice. Soon after she was associated with Mr. Sims Reeves in ballad opera, playing Polly Peachum to his Captain Macheath, Julia, in Guy Mannering, etc. Her first appearance with the Royal Carl Rosa Opera company occurred in 1888, whilst touring with Mr. Arthur Rousbey, when, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, she played Countess Almaviva, in Le Nozze di Figaro. After fulfilling several other special engagements for the Carl Rosa company (during tours with Madame Ilma Norina and Mr. Valentine Smith) she joined for the tour in 1891, sharing prima donna rôles with Madame Marie Roze, etc. With Charles Durand and Alice Barnett she appeared at the Grand, Islington, on Oct. 3, 1892, in the English version of Rossini's Cenerentola, playing Clorinda to the popular lady Savoyard's Thisbe, her husband, Mr. Campbell Bishop, being the Alidoro, Mr. M. R. Morand the Pedro, Mr. Leslie Crotty the Dandini, and Miss Georgina Burns (Mrs. Leslie Crotty) Cinderella. In 1894 she rejoined the Carl Rosa Opera company for character parts, her chief success being made as the Countess, in The Daughter of the Regiment, and in Hansel and Gretel, playing both the Mother and the Witch. After a ten months' season Miss Barth left to join Mr. Wm. Greet's Gay Parisienne company, playing Mrs. Honeycombe on three consecutive tours, and in July, 1897, she appeared as Lady Hawser, in The French Maid, at Terry's Theatre, and also in "Hans Andersen's Fairy Tales" at Christmas matinées. After The French Maid was transferred to the Vaudeville Theatre she continued her successful assumption of the Admiral's wife until the close of the run. In Her Royal Highness she appeared as the showman's wife. Miss Barth toured with her own opera company for many successive summer seasons. She studied singing under Signor Randegger and the late Messrs. Thorpe Pede and Sidney Naylor. She never had a lesson on the pianoforte (though she was a proficient musician) nor in acting; and there was no branch of the histrionic art she was not familiar with, except melodrama, from grand opera down to farce and pantomime. The interment took place on Friday (yesterday) in Highgate Cemetery.

THE LATE MISS ALICE BARTH.

AN ACTOR SHOT.

Mr. T. Weldon Anderson, aged 47, an actor, better known under his stage name of Atherstone, was killed in the back garden of a flat in Battersea on Saturday night. The way in which he met his death is a mystery; but a taxicab driver, named Noice, saw a man hastily scaling the wall which separates the back portion of the flats in Clifton-gardens from Rosenau-road. The man, who disappeared in the darkness, is supposed to have been about 5ft. 6in. in height, and to have been dressed in a dark tweed suit, wearing sharp-pointed boots or shoes. Other people living near heard revolver shots. Mr. Anderson was found dying from the effects of two, evidently fired at him point-blank.

It would appear from the attitude in which the deceased was found—in a seated position on the doorstep—and from a bullet-mark in the wall above, that on opening the scullery door on the ground floor, and going out into the back garden, Mr. Anderson found himself face to face with his assailant. There were two wounds—one in the mouth and the other on the forehead, and the face was blackened by powder. The murderer probably approached the rear of No. 17, Clifton-gardens, by scaling the wall, over which he subsequently made his escape.

Mr. Atherstone was a quiet, reserved man, and a sound and useful actor. His best impersonation was that of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, in Jane Shore, but he played heavy lead in Mr. Sheen's drama The Temptress, and also sustained a leading part in a piece, called Under the Red Cross, written by Mr. G. P. Nicholls, the Somersetshire cricketer, and dealing with incidents in the Boer War. He also acted with Mr. Hill Mitchelson's company in a play called Revenge.

At the inquest at Battersea on Tuesday afternoon, which was presided over by Mr. Troutbeck, the Coroner for South-West London, Miss Harriet Anderson said she had seen the body of the deceased man and had identified it as that of her brother. The inquest was then adjourned over the Long Vacation.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The mystical character of Mr. Charles Darrell's play A Woman of Two Lives is derived from the practice of witchcraft in the region of Upper Burmah. This magical quality is invested in the person of one Drumpardi Lares, known as the Red Witch of Burmah, whose motive lies in her grandmotherly relationship to the heroine of the play. The conditions of army life in those far-away places form an interesting groundwork for the action, which is sufficiently exciting and unusual to produce an effect of originality, though the pruning knife is required (and will doubtless be used) for the sake of brevity and congruity of humour.

The opening scene is a military station in Upper Burmah, where Captain Travers West, much liked by his subordinates, is also passionately loved by Ogarita, who lives with him as his wife, and whom he has promised never to leave. Ogarita tells him the story of her mother, who, finding herself deserted with a little child (herself) by an Englishman known as the Golden Sahib, who was recalled after similar promises, hanged herself in sorrow and despair. Desertion is the fate foretold for Ogarita by the Red Witch, who at this juncture reveals to the girl her knowledge of a potion which will change the nature and appearance of any person of mixed blood, so that Ogarita might be either a fair, golden-haired, loving angel of a girl, full of sympathy, or a pure Hindoo, dark with passion and revenge. Ogarita refuses to take the potion, but the witch prophesies that she will drink it without persuasion before an hour has passed. This happens, for Captain West is called home by the arrival of English letters, which inform him that his uncle has died and left him his fortune and title, and he makes it quite clear to Ogarita that to go with him is impossible. Ogarita curses him, and when he has gone drinks the potion, and falls fainting, with the result that she is transformed into a beautiful fair-haired English girl, to be known as Angela Fenton, the Golden Sahib's daughter. The scene changes to the London home of West, now the Earl of Aylestone and Quorn. Among his guests are Angela, with whom he has fallen in love, and the Red Witch, who is now known as Her Highness of Allaharabad, other people of interest being Garda Khan, a seditious Hindu, who is also in love with Angela, and Col. St. Aubrey Fenton, the father of Angela. West proposes, and is accepted; and now begin the schemes of the witch to punish both him and Fenton for their conduct in India. She invites Fenton to see some curious Burmese specimens in a mysterious room at her house. Previous to his arrival she prompts Angela to drink the potion again, by which she is changed to a Hindu, more vengeful than the old Ogarita. Told of Fenton's identity, she is easily persuaded to murder the latter on his arrival in the chamber. Rather unexpectedly upon this tragic event the police rush in, followed by West, who is startled and horrified by the sight of Ogarita with the bloodstained knife in her hand. Ogarita is at once arrested. The subsequent scenes in the police-cell are outside probability, but the purpose of the drama is served by the Witch's opportunity to administer once more the magic drug to Ogarita, so that she is enabled to walk out unquestioned as Angela Fenton. The wedding morn succeeds this, the ceremony being celebrated at the Begum's town mansion. The latter's object is to transform Angela into Ogarita, thus confronting West with a dramatic requital of his heartless desertion of his Indian mistress; but by this time Angela has become aware of her dual personality, and prefers to remain as she is. During her husband's temporary absence, however, Garda Khan and the Witch force her to take the potion. She is placed behind a screen, where the transformation is supposed to be taking place; and when West returns, asking for his wife, the Witch announces that he will find her there—not Angela, but the forsaken Ogarita. This time, however, the Witch is disappointed, for the draught has failed to act. There is Angela, in her bridal dress, half fainting, but unchanged. At this juncture the police are at hand to take into custody the Witch and Garda Khan for complicity in Ogarita's mysterious escape from prison. Thus the lovers, husband and wife, are left to their newly-found happiness, and the story is at an end.

Miss Hilda Beverley made a great success as Ogarita and Angela—the one character invested with typical force and passion, and the other delineated with a contrasting sympathy and gentleness. Mr. Herbert Pearson's impersonation of Captain West was quiet, soldierly, and appealing. The more difficult rôle of the Red Witch was well and tactfully handled by Miss Mary Brammer, and a clear and forcible depiction of the politically mischievous Garda Khan was submitted by Mr. James Jarrett. Mr. Jack Armitage contributed a clever sketch of a society Johnny as Lord Billy Tremaine, and Miss Louise Gilmore played smartly as Lady Arabella Mountphayton. The comedy element was efficiently exploited by Mr. E. Hall Eldon as Dick Smarter and Miss Dorothy Hildebrand as Lottie London; and the remaining parts were sufficiently well done. Praise must be added for the staging, which was highly effective.

AT the concert organised by the Duchess of Marlborough, and given in the fine ball-room of Sunderland House, in aid of the National Physical Recreation Society, the first item on the programme was a display of drill by members of the society, followed by songs from Chevalier Edvardo Burry, Mrs. Walter Rubens, Mr. Bertram Binyon, and Lady Maud Warrender, a recitation by Miss Ellen Terry, a playlet acted by Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Dorothy Thomas, and Mr. Walter, imitations by Miss Cecilia Loftus, and violin solo by Lady Speyer, who also played an obbligato for Lady Maud Warrender's second song. The entertainment was very fashionably attended.

IN the Westminster County Court on the 15th inst. a case was down for hearing in which Ethel Lumley Dann (wife of Thomas Lumley Dann, Press agent, of Hind-court, Fleet-street) claimed fifty guineas from Mr. Frank Curzon. This amount she asserted to be due under a verbal agreement into which he entered with her for assisting in carrying out, by way of advertisement, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, "a certain matinée hat incident on April 2." Mr. Dann also claims £100 on the same alleged agreement. Owing to cases in front of it the suit had to be adjourned. Judge Woodfall offered a special day, July 23. Mr. Schwabe (for the defendant) said that could clash with an arrangement which the defendant had made to get married. The action was then adjourned over the Long Vacation.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, JULY 21.—Like in the preceding years, the 14th of July has been celebrated in a worthy manner, most of the Paris theatres having given gratis afternoon performances to those citizens who cannot afford to buy a seat, even in the gallery. The 14th of July being the anniversary of the taking of the Bastille, and also of the Proclamation of the Republic, we are supposed to be very patriotic on that day, and at every performance the "Marseillaise" is sang. Written in 1792, this impressive hymn still retains its hold on the masses, and I recommend visitors to Paris to edge their way into a playhouse on the great National Fête day, when they will see how enthusiastic a French crowd can grow over Rouget de Lisle's celebrated song. At the Comédie Française Le Mariage de Figaro was given. The house was enraptured, and thundering applause greeted the artists, who certainly did their best to please the humble but delighted audience. Towards the end of the second act a bouquet of flowers was thrown on to the stage and fell at the feet of Mlle. Leconte, who impersonated Chérubin. Mlle. Leconte picked up the flowers, but, instead of bowing to the "house," she kneeled down before the Comtesse and offered them to her—a tactful proceeding that was fully appreciated by the spectators. It was Mdme. Segond-Weber, the great actress, who sang—or rather recited—the "Marseillaise," and the effect of her recitation was electrical. The Opéra had selected Aida, and the huge building was filled to overflowing. One of our confrères comments on the fact that people once inside the house are not allowed to leave their seats during the entr'acte to breathe some fresh air outside. This—says our confrère—is a tyrannical measure, if applied to poor people who only go once a year to a theatre. It would be far better if it were applied to the "better" (?) classes, who converse during the performance, and return to their seats after the curtain has risen. For some unknown reason the Opéra Comique is more patronised on the 14th of July than any other Paris theatre. Already, at an early hour, a long file of men and women could be seen on the Place Boieldieu, patiently waiting for the clock to strike one, when the doors will be thrown open. The majority of these good people brought their luncheon, and the little square in front of the Opéra Comique at one time looked as if a gigantic picnic were in full swing. Others, however, came unprovided with refreshments, and relied on the itinerant vendors to supply them with the necessaries of life. These necessaries consist of "charcuterie," i.e., sausages, cold veal, bread, cakes; other vendors do a roaring trade in lemonade and other refreshing drinks. At last the clock struck one, and half-a-dozen stalwart policemen stood in front of every open door to prevent a crush that might have proved dangerous to life and limb. Le Roi d' Ys appeared on the programme, a wise selection. It is not generally known that the composer of this stupendous work was nearly 70 when it was at last produced. He had waited years and years to see it brought out, with the mortification of hearing fragments of his opera hissed at the Concerts Pasdeloup. Edouard Lalo died in poverty, and broken-hearted, for the hour of triumph had struck too late. This time it was Mlle. Brophy who sang the "Marseillaise," and she threw so much pathos into her work that the song was encored.

I am sorry to have to chronicle the death of M. Leon Jancey, Sécrétaire-Général of the Opéra Comique. He had fallen seriously ill a few weeks ago, and his friends had hoped that a stay in the country would restore him to health; but he passed away on Sunday last at Montclar. M. Jancey had been an actor, and appeared at the Odéon in vaudeville. But he gave up the stage and devoted himself to tuition, until M. Carré offered him the post of Sécrétaire-Général. Courteous and amiable, M. Jancey will be deeply mourned by his numerous friends.

Mme. Delphine Ugalde has also passed away at the age of 81. She was a celebrity in her time. Born in 1829, she became her mother's pupil, and married M. Ugalde, a distinguished musician. She made her début in 1848 at the Opéra Comique in Le Domino Noir, and in the course of the next few years developed into a star. Her husband having died, she became the wife of M. Vascollier, took over the management of the Bouffes-Parisiens, where she produced Offenbach's répertoire, and appeared in the principal rôles. But the Bouffes-Parisiens was an ill-starred house, as Mme. Ugalde found out at her cost. She therefore threw up the management, and returned to the Opéra-Comique, where, in 1870, she was much applauded in Ded. This, however, was her swan's song in public; and from that moment she devoted herself to teaching singing, and had many famous pupils, among whom were Mme. Marie Sasse. Mme. Delphine Ugalde has a daughter, Mlle. Marguerite Ugalde, a charming actress and singer, who has made a great name for herself.

During the "silly season" we hear a good many stories about diamonds and pearls, supposed to be stolen from actresses or operatic singers, who employ this cheap and effective method of bringing their names before the public. Sometimes, however, these stories are true; and the one referring to Mlle. Cécile Sorel's pearls is certainly funny. A well-known financier in Paris received a visit from a M. Henri Jacquinet, who brought with him a carefully-sealed jewel case and a letter, bearing the signature of Mlle. Cécile Sorel, of the Comédie Française, wherein that lady asked for a loan of £1,000 on her pearl necklace, which, she said, was worth three times that amount. The banker, flattered that so charming an actress should have applied to him for a loan which he could grant under such safe conditions, consented to do the business, paid M. Jacquinet £750, and locked the pearls in his safe. After a few days, however, he suddenly had his suspicions, and showed the pearls to a jeweller, who, with a grin, told him that they were worth about five shillings. He then communicated with Mlle. Sorel, and received the startling reply that she did not know this M. Jacquinet, and had never entrusted him with any jewels—real or false. M. Jacquinet is now under lock and key, but the money advanced by the banker has not been recovered.

THE public examination was held on Thursday of John Arthur Harrison, of Leicester-square, W.C., who had acted as managing-director of a company carrying on the business of theatrical costumiers. The debtor's statement of affairs showed liabilities £3,030, and assets 8s. 7d., not taking into consideration a bad book-debt of £1,164. In reply to the official receiver, the debtor said that he had been in receipt of £500 a year from his post of managing-director down to the date of his failure, but he was afraid that he had not kept his expenditure within his salary. His failure was due to his connection with the Strand Theatre. He was originally managing-director of a syndicate which produced a musical comedy at the theatre, a lease of which he took in January last. He sublet it to another person (Mr. Robert Hilton) for three months certain, but that gentleman "bolted" after presenting a play (Richelieu) for three days, and the contractor for the bars then took proceedings to recover part of the sum paid in advance, and obtained judgment for £173 and costs. The contractor then instituted bankruptcy proceedings, and obtained a receiving order. The examination was concluded.

MUSIC HALL HOME.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of cheque for £272 14s. 6d. to balance. With hearty thanks from my Committee and myself,—Yours faithfully,

HARRY BARNARD,
Chairman and Treasurer, Music Hall Home.

To Mr. F. H. Pedgrift. July 12, 1910.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

At the head of an extremely attractive programme this week is Mr. George Ali and company in the now well-known and popular sketch Papa's Day Off. Mr. Ali, it will be remembered, jumped into fame in this country with his performance as the cat in the last Drury Lane pantomime but one, and followed that last Christmas with an almost equally humorous impersonation of a Chinese dog. Papa's Day Off provides Mr. Ali with an excellent opportunity for displaying his remarkable ability as an animal impersonator, and "Sport" is probably as fine a performance of a dog as has ever been seen. The sketch is responsible for roars of laughter, and Mr. Ali receives excellent support from Mr. James Hollom as the mischievous boy, Mr. Walter Elagest as Tommy's father, Miss Jennie Lester as Tommy's mother, Miss Bessie Harrison as Aunt Betsy, and Mr. Fred Grove as Count Wizzle.

Tom Stuart, in his dramatic and burlesque imitations, proves himself a clever and versatile artist, his imitation of a certain type of music-hall comedian being both strikingly true and richly humorous. That clever troupe of juvenile singers and dancers known as Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten, conduct "A Model School" on distinctly original lines (as the programme says), and, as always, provide excellent entertainment. Will Johnson is a comedian who may always be relied upon to put an audience in a good humour, and with a couple of numbers such as "Serves him jolly well right" and "Poor old Martha," his task is one of no great difficulty. His second number, it may be mentioned, is what is known as a "dame" song. Patrick O'Shea is the lucky possessor of a delightful tenor voice, and his singing is very popular, whilst Daisy Martell is an attractive and pleasing comedienne.

The Hardini Trio, which consists of three pretty German girls, appear in a musical act, their violin playing of a lengthy selection of Gounod's Faust being a particularly appreciated item in their contribution. Campbell and Barber, whose comedy acrobatic cycling act is well known, achieve their usual success, and the American Bioscope is showing a series of up-to-date pictures.

The programme is completed by Mr. Chas. R. Whittle, one of the neatest and most versatile comedians our music-hall stage can boast. Mr. Whittle is this week singing his new song, "Fall in and follow me," the ever-popular and very funny "Come and have a drink with me," and another new song, "He's a naughty, naughty boy." Mr. Whittle is a genuine artist, and his success with these three songs is quite sufficient proof of the fact.

Mr. Lewis Vincent is as attentive as ever to the comfort of those in front, and receives admirable assistance from Mr. Herbert Mack.

ARTISTS' REFERENCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I really think that managers who engage artists should take the trouble to write for references. During the past few months I have received letters from four managers who have engaged people giving me as a reference. In neither of these cases was I applied to in support of the reference. Now I am written to and informed that these people are unsatisfactory. I find that three of the people mentioned were with me for periods ranging from one day to two weeks, and the other has never been with me at all. I could have mentioned this, and saved a lot of annoyance at the first.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN V. NORMAN.

Mr. Frank Hawthorne, who was engaged to support Miss Margaret Parker in Lucky Jim during her Stoll tour, and who made such a big impression in the part of James Carstairs, has returned to town after a twenty weeks' engagement.

"MR. JUSTICE PERKINS."

Farcical Sketch, in Three Scenes, written by Herbert Sydney, Albert Bruno, and Fred Karno, Produced for the first time in London at the Metropolitan on Monday, July 18.

Mr. Justice Perkins, being the further adventures of the popular character that has figured so prominently in other of Mr. Fred Karno's laughable productions, was presented by this well-known combination for the first time in London on Monday, and is one of the principal attractions in Mr. Henri Gros' fine programme. Joshua Perkins in this instance is a celebrity in the village of Spoddleton, chiefly by reason of the fact that he is the treasurer of three or four local institutions—evidently a very lucrative position, judging by his explanation of the meaning of the word to his tiny companion. The Mayor coming on the scene to select someone as the borough magistrate, the assembled yokels and village maidens unanimously vote for Perkins, and after much farcical business he is elected. There are many laughable encounters in the scene outside the Court between Perkins and the ghostly-looking usher, the counsel for the defence and prosecution, Mary Ann Blobbs, a distressed damsel who is suing him for breach of promise, and other characters, and, needless to remark, he always manages to come out top dog. His ludicrous behaviour as Justice of the Peace inside the court also keeps the audience continuously on the laugh, his lightning decisions, his familiarity with all the officials, and his effective method of getting the jury to agree with his way of thinking all being screamingly funny. Mr. Albert Bruno in the all-important part of Joshua Perkins works untiringly throughout and always with success, his impersonation being a very droll one. The names of the other characters and their interpreters are not given on the programme, but mention must be made of the effective work of those responsible for portrayals of the Usher, Mary Ann Blobbs, Phyllis, and the little companion and adviser of Perkins—a particularly funny impersonation. There is an attractive chorus and dance of villagers in the opening scene, and the "crowd" in the last scene contribute valuably to the fun. Mr. Justice Perkins will certainly become as popular as any of the many laughable playlets with which Mr. Fred Karno's name is connected.

Miss Alice Yorke and her companion also supply a humorous little interlude in A Yacht for Sale, the duologue of droll misunderstanding being capitally enacted; and Mr. Fred Elton in his scena at the piano, "On Board an Ocean Liner," sings with considerable point a funny song, "Kate," and a smartly-written medley, his turn being a particularly entertaining one. Mr. Harry Bedford manages to arouse laughter in his comic ditty, "You're looking yourself again," and his "Crossed in love was Crissie" impersonation also created merriment, the clever eccentric dance at the conclusion being especially appreciated. Little Zola employs a quaint style that is very effective in "Whoever would have thought it?" and his other number also pleased; and that accomplished mimic at the piano, Miss Ray Wallace, gave faithful imitations of the voices and mannerisms of Misses Vesta Victoria, Victoria Monks, and Connie Ediss—a turn that was loudly applauded. Miss Lily Burnand has a funny "French Maid" song, but her chief success is won in her alluring "Widow" impersonation, a well-rendered item that appealed greatly to her auditors. The Carina Sisters in their artistic and clever instrumental act, the Five Whiteleys, remarkably skilful wire walkers, acrobats, &c., Miss May Fayre, an attractive soubrette, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope are also on the programme.

A "BLUE BIRD" WALTZ.

In the Chancery Division on Monday, before Mr. Mr. Justice Eve, an action was brought by Messrs. Elkin and Co., Ltd., music publishers, Beak-street, against Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, music publishers, Charing Cross-road, to restrain them from the publication of a waltz which had been put upon the market, and which plaintiffs said deceived purchasers into the belief that they were buying music from the well-known play The Blue Bird. Mr. Charles Coote was the composer of the waltz, which was embellished by an illustration of what defendants called an "American blue jay" flying. The Blue Bird, written by Maeterlinck, was first performed in Moscow in 1908. The first performance in England took place at the Haymarket on Dec. 8 last, but announcements had appeared in the Press beginning on April 29, 1909. The play was advertised by blue birds in flight, and it had been a great success. Mr. Norman O'Neill, a co-plaintiff, had composed the music for the play, and the music itself was an integral part of the performance. There were songs and dances, four of the latter being "The Dance of the Hours," "The Dance of the Maids of the Mist," "The Dance of Fire and Water," and "The Dance of the Stars." Those four dances were published separately on Jan. 18 this year by the plaintiffs, who had the musical rights. "The Dance of Fire and Water" was a waltz dance. On Feb. 4 of this year defendants' waltz was published, but, said counsel, it was not the same class of music as that published by plaintiffs. The music in The Blue Bird was what appealed to really artistic people. The plaintiffs said that the publication of the defendants' music would do harm to their musical rights; it would prevent people going to the play and buying the music.

The defendants alleged The Blue Bird was not a musical piece in which such a thing would be done, whereas, as a matter of fact, arrangements had been made for bringing out "The Blue Bird Waltz," which should appeal to people with classical tastes, and since the action had commenced plaintiffs had brought out that waltz. In April last year Mr. Coote had four sets of new music—two waltzes, a polka, and a march. They were his own composition. He offered the polka to defendants as a present, and they agreed to take the other pieces on business terms as publishers. Accordingly, one of the waltzes was published with the title "L'Oiseau Bleu," and bearing the illustration of a blue bird in flight. Defendants had pleaded that the title was suggested in August, 1909, long before the play was produced, and that the pictorial representation was designed on Dec. 8, 1909. Plaintiffs did not suggest that their design had been copied or that their music had been taken. It was purely a question of passing off. They suggested that the blue bird, or American blue jay, had been taken from a natural history book.

Mr. W. W. A. Elkin, a director of the plaintiff company, said the music was not founded on any music in the play; it was not of such an artistic character as that in the play. There was a custom of publishing various arrangements of the music in a play.

Mr. E. F. Spence, barrister-at-law, said he had been a dramatic critic for seventeen years.

His Lordship: I thought that was a very dangerous occupation.

Witness: I am afraid it is. Speaking of The Blue Bird, witness said that nearly one-half of the play was devoted to music. The music was a very important feature of the play. He considered it was an integral part of the play.

In cross-examination witness stated that the drama was the predominant element of the play.

The hearing was adjourned.

George French and troupe, trick cyclists, are in Scotland, combining business with pleasure. They have made a great success at the Castle Douglas Fêtes, and are having a most enjoyable holiday fishing. They are specially engaged next week for the gala at Normandy Park, Frodingham.

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

BY AMERICUS.

Eddie Emerson, of Emerson and Baldwin, at the Empire, is now a "real Englishman." The act has been over here for some time, and Eddie is so popular with the boys that he was recently elected president of the Americans in England Bachelor Club. But the electric flashes in the air tell me that Eddie will not hold the present honour later than the coming "fall," the cause of his resignation being a beautiful American dancer, who made her début at the Palace last summer with her brothers and sisters. Good luck to you, Mr. President!

Friend and Downing, who came to England last season absolutely unknown to English managers, and who made a big success right from the start, returned again to "this side" a few months ago, and are well booked up in the provincial halls. They play at the Hippodrome, Coventry, next week.

Willette Whitaker and Wilbur Hill, who returned to America some time ago, after a year over this side, recently purchased a nice home at Harrington Park, near New York. They will return here in another year for a twelve months' stay.

Willie Gardner and his wife, Annie Heath, will sail for England the latter part of this month. The little roller-skate dancer was unable to make satisfactory terms with the American managers. As his wife is well booked up on this side, he did not think it worth while to remain over in America, and consequently will return to England shortly.

Clarice Vance arrived in New York in the latter part of last week, and had many offers of engagement immediately. She will, however, take a summer's rest before appearing in New York halls.

The White Rats in London were all pleased to hear of the Agency Bill receiving the signature of Governor Hughes. The question now debated is: Can the booking offices and agents get round the present Bill? Many think that it will be quite easy to do business just the same. The agents claim that the Bill will affect them very little, and that they will in future act as personal representative and manager of their clients, receiving a salary.

Mordkin and Pavlova are booked for America during the opera season.

Karsivina and Kosslof, the Russian dancers who have been at the Coliseum, are booked for the Percy Williams circuit by Marienilli. They will open some time in October.

Dub in San Francisco in the latter part of this month, from Australia, are Valroy Mayor, Maud Cosheim, the Howard Brothers, Alburtus and Millar, Wise and Milton, the Two Crottons, and Ranch Smith. It is quite easy for almost any good "act" to remain a year, now, on the Pacific Coast circuits.

Chas. Ahearn, another producer, will arrive in England about the middle of August. He intends to put out a No. 2 company of comedy cycling comedians, to be called Ahearn's Cycling Comedians.

The Belleclaire Bros. opened at the Brighton Beach hall last week, after which they will appear in and around New York.

"Acts," when they address agents in America now, approach them in this way: "Good-morning, sir. I am desirous of engaging a manager to look after my personal and public business affairs in the amusement world. Are you open for an engagement as manager, and what are your terms?" It seldom fails that the former agent refuses the job.

Bert Levy, it is said, will have trouble in Germany. Rumour has it that a German cartoonist has patented Bert's act in that country, and will stop him from playing German.

Mr. Passport, the Continental booking representative of the Orpheum circuit, returned to the Continent last week for a short stay. Mr. Passport will take charge of the New Orpheum headquarters here in London, installing a London office for the big circuit of America.

Herbert Loyd arrived last week from America, and will remain here for some little time.

The clever coin-manipulator, Nate Leipsic, has booked time with Harry Rickards's circuit in Australia, and will open there on Feb. 14. Before reaching Australia he will play a short engagement for Sidney Hyman in South Africa, opening there in the early part of November.

Nellie Donegan is progressing favourably. Dr. Hunter Richards expects her to be up within three weeks at the most, after which he has advised her to take a three or four weeks' stay at Brighton or some other resort. The skating act of Reynolds and Donegan will, in all probability, appear at the Palace just as soon as Miss Donegan has recovered.

Frank La Dent, sometimes known as Bolo, sailed on Wednesday for America.

The Jackson cycle act is on the Stoll tour. They have been "over" some little time, and "do fine." Mr. Jackson was some years ago a great skater, appearing with splendid success in many of the large rinks in America.

Mike Simmons, stage-manager and director-in-chief extraordinary of the Hammerstein's Victoria, New York, sailed on Wednesday for New York. During his stay over here he failed to find any novel acts that he liked for the New York house. A big crowd of Americans was at Waterloo Station to bid him bon voyage.

Grace Foster, of Ritter and Foster, returns this week from Milwaukee, where she has been spending some time with her parents. The team will get right to work within a week, and remain over here for some time, playing at the English halls.

Harry First arrived in New York, and was met by a good crowd of his friends and actors at the boat. They had a fine trip over, so states the cable. The weather is awfully hot.

Helen Trix is quite an English performer now. She has been over so long that she even has the English dialect, and it is quite noticeable in her songs. Her act is going well at the Hippodrome.

Hayman and Franklin are back at work, and Miss Franklin, who was quite ill some weeks ago, says she is quite recovered and is feeling better than she ever did in her life.

Mr. Merians, of Merians' Dogs, which is at the Palace, will, when his present engagement has ended, have played one year at this house, this making about the fifth time he has played there, from two months' engagement to a three months' stay each time.

The Dunedin Troupe will return to England in the spring for a trip over the Stoll tour. They are at present playing a summer's engagement at the Hammerstein's Victoria, New York, in both their cycle and skating act.

Martin Beck arrived in New York, and went to Chicago for a short time. He will make a tour of inspection of the many new houses the Orpheum circuit has in course of construction before returning to New York, and then return to this side.

Geo. Wilson, the American black-faced comedian, arrived in London on Wednesday. Mr. Wilson will spend some time in England before returning to the States.

Jules Hurtig and his two brothers have arrived in London from the Continent, where they have been to see the Passion Play. Mr. Hurtig is the senior partner of the firm of Hurtig and Seaman, of New York. London will remember them quite well some seven years ago, when they brought Williams and Walker and an unbleached music comedy company, with In Dahomey, which played for some time at the Shaftesbury Theatre. Mr. Hurtig is taking in the music halls, and looking over quite a lot of acts. As he has a number of burlesque shows on the road each year, he will endeavour to strengthen them with a number of English acts. They sail next Wednesday via the German line.

"THE FIGHTING PARSON" CASE.

Before Mr. Justice Phillimore, in the King's Bench Division, on the 8th inst., the hearing was resumed of the action brought by Mrs. Barrasford, as executrix of her late husband, Mr. Thomas Barrasford, and Mr. F. Macnaghten, lessees of the Britannia Music-hall, Hoxton, against Mr. George Gray, proprietor of the sketch entitled The Fighting Parson, to recover £130 as liquidated damages for alleged breach of contract. The case for the plaintiffs was that the defendant entered into a contract to produce his sketch at the Britannia Music-hall for the week commencing on Monday, Dec. 3, 1906, at a salary of £130. The defendant appeared on the Monday, and then the Shepherd's Bush Empire Palace Company obtained an injunction restraining him from continuing the engagement, the defendant having under a contract with them agreed not to perform at any hall within a radius of two miles of the Hackney Empire during the week in question. Under the contract with them plaintiffs said the defendant agreed that in the event of his failing to appear at their hall he would pay the sum claimed as liquidated damages. The defendant denied liability.

Mr. Hume Williams, K.C., Mr. Martin O'Connor, and Mr. James D. Cassels appeared for the plaintiffs, while Mr. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Storry Deans represented the defendant.

Mr. James Macarthy, manager of the Palace Theatre of Varieties at Battersea, stated that in December, 1906, he was manager of the Britannia Music-hall. The defendant appeared at the hall on Monday, December 3, and explained to him that he expected to have an injunction issued against him. On the following day the defendant came to the hall and informed the audience that he expected an injunction to be served upon him restraining him from appearing. The defendant held a document in his hand and tore it up on the stage.

In cross-examination, witness said the defendant was not anxious to appear on the Tuesday night.

This closed the case for the plaintiffs.

Mr. Shearman, for the defendant, submitted that the contract was between his client and the late Mr. Barrasford, and that Mr. Macnaghten had nothing to do with it. He also maintained that the £130 was a penalty, and not liquidated damages, and could not be recovered.

The defendant was called and stated that he was the proprietor of several sketches, including The Fighting Parson. In August, 1906, he entered into a contract with the late Mr. Barrasford to appear at the Britannia Music-hall during the week commencing Dec. 3 of that year. Mr. Macnaghten's name was never mentioned and he never heard that Mr. Barrasford and Mr. Macnaghten were in partnership. He appeared at the Britannia on Monday, Dec. 3, and gave three performances, but he was not allowed to complete the engagement owing to the action of Mr. Stoll of the Hackney Empire. When he received the writ in December, 1906, he went and saw Mr. Barrasford, who informed him that he had not given instructions for the writ to be issued and that he would put an end to it. He heard nothing more about the action until 1909. He then went to Mr. Barrasford's residence and saw Mrs. Barrasford, who told him that Mr. Barrasford was ill, that he had seen a letter which witness had sent to him, and that nothing further would be done.

In cross-examination, defendant said he thought the contract he made was with Mr. Barrasford, and in consequence he accepted the £130 instead of £150 per week. He went to the theatre on the Tuesday night prepared to perform, and was told that there was a man looking for him with an injunction. Mr. Baugh said he could not perform, and he (defendant) replied, "Very well, you break the contract, and not I."

His Lordship: Did you tear up the document handed to you?—No. I tore up a scene plot.

What was the document with which you were served?—It was a writ or summons, I think, to appear next day.

After other evidence,

His lordship said his judgment would have been for the plaintiffs but for one point, and that was the point that this £130 was a penalty. He did not propose to give his judgment on that point. He should postpone his judgment, and after what he had said he hoped the parties would arrive at some reasonable terms, and end the case.

Miss Lilian Durand, the dramatic soprano, opens on Monday at the Camberwell Empire. She will present the new song success, "Your eyes have told me so," with choral effects.

Mr. Fred Duprez, the American monologuist, who has been touring Europe, arrived in London last week. Mr. Duprez will sail for New York to-day to open on the Orpheum Cidcuit.

Miss Frankie Manners, who is appearing at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, this week, has been engaged by Mrs. Lillie Williams as principal boy for the pantomime at the same theatre this Christmas.

Dent and Harris, who deputised with much success for Miss Clarice Mayne at the South London Palace this week, introduced some really clever foolery into a burlesque on the Russian dancers.

Miss Elsie Forster, who was one of Mr. Percy Honri's Concert Party at the Alexandra Palace last year, is appearing daily with Mr. Lionel Braham at The Jumbles, Roker, Sunderland, this season with her customary success.

Mr. Ted Hopkins' Blackbird entertainers, are in their usual rendezvous at the Cosy Corner, Porthcawl, where a grand programme is presented. Mr. Ted Hopkins himself is a clever artist, his funny gags and patter being much enjoyed; Will Hopkins, as a comedian, is accorded a hearty welcome with his old friends; Mr. Claud Morton scores a success in his songs, &c.; Mr. Reg. Thrayer has to respond to encores; also Vicky Smith, who has some excellent items, which are greatly appreciated. Messrs. Hy. Studt and Son are here also with switchback, James Day and Jones in houp-la sets, and juvenile set by W. Odley.

One of the best variety programmes put on at the Kingston Royal County Theatre since varieties were made an occasional attraction there, is being presented this week. A very pretty little dramatic sketch entitled Enchantment is taken part in by Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton, Mr. Cecil Crossley, and Miss Grete Hahn, and possessing as it does a wholesome moral, finds great favour with the audience. Reg London sings a comic song on roller skates, upon which he also executes some remarkable evolutions; Edna Payne and Fred Kent appear in their comedy act "Old Clo'," in which they illustrate the trials of two music hall artists down on their luck, and give a few amusing turns; Miss Edie Graham sings some of her own songs at the piano with much acceptance, and Mr. G. W. Foster causes much merriment by his singing in the guise of a policeman; Margaret Ruby and Ernest Laws also appear in their sketch The Days of Romance, which is most favourably received. Some very good cinematograph pictures vary the programme pleasantly, which is still further enchanced by a descriptive fantasia played by the orchestra under the direction of M. Kopski, the talented chief. A notice of a new musical play entitled Jolly Japan, produced at the theatre this week, appears in another column.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

MR. HERBERT TRENCH'S recent article in the Saturday Review on the degrees of popularity of modern plays contains (says the Glasgow News) a happy definition of the element in them to which their favour with the public may be ascribed. He terms it the "lyric idea, an organic form of emotion which shall exhilarate." This moving quality may be found in plays very crude in form, in which everything is over-emphasised, overwrought, in blatant and glaring colour. Or it may be present in work of a high order of merit, in the plays of Synge, of Ibsen, of Rostand, or of Shakespeare. Wherever it exists, the play possessing it is assured of success.

There are many plays, however, in which this lyrical appeal is necessarily lower in tone. In the plays of Shaw, for instance, where a subtle intellectualism is the dominant note; or in those of Galsworthy, in which the social reformer stands in front of the dramatist; or in Yeats's Irish plays, where a subdued, poetic atmosphere of mystery and symbolism takes the place of emotional human themes. It is this latter class of drama, Mr. Trench considers, the prevailing conditions of the theatre tend to destroy, and for the encouragement of which one would like to see erected some partially endowed playhouse.

It is always a moot question how far it is wise to thrust a class of playwriting on the public in which they have only a lukewarm interest. If plays are meant to please, we may ask what place there is for those that do not please. There is this, however, to be said for them. There are works which cannot win for themselves an instant appreciation, but grow in favour on a longer acquaintance, and it is good for neither public nor playwright if such work does not get its chance.

Mr. Shaw, in a letter replying to Mr. Trench, points out that there are two kinds of popularity. There is the popularity of cheap, tricksy works, like the song of "Nancy Lee" or Du Maurier's novel of "Trilby." They are in demand everywhere, carry everything before them for a certain length of time, then in a day, almost an hour, they vanish from our ken, "gathered unto death without a dawn." Whereas the works of Shakespeare, some of Shaw's own plays, and some of Galsworthy's and Hankin's show the qualities of an enduring life, and have, in the managers' phrase, "money in them." The conditions of the stage ought not to be such that a play must be strangled unless it can leap into a full-grown popularity at its birth. But at present managers have no other resource. Their expenses and heavy rentals hang over them like a sword of Damocles, and to save their own skins the dramatist is thrown to the wolves. Things that endure are usually of slow development. It is the noxious fungus growth that comes to maturity in a day.

In the discreet management of the repertory system the only hope seems to lie for the encouragement of this better and more delicate class of drama. It should not be impossible to choose a fair proportion of works, which, while artistic in form, are strongly endowed with the "lyrical appeal." This would supply the means of playing from time to time the works which can only make their way forward slowly. Only, a certain excellence of form in the popular works should be insisted on. This is necessary for the development of public taste, and for the training of the actors who are to produce the better work. It should not be an impossible thing for our young dramatists to learn how to combine artistic form with the strong human appeal that secures public support. But to write down to the public to obtain it is the way of death, and will only prolong the degraded state to which the managerial system has reduced the drama. A. W. F.

". . . for we look beyond the shadows
And the loneliness of night."

AT Bow-street Police Court on the 15th inst., before Sir A. de Rutzen, Henry Foster, an actor, living in Great Barlow-street, Marylebone, was charged with stealing a revolver at the Lyceum Theatre. The prisoner was charged at the court on May 26 with firing a revolver on the public highway near Covent Garden Market, and was bound over in his own recognisances. The revolver, which was detained by the police, was afterwards identified as one which had been missed from the property-room at the Lyceum Theatre on the previous day. The prisoner now stated that in May last he was engaged by the stage manager to Mr. Martin Harvey, but he was discharged. As he was passing the property-room on leaving the theatre he was tempted to take the revolver with the object of spoiling the rehearsal. He had no idea of stealing the weapon, and would have returned it the next day if he had not been arrested. The accused was remanded.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required. — St. James's Gazette.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law," ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright" as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1910.

MODERN SCENE-PAINTING.

That enterprising paper the New Age has been putting a series of questions to many persons connected with the theatre, both in this country and abroad. The queries were as follow:—"1. Have recent developments, in your opinion, shown any advance in the direction of increasing the beauty of the stage pictures? 2. Do you think that managers and producers are yet using to the full all the advantages offered by the modern studio? 3. Would you say that artists are availing themselves as fully as they might of the opportunities open to them in the modern theatre?" One of the most pithy replies received was from Mr. E. A. BAUGHAN, the dramatic critic of the Daily News. Mr. BAUGHAN is by no means a pessimist in his view of contemporary scenic art, and his remarks were sound and sensible. He said:—

Not only in lighting and design has the stage picture developed, but in the matter of colour it has made great progress. At the same time not enough attention is given to the massing and contrast of colours in costumes, nor are they always in harmony with the scenery. This may be because in many cases the costume-designer works almost independently of the scene-painter, and both again are at the mercy of the producer and stage-manager, who arrange the lighting and grouping. The whole stage picture should be the expression of one man's conception. He need not be an artist, but he must have an artistic mind, and he must understand the stage.

The art-specialist does not quite understand the needs and conventions of the stage. The picture is only the background to the drama, and at the risk of every kind of unnaturalness the protagonists of the drama must stand out and not be overwhelmed or dwarfed by the scenery. It would be well if the upward light of the footlights could be abolished, as Professor HERKOMER suggested many years ago, but the artist's idea of natural lighting will not do. If you cannot see the players' faces the drama has lost its expression, whatever it may have gained as a picture. In the adaptation of artistic ideals to the conventions of the stage lies the secret of successful scenic production. The artist has to learn that the stage-picture must not interfere with, but must emphasise the drama. This means that a painter, if he uses his talents for the stage, must be ready for sacrifices and compromises in the interests of the drama.

The discussion itself was interesting, but futile. Strange as the statement may seem, there never was a time when the ordinary painter had less chance of employing his talents in scene-painting than at present. The only writer who has tried to "tackle" the theory of scenery logically is Mr. PERCY FITZGERALD, who gave the palm for consistency and illusion to the system of mounting in vogue in the "fifties." Then, he said, the stage represented not a room from which one side had been removed, but a "segment." When there was a cloth exhibited, with side scenes to mark the exits and entrances, there was simply a background for the performers. They were not enclosed; and, for persons in the pit and stalls, the background was there, just as it was for the actors. "The system of flats or painted cloths," said Mr. FITZGERALD, "may be considered the truly scenic one." He also drew attention to the method of lighting employed in the pre-GARRICK days. This, he said, was infinitely better; but then it was not intended to illuminate the materials, objects, and decorations. The four heavy chandeliers that hung down halfway over the heads of the actors lit up just the zone in which they stood.

The method of lighting has practically governed the art of scene-painting. In the old system the back cloth was simply a picture of a landscape or of one wall of an apartment. The "flats" did not pretend to represent anything accurately. By the convention of the stage then in force they were tolerated or ignored. An ordinary painter might therefore turn his hand to scene-painting easily.

In his admirably-argued essay on the subject, Mr. FITZGERALD warmly lauds the old system, and is correspondingly critical of the present method. The essence of his argument is that the illusion of relief can be conveyed more effectively by painting than by material imitation, and that the mounting should be unimportant or subsidiary to the figures on the stage—i.e., the actors and actresses. "The object of scenery," wrote Mr. FITZGERALD, "is negative rather than positive—the exclusion of the homely outside world and its details, with the creation of an illusive world; instead of which the aim now appears to be to introduce the outside world, and all its details, and join the stage to real life."

But it is useless to try to "put the clock back" in such matters. For good or evil the built-up scene and the electrically-lighted stage are with us, and have come to stay. We must make the best of them, and the best is very good.

It was during the transition state, when the combination of building-up with cloth-painting was not so well understood, that inartistic results were most frequent. In the old cloth and flat system the scenic artist and his assistants practically produced the scenery. Under the building-up system very often half of it is made not painted. In the transition period the results of this combination were sometimes quite painful. A foreground tree, bad in construction and colour, would be stuck in a prominent position "on its own," and would entirely spoil the general effect of the scene; or the juncture of the built-up rocks with the painted portion of the scenery would be so obvious as to entirely destroy all illusion.

But we have changed all that. It is true that the modern scenic artist grumbles that a great part of his work is done by the modeller and the carpenter; but as he—the artist—designs the scene in its entirety, and gets all the credit for it, it is hard to see how he can reasonably complain. It is surprising how realism of stage setting has kept pace with the increase of the amount of light which is thrown upon the stage. We see exteriors in which flights of steps, walls, and arbours are made parts of the scenic whole, and at the same time we have exquisite effects of distance and middle distance created by pure painting. The difficulty of the searching, all-pervading light has been met and conquered, and the result at times nearly approaches perfection of illusion.

Of course, on logical and realistic grounds, the stage-picture is indefensible. However strong sunlight may be, it always comes from one side or the other, and throws a shadow. On the stage there are three or more suns, and sometimes a kind of moon in the shape of the limelight. But was the old system, with the three chandeliers, any more real or true to nature? The truth is that we have to abandon consistency in a stage representation. In Mr. GORDON CRAIG'S experiments he, in some cases, succeeded in creating a fine artistic effect, as far as the scene was concerned; but the result was injurious to the audience's view of the faces of the performers. Nothing can make up for this. The play is the thing. Accustomed as we are to elaborate mounting, too much generalisation in scenery would worry us and distract our attention. And after the first grateful recognition of a beautiful stage-picture, who, in the case of a thrilling and enthralling play, troubles about the scenery at all?

THE TIVOLI, ABERDEEN.

The new Tivoli Theatre, Aberdeen, formerly Her Majesty's Theatre and Opera House, Guild-street, which was opened in 1872 by Mr. William Gomersal, and has now been made into a music-hall, and was opened on Monday amid scenes of great enthusiasm. There were three performances, at every one of which hundreds were turned from the doors. The old familiar theatre in Guild-street has been transformed by tasteful designers and skilled hands into a veritable palace of entertainment. The lighting effects brilliantly set off the tasteful decorations. The light green upholstery, the whitened walls, and the prettily corniced ceiling were fittingly admired by thousands of Aberdonians, who well remembered the former bare and uninviting aspects of the building. To all intents and purposes, it is a new theatre, capable of ranking amongst the best equipped in Scotland.

There was no special ceremony at the opening. The afternoon performance was somewhat of the nature of an initial reception, most of the local shareholders being present, and many of the public representatives of the city. Councillor Leith, chairman of directors, was assiduous in his attentions to the spectators and guests, and the manager and assistants had their hands full in regulating the crowds who sought admission and in directing the internal arrangements.

Not a hitch occurred during the opening performances, and the interest of the audiences was equally divided between the stage performances and the effective scheme of decoration by which the internal arrangements of the place had been so charmingly transformed.

It was voted by spectators and promoters alike to have been a most promising and successful opening, and the prospects seem to augur well for a continuance of the initial support and excellence of entertainment.

The programme presented was of an appropriate and pleasing character.

The opening performance was contributed to by the Harmony Four, who created roars of laughter; Dix and Dox, whose performances on a variety of grotesque instruments were extravagantly absurd; Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie, whose songs were enthusiastically received; those clever gymnasts the Avolos, and the Creo Brothers, smart and active acrobats; the Sisters Herbert, with their singing and dancing, were warm favourites; and Tom Lee, light comedian, was decidedly successful; Morny Cash, Lancashire comedian, made a palpable hit; and the entertainment ended with a funny bioscope film.

A CONCERT is to be promoted in Bristol as a testimonial to Mr. Horace Livermore, who has retired from the position of manager of the Palace Theatre. It is to take place shortly at the Colston Hall, and in furtherance of the arrangements a representative committee is to be formed. Mr. Livermore has always identified himself with movements to benefit local institutions, and has given help and assistance where they were required. The proposed concert is certain, therefore to be influentially supported.

MR. FRED W. LAURAINE (Hector and Lauraine) has received the following: "To F. W. Lauraine, 10A, Morat-street, Brixton-road, S.W.—His Majesty the King, through the Private Secretary, wishes to thank Mr. Fred W. Lauraine for the verses sent to him.—Buckingham Palace, July 19, 1910."

THE BIRMINGHAM HIPPODROME.

The Hippodrome, Birmingham, closed down quite suddenly on July 2, after part payment only of the salaries of the artists engaged on June 20. On Thursday, July 14, a joint meeting was held between the directors of the Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Limited, and the directors of Barrasford, Limited, for the purpose of clearing up matters and opening the house on Monday last. Unfortunately, this result was not attained. Late on Friday evening—too late for insertion in our last issue—we received the following letter:—

"18, Fleet-street, London, E.C.
"July 14, 1910.

"Re BIRMINGHAM HIPPODROME.

"DEAR SIR,—On the instruction of our clients, Messrs. Barrasford, Ltd., and Variety Theatres Controlling Co., Ltd., we enclose you copy of a letter we have to-day sent to the secretary of the Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited.—Yours faithfully,

"AMERY-PARKES, MACKLIN AND CO.

[ENCLOSURE.]

"July 14, 1910.

"Re BIRMINGHAM HIPPODROME.

"DEAR SIR,—A joint meeting of the directors of Barrasford, Limited, and Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Limited, was held to-day to consider the position created by the action of the directors of the Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited, in closing these premises.

"The directors of Barrasford, Limited, have instructed us to say they strongly protest against the course taken by the directors of the Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited, without first consulting them on the matter, as they would have been quite prepared to take steps to ensure the premises being left open. This would have obviated the irreparable injury which has now been done to the premises, and would have enabled the company to carry out its contracts with the artists.

"Apart from the financial interest of Barrasford, Limited, in the Birmingham Hippodrome, the directors of Barrasford, Limited, and the directors of Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Limited, have instructed us to say that, with a view to the fulfilment of these contracts, they are prepared at their own expense to reopen the premises, and to undertake the management as from the 25th inst., and to carry out the contracts, and to indemnify the company against any loss whilst the property is under their management.

"This course would enable the directors of the Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited, not only to keep faith with the artists, but save the company from heavy liability, and would give the directors an opportunity of negotiating the sale of the Hippodrome as a going concern.

"We are requested to ask that you will be good enough to give us an answer on or before Monday next. Time is obviously of the greatest importance if the premises are to be reopened by the 25th inst.

"We are sending you by separate letter an offer for the premises, which our clients are prepared to leave open for fourteen days, for acceptance, so as to give you an opportunity of getting a better offer, if possible, in the meantime.

"We have to add that, in addition to that of Barrasford, Limited, we have the authority of Mr. Sley and Mr. Grosvenor Hamilton to say that they concur in the course proposed. As you are aware, they collectively represent one-half of the share capital in the Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited.

"On the instruction of the directors of both companies we are sending a copy of this letter to the Variety Artists' Federation.—Yours faithfully,

"AMERY-PARKES, MACKLIN AND CO.

"E. W. Beech, Esq.,
"Secretary,
"The Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited,
"37, Temple-street, Birmingham."

At an accidental meeting with Mr. Alfred Butt Mr. Clemart pointed out that those artists who had been booked by the Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Limited, at the Hippodrome, Birmingham, for the week of June 20 were still without the balances of their salaries, whereupon Mr. Butt stated that they should be paid—even if out of his own pocket—and an appointment was then and there made for 3.30 p.m. for Monday last at Randvoll House. The meeting accordingly took place, both Mr. Alfred Butt and Mr. Walter de Frece being present. Without hesitation Mr. Butt and Mr. De Frece agreed that, although according to contract no legal responsibility could attach to the Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Limited, as a point of honour the amount claimed should be paid, and a cheque was at once made out for £83 13s. 8d. Messrs. Butt, Gibbons, and Walter De Frece have taken care that the Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Limited, has a contract in strict accordance with the Award; the parties who are to be held responsible for any breach of contract are clearly indicated, and the contract is entirely free from ambiguity.

THE PALACE, ABERDEEN.

The Palace Theatre, which has been closed for the past four weeks, was reopened on Monday. The interior of the building has undergone several alterations, and has altogether been considerably improved. The area has been lowered and made into one complete floor. The orchestra stalls, consisting of eighty tip-up chairs, are covered with crimson plush cloth which gives to the whole area a very bright appearance.

Behind these are the ordinary stalls, which now total 260 chairs of similar design and similarly covered, but in a less elaborate way. At the back of the ordinary stalls are the pit stalls, which have been fitted up with new seats with backs. Two new boxes have been erected, one at each side of the orchestra stalls. There are private entrances to boxes, and patrons of the orchestra stalls will have a new entrance from the east side of the theatre. The stage has been lowered six inches and has been entirely renewed.

The grand circle has been fitted up with chairs, covered to match those on the ground floor. The walls of the entire building have been divided into panels, which are artistically painted. The general scheme of painting is cream colour, picked out with darker shades of cream and a light tint of green, while the whole of the mouldings of the panels are picked out in gold. Outside, a substantial verandah has been erected along the entire building. The verandah is being fitted up with a row of coloured electric lights. The number of lights illuminating the stage have been more than doubled. Everything possible has been done to bring the theatre up to date, and make it in every way comfortable for its patrons.

It is hardly conceivable that such a transformation could have taken place in the short period of four weeks, and the result of the alterations is a credit to Mr. W. E. Bickers, architect, Bradford, and Mr. John Rust, city architect, Aberdeen, under whose direction the work was carried out. Visitors to the Palace Theatre will much appreciate the improvements which have been effected, and there is little doubt that, under the able management of Mr. Percy H. Gallagher, this popular house of amusement will continue to receive a large share of public patronage.

MR. WILL A. JACKSON, who has been the popular manager of the Palace, Cardiff, for some little while, has been transferred, and his place is filled by Mr. Arthur Burton, who was in charge at the opening of this hall three years ago by Mr. Macpaghlen.

THE THEATRES ALLIANCE.

The following is the report of the Sub-Committee of the Theatres Alliance upon the Censorship Committee's Report: The members of the sub-committee were Mr. James Bell, Mr. J. L. S. Moss, Mr. J. B. Mulholland, Mr. Clarence Sounes, and the Hon. Secretary (J. Moverley Sharp).

To the Theatres Alliance,—

We, as your Committee, have fully considered the report of the Joint Select Committee of the House of Lords and the House of Commons on the Stage Plays (Censorship), and on general principles agree with the majority of the conclusions and a large number of the recommendations therein contained.

We wish, however, to draw special attention to the following specific points, which should in our opinion be reconsidered and carefully provided for in any legislation that may result.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

1. On pagt 11 of the Report it is suggested that:—

"The licence of a theatre which has been indorsed three times within a period of five years should be liable to forfeiture by the Court which directed the last endorsement, and be incapable of renewal for a period of five years following to or for the benefit of the same licensee."

The effect of the recommendations as they now stand would be to make the actual theatre building responsible for the wrongful acts of lessees or temporary occupiers, such for instance as touring managers visiting suburban and provincial theatres with touring companies.

If the structure is not suitable or is not properly maintained, or for other definite reasons an "entertainment" licence may be opposed at the outset or on application for renewal, but having been obtained this licence should not be capable of being interfered with because of the personal fault or neglect of a lessee, occupier, or touring manager. The punishment should fall on the delinquent and not on owners, mortgagees, shareholders, or workmen, who would be entirely innocent of the breach of the law. Powers are or can be made adequate to deal with any offence against law or decency there and then, but any breach by any particular management does not interfere with the future good conduct by other persons, or with the suitability of the premises for the purposes for which they are designed.

2. On page 12 of the Report it states:—

"The powers of the authorities which license theatres should remain as they now are; that is to say, that they should be empowered to withdraw a theatre licence provided that they are acting 'according to the rules of reason and justice.'"

On page 18 the Committee states:—

"We are of opinion, therefore, that it would be advisable that the licensing of the forty theatres which are now in the jurisdiction of the Lord Chamberlain should be transferred to the London County Council, whose officers already visit them regularly in order to advise as to the safety of their structure and of their accommodation for the public."

As regards the first part of the above recommendation it must be insisted that whatever the licensing authorities may be there must be rights of appeal. This is an essential and a right now officially recognised in practically every matter except licensing.

In connection with the second portion of the recommendation dealing with London alone, whilst not wishing to make any recommendation that would interfere with the wishes of the proprietors of theatres now under the jurisdiction of the Lord Chamberlain, it is not in the views of your Committee desirable that this jurisdiction should be enlarged.

3. On page 16 of the Report, when referring to the courses open for dealing with the questions of theatre and music hall licences, in reference to the second suggestion which is that sketches in music halls should be legalised, the Censorship Committee says:—

"The second alternative we regard as unjust to the proprietors of theatres. They ask that, if the existing law which ostensibly protects their interests is not to be enforced, they shall at least be allowed to meet their competitors on equal terms, and, if they so desire, during a part of the year, or, it may be, as a portion of their entertainment, to present performances other than stage plays. This cannot but be regarded as a reasonable demand."

This is followed by the recommendation of the third alternative, the proposed "entertainment" licence.

With this recommendation on the basis and the ground set out in the Report we are in accord.

4. On page 17 the Censorship Committee state:—

"We are of opinion that all places of entertainment holding the new single licence should be required to obtain a Justices' licence if it is proposed to sell intoxicants upon the premises, but that existing theatres which now hold an excise licence should be entitled, subject to good conduct, to continue to sell under that licence for a period to be determined in the statute."

It cannot be too strongly pointed out that theatre proprietors are not asking for the single licence otherwise than in default of the enforcement of the law as it now stands, and therefore if in consequence of the trespass on theatrical proprietors' rights by music hall proprietors any alteration is necessitated, the existing rights or privileges of the former should not be interfered with or curtailed. Neither should there be any statutory term limit to the existing right to an excise licence.

We therefore strongly recommend that the words "for a period to be determined by the statute" should be deleted.

We do not agree with the opinion that all places of entertainment holding the new single licence should be required to obtain a justices' licence if it is proposed to sell excisable liquors.

We recommend that for the future any theatre holding an entertainment licence (which licence should be strictly limited to theatres and music halls proper) should have the right to an excise licence, subject, however, to conditions that may be imposed as now by the licensing authority, with right of appeal as previously mentioned.

5. The present objectionable method of granting licences at police-courts and the like should be abolished, and a licence having once been granted (which would only be upon proper notice and compliance with certain rules) should be renewed automatically, failing objection by proper notices.

In the event of proper objection being lodged, the objectors and the applicants would be heard in the usual way with rights of appeal as before mentioned, but proper provision should be made authorising the authorities to order payment of costs.

6. On page 13 of the Report it says:—

"The Lord Chamberlain is now authorised to receive plays for examination only from the managers who propose to produce them. Several witnesses have urged that the authors also should have a right of access to the licenser. Such right of access, however, would add greatly to the work of the licenser. It would be likely also to throw the cost of the licensing of their plays as a regular burden upon authors, often perhaps not in a position to bear it. We recommend, therefore, that the existing practice should continue, unless it should appear that the authors as a body would prefer that this right should be given."

Your committee are in accord with the report on the question of the optional licence for plays, but do not agree with the existing anomalous practice of granting those licences to managers.

It is not thought that the question of the possible trivial expense to authors need be taken into consideration. As a matter of practice the licence is not likely to be asked for till production is intended, and if a play is accepted the payment of the fees (if they are kept on the present reasonable basis) will not be a serious matter to either party, and is not in the least likely to be any obstacle to a play that is deemed sufficiently good to be performed.

We therefore recommend, and desire to emphasise, that licences for plays should in the ordinary course be issued to the authors, but if a manager or other owner of a play or the performing rights therein desires to have the licence, it should be granted to him as owner and not in the capacity of theatre licensee as at present.

J. MOVERLEY SHARP,
Hon. Secretary.

Criterion Chambers, Jermyn-street, S.W.

This report was approved and adopted by the Theatres Alliance at the general meeting on the 12th inst.

CONSTRUING A CONTRACT.

In the Court of Appeal on Wednesday, the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Farwell and Kennedy, heard the case of "Clifton v. the New Tivoli (Limited)," which came before the Court upon the plaintiff's appeal from a judgment of a Divisional Court of King's Bench, reversing a decision of the learned judge of the Westminster County Court.

The plaintiff, Mr. Herbert Clifton, a music-hall artist, sued the defendants to recover salary which he alleged to be due to him in the following circumstances:—In November, 1907, the plaintiff entered into a contract with the defendants to perform at the Tivoli for six weeks in 1908-9-10. One of the provisions of the contract ran as follows:—"The management hereby engages the artist, and the artist accepts the engagement to appear as mimic, or in his usual entertainment, at the Tivoli every evening, and on Saturday afternoon when required in accordance with clause 3, for the period and at the salary stated in the schedule." Clause 3 ran:—"The artist agrees to appear at any matinées required by the management, and shall be paid for each matinée at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly salary." The plaintiff's salary was £8 10s. a week, and £1 4s. 3d. for a matinée. The plaintiff performed at the evening performances for two weeks, and also at two matinées. On Aug. 20 he received a letter stating that, owing to the length of the programme, his services would not be required at the matinée on the following Saturday. The plaintiff also received a similar notice with regard to the matinée on the following Saturday. The plaintiff was tendered his salary for these two weeks without the fee for the two matinées, but he refused to accept the amount tendered, and sued the defendants in the County Court for the two weeks' salary due to him, the fees for the matinées, and for damages for not being allowed to perform. The defendants paid the amount of the two weeks' salary, less the fees for the matinées, into Court.

The County Court Judge held upon the construction of the contract that the words "any matinées when required" meant matinées required by the management, and that the plaintiff, Mr. Herbert Clifton, was entitled to his fee if a matinée were given, whether he actually performed or not. He accordingly gave judgment for the plaintiff for £20 8s. 6d., being the amount claimed for salary, including matinées, with £1 damages in addition.

The Divisional Court, however, upon the defendants' appeal, reversed the decision of the County Court Judge, holding that upon the construction of the contract the plaintiff was only entitled to be paid for performing at a matinée when requested to do so. Hence the present appeal of the plaintiff.

Mr. Atkin, K.C., and Mr. Doughty appeared for the appellant, and Sir F. Lowe, K.C., and Mr. Campbell Johnstone for the respondents.

At the conclusion of the arguments of counsel for the appellant, and without calling upon counsel for the respondents, their Lordships held that the decision of the Divisional Court was right, and dismissed the appeal with costs.

MASONS AT WORK.

The regular meeting of the Chelsea Lodge (No. 3,098) was held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday last. Owing to the absence in Glasgow on business of Mr. Harry Bawn, the Worshipful Master of the present year, the lodge was presided over by Mr. Albert Le Fre as acting W.M. The following officers were also present:—Mr. W. P. K. Walton, S.W.; Mr. G. H. Dyball, J.W.; Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon, Treasurer; Mr. C. J. Doughty, Secretary; Mr L. G. Sharpe, S.D.; Mr. E. T. R. Lester, J.D.; Mr. A. E. Nicklin, I.G.; Mr. Angelo A. Asher, Organist; Mr. A. Felino, Steward; and Mr. J. H. MacNaughton, Tyler. Previous to the business of the day being transacted, a very hearty vote of congratulation was passed to Mr. W. S. Lyon upon his safe return from his trip to Canada and the States, it being the first time he had attended Lodge since being invested as an officer of Grand Lodge. Mr. Lyon feelingly replied.

He related his experiences, and spoke of the reception given him in the Lodges in Montreal and New York, and delivered a fraternal greeting and remembrance from "Serpentello," a P.M. of the Lodge, whom he had met in New York.

The acting W.M. initiated Messrs. J. T. M. Siems and Chas. F. Stirling into the mysteries, and advanced Messrs. Crossland, James Stewart, and Will Johnson, and then vacated the chair in favour of Mr. James W. Mathews, P.A.G.D.C., who initiated Messrs. J. P. Ling and Bert Marsden into the mysteries of the Order. Urgent business calling Mr. Mathews away, the chair was again taken by Mr. Le Fre, who completed the ceremony with Mr. A. G. Harman.

After several letters and telegrams from absent members regretting their inability to be present had been read, the Lodge was closed in due form, the members present, in addition to the above-named officers, being Messrs. Booker Andrews, Frank Hardie, Wm. Ward, Pete Murray, James Stewart, Will Johnson, Ben Whiteley, A. G. Harman, Herbert Austin, C. H. Burton, Ed. Crossland, J. T. M. Siems, Chas. F. Stirling, J. P. Ling, and Bert Marsden; also the following visitors:—Messrs. T. Slegarist, Camden Lodge, 704; Walter Barrett, Glasgow Dramatic, 571; Sydney Gaunt, Prince Consort Lodge, 52, Province of Quebec. The members and visitors adjourned to the Six Bells Hotel and partook of a cold collation.

STAMP-COLLECTING is a hobby in which Mr. George Robey has indulged for some time. He has, accordingly, had a number of dealings with Mr. F. Ginn, of the Strand, and the latter on Wednesday brought an action against him respect of several lots of stamps—particularly Mauritius and "Old Colonials"—forwarded to Mr. Robey between Dec. 2 and Dec. 14, 1909. They were retained until the latter part of the following April, when Mr. Robey kept some and returned the others. Plaintiff, however, contended that, by reason of the unreasonable time he had had them in his possession, Mr. Robey ought to take the lot. Hence he sought to recover their value, £276. Mr. Justice Bucknill on Wednesday, when the action was tried in the King's Bench Division, intimated that he would give judgment this morning. He however, suggested that in the meantime the parties should endeavour to come to terms.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Cecilia Loftus, who was announced to return to the Coliseum programme on Monday next, will unfortunately not be able to appear on that date. On the advice of her medical attendant she will undergo an operation, and will not appear again in public until further notice. Miss Loftus was unable to be present to give away the prizes at the Music Hall Sports on Thursday.

"The Dancing Master," a divertissement in one scene, music by Cuthbert Clarke, will be produced at the Empire on Monday, by Fred Farren, who will play the title-rôle. Miss F. Martell will be Celestine, M. Adolf Bolm Armand, Miss Phyllis Bedells Mlle. Lutine, Miss Beatrice Collier Mlle. Rosita, and Mlle Lydia Kyasht Mimi Laffleur. The period is 1840, and the scene the rehearsal room at the Opéra, Paris.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten reached London on Wednesday after a most enjoyable trip to South America, which has enabled him to have a health-giving holiday of two months. He returned by the Araguya as far as Spain, travelling overland to Paris, where he made a brief stay.

John Lawson will submit his latest production, The King of Palestine, a prophecy in four episodes on Aug. 1, at the Olympia, Shoreditch. Mr. Lawson will be surrounded by an extremely strong cast, and some 70 or 80 supernumeraries. The uniforms and costumes for the great Congress scene are being specially prepared by Louis Benjamin and Co., who are taking care that every detail of the uniforms, etc., is correct.

The officers and men of his Imperial Japanese Majesty's warship Ikoma have accepted an invitation from Mr. Oswald Stoll to visit the Coliseum and Hippodrome on the afternoons of Monday and Tuesday, the 25th and 26th. They will muster in all about 1,000 warrant officers and men, and as leave cannot be given to the whole number, they will visit the two theatres in drafts of about 250.

Notwithstanding repeated efforts on the part of Mr. Alfred Butt to retain the services of Mlle. Pavlova, M. Mordkin, and company of Russian dancers, it has been found impossible to do so, owing to the fact that the gifted dancer has signed a contract to appear at the Grand Opera House, New York. Mlle. Pavlova will, therefore, terminate her engagement at the Palace Theatre on Aug. 6, but in addition to the evening performances she will dance at three special matinées on July 27, Aug. 3, and, in deference to a widely expressed wish from those intending to visit London, a further matinée will be given on August Bank Holiday.

Captain Suogi, commanding the Japanese cruiser Ikoma, with a party of officers who were on an official visit to the Admiralty and War Office, paid a visit to the Palace on Wednesday evening, and received the Russian dancers with great enthusiasm. Mr. Barclay Gammon at his piano had bright things to say on the occasion, whilst Mr. Bert Levy, the Australian caricaturist, drew a series of Japanese types which highly delighted the special visitors.

Miss Daisy James is appearing at the Palace, Plymouth. She has plenty of tuneful songs, among which the widely-sung "Ship Ahoy!" is still the favourite. Another song which Miss James has made popular is "The Hallelujah Band."

Miss Katie Lawrence goes to the Rotherhithe Hippodrome on Monday with new songs and new business. Miss Lawrence made a sensation as Daisy, the tandem bicycle heroine. She should be able to give us a humorous notion of the airship lady.

Miss Nora Kerin, the Miranda in Sir Herbert Tree's revival of The Tempest in 1905, who has also become a favourite of the halls in sketches, is the fortunate winner of the diamond pendant, the first prize in the Pelican smart woman competition. Miss Rosie Butterick has won a three-guinea hat, and Miss Kittee Rayburn, Miss Marie Lloyd, Miss Mildred Deverez, and Miss Simeta Marsden have won similar prizes.

Mr. Martin Harvey writes:—"I am told there are certain gentlemen on the variety stage who are repeating as a music hall turn a long speech that I make in The Breed of the Treshams. The speech seems to be generally known as 'the Rat's speech,' and it is that in which he relates the story of his lost love. Several gentlemen have written to me asking permission to be allowed to use this speech, and I have always declined their request, because, of course, any portion of The Breed of the Treshams is absolutely copyright. If the thing is persisted in I shall have to take proceedings."

We are glad to be able to announce that that favourite comedian Mr. Harry Randall is to return to Drury Lane, and he will be associated with Mr. George Graves and Mr. George Barrett in Mr. Arthur Collins's Christmas production. His first season at the famous house was with the lamented Dan Leno and Herbert Campbell, who both died within a few months of each other in 1904. Mr. Randall was secured to take Dan Leno's place, but the latter rallied, and was able to take his place as usual as chief fun-maker—alas! for the last time.

The Vaudeville Club Golfers have appointed Gus Garrick hon. secretary, in the place of Hal Forde, now on his way to South Africa. A scheme of affiliation has been proposed by the Honor Oak Golfing Club, and intending members should send in their names to the new secretary at once. The following well-known names have already been enrolled: Harry Meymott, present holder of the music hall golf pennant, Ed. E. Ford, J. W. Rickaby, and Hal Forde, ex-music hall champions; also Wilkie Bard, Morny Cash, George Sanford, and others.

For the first time on Monday Mme. Fanny Moody and Mr. Charles Manners, who have done so much to foster a love for Grand Opera in this country, will appear upon a variety stage at the London Hippodrome. Their extensive répertoire includes such favourite items as Tosti's "Good-bye," "To-morrow will be Friday," "In cellar cool," "Father O'Flynn," "Scenes that are brightest," "The last rose of summer," "Home, sweet home," "The Diver," and the stirring "Here's a health unto His Majesty." Such a programme of immortal ballads sung by two of the most renowned vocalists of the day should prove a delight to all.

The New Tivoli (Strand) report shows that the net profit for the year ended June 30 last, after providing for £5,688 interest on the mortgage and debentures, amounts to £10,851. In January last an interim dividend of 4 per cent., less income-tax, was paid. The directors now recommend the payment of a further dividend of 6 per cent., less income-tax, for the half-year ended June 30, 1910, making 10 per cent for the year. After payment of this dividend the directors propose to deal with the surplus by applying £3,000 to the general reserve fund (making £26,000 to the credit thereof) and carrying forward the balance to the current year's accounts.

The directors kindly granted the use of the Boscombe Hippodrome for a matinée on Wednesday in aid of the fund which is being raised for the benefit of those bereft of their breadwinners by the recent boating disaster at Boscombe. Twenty-five star turns contributed to a fine programme.

Graham, the human marionette, who has been winning golden opinions recently at Grimsby and Bristol, sails on the Oceanic on Sept. 21 for America, where he will be for a period of forty weeks on the Orpheum tour. His first vacant date is in February, 1912.

We understand that, after being in abeyance for some months, the work in connection with the erection of the Hippodrome at the corner of Macklin-street and Green Hill, Derby, is to be proceeded with, and that tenders have been invited for various work, to be completed at an early date.

Mr. Julian Graham, who has been resident-manager of the Hippodrome Theatre, Sheerness, commenced duties in a like capacity on Monday at the Empire Theatre, Southend-on-Sea, both places being under the lesseeship of Mr. B. Pareezer.

Mr. B. G. Maclachlan, of the Moss and Stoll central offices, is, owing to a change in the management, supervising affairs this week at the Glasgow Coliseum, where he was for some years the resident-manager, and next week he visits Birmingham on a similar duty. Following this, Mr. Maclachlan will be for three weeks at the London Coliseum, to take up the duties of absentees on holiday.

Mr. W. F. Frame, who is said to wear a picture postcard smile, starts his autumn vaudeville tour on Monday, Aug. 1, in Kilwinning, where Robert Burns first saw Masonic light—"Mother Lodge." It's always a big night when Brother Frame is there. This tour through Scotland and the North of England lasts for twelve weeks.

Mr. John M. Hay, who has just been promoted from the assistant managership at the Ardwick to be resident-manager at the Glasgow Coliseum, has had fourteen years varied experience in the profession. When he last visited Glasgow he was playing the Prince in The Prince of Pilsen, and in musical comedy and romantic drama he is equally at home. His engagements in recent years have included one with Sir Herbert Tree at His Majesty's and one at the Savoy, with provincial tours in several leading companies.

Mr. Hay is married to a member of that well-known West of Scotland family the Colquhouns of Luss (on Loch Lomond), and numbers several distinguished military and naval heroes among his family connections. His grandfather was an officer on the Bellerophon when that famous vessel had the great Napoleon on board as a prisoner of war.

Mr. Mark Lorne, who has been appointed by Mr. Oswald Stoll as manager of the Palace Theatre, Bordesley, has for the past three years been connected with the Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatre, Ltd. He left the Grand, Mansfield, to take up the general-management of the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, which, under his spirited management last season, proved most successful.

Mr. Lorne is well known both in dramatic and variety circles, having been manager and licensee of the old Palace, Southampton, which position he held before he was twenty-one. His fertile pen has supplied most of our leading stars with songs and scenas. His pet hobby is catchy advertising, and he is never so happy as when penning a "gag" bill. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lorne were the recipients of many gifts from the numerous friends they have left behind in Sutton.

The enterprise of Mr. A. E. Pickard, of the Panopticon, Glasgow, in organising a cheap excursion to Blackpool at Glasgow Fair was amply taken advantage of, and two lengthy trains, carrying about 2,000 trippers, left Glasgow on Sunday night last for the popular Lancashire resort. Mr. Pickard is now dubbing himself the "excursion king" and "Cook's only rival"!

Mr. H. B. Sawyer, who was appointed manager of the Jersey Opera House some two or three weeks ago, has gone to the Ardwick Empire, Manchester, and has been replaced in Jersey by Mr. Lindsey Edwards. Mr. Lindsey Edwards is well known in the theatrical world, not only as an actor, but as proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Long Eaton. He was manager of the Theatre Royal, Loughborough, for four years, under Mr. W. Payne Seddon, and subsequently manager of the Electric Hippodrome for Mr. Leon Vint.

A new music hall is to be built in Doncaster. A freehold site has been acquired in Hall Gate and Silver-street, and on this a handsome modern theatre will be erected, having its principal frontage in Silver-street, with an exit in Hall Gate. The building will have a holding capacity of from 2,000 to 2,500.

The directors are:—Chairman, Mr. H. J. F. Crosby, director of the Palace Theatre and Buffet Company, Ltd., Grimsby, and also of the Alliance Insurance Company; vice-chairman, Mr. Tom Shaw, variety agent, 18, Adam-street, Strand, London; chairman of the Palace Theatre, Darlington, Ltd.; Mr. Fred Reeves, The Cedars, Grove-road, Brixton, London, director of the Hippodrome, Bishop Auckland, Ltd.; Mr. Arthur I'Anson, chartered accountant, Middlesbrough, director of the East Coast Variety Halls, Ltd.; Mr. W. Lowry Cole, C.C., Doncaster, and Mr. M. E. Clark, Barnby Dun.

The managing director will be Signor Rino Pepi, who is also managing director of Darlington, Durham, Bishop Auckland, and other halls. It is the intention of the promoters to provide a clean, intellectual, and amusing entertainment, free from coarseness or vulgarity, and by so doing they hope to attract patrons from all classes of society in Doncaster and district.

At the conclusion of business at the Empire, Wakefield, on Friday (15th) the members of the staff and a few friends gathered together at the Woolpacks Hotel for the purpose of making a presentation to Mr. L. H. Laycock, whose association with the management of the Empire ended the previous Saturday.

Mr. T. T. P. Sherwood, who was called upon to make the presentation, said that at the time Mr. Laycock joined the staff at the Empire that building was sailing through very troublous waters, waters which had been safely navigated by the pilotage of Mr. Harry Burns, whose respected father was there that night. But Mr. Laycock, by his untiring efforts, his strict attention to duties, and perfect willingness at all times to do everything that lay in his power in the interests of the proprietors of the Empire, has materially helped to place the building amongst the paying music hall properties of the provinces. Mr. Laycock was asked to accept a purse with the very best wishes of all who had subscribed. Mr. H. Burns, jun., Mr. Tolfree (Hippodrome), and Mr. Alan D'Albert (chef-de-orchestre) also spoke. Mr. Laycock suitably and feelingly responded.

Miss Madge Temple was specially sent for on Monday last to deputise for Miss Clarice Mayne at the Tivoli, where she is meeting with very great success. Miss Temple is also appearing at the Oxford and Canterbury.

Miss Adele Level, with her little tales, recitations, and monologues, was a much appreciated entertainer at the Hospital Fête at Walthamstow on Saturday last. She appeared on Wednesday at the Irish Club, where a warm welcome awaited her.

Mrs. Cissie Lawson, of the Empire, Camberwell, has had the misfortune to lose a lovely gown, bought at the Franco-British Exhibition, and a beautiful sable boa out of a dressing-room. This should be a warning to ladies and gentlemen to always see that their dressing-rooms are locked.

Messrs. Royston Keith and Alfred Cuthbert have written a new dramatic sketch entitled Ned the Devil, which has been accepted for production at the Surrey for the week commencing Monday next. The scene is laid in a riverside public-house called "The Rat Hole." Mr. Royston Keith in the name-part will be supported by a strong company.

Miss Margaret Parker, supported by a West-End company, will present for the first time on Monday at the Euston an inspiration, entitled Her Twenty-First Birthday, written by herself, and produced under the direction of Miss Kate Rorke, the music being composed and arranged by Mark Strong and Margaret Parker. This is the first sketch Miss Margaret Parker has written entirely alone.

Mme. Elena Knipper-Rabeneck's Eight Æsthetic Dancers from the Théâtre de Arts, Moscow, will make their first appearance in London at the Hippodrome on Monday. To the world's most fascinating music these graceful girls in classical drapery dance, pose, and act and interpret in a way never previously equalled, and there is no question that their appearance next week will cause a sensation.

Mr. Pat Carey, who is a broth of a boy as an Irish entertainer, is starting his season with the Pelican Pierrots at the Sun Hotel Gardens, Market-place, Kingston-on-Thames to-day (Saturday). He will be glad to hear from any artists whose engagements may permit of their helping to give him a send-off on this occasion. They may write to him c/o M.H.A.R.A., 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C.

On Monday next and every evening during the week another music hall competition is announced to be held at the Crystal Palace Theatre. A long list of amateurs will be presented each night, each competitor enthusing some amount of excitement among the audience. At the end of the week the prize winners will be announced, when many valuable prizes will be given to the most talented artists. These competitions often make of an amateur a clever professional, for it is a well-known fact that many of our leading artists of the present day were in the making amateurs whose talent made them famous.

His host of friends in Leeds and district will learn with regret of the impending departure from Leeds of Mr. Sam Jones, acting-manager of the City Varieties Music Hall.

It is nine and a half years since Mr. Jones essayed the management of the Varieties, under the wing of Mr. Fred Wood, and the association has been of the happiest and most prosperous. Mr. Jones, whilst in Leeds, has always upheld the dignity and traditions of the profession, and has ever been among the first to come forward and assist in the cause of charity whenever occasion has arisen.

Mr. Jones has been associated with the stage for thirty-five years. He is a London man, and twelve years ago accepted a managerial appointment at the Tivoli, Glasgow, for Messrs. Colquhoun and Barney Armstrong, coming to Leeds from there. Mr. Jones is now, after an absence of about a round dozen of years, returning to London, though his plans for the future are not yet complete. He was the original singer of "Where did you get that hat?" written for him by James Rolmaz. When he sang this famous number he was known as Fred Payne.

Mr. Newman Maurice, the business manager of the Brixton Theatre, writes:—"It may be interesting to readers to know that Miss Belle Elmore was engaged by me to appear for six nights at the Bijou Theatre, Teddington (which no doubt will be remembered was run by my wife, Miss Rosa Moncrieff, and myself for some years). Her engagement there commenced on Sept. 10, 1900. This was understood to be her first public appearance in England after her return from America."

In the report of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild read at the general meeting in February, there occurs the following passage:—"Thanks are also due to Miss Belle Elmore, honorary treasurer, for her hard work during her year of office, and for her organisation of the dinners, which, with the help of the committee, proved such an unqualified success." Poor Belle Elmore never heard these words of praise. Her dismembered remains were under the cellar at 39, Hilldrop-crescent, at the time they were read.

In the list of the guests at the dinner and dance of the Music Hall Railway Association at the Criterion on Feb. 20 occur the names of "Dr. and Mrs. Crippen." The lady was Miss Le Neve; and the circumstance that she was passing as Mrs. Crippen must have aroused grave suspicion in the minds of the murdered woman's friends in the profession, especially as a letter—confessedly not in her handwriting—had been received by the Music Hall Ladies' Guild announcing her impending departure for America. The dinner, by the way, was presided over by Mr. Eugene Stratton, and not by Mr. Joe Elvin, as stated in the evidence given at the inquest. Mr. Elvin was, of course, present, and giving enthusiastic support to his brother Rat.

The Aberdeen Palace Theatre, which is under the auspices of the United County Theatres, Ltd., reopened on Monday after such a thorough overhauling and reconstruction that the house is now quite up to date. A fine rake now gives an excellent sight-line for the occupants of pit and orchestra stalls—tip-up seats, prettily upholstered in green velvet. Red plush is the covering of the luxurious seats in the grand circle. The stage boxes have tasteful curtains and upholstery, and the roof and proscenium are embellished with frescoes. Tea and refreshment rooms add to the convenience of the theatre. The resident-manager is Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.

The Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association met on Wednesday at the offices, the following being present: Messrs. Fred Herbert (in the chair), Jack Straw, E. W. Edwards, T. C. Callaghan, Tom Packer, J. Atroy, and Lieutenant Albini. The weekly financial statement showed thirty-six new members and a cash total of £52 17s. 6d. The statement for the month showed the following totals: Reserve fund, £545 17s. 3d.; deposit account, £157 7s. 4d.; current account, £87 16s. 4d.; and petty cash, £45. The amount paid to the V.A.B.F., representing the extra shilling on the green cards for October to June, was £268 13. Mr. W. C. Trow, of the Panama Hotel, Luton, was appointed agent in that town.

Mr. Phil Brandon was initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Fred Hooper, W.T., assisted by Terrier Russell Brandow, V.T. Terrier Russell Brandow officiated as organist.

Messrs. Harry Roma, William Cromwell Knox, and Thomas Howard Ward, candidates for membership of the Terriers' Association, have successfully passed the ballot. Terrier D. M. H. Hoffman was elected as W.D., and Terrier W. B. Gillin Y.D. A hearty welcome was extended to Terriers Fred Hughes, Ted E. Box, Julian Mack, W. B. Gillin, and A. N. Hennessy upon their reappearance in the Kennel.

During the absence of Secretary Arthur Were, Terrier Tom Packer has kindly consented to undertake the duties. A cricket match has been arranged by Terrier W. R. Dunkley on Sunday, Aug. 7, at Cranford Bridge. All Terriers wishing to take part should send their names in to Tom Packer, secretary pro. tem. Further particulars later.

Miss Vera Saunders will commence a return engagement at the Tivoli on Dec. 12 next, when she will introduce a new number now in preparation, from the pen of M. Felix Santhe, the well-known French composer. Her latest success "Billy" is now in the hands of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Mr. Harry Liston, after a long interval, will renew his acquaintance with Great Yarmouth next week at Wellington Pier, where he will be assisted by his talented colleague, Miss Lord Lumley. When Mr. Liston last performed in Yarmouth our late beloved King, Edward VII. (then Prince of Wales) was his patron.

Miss Melinda May has had much extra work of late in connection with the terrible tragedy that has robbed her and the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild of a beloved colleague. She wishes, on behalf of the committee, to thank many friends for visits and letters too numerous to answer individually for their sympathy. Her acknowledgments are due to Miss Gintaro, from South Africa (giving and collecting), £1 1s.; and Mr. Samuel H. Berwitz (donation), 2s. 6d.

Miss Margaret Halstan will produce, at the Coliseum on Aug. 8, a new one-act play by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, author of The Likeness of the Night and A Long Duet. Miss Halstan will play the leading part, which is a strong emotional one, while Mr. Dawson Milward, who recently appeared as the irritable general in Don, has also been provided with a fine part. Other smaller parts will be played by Miss Emma Lovett and Mr. Harvey Braham.

Dr. Walford Bodie created quite a furore last week at the Grand Opera House, Derby. He played with his own company to packed houses twice nightly, being patronised by the elite of the town and district. He had a great reception at both houses on Saturday night, being cheered again and again at the conclusion of his act. Many of his patients he presented with clothes and boots in exchange for their irons and crutches. This week he is playing to overflow houses at the Hippodrome, Keighley, being his third visit to the town.

Through the enterprise of Mr. Oswald Stoll Croydon has an elegant new variety theatre, named the Croydon Hippodrome, which will be opened on Aug. 1, and privately viewed on Thursday next. That all the best talent of the variety world will be seen there goes without saying, because Croydon Hippodrome will be booked in conjunction with the Coliseum, the London Hippodrome, and the powerful Moss-Stoll-Thornton and Allen syndicate. The proprietors of the Croydon Hippodrome are the Croydon Hippodrome, Ltd., of which Mr. Stoll is chairman and managing-director.

The convenience and comfort of patrons have been consulted in every way: in the seating, in the entrances, in the exits, in the waiting-rooms, and in length of programme, which permits of everyone travelling by train or tram to get home in comfort. The theatre itself stands on the site of the old Theatre Royal on Crown Hill, practically the centre of the town, and is thus within a single minute's walk of the trams, which directly connect East, West, and South Croydon with this important point

Two complete and distinct programmes are to be given every night, and in addition an interesting novelty has been introduced. So widespread has entertainment by animated pictures become, thanks in the first place to the acumen of variety theatre managers in first placing these wonderful applications of photography before the public, Croydon Hipodrome is to have the special feature of "Afternoon Tea Picture Concerts." These concerts will be held daily at three o'clock, and will consist of high-class animated pictures and gramophonettes of music and the leading singers of the day. Tea will be served free, except to children, between four and five o'clock, in the fauteuils, grand circle, stalls, and pit. The afternoon programme will be changed every three days—that is, twice weekly.

The building, erected from the designs and under the superintendence of Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co., architects, of London, by Messrs. J. Smith and Sons, of South Norwood, occupies an island site with a frontage of 40ft. to Crown Hill, 180ft. to the public thoroughfare of Priddy's Yard, and 100ft. to a private road.

The vestibule is approached through four large doors, and thence the way to the stalls and circle is by two wide staircases. The pit and gallery entrances are in the private roadway at the side. Comfortable waiting-rooms are provided for each part of the house, so that patrons can avoid the discomfort of waiting in the public street. The house is divided into stalls and pit on the ground floor, with a commodious circle containing eleven rows of tip-up seats; and immediately above the circle is the gallery fitted with upholstered seats. There are no columns to obstruct the view.

Miss Lelia Rose (Mrs. Downes-Martin), with her husband and niece (Miss Verona Philis) was present at the fête given in aid of the Boy Scouts' Fund at Eel Pie Island, Twickenham. A programme, composed of many prominent theatrical and variety artists, was provided in the Pavilion. During the performance a tiny Pekinese puppy, presented by Princess Toussoun in aid of the Fund, was put up for auction, and after spirited bidding was carried off in triumph by Miss Lelia Rose at the highest bid of fourteen guineas, amid a storm of applause from the packed house.

The Crisps, who go to the Palace, Bristol, on August Bank Holiday, though in the springtide of youth, have had quite a lengthy career. They were known as Darnley's Dots for over a year, played The Golliwogs in Through the Looking Glass (Alice), and toured America twice with Olga Nethersole and Laurence Irving, besides filling engagements during four pantomime seasons with Mr. Robert Arthur. They are a great success in their novel comedy and dancing scena, The Little Deputy, which we shall see at the Oxford on Sept. 5. They are quite content with their present prospects; but, then, Will Oliver is hustling for them.

Owing to Mrs. Sillward breaking her arm at the Tottenham Palace on the 7th inst. all engagements have had to be cancelled in Le Gorille till Oct. 1, when Mr. and Mrs. Sillward open at Brussels at the Palais D'Ete.

There was some interesting evidence given in an application at the Ramsgate Police-court on Monday by Mr. Frederick Charles Dew, lessee of the Marina Theatre Gardens, for a music and dancing licence for performances to be given on a stage in the Marina Gardens.

Mr. J. H. Robinson appeared on behalf of the applicant. The Town Clerk (Mr. A. Blasdale Clarke) opposed on behalf of the Borough of Ramsgate Entertainments Association and the Sands Committee; and Mr. J. Emery represented Mr. H. Gold, lessee of the entertainment pitches on the sands, who also opposed.

Mr. Dew, in his evidence in support of his application, said he had a twenty-one years' lease of the Marina Theatre, Shades, and Gardens. He now applied for a music and dancing licence for the gardens. He had entered into arrangements with Mr. Tom Fancourt, of the concert party, to perform there. The licence was granted.

At the Central Conference of American Rabbis in the States recently, it was reported that the campaign against offensive stage caricatures of the Jew had not been successful, although the New York Managers' Association had declared itself to be in complete sympathy with the desires of the Rabbis. Generally speaking, the most offensive caricatures on the variety stage on this side come from the members of the Hebrew race themselves.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, on Tuesday, creditors and shareholders met under the winding-up order made against the Amusements Development Syndicate, Ltd., of which Mr. Humphrey Ellis Brammall is a managing director. The company in October entered into an agreement for the tenancy of the Britannia Theatre and the Britannia Tavern, Hoxton, but possession of the latter was never obtained.

The directors state that the company suffered considerable damage in consequence, and attribute its failure to that fact. The theatre was opened with Dick Whittington, but the enterprise was not financially successful. The accounts showed liabilities £3,754, of which £2,467 is expected to rank, and assets £1,800, of which all but £512 is required to meet loans on debenture bonds and preferential payments. The liquidation was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas last week at the Marine Gardens, Portobello, proved such a draw that Mr. Lumsden, the manager, offered them a return in a month's time, although they had only appeared at the Empire, Edinburgh, three weeks previous. They were unable to accept owing to other engagements, but they are secured for two weeks next season. This week they are starring at Harrogate.

Miss Lottie Albert writes:—"Will you allow me, through your valuable columns, to correct a misstatement made at the inquest on the late Miss Belle Elmore that 'no one had the pluck to take the matter in hand'? As a matter of fact, several influential members of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild and myself have for the last few months been investigating the lamentable affair, and it is entirely due to my instrumentality that Mr. Michael Bernstein intervened, and I supplied him with my own private photographs and papers and the original letters entrusted to my care by the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, many of which have been reproduced. I will, therefore, thank you to give the matter the required publicity, as I personally resent the remarks of Mr. Nash."

The exposure of so-called "massage establishments" and "medical homes" is the unsavoury subject of the White Slaves of London, a dramatic sketch, produced at the Canterbury on Monday. According to the programme, this is a dramatic incident, taken from life, in which Nurse Gladys, who has been rescued from a West-End massage establishment, appears. After Nurse Gladys was rescued from the house where she was lured, she resolved to expose publicly the crying shame of England, as a warning to her sisters who get daily ensnared in the supposed "medical homes."

The scene is apparently the reception room of a massage establishment, and soon after the rise of the curtain a foreign procurer enters, and with him a couple of ruffians, carrying a body in a sack—a sailor who has been drugged, and whom the procurer is determined to silence for ever, as he is likely to thwart some evil scheme the villain has on hand. The body is taken into an adjoining room, and soon after a patron of the house enters—an elderly roué supposed to be suffering from rheumatism—who is told that Nurse Eva—evidently a favourite—is not available, but that Nurse Gladys, a young and attractive girl, will shortly wait on him.

Gladys, who has been lured to the place, not knowing its true character, would leave, but is prevented. She, however, speaks her mind plainly to the vile matron, and firmly refuses to do her bidding. She also tells a few truths to the "rheumatic subject," asking him to think of his own daughter and his feelings if she were placed in a similar position, and he eventually retires, vowing never to visit the place again. The matron is greatly enraged at her conduct, and the procurer is about to administer a thrashing with a whip to the distressed girl, when other "customers" arrive, and the girl is allowed to depart.

Then enter a couple of young swells, one of whom is evidently ignorant of the nature of the house. When his companion informs him he is very indignant, for, holding some official position in Vienna, he has some knowledge of the snares laid for young girls, who are shipped abroad and ruined. He also tells his companion of his sweetheart (Gladys), who has mysteriously disappeared from the last address she left him, and shows him her photograph which he has in a letter-case. The couple soon decide to quit the place, and the matron is informed that they also are not likely to visit it again. When they have left, the letter-case containing the photo is found, and the villainous matron and her male companion determine to show the photo to Gladys. Thinking her lover is a regular visitor she will be disgusted, and they imagine will no longer have any scruples as to her mode of conduct. This they do, and the poor girl is horrified. Later the owner of the photo., finding he has lost his letter-case, comes back for it, and is eventually confronted with Gladys. Explanations follow, and the procurer, entering, threatens to 'phone to Scotland Yard to have the young man arrested for murder if he exposes the place. Finding his threats unavailable, he does ring up the police; but the drugged sailor, who has been in an adjoining room, comes on the scene and denounces the foreigner as the criminal. The names of the characters and those responsible for their portrayal are not given on the programme, but all the parts are admirably enacted, and the sketch was attentively followed by the audience, who gave it a favourable reception.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THAT pretty song, "A dainty pair of shoes," one of Arthur du Soir's most admired numbers, is quite the talk of more than one seaside town of note, its refinement being as marked as its music is delightful. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

THE reports from coast resorts anent the success of Messrs. Francis and Day's seasonable new songs and selections are, as is only to be expected, up to the high-water mark of previous years, and tell the same unvaried tale. When the wares of a firm have for nearly thirty years been a synonym for all that is best and brightest in the world of popular song, small wonder is it that in 1910 the publications of the great house are justly considered the standards by which success is to be measured by entertainers and the steelyards by which the public taste can be accurately gauged by all who cater for visitors to the sea at this period of the year. In short, few, if any, popular programmes anywhere exist that do not include several Francis and Day items, for the simple reason that, just as any dish would be flavourless without salt, so would a programme for a mixed seaside audience be insipidity without the songs of the idols of the people, and as the old-established firm of Messrs. Francis and Day publish the majority of the songs indicated, the success achieved by it is deserved and not unexpected.

AMONG the numbers of which report speaks highly, included in programmes almost everywhere in these islands, might be mentioned all those ditties that have been foreshadowed as probable hits months back, and the long list is being daily added to, and in the professional department even at this summer period early birds have been observed making sure and certain of various luscious morsels (not to be found in any other garden) for use at pantomime time.

MEN of Devon have taken as kindly to "Flanagan" as have the males elsewhere, and Miss Florrie Forde, at the Devonport Hippodrome, has had, as usual, to repeat again and again the chorus of the song of the year, and has been vociferously cheered for other of Francis and Day's admired songs.

MR. EUGENE STRATTON, at the Hackney Empire on Monday, was the recipient of roars of welcome from two crowded houses, and his new song, "I may be a millionaire," caused furores. It has an interesting theme and a haunting melody, and the arrangement is one that must satisfy even this most fastidious and artistic of performers. The number, which is by Fred Godfrey and Charles Collins, is one that will be much sought after, and has been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day. Mr. Stratton was not permitted to depart till he had obliged with his classic "I may be crazy," and danced with the verve and abandon that are his alone.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE, who has ready for production a new song by Harry Carlton and Terry Sullivan, is advancing by leaps and bounds in the affections of the multitude, judging by the way she has been received nightly at the Oxford, notably for her rendering of "I'm looking for Grahame-White," and that coming pantomime hit, "On the silvery, silvery sands." Each is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS GLADYS HUXLEY, at the Tivoli, has been winning golden opinions for that pretty song, "Won't you come to Colombo with me?" which possesses a melody that grows on its hearers at each hearing. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

THE title-page designed by Mr. Sidney Kent for Mr. Harry Randall's forthcoming song, "I'm using Sunday language all the week," is worthy of the artist, and has a quaint ecclesiastical look, the initial letters being in what is technically known as "Church text," and they are illuminated in colours as were the missals and psalters of old. The portrait of the genial comedian, however, appearing on the same page, has a most uncanonical appearance. The song, which is by Edgar Bateman, Joe Burley, and M. Scott, will be placed on the market presently by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS IDA BARR'S new chorus song, "I don't care if I never get home," by Paul Pelham and J. P. Long, will be a great feature at future convivial meetings, and at the Euston and elsewhere has been greeted with those signs that bespeak popularity. Messrs. Francis and Day have it in the press.

A NEW two-step entitled "Rings on my fingers," founded on the popular song and equally popular "Miss O'Hara and her emerald tiara," is being issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is by Maurice Scott, who is honourably connected with both these sterling song successes in conjunction with F. J. Barnes and R. P. Weston.

MISS MAY MARS' very effective new song is entitled "Let me think I'm someone." It is by Frank Calvert and the striking melody is by Orlando Powell. It has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT, who during the week now ending has been giving Newcastle-on-Tyne a taste of her quality, has published her new humorous song, "Our Martha Jane can't read," with Messrs. Francis and Day. It is of the domestic order, and details the dire consequences of engaging, because her predecessor was always reading novelettes, a general servant who is illiterate. The song is by Edgar Bateman and Henry F. Greenfield.

MISS MARIE BRAYMAN, who has been making a great hit at all her engagements with Messrs. Francis and Day's popular chorus song "Send them along to me," is about to produce the same firm's "One of the girls."

MR. GEORGE BASTOW opened at the Palace, Douglas, on Monday last, after his long illness, and scored an immediate hit with his new song, "Captain Ginjah, O.T.," and visitors to the Little Man Island have since annexed the chorus, which promises to be a very popular item of his fine new repertoire, each of which got home. It is quite on the cards that "Captain Ginjah, O.T.," which is by the comedian himself and F. W. Leigh, will be published in the near future by Messrs. Francis and Day.

AT the Empire, Sunderland, Mr. George H. Elliott has been playing to delighted houses nightly, the audiences never seeming to have had enough of the "Chocolate-coloured Coon." His new chorus songs, "Mister Owl" and "There's a little black Cupid in the moon," both of which are published by Messrs. Francis and Day, have been in great request at each town where sung, and Sunderland buyers seem determined not to be left in the cold, judging by the orders for these ditties lately received.

THAT ripe comedian Mr. Charles West—once of Dunn's Concert Party on the old Britannia Pier at Yarmouth, and who is this year one of the principal comedians of Neville Delmar's naval cadets at Exeter—is making a great hit with Messrs. Francis and Day's great chorus song "I don't mind leaving the dear homeland."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

LONDON PAVILION.

The interest in Mr. Frank Glenister's current programme is sustained from first to last. No mediocre turn disfigures the bill, and the line from "The Fair Penitent"—"each wight is as welcome as the former"—may well be applied to every artist. Mr. Harry Russon, whom we remember in the revue at the Coliseum in 1906, has had no reason to regret his plunge into variety, the lesser stage giving him all the needful opportunity of showing his versatility. We have heard him recite a Kipling ballad; and now that he is singing a comic song on those alleged essentials of success in life, "Bluff and Swank," he is proving completely that he has a strong sense of humour. Mr. Fred Hastings rejoices one's heart too with some merry moments in his songs; and the Elite Harmony Boys have an interesting entertainment in Messmates Ashore. Harmony and comedy are judiciously allied in the turn of the Columbia Trio, who appear towards the close of the entertainment, and are received with much heartiness. One of the three is a veritable Anak, who has, moreover, a knack of being funny. He has a great command of jocularity, which is especially exploited in a travesty of the prison scene in Faust.

About midway in the bill we are able once more to enjoy the fun of that highly original production of Town Hall To-night, the novel farce with a real touch of pathos towards the end. Produced a few months ago at the Euston, the trifle has been somewhat condensed—wisely so, we think—with the result that every line evokes laughter. Mr. George Abel has never before been quite so funny on the variety stage as he is in the part Secretary—both decidedly good; and other turns include the Four Amaranths, a quartet of lady legmania dancers; the Three Gascoignes, comedy jugglers; the Kebbles, duettists and dancers; and Miss Elsie Southgate on the violin and Mr. James Coward on the Mustel organ. The musical entertainment given by the last-mentioned is certainly one of the most popular we have heard for many a day, and the audience becomes very enthusiastic every night. Miss Southgate, a very fine player, plays with great brio "Scènes de Czardas," by Hubay, and the tender melody of Mr. James Coward's song, entitled "Held in Bondage," is given with rare expression. The inevitable encore is "Annie Laurie."

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

An attractive programme is being presented here this week, and each turn gains a merited meed of applause. Happy Fanny Fields, the jolly little American-Dutch girl, is the star turn, and the mirth she evokes with her répertoire of song, story, and dance is a sufficient testimony of her great success. Another most amusing bit of burlesque is supplied by Vesta and Minnie Pine in their entertainment The Golf Girl and the Caddie. "I got as far as the door" and "Running all round the place" were the two funny effusions of Happy Tom Parker, a comedian with a humorous style that was immensely enjoyed by the audience. Much merriment also prevailed whilst Little Ganty, the "Little Lump of Fun," contributed his two songs "Too quick" and "The Boys' Brigade."

A lively duologue is served up by popular Bob and Jennie Leonard in their comedy act An Interview, and it was much enjoyed. The reception accorded Dot Stephens must have been very gratifying to her. She is a cultured vocalist, and scores a most pronounced success with "Just someone." A of Hip Flitters, the "everything" of the fit-up theatre, where the scenery is painted by the local whitewasher. The cloth of the Strand, London, is a highly original specimen of scenic humour which arouses merriment in all parts of the house. Miss Ethel Arden as the actress with a silent sorrow is particularly good.

Miss Josie Delaine is one of the daintiest dancers that we have in the halls, and her turn is full of vim and sparkle. Miss Ray Wallace, who now sings an original song at the piano, still wins her chief success with imitations of Gus Elen, Connie Edise, and Vesta Victoria; Mr. Arthur Aldridge delights the house with his rendering of "Beautiful Garden of Roses"; Mr. Malcolm Scott's comments on the ballad "Where are you going to, my pretty maid?" are decidedly caustic. He might find material for his humour in "The Bailiff's Daughter of Islington." Mr. Whit Cunliffe sings of a young gentleman who assists a lady editor; and Briff, Braff, and Broff are among the smartest acrobats in the world, their tricks throughout being astonishingly clever. The comic man is especially good.

Miss Lil Hawthorne sings gaily of "The Maid of Monte Carlo," with a special scene, and then, doffing her beautiful costume for the tattered garments of a boy waif, she touches the heart with a selection—one of the best she has had—"Don't cry, little girl, don't cry." To this story-ette she does complete justice, and has her audience with her all the time. Mr. Ben Albert is still puzzling us with the problem of "to-morrow," which invariably becomes "to-day," and even "yesterday"; Mr. Fred Pardoe, who is making his first appearances at the Pavilion, gives impersonations of Jim Carson in The White Man and the Rev. Robert Spalding in The Private particularly interesting and artistic item of the programme is supplied by Franco Piper, banjoist. His first contribution is a spirited rendering of the William Tell overture. This is followed by some juggling with banjoes, playing a tune all the time, with two, three, and four instruments. The audience reward his performance with enthusiastic plaudits. He concludes his entertainment with a finely-rendered solo, "The Pilgrims' Chorus" from Tannhäuser.

Something entirely new in the art of ventriloquism is contributed by Thora. It is only at the conclusion of the performance that the audience discovers that the artist, beautifully gowned, is of the male persuasion. The generous and hearty reception accorded to the Albert and Edmunds Troupe in The Tower of London and the mirth evoked is sufficient testimony of their success. The sketch is played throughout to an accompaniment of hearty laughter, the comic complications being very funnily portrayed by these clever performers. Mr. Bertie Ralland is the capable acting-manager here and Mr. Fred Camp has the conduct of the efficient orchestra.

CHELSEA PALACE.

Those who wish to spend the pleasantest of evenings have only to go to the Chelsea Palace to have that wish gratified. The management is in the capable hands of Mr. J. Norman Berlin, and he is happy and successful in his efforts to please. The programme, as is always the case there, is good. Lennie and Hast and company, in the romantic musical idyll The Maid of Polaria, take the audience to the Grand Canal, Polaria, and then take them quite out of themselves with witty remarks and fervent love songs. The turn is an excellent one. Mr. C. who sings and talks, keeps the house in a roar of laughter, and is one of the best raconteurs of the day; Bertha Stuart, a vocalist with a rare command of dramatic expression, sings with great success two Scotch songs, "Mary of Argyll" being the favourite; Leonard Teel as the suffering Dame evokes plenty of sympathy from the gentler sex; Evelyn Taylor in her latest success, "Easy-street," takes well; the Bros. Bright, with an athletic turn, and Maud Courtney, the American comediennes, are good turns; and Harry Gray, Australia's funny comedian, is very popular indeed in both his songs. His entrance hanging on to a flying machine is wonderfully effective. Wild, Willie, and West, "the three bounding mavvies," come in for a large share of applause; and Our Wedding Anniversary, a screamingly funny comedy duologue, is cleverly presented by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Manning. The husband being out of work, and having no money for the usual turkey to celebrate the "annual," pawns his watch. The wife, for the same reason, "lumbers" his dress suit. Each is surprised to find the other with a bird. She, remembering her needy friends, gives it to them; he, thinking two turkeys one too many, also gives his away. The subsequent dismay is relieved by the arrival of a hamper containing a third dinner, and thus virtue is rewarded. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope shows some delightful pictures.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

Whatever hard things may be said of the weather, no one can complain of the state of local amusement centres, where crowded houses have been the rule during the week. The orchestra starts right away to put everyone in a good humour, under the baton of Charles Holden; then the Sisters Romah evidence their title to "the Caledonian Harmony Lasses," and are both sprightly and tuneful. Chas. Ulrick exhibits some really wonderful balancing; tow's Dawn is sufficiently powerful in all conscience. Miss Dora Eastlake is the ill-behaved young lady of the play, and is altogether a bad lot as Natalie, the naughty Countess of Norton; Mr. Cecil Gray as Dorian, the fifth Earl of Norton, is intensely dramatic, and put in quite a lot of excellent work; Mr. Eric Norman as Tony Fowler did well; so, too, did Mr. Edward Avinal as Captain Vivian; Mr. Jno. Manners left nothing to be desired as the Hon. Jack Granby. The play is admirably staged, and the interpretation leaves nothing to be desired. In the front of the house is Mr. David C. James; his management and courtesy are alike excellent.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

The management of this popular North London hall are not finding it difficult to sustain local patronage, despite outdoor attractions, business continuing to be quite excellent. The bill for the current week contains several strong features, the principal of which is Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in a tabloid version of the ever-popular East Lynne. This has been specially condensed by Mr. Fred S. Jennings, and within the scope of seven scenes he very faithfully presents all the salient features of the complete version, with the striking exception that no purely comedy part is introduced. A very strong company has been engaged. Mr. W. T. Elworthy as Carlyle acted with dignity and restraint; Miss Dorothy Clifton as Barbara Hare has not a great deal to do, but is very acceptable in the part; Miss Beth Elliott as the very foolish and unhappy Lady Isobel gave a very intense performance, particularly in the closing scene, and made a great impression. Miss Madge Leverton gave quite an effective character-study as Cornelia; and little Miss Winnie Roushy was successful as Willie. Mr. George R. Montford as Levison gave a conspicuously good performance, and in addition is responsible for the entire and elaborate production, for which he deserves congratulations. The attention of the audience was easily held throughout the progress of the playlet, and the principal characters shared the honours of a call at the close. It should have a long and prosperous career on the halls.

The Keeley Brothers submit an athletic show entitled The Demonstrator, which serves to introduce some wonderfully clever ball punching, their ability gaining great applause for them. The Three Langfords, who open the programme, give a clever exhibition of dancing, which was well received. Gladys Mavius is very successful in a song; the excellent enunciation of this artist is a very notable feature of her singing. La Freya, in a series of artistic visions, in which a lantern is utilised, met with a good reception. Joe Hayman, who is for the moment working as a single turn owing to the regrettable indisposition of his partner, contributes a very amusing turn in the shape of a stump speech on "The Land in which we Live." This contains some amusing and shrewd observations; and he concludes with a clever song on "Life." He was very heartily greeted. Colley and Scott, comedy entertainers, give a bright and amusing show. Both the lady and gentleman are well equipped for this style of business, and cause a good deal of laughter. Steven Bartle, edeophone and English concertina soloist, presented an attractive turn. Mr. Bartle is an excellent executant, and his solos were greatly enjoyed and enthusiastically greeted by the house.

Lotto, Lillo, and Otto are introducing their well-known cycle act, and their skill on these machines is as marked as ever, the comedian of the troupe being a very clever trick rider, and there was no doubt as to the complete success of their show. A feature of the bill this week is an amateur carnival which is securing a considerable number of entries. The nine or ten aspirants who appeared on the evening of our visit were all of very ordinary ability, and the audience were very kind and forbearing. Eva Ellis, comedienne and dancer, is also in the bill. Mr. T. Gray's fine band are of great service during the evening, and he personally renders yeoman service at the piano during the progress of the amateur carnival. Mr. R. Adams, the popular manager here, is away holiday-making, and Mr. T. Bennett, the acting-manager, is discharging his duties in the front of the house with great courtesy.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

After a week of melodrama the management have reverted again to variety. Sid Bandon, the character comedian, has evoked plenty of laughter in his policeman's song; the ever-popular Yorkshire comedian, Jack Pleasants, is still "shy," his make-up and dress causing roars. "'Liza had hold of my hand" is extremely funny, and the second, "I'm shy, Mary Ellen, I'm shy," vies with the first for humour. The Kenna Bros., in their aviation dash to the North Pole, are very good indeed. Seated on an aeroplane flying through the clouds is a good scenic effect. Jokes are cracked at the expense of various aviators and explorers, especially Dr. Cook. On arrival at the apex of the earth they discover a pole, which they promptly fix to a trapeze attached to an iceberg, and various smart evolutions are gone through by the pair.

Hinton and Wootten, a really clever cycling couple, appear as footballers, and with a miniature ball and goals, a game to represent Woolwich Arsenal v. Chelsea is commenced. Back and front wheels are used to propel the ball, whilst the opponent stops the shot with his machine when the goal is in danger. They charge each other in truly regulation style.

Marie Wilton, a prime favourite here, sings "I want to be a sailor" and "When your mother isn't with you," which please the audience immensely, the choruses being taken up with gusto. Hanid Alexander is a most versatile entertainer at the piano. Her first essay, "Cosmopolitan Lovers," is well received, and equally so is "Martha, of Ludgate Hill." As a fitting wind-up she renders delightfully Liszt's "Rhapsodie Hungarisch," with orchestral accompaniment. Allis and Cassell, in a few funny minutes, manage to extract a large amount of applause.

Little Miss Queenie May captures the audience from her entrance, her songs, "Play that dear old song again" and "Remember the days gone by," appealing to all. The Bioscope is showing a new series of pictures, A Fisherman's Honour being greatly admired.

Mr. Fred Maxwell, the favourite leading actor, brings a West-End company to present the romantic episode The Corsican Brothers, in a special version arranged by himself in three scenes, and each artist must be complimented on his or her performance, Mr. Maxwell being particularly fine in the dual rôle.

THE annual amateur carnival was held at the Bedford last week, when there were 187 entries, brought down to 37 for the semi-final on the Friday night. The first prize fell to Miss Cromer, coon and dance artist; the other awards being secured by Will Priest, Mamie Stella, and Bertha May.

THE winners of the carnival held in Shoreditch last week were Messrs. Rastus and Renie, smart buck dancers. The first prize consisted of £2 and six weeks engagement at the various halls controlled by the Gibbons' circuit.

AFTER a very successful management of seven months of the Industrial Hall, Dewsbury, Mr. B. J. Christian, the popular manager, is leaving to take over the management of the Victoria Hall, Southsea, the largest hall on Messrs. A. and H. Andrews' circuit.

MR. FRED CARR (of Carr and Rose), in answer to all inquiring friends, is pleased to say that he is out of hospital, and progressing favourably.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Miss May Lillian Levey will specially produce Feldman's big comedy chorus song, "Oh, boys, I've seen you there," by John P. Harrington and John Neat, at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, on August Bank Holiday, and a week later will produce "Every girl loves a military man," by John P. Harrington and Fred Godfrey, also published by Feldman and Co., at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Both songs should prove great successes in Miss Levey's hands.

What promises to be one of the biggest hits of the present alfresco season, as well as forthcoming pantomimes, is a new characteristic number by John P. Harrington and John Neat, entitled "Cock-a-doodle-do, in the morning," which Messrs. Feldman and Co. have in the press. This song is likely to produce a veritable riot in the Isle of Man, Blackpool, and other popular seaside resorts shortly.

Ally Benson, the well-known "dame" comedian, has been making a very great success in alfresco at Colwyn Bay, with Feldman and Co.'s two big songs, "Georgie took me walking in the park" and "I'm longing for someone to love me." He is one of the principal members of Mr. Harry Reynolds celebrated "Serenaders" here, and both songs go enormously well at every performance.

Mr. Harry King, with Payne's White Coons, at Carnoustie, is doing enormously with Feldman's three great songs, "I must go home to-night," "I do like to be beside the seaside," and "I can't keep my eyes off the girls"; a similar fate having befallen Mr. Colin Carlisle at Blackpool recently with "Come by the drum in the big brass band" and "Do you miss me in the dear Homeland?"

Osland Denner, the well-known bass-baritone, who is at the Court Theatre, Brighton, this week, was the first to sing the new "song of loyalty," of which he is the composer, entitled "Hail, King George," and published by Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. He has already scored enormously in this number.

Miss Millie Hylton, who shortly commences a tour of the Moss and Stoll halls, will feature A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's latest chorus song, "She was a Dollar Princess." For this number Miss Hylton will wear a charming gown, an exact replica of the one worn by Miss Lily Elsie at Daly's Theatre. This number is one of the best the well-known writers have done recently. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

Whit Cunliffe, who is appearing this week at the Camberwell Palace as well as at the London Pavilion, continues to feature A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's strong comedy chorus song "Up she goes." This number is fast growing in popularity, and looks like being a hot favourite for pantomime. The Star Music Co. will issue the song forthwith.

A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott continue to receive fresh proofs daily of the sterling quality of their chorus ballad "I wonder if you care." One reason for the success of this charming number is the fact that it is what is known as "An easy song" for the average singer, and yet shows to advantage the voice of the more ambitious vocalist. The Star Music Co. publish this song in keys to suit all voices.

Admirers of Mr. Tom E. Finglas will be pleased to hear that the operation he recently underwent for nose and throat trouble has been entirely successful, and the well-known delineator of picturesque cowboy life and character will resume business at the London Coliseum on Bank Holiday.

BOW PALACE.

The general excellence of the programme here this week is drawing big houses, and the genial manager, Mr. Gordon Harman, was, on the night of our visit, beaming with evident satisfaction. After the capable orchestra, skilfully conducted by Mr. J. J. Starck, had rendered as an overture the two-step "Blue Feather," H. Moore came on and amused and entertained all with some clever paper tearing, many of the designs being quite original. Doris Druce is quite a tiny tot, and for her years certainly has no superior as a mimic. Her impersonations of Whit Cunliffe, George Formby, and Mark Sheridan were exceedingly good. In addition, the great contrast of styles of the artists showed the all-round ability of the little mimic. The Three Coopers worked hard and proved amusing; Flo Burnett was in very fine voice, her rendering of "No one knows" and "Your eyes have told me so" being greatly appreciated by the audience. Some clever impersonations were given by Ted Wilson, that of doubling Lew Lake and Bob Morris being quite the best.

A new and original sketch by H. G. Brandon was presented on Monday by Mr. F. Mullard. It is entitled

"RE-UNITED."

Fred Cunningham .....Mr. Lionel Gadsten
Captain Melville .....Mr. Oliver Rodgers
Will Cunningham .....Mr. Ellis Carlyle
The Rev. Mr. Goodson..Mr. Alexander Wills
Harding .....Mr. M. Steel
Amy Cunningham .....Miss M. Fredericks

The sketch, which is in three scenes, flavours somewhat of East Lynne. Captain Melville, wishing to force Amy Cunningham to leave her husband, tells her that her husband is false. The suggestion is enhanced by the arrival of a false telegram. He seizes this as an opportunity to propose to her, but she refuses to acquiesce to his suggestions until proof of her husband's infidelity is given to her. In the midst of all Fred Cunningham—who has been called away by means of a forged telegram—arrives, and after sending his wife from the room, has heated words with the Captain. The wife, thinking her husband unfaithful, disappears; and the husband, connecting her disappearance with guilt, considers her false. During the three months which elapse the Rev. Mr. Goodson calls upon the wife, tells her that her husband is broken-hearted, was never false, and generally paves the way to a reunion. This is accomplished during the wife's visit to the grave of her boy—who has died during her absence—for here she meets her husband. Explanations are given, but a reconciliation seems difficult until the clergyman appears, who, reminding them that "Whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder," is successful in his efforts for husband and wife to be reunited.

As Fred Cunningham Mr. Lionel Gadsten played with quiet, dignified force. Miss M. Fredericks was the sorrowing wife to perfection; whilst Mr. M. Steel as Harding, the old butler, made the most of his opportunities. The remaining parts were adequately filled.

Dan Conroy, with his merry patter and his "Sullivan" song, raised many laughs. A most artistic rendering of "Beautiful garden of roses" was given by Irene May. In addition to a finely-trained voice, Irene possesses a charming personality. She received marked approval from an appreciative house. Lew Lake and his merry company played their well-known sketch Old Chinas in China, which loses nothing with frequent repetition. May de Rowse, comedienne, and the Palace Perfection Pictures were also in the bill. The managerial duties are ably and courteously attended to by Mr. Gordon Harman, by whom visitors are assured of a hearty welcome.

MUSIC HALL SPORTS.

Fair weather favoured the sports in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund at the Stamford Bridge Grounds on Thursday, and if it was not exactly an ideal July day, the rain kindly kept off. The object for which this always-popular function is given—to replenish the exchequer of a most deserving institution, a benevolent fund for variety artists founded by variety artists—should have drawn a larger crowd than was present, but possibly the gloomy morning outlook accounted for many absentees. There were, however, a fair number of the public to be seen at different points of vantage round the sports arena, and the grand and other stands were well filled with a bright and merry throng of well-known professionals, the fair sex, in charming toilettes, predominating. Perhaps one missed the mirth-provoking interludes that were so enjoyable to the crowd in the delightful annuals held at the Herne Hill grounds, when the lamented Dan Leno, assisted by Fred Griffiths and other chartered jesters, was the moving spirit in the fun-making. There was, however, plenty of "comic relief" in some of the events, and the sports altogether proved most enjoyable.

The lengthy programme was smartly got through. Good form was shown by many of the competitors in the serious contests. George Clarke, jun., won both the 120 Yards Running Handicap for the Oswald Stoll Shield and the One Mile V.A.F. Challenge Cup Championship, thus repeating his last year's victory. The One Mile Frank Allen Challenge Cup Walking Handicap—a good contest—again went to Harold Jeapes, the scratch man. The race for the One Mile "Buchanan" Challenge Cup Bicycle Race resulted in a fine finish, Mr. Tom Davis being first. Bob Olrac gained premier honours in the 120 Yards Hurdle Handicap; and the Running High Jump for the "Vulcana" Challenge Cup was, after a very strenuous effort on the parts of Bert Earle and Frank Sauteron, secured by Mr. Charles Triton, the winner clearing 5ft. 3in. This was a most interesting event. There was a dead heat in the 100 Yards Managers' Race, W. L. Murray, in the run off, just managing to beat the scratch man, B. Womack. The comic contests included a very amusing Pie-making Competition for Ladies, the damsels having to run a short distance to a table on which were placed a pie-dish, rolling-pin, dough, flour, and the "fruit"—a bunch of turnips. The one who then in the shortest time manufactured a pie that most appealed to the artistic eye of the lady judges won. The pastry that "took the cake" was that of Miss Daisy Stroud.

A novel event was the Golf Competition, in which each competitor had to drive a ball with a kind of parachute attachment, approach over a bunker to a flag, and putt out with an ordinary golf ball. This was won by Albert Le Fre. The 360 Yards Steeple-chase in Basket Horses, Ladies' Driving Competition, with Gentlemen (blindfolded) as horses, the Comic Costume Scramble, and the 360 Yards "Henri Gros" Cup Obstacle Race were all events that made for merriment, the last particularly so, the competitors having to negotiate hurdles, get in and out of a kind of bin, take a ducking in a pool, and crawl under some sacking.

At the conclusion of the sports Mr. Albert Le Fre announced that he had that morning received a message that, owing to most regrettable indisposition, Miss Cecilia Loftus, who had promised to present the prizes, was unable to do so. Mrs. Harry Tate, the wife of the popular President of the V.A.B.F., had kindly consented to deputise, and assisted by Miss Marie Kendal, charmingly performed the task, Mr. Albert Le Fre, the indefatigable chairman of the Sports Committee, lending a helping hand, and creating much diversion by his humorous remarks. Especially was this the case when his son received a prize presented by his wife; when he announced himself as the winner of the Golf Competition prize; and also when another of his boys and a daughter came forward to take their awards. The onlookers insinuated that it was a kind of Le Fre benefit, but proud papa only smiled, retorted funnily, and called up the next winner.

The list of events, together with the results, is as follows:—

The Alexander Imperial Military Band, under the direction of George H. Anthony, A.M.U., was in attendance, their many well-played selections affording much enjoyment. Mention must also be made of the valuable work of the members of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild and others, who sold programmes and collected for the Fund.

MR. CHARLES MARTE, manager of the Hackney Empire, has received the following letter, dated the Palace Hotel, Shanghai, June 11 last:—"Dear Sir,—Mr. G. A. K*n, of Stoke Newington, wishes you to reserve him four orchestra stalls for the evening performance in the first house on June 28, 1910. Please do so. I don't suppose you often get seats booked in China, 12,000 miles away. Still, in these days we come home from here in 14½ days, and it will soon be twelve days exactly. I have been away from home nine months now, travelling on business through India, Burma, Ceylon, Siam, The Straits Settlements, China, and Japan, and shan't be sorry to see the inside of the Hackney Empire once more. Best wishes, and don't forget my seats—not too near the band.—Yours sincerely, G. A. K*n."

MADAME DELPHINE UGALDE, who was a celebrated operatic singer of the last generation, is dead. At the beginning of Napoleon III.'s reign she created a great sensation in Paris, where she made her début in 1848, at the Opéra Comique as Virginie in Le Caïd, at the age of 19. She was a pupil of her mother, Madame Beauge, who had married a musician named Ugalde. She had a remarkably supple soprano voice, and for fifteen years appeared in the leading rôles of all the new operas by Ambroise Thomas and others. She married M. Varcollier in 1866, and finally retired from the stage to devote herself to teaching.

"JOLLY JAPAN."

A Musical Playlet, in Three Scenes, by Arthur Stanley, Produced for the First Time at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Monday, July 18, 1910.

Ruben Rottenheimer ..... MR. TOM PAYNE
Montague Wells ..... MR. BUCKSTONE CLAIR
Mark Antony ..... MR. WILLIE PARKE
The Widow Han-Kee ..... MR. TOM SEYMOUR
Y'Lang Y'Lang ..... MISS IVY MOORE
Gon-Do-Lah ..... MR. J. S. DURANT

Jolly Japan, the latest of the long roll of short plays which have made their debut at the Kingston playhouse, is perhaps the best. Occupying about half an hour, it has not a dull moment in it, whilst the third scene furnishes a wealth of colour, pretty girls, magnificent costumes, and tuneful music that is reminiscent of some of the best of the musical productions. The audience were prodigal in their manifestations of approval.

The "plot" has to do with the efforts of Ruben Rottenheimer, an adventurer with a shady history, to transport from Japan to the Exhibition at Shepherd's Bush a genuine tea-house, with its geishas and all the beauties that make it the envy of other tea-house keepers in Oh-Wai-Sai. He is commissioned to do this by a company promoter named Montague Wells, and his boisterous journey across the seas is most realistically portrayed by a cinematograph film illustrating the passage of a steamer through the Bay of Biscay. Arrived in Oh-Wai-Sai, Rottenheimer finds the tea-house to surpass all expectations. It is embowered in flowering plants, and the geishas are the most dainty little Japs and the most mischievous one could wish. There are a dozen of them, with a chief geisha, Y'Lang Y'Lang, who is even more charming than the others. The keeper of the tea-house, however, the Widow Han-Kee, is a disappointment, but she consents to the sale of the house only on condition that she also shall go to Europe with the girls and the house, and have her passage paid to and fro in addition to the price to be paid. The chief geisha, however, does not fall in with the idea, because she is in love with Gon-Do-Lah, a picturesque Jap ferryman, who declares that he will try to circumvent the Englishman and the widow by searching for some treasure which an ancestor had flung into the bay. All the arrangements are complete and things are looking very unpleasant for the two lovers, when Gon-Do-Lah announces that his search has been successful, and, outbidding the stranger, he becomes the possessor of the tea-house and its feminine charms, including the lovely Y'Lang Y'Lang, and the Englishman finds to his chagrin that an open promise to marry the widow is legally binding in Japan and condemns him to her society for the rest of his life.

Most of the action takes place in the third scene, Oh-Wai-Sai, which is perhaps one of the prettiest stage pictures one could imagine, and reflects the greatest credit upon all having to do with the making of it. The costumes of the ladies are really magnificent and worthy of a play of much greater pretensions. The book is exceptionally clever, the incidental music, which is written by M. Kopski, the chef d'orchestre, particularly tuneful, whilst one or two of the duets and solos are very pleasing. The final tableau, when the flags of England and Japan are displayed in the ladies' dresses and in a cloth inscribed "Amité," is very striking.

Mr. Tom Payne, whose company is appearing in the production, is the life and soul of the play, and between his drolleries and those of the widow the audience are kept in a continual state of merriment. Both Mr. J. S. Durant as the ferryman and Miss Ivy Moore as Y'Lang Y'Lang are the possessors of remarkably fine voices, which are heard to greatest advantage in a love duet as they arrive at the tea-house in a boat. The scenery, which is by A. G. Betts, is very good, and the chorus has been most efficiently trained. The dresses and appointments are by Mme. Contini et Cie.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The pupils of Mr. Paul Berton gave a dramatic performance in the theatre of the Guildhall school on Friday evening, July 15. The programme commenced with a scene from King John. Miss Geneviève Bareham appeared as the rough but not entirely bad-hearted Hubert de Burgh, Miss Clementine de Vere as the attendant, and Miss Irene Jones successfully impersonated the unhappy Arthur. In The Tyranny of Tears, by Haddon Chambers, scenes from Act 2 and Act 4 were given. In the second act and the fourth Mr. Arthur Rose played Mr. Parbury, but the character of Mrs. Parbury was first undertaken by Miss Dorothy Walker and afterwards by Miss Helen M. Liddall, while in the part of Miss Woodward, secretary to Mr. Parbury, Miss Cicely Wilson-Taylor appeared in the second act and Miss Winifred Andrews in the fourth. Owing to Mr. Reginald Davis being unable to appear the part of Mr. Gunning was taken by Professor Paul Berton. Mr. Arthur Rose acted remarkably well as Mr. Parbury, who is so much worried by his tearful wife, and, of course, the experience of Professor Paul Berton was of great advantage to the performance and a stimulant to his clever pupils, the lively scenes between Mr. Gunning and the lady secretary being the most attractive feature in the comedy. One curious result of having two parts played by four performers was their different readings, for Miss Cicely Wilson-Taylor, who acted with marked ability, took quite a serious view of Miss Woodward, while the same part was played by Miss Winifred Andrews in a spirit of light comedy. The Mrs. Parbury of Miss Dorothy Walker was perhaps on the whole more convincing than that of Miss Helen M. Liddall, although both acted cleverly. Miss Margery Home was the servant Evans, and the two scenes from Haddon Chambers's comedy had evidently been well rehearsed. Mr. Paul Berton and his talented pupils were called on and heartily applauded. In a scene from Hamlet the four parts were played by ladies. Miss Cicely Wilson-Taylor displayed considerable talent as the Prince, and spoke her lines admirably. Miss Annie Nesbitt was also excellent as the Queen, and Miss Mildred Gibbon as the Ghost of Hamlet's Father, and Miss C. Marcus as Polonius both did well. The last dramatic item was a scene from As You Like It, in which the Rosalind of Miss Clementine de Vere deserved much praise both for clear delivery of the words and graceful, expressive action. Miss Dora Mahood's Celia also merited commendation, as did the Duke Frederick of Miss Mildred Gibbon. All the Shakespearean scenes were given in costume. During the evening Miss Lily White (a pupil of Mr. J. F. Barnett) gave on the piano solos of "Automne" (Chaminade), Henselt's "Si Oiseau J'Etais," Grieg's "Wedding Day," and two pieces of Mr. J. F. Barnett's, Nocturne in G flat and Fantasie on "The Ancient Mariner," which were well received.

WE have a very attractive programme of films at the Theatre Royal, Ryde, and Miss Lance Lovelle is paying a welcome return visit with new songs.

MR. FRED COLES has returned to England, and is now at liberty for acting and general management.

THE WATER RATS' MOTOR RUN.

How doth the happy Harry Tate
Delight to Motor Run,
And lead the Water Rats in state
To Brighton in the sun.

And if London was very much in the doldrums at the time appointed for the start of the third annual motor Run of the Grand Order of Water Rats to London-by-the-Sea—directed again this year by that capital comedian and excellent sportsman Harry Tate—and weeping skies greeted the numerous arrivals at the Vaudeville Club, rain could have no melancholy effect on the joyousness of the cheeriest of the professional brotherhoods, especially when the clouds began to brighten as the first car and its occupants were despatched on their journey.

Punctuality, we all know, is the soul of business, but it is not the essence of pleasure; and no one grumbled at the start to Brighton taking place about an hour after the appointed time. Kennington and Brixton were, of course, particularly interested in the run, and many "familiars" waved farewells as the cars scurried past well-known hostelries. Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, seen at the front gate of his charming residence at Streatham—Easdale—received many greetings. Bowling a'long through Mitcham and Sutton, and gazing at the delightful uplands of Surrey, the feeling of exhilaration that comes of rapid travelling was heightened by the rays of the belated sun. There was some considerable "reinforcement of the tubes" at Sutton; and a halt was made at the George, Crawley, a typical market town well known to all and sundry for its ancient elm; and to the curious in church architecture for a legend carved on one of the beams of the ancient oaken roof of the church, dedicated to St. John. A small party of pressmen were dedicated to Clement—at least, that was the make of their landaulette; and when they rehearsed a hasty and impromptu version of Harry Tate's Motoring Act "on the road" with a natural backing of nature, a real policeman holding a notebook, and a small boy, they certainly plumbed the humour of the situation, especially with the happiest and most polite of chauffeurs, with a drop of petrol in one eye, completely realising the "unctuousness" of the performance from his position underneath the car. Not even a whisper of break-down French! The language, indeed, was distinguished by its beautiful restraint. A stay at the Crawley Garage righted matters, and without further stoppages the press gang, invigorated by the breezes from the magnificent Sussex downs, reached the sea—glinting in the glorious sunlight—about four o'clock.

The banquet was held at the Royal Albion Hotel facing the sea, and a crowd of upwards of one hundred guests sat down, under the presidency of Prince Rat Harry Tate, who was supported by a past Lord Mayor of London, Sir William Purdie Treloar—the friend of the cripples—and by Sir William Dunn, M.P., who will at no distant date also fill the exalted position of Chief Magistrate of London. The dinner was excellently served. The following is the menu, with the remarks of some of the diners attached:—

Chaudfroid Volaille
(We can all play at this "game")

The toasts were "The King"—God save him; "The Ladies"—God bless them! "The Visitors"—God help them! "The Water Rats"—God forgive them! and "The Press"—God guide them!

Mr. Harry Tate, on rising to propose the loyal toast, was received with a warmth and enthusiasm that must have been music in his ears. He made his remarks commendably brief, and called upon Dave O'Toole—a gentle gossoon from Galway, begorra!—to propose "The Ladies." Amid the encouraging laughter of the "darlinte," Misther O'Toole, in honeyed accents, talked of their graciousness, their amiability, and beauty. We ought to be very grateful to the ladies. He had been to many jollifications, and he was always happy when the ladies were present.

Miss Alice Lloyd, who responded, thanked Mr. O'Toole for his kind words about the ladies, and expressed her gratefulness to the Rats for their hospitality on the occasion of their outing. She had been away in America for a long time, but hoped in the future to be among her friends in England more than during the past few years.

The chairman then called upon Mr. Ben Brown, but as that gentleman could not be found, took upon himself the toast of the visitors; Mr. Charles Warren, the King Rat, he said, was regrettably unable to be present owing to a business trip to the Continent. He wished to express his thanks to Sir William Treloar and Sir William Dunn for gracing the proceedings of the day with their presence. He also heartily thanked the motoring gentlemen who had kindly supplied the cars.

Sir William Dunn responded briefly for the visitors.

Sir William Treloar was in his best anecdotic vein when he proposed the toast of "The Water Rats." He said the fraternity was a body of ladies and gentlemen animated by the true spirit of friendship and charity. He rallied Sir William Dunn on being in a sense an actor-manager. He remembered well being at a dinner of one of the City Guilds and hearing the question of an ancient toastmaster—"Who's going to do the Lord Mayor?" He was going to do the Rats, and he felt honoured in being selected to propose the toast. If his knowledge of their profession was limited he knew well their true sportsmanship and benevolence. He could not say sufficiently how grateful he was to the distinguished order for the great kindness shown by its members in giving a special matinée at the Coliseum in aid of the work of founding the Cripples' Home.

Mr. W. H. Clemart, past King Rat, responded. He said Sir William Treloar was incorrect in assuming that they had lady rats. Whether the suffragettes would exercise an influence in correcting what ought or what ought not to be in that direction he could not say. At any rate, they were pleased to welcome the ladies on their annual trips, and they were delighted to find so many gracing the run. The Water Rats were not a very large body. They numbered about 153 members, but they were united, they were loyal, and they were devoted to the promotion of the best interests of the profession.

Before dismissing the crowd to the fresh air, Mr. Harry Tate gave the additional toast "Absent Rats," which was the signal for a hearty rendering of the fraternity's own anthem. Burt Shepard telegraphed, "Good luck to everybody. Please bring Bill Manning and Bill Samson home." Mr. Blyth Pratt wired, "Kindest regards to all. Hope you will have a good time."

A drive along the front and the taking of photographs outside the hotel occupied the visitors until seven o'clock, when Mr. Harry Tate saw them off, he remaining for the night. Mr. Paul Cinquevalli was among the spectators, as well as Mr. Phil Ray. On the return journey the tea at Crawley was followed by a concert, to which Mr. Dave O'Toole and Mr. Charles Austin contributed an operatic burlesque on "Il Bacio." At ten o'clock the party proceeded to the Vaudeville Club, where another concert was held.

THE RUN, AS SEEN THROUGH MOTOR GOGGLES.

"Precisely at 9.45 last Sunday morning," writes a motorist correspondent, "the speedy 14-16 1910 Darracq, kindly placed at my disposal by Messrs. Darracq, Ltd., pulled up at my house at Clapham to the accompaniment of torrential rain.

Friswell, who sent five Standards, two Daimlers, two Peugots, and one Renault. The five Charron cars also made a most pleasing array, and some very fine private cars were drawn up in the long line, reaching almost to New Oxford-street. The one Vauxhall, with electric bull's-eyes cleverly inserted in the dashboard, quite upheld this car's high reputation on the road; as did the

"Car No. 3—a powerful Daimler—Mr. Bob Leonard and family; No. 4 (Darracq), Mr. Jack Lotto and party, including Mr. Henry, who desires to be known as 'Little Willie,' were soon away. Mr. and Mrs. Dutch Daly, in their own Wolesley-Siddeley; No. 6, bearing Mr. and Mrs. Verne, accompanied by Mr. Baker from Liverpool, and Mr. Alexander from the U.S.A., quickly left the Club behind. Car No. 7 I did not notice. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pleasants and Messrs. Dan Lipton and C. Murphy occupied No. 8—a Talbot. No. 9—another splendid Daimler—carried gentlemen of the Press, officered by Mr. Eustace Grey; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sinclair, and Mrs. Sinclair, in a very fine Talbot, departing shortly afterwards.

"No. 11 (Metallurgique; Mr. Lucas and party), No. 12 (Daimler; Mr. James Stuart and party), No. 13 (Mr. and Mrs. Maple and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson), No. 14 (Daimler; Mr. George Brooks, Mr. W. H. Clemart and party); No. 15 (Deasy; Mr. Dusty Rhodes and Mr. Victor Kelly), No. 16 (a Standard, one of the many cars kindly lent by Messrs. Friswell), No. 17 (Standard; Mr. Seth Egbert and party), No. 18 (Mercédès; carrying Mr. Griffiths, of picture palace fame), Nos. 19, 20, and 21 (three more powerful Daimlers carrying Press representatives), and No. 22 (one of the five Charron cars lent) were also soon away.

"Mr. and Mrs. Lester Barrett and Mr. Gus Garrick in a Darracq (No. 23), Mr. Jack Collinson and party in a Charron (No. 24), and No. 25 (another speedy Darracq) were next to depart.

"No. 26 (Charron; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blake, Mr. 'Joe' Blake' and friend), No. 27 (the only Vauxhall sent; Messrs. Earle and Proti), No. 28 (another Charron; Mr. and Mrs. Alf Lotto, and Mr. and Mrs. Burgess), No. 29 (Standard; Mr. Richards and party), No. 30 (Renault; Mr. Percy Honri and party), No. 31 (Charron; Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds, and Mr. and Mrs. Bartram) followed in somewhat irregular order.

"No. 32 (Standard; Mr. 'Billy' Brown, Miss Winifred Ward, Miss Ida Bates, and Mr. Frank Seeley), No. 33 (De Dion Bouton; Misses Marie and Flo Kendall and Mr. Steve McCarthy), No. 34 (a Unic, carrying Mr. 'Bill' Manning), No. 35 (a Simms, Mr. Charles Austin's own car, in which the genial 'Parker, P.C.,' was accompanied by Mr. Richards and Mr. Clements) all got away from Charing Cross-road before 11.45.

"A James-Brown car from Hammersmith was graced by Miss Alice Lloyd, who claimed Miss Millie Norrahs, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Sime, and Mr. Freeman as members of her party.

"Anxious now to observe all what was to be seen on the journey down, we now left, overtaking Miss Lloyd's car on the Albert Embankment. Reaching the summit of Brixton-hill we were afforded a hearty welcome by that best of fellows the genial White-eyed Kaffir, who seemed quite merry and bright, although not out for the run.

"12.20.—We passed through Croydon, where the first of the few trifling mishaps occurred. Arriving at Crawley we found Mr. Fred Sinclair with a collecting box hard at work extracting coins from willing givers for the local charities. Outside the George Hotel were pulled up a great number of the cars that had got away early from Charing Cross-road. The interior of this well-known hostelry was crowded with enthusiastic and thirsty Rats.

"Quickly away, we were soon speeding towards Brighton, via Handcross, shortly to be overtaken by 'Collector' Sinclair, in his high-powered Talbot, which, like the sturdy little Darracq that bore us on our way, laughed all hills to scorn. Ten miles out from Crawley the rain came down in sheets, until we wondered whether we were on the road or in the sea, but thanks to our glorious changeable climate five miles farther down the road we were welcomed by brilliant sunshine. Nearing Brighton we noticed car No. 20 (Press representatives) held up by a puncture. This car, however, finished its outward journey on a flat tyre. Reaching the Royal Albion at Brighton we found the first arrivals—three Daimlers and the one Vauxhall—Nos. 2, 14, 3, and 27. In quick succession Nos. 12, 6, 10, 16, 17, 18, 5, 8, 23, 13, and 20 followed. After a short interval the remainder of the cars arrived in the following order—Nos. 36, 28, 33, 26, 22, 4, 32, 44, 11, 38, 15, 9, 30, 40, 34, 24, 37, 41, 43, 42, 31, 7, and 39 (Miss Alice Lloyd and party) being the last to arrive.

"Apart from one or two punctures, and one case of a dry petrol tank, and slight carburretor trouble experienced by Mr. Seth Egbert, the down journey had been distinguished by the fine reliable and thoroughly trustworthy running of all the cars engaged—a striking tribute to the advance of a great industry in which I am proud to see Great Britain has made most magnificent strides.

"At 6.30 the homeward journey was recommenced, and at seven o'clock we followed the long line of cars that had gone before. Brighton sunshine soon surrendered to dull grey skies that threatened rain, but, fortunately, they only threatened, and allowed us to have a dry journey back to town.

"A hoarse scream from a most effective 'road-clearer,' and we find the mighty Metallurgique is behind us demanding a clear road to rush a long incline on 'top.' This we are not inclined to allow until we have accomplished the same object, and the two cars triumphantly breast the hill together.

"Crawley is soon reached, and here we find many of the merry Rats drawn up for refreshments. A fine local band discourses music while collectors keenly take advantage of this welcome visit of 'the' profession, and reap a golden harvest for their labours.

"Mr. Dutch Daly's chauffeur is busy with a punctured tube, but he is soon away—possibly the first car to leave the George behind for the last run of the journey. Following a little later, we overtake the placid 'Dutch,' ruefully contemplating puncture No. 3, but he cheerfully declined all assistance, assuring us he would soon be away. Pulling up to light our lamps, we find Mr. Daly's car is close behind us, and right into Croydon we bore each other company, the two cars running as smoothly and silently as two well-behaved sewing machines. Shortly afterwards, Clapham-road is reached, and we bid farewell to the sturdy little 14-16 Darracq that has done its work so well.

"'Brighton and back on Top,' so runs one of the many Darracq advertisements, and certainly my run out as motor correspondent to The Era fully justified the '14-16's' claim. And we had really courted trouble through our carelessness, or, should we say, our faith? Not a tool on board; no Stepney wheel, or a single spare inner tube! But we arrive home well before time, after a pleasant, novel, 'free from real trouble' run." L. M.

"THE ORGAN-GRINDER."

Dramatic Sketch, by Alicia Ramsey and Rodolph de Cordova, Produced on Monday, July 18, at the Coliseum.

The Padrone .....MR. LAWSON BUTT
Sal .....MISS JOAN PEREIRA
Jim .....MR. LEOPOLD PROFEIT
Sir Horace Wyndham.....MR. CHARLES ALDRED
Nellie .....MISS BELLA TERRY
Arthur Thorne .....MR. WILLIAM B. HARBERD

This dramatic sketch, in three scenes, which has been seen in the provinces, cannot be said to reach the standard set by the well-known authors themselves in their productions at the London Hippodrome. The story is trite and the treatment of it conventional. The Padrone, seemingly, has been a kidnapper for years. To his criminal propensities Sir Horace Wyndham, Bart., residing in the neighbourhood of Park-lane, owes the loss of his only son—now known as Jim, the organ-grinder; and in the first scene, little Nellie, his only daughter, is hustled into the receptacle of a piano-organ, through the same villainous agency. Taken to a den in Saffron-hill, the kiddie's fair curls are cut off, and by means of make-up she is disguised as a little Italian. Jim befriends her and fights the padrone, who wounds him with a knife. Sir Horace at the opportune moment arrives, and rejoices in the restoration of his two lost children. Mr. Lawson Butt plays with no lack of sinister intent and well-simulated brutality as the Padrone; Miss Joan Pereira is picturesque and dramatic as Sal, who gives the Padrone away; Jim, as played by Mr. Leopold Profeit, sings pleasantly, to the accompaniment of the "handle organ"; and Mr. Charles Aldred does all that is necessary for the part of Sir Horace Wyndham. Miss Bella Terry is a delightful kiddie; and Mr. William B. Harberd as a conventional policeman is very good indeed. The sketch is finely mounted, a real horse and victoria being used for the departure and arrival of the baronet.

THE holiday attraction at the Alhambra will be On the Sands, a seasonable divertissement, garnished with topical humour, and arranged by Miss Elise Clerc. Miss Rita Leggiero will play one of the chief parts.

MR. CURLINE BALDRY, known in association with the Hippodrome, Birmingham, has been engaged by Mr. G. Howard Watson as acting-manager for the Palace, Reading. He will commence his duties on August Bank Holiday.

AT the Co-operative Hall, Widnes, Mr. Carl Lynn, animal mimic, supplies a capital turn; Messrs. Morris and Davies are refined humorists; Miss Fanny Humber presents a pretty musical act; while Mr. Jack O'Neil provides a clever Scottish dancing turn. The pictures are entertaining.

WITH a good show of pictures and three excellent variety turns, including the Two Zets, harmonising vocalists and wooden shoe experts; the Tymes, in a novel song-scena, The Enchanted Clock, and the Four Janowskys, in their marvellous acrobatic and ladder act, the Victoria Theatre, West Stanley, is doing good business.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD

Fairs Ahead.

The fairs ahead for next week are:—Bramley Feast, on the Great Central and Midland; Epsom, on the London and South Western and London, Brighton, and South Coast; Hockwold, on the Great Eastern; Reading, on the Great Western, South Western, South Eastern, and Metropolitan; Tamworth, on the London and North Western and Midland; Cley-next-the-Sea, on the Midland and Great Northern; Melksham, on the Great Western; Alresford, on the London and South Western; Bollington, on the Great Central; King's Nympton, on the London and South Western; Ginsy, on the Midland; Padiham, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Unsworth, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Alfreton, on the Midland; Compstall, on the Midland; Heyford, on the London and North Western; Mellor, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Mossley, on the London and North Western; Redditch, on the Midland; Sherland, on the Midland; Stretton, on the Midland; Kinross, on the Highland; Kilmarnock, on the Glasgow and South Western and Glasgow, Barrhead, and Kilmarnock Joint; Leith, on the Caledonian and North British; Tweedmouth Feast, on the North Eastern; and Tenby, on the Great Western Railways.

The Alf. Ball Fire Fund.

From all parts of showland expressions of sympathy and offers of immediate help have poured in upon Mr. Alf. Ball and family. It is a striking example of the brotherliness of showpeople, and it also proves the great truth—that if a man gives himself during his life for the good of others he need never fear the day of adversity. Good work always tells. Alf. Ball has devoted himself to the good of his brother showmen, and has been a hard worker in every struggle for right and justice for others as well as himself. That is why he is an acknowledged leader and a tried and trusted friend to his fellow-showmen. His work is the kind that never fails to make friends.

How the Showmen Come to the Rescue.

Mr. P. Collins not only took the lead, as president of the Guild, in organising the fund, but he offered at once to lend Mr. Ball one of his splendid cinematograph shows. Mr. Charles Thurston made a similar offer, and Mr. Fred Gray was the third showman to offer Mr. Ball a complete show. Professor Lloyd, a Welsh showman, now settled at Barry, offered to lend a complete cinematograph apparatus with hundreds of films. This readiness to help him has deeply touched Mr. Ball. The immediate thing to be done was to build a new booth and to get open as soon as possible. With the loan of a spare tilt from Mr. Charles Thurston and an organ from Messrs. Chiappa and Sons (also kindly lent free of charge) Mr. Ball and his working staff set to work, and in less than a week the framework of the new booth was up and tilted in.

Touching Expressions of Sympathy.

The most touching event of all was the offer of Mr. Banford, comedian and dancer of the show. Mr. Banford, on the morning of the fire, brought the whole of his hard-won savings—over £40—and offered it to Mr. and Mrs. Ball. This, of course, was refused, but the spirit of the offer deeply affected the distressed family. Mr. Banford was not to be refused altogether, for he headed the Tilbury local subscription with £10. The whole of the working staff volunteered to forego their wages until better times came again. Here again Mr. Ball refused to accept the sacrifice, whilst deeply sensible of its spirit and fellowship. "Let us," he said, "get to work and build the show and open; the wages will follow."

The local subscription is now over £20. The neighbouring town of Grays, where Mr. Ball is well known and highly respected, have at a benefit concert raised over £9.

Bostock Circus on Tour.

Mr. E. H. Bostock's International Railroad Circus visited Paisley at the end of last week for two days, and gave four performances to large and appreciative houses. There were no less than twenty items on the programme, comprising Mlle. Leoville, in a clever wire-walking act; Mlle. Helga Yensen, who introduced an excellently trained pony and dog; Harez and Jabez, in an amusing musical act; Miss Pinder, in a trick act on horseback; the Lorettes, in a double trapeze act; Billy and Harry, who were amusing in a boxing act, and introduced their boxing pony; Mlle. Chloe Convere and her celebrated cake-walking horse; Mlle. Florence, in a clever globe-walking exhibition; Mons. Ernesto and Charleroi, in an Olympian act on horseback; Mons. Holloway, on the perpendicular ladder; the Valdo Boys, in a comic acrobatic act; Mlle. Ida Evilo, in a daring balancing trapeze act; the Prairie Girls, in a clever riding exhibition; the Tokio Troupe, in a wonderful and daring performance; the Erneste Family, in an equestrian novelty; the Toreadors, in an eccentric bull fight; and Mons. Abex, the schoolboy Hercules. Eccentricities during the programme were contributed by Nimble Nip, Wee Willie, Little Tony, and Little Syd amused by his clowning. At the head of affairs was Mr. Frank Bostock, who managed the large show with commendable ability.

Mansfield Pleasure Fair.

This took place under excellent conditions, both as to weather and local prosperity. The principal shows were Proctor's picture palace and Holland's cinematograph theatre. The mechanical novelties were Hall and Proctor's motor-cars, Hall's roundabout, and Cox and Son's galloping horses. The juvenile horses and motors were supplied by A. Hall, houp-las and throwing games by Messrs. Holmes, Waller, Hazard, Hancock, Holland, and A. Hall; pannum and toy-stalls by Messrs. Westrop, Clarke, James, and many other caterers.

The somewhat limited area of the Corporation Fairground was well set out by the able and ever-obliging toll collector, Mr. H. Abell, who takes quite a personal interest in the well-being of the showpeople under his control at the Mansfield Fair and Statutes.

The Guild Chaplain in Yorkshire.

To-morrow (Sunday, July 24) the Rev. T. Horne will be at Dewsbury for the Feast. A meeting will be held in Aspland's show at 3.30, for the consideration of Guild business and the enrolment of members. The Guild service will be in the same show at 8.15 the same evening.

The Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union.

An important meeting of the Union is fixed for Tuesday next, July 26, at Dewsbury. For time and place of meeting see advertisement.

Public Sympathy with Alf. Ball.

A most gratifying expression of public sympathy with Mr. Alf. Ball and family took place at Tilbury Docks on Sunday evening, July 17. The Vicar of Tilbury Docks invited the Rev. T. Horne, the Guild chaplain, to preach in his church in support of the local movement to help the Ball family. Mr. Horne preached to a crowded church, and in his sermon referred to the ready way in which the Church stretched out the hand of fellowship to the travelling showman. He briefly outlined the spiritual and educational work of the Guild, and expressed the sincere gratitude of the Guild for all the kindness shown to its unfortunate member, Mr. Alf. Ball, in the hour of calamity and distress. The Vicar of Tilbury Dock has identified himself earnestly in the local effort to aid Mr. Ball.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD IN SCOTLAND.

Despite the glorious weather, tempting many down the Clyde, there was quite a good attendance at the annual Guild meeting at Greenock Fair on Sunday afternoon, July 10.

For several years past Greenock Fair has been the first big rallying-point for Guild purposes in Scotland. The first of these gatherings was organised at the express wish of John Wilmot, the veteran Scottish showman, one of the oldest vice-presidents of the Showmen's Guild, and a keen and generous supporter of its work and enterprise. It is largely owing to the personal influence of Mr. Wilmot and his family that the Greenock meeting has been year after year successfully carried through.

Amongst the prominent showpeople present at the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilmot, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilmot, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilmot, jun., Mr. Hugh Wilmot, Mr. Charles Wilmot, Mr. George Wilmot, Miss Ellen Wilmot, Miss Lizzie Wilmot, Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. Joe Caddick, Mr. H. Dawson, Mr. J. McIndoe, Mr. Wm. McIndoe, Mr. John Wright, Mr. J. Caddick, jun., Mr. R. J. Styles, Mr. Arthur Sedgwick, Mr. W. Slater, Mr. T. Miles, Mr. T. Cadona, Mr. R. Russell, Mr. C. Johnson, Mr. W. Smith, Mr. D. Moore, Mr. C. Thomas, Mr. W. H. Strand, Mrs. M. Smith, Mrs. T. Wright, and a large contingent of employees and others interested in the fairground business.

Mr. Wilmot, as the senior vice-president for Scotland, presided, but at his request Mr. James Wilmot spoke on behalf of his father, who, owing to his serious infirmity of deafness, begged to be excused from taking an active part in a meeting at which he was unfortunately unable to hear the speeches.

The Organising Chaplain's Address.

As the chief object of the gathering was to hear the deputation from the Executive Council of the Guild, the Rev. T. Horne, Guild Chaplain, having been specially deputed for this work, began his fourth annual address to the Scottish showpeople. He paid a warm tribute of admiration to the unflagging zeal and interest that Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot (and, indeed, the "clan Wilmot") had shown for the necessary and important work of trade defence. He felt sure that the good work of the Guild from its very commencement had no better supporter and worker than John Wilmot.

It was indeed, he further observed, a matter of lament to them all that their "grand old man" of the Scottish show-world was now unable, by growing infirmities, to take the same active part in the conduct of their meetings as upon former occasions. They all rejoiced at his presence amongst them.

In James Wilmot (the acting chairman) they recognised that the burden of the future would be passed upon capable shoulders. To him (the speaker) it was a great encouragement in his work to come to Scotland and to find such unity of heart and purpose in supporting the Defence Work of the Guild, as was evidenced by the keen interest taken by the Wilmot family and other supporters of the movement.

He had, first of all, to congratulate the members present upon the coming of age of their Society. He himself, and many others before him at that gathering, had been concerned in the birth of the Guild. They had been its nursing fathers and mothers; they had watched its infant efforts; they had guided its childhood steps; they had counselled its youthful decisions; and now, in its full manhood, they had every reason to rejoice in its strength and vigour for its work and enterprise.

Quite recently he had made a review of only one department of the Guild's usefulness—the Parliamentary Defence work. Since they began that important branch of work (now twelve years ago) no less than sixty corporations and public bodies had been prevented obtaining extraordinary powers to penalise and injure the show business.

The greater number of these attempts had been prevented by the Guild executive officials pointing out to the local authorities concerned the injustice of the proposals in question. They had been able to show the Corporations that if the obnoxious proposals were not withdrawn the organised showmen were fully able and strongly determined to oppose their Bills in Parliament.

In every case where they had been met by refusal their opposition in Parliament had been signally successful. As regards this part of his argument, he ventured to ask them what would have been the condition of the show business in Great Britain to-day if sixty great centres had been closed to them by special Act of Parliament? Terrible as the possibility of that state of things might appear to them, there could be no doubt that in reality it would have been much worse.

Who can reasonably doubt that if the Showmen's Guild had not been in existence to actively oppose and defeat these sixty specific attacks upon the show business that a hundred or more other Corporations would have followed the lead of the sixty in the same crusade of attack and suppression?

The Betterment of the Show Business.

However great and necessary defence work had been, it was but a part of their enterprise. The Society stood for advance as well as defence. It was his duty to point out at gatherings of showpeople the important truth that anything that is worth saving is also worth improving.

The Guild stood for the betterment and uplifting of the show business as well as the preservation of the people's fairs and holidays. It was his work to keep this ideal before the people of showland, and, in a larger sense, before the whole world.

Referring to his own evidence on their behalf given before the Select Committee of the House of Lords (to whom the Movable Dwellings Bill had been sent), he expressed his strong conviction that whatever might be the ultimate fate of that Bill the showman van-dweller would receive justice, and that in the years to come no further attempt would be made to interfere with their domestic life or to asperse their character.

The showman and his work in life had been fully vindicated, and now after twenty-one years of strenuous work he was confident that show-life would receive the fullest recognition, and that instead of being a despised class, they would be acknowledged as fulfilling a useful part in the progress of the nation and justifying their claim to be citizens of the industrial commonwealth and law-abiding subjects of the Empire.

Trade Defence Work, 1910.

Coming to the last report of the Society's work, he pointed out that the Guild Council had been sanguine enough to anticipate that they might have reached the end of their extremely expensive work of Parliamentary defence. This optimistic forecast was, however, not justified, for the present year opened with two Corporations endeavouring by Private Bill legislation to harass and injure their trade and avocation in life. The Corporation of Middleton, in Lancashire, wanted a Cinematograph Act of their own, and the District Council of Handsworth, near Birmingham, wanted a Movable Dwellings Bill for their own district.

He had often been amazed at the temerity of public bodies in seeking in Private Bill legislation things that had been repeatedly refused by Parliament in more public measures. There seemed to be no way of real security but to watch every Bill, private or public, and to take care that all proposals to injure the show business or to restrict their liberty of life be met with instant and vigorous opposition.

He was glad to report that their opposition to both these Bills had been rewarded by complete success. Middleton withdrew their proposals with commendable promptitude, and Handsworth, after the Guild had manifested its determination to oppose the Bill at every stage, consented to withdraw their proposals in toto.

The Guild Committee has been engaged in the present year in dealing with many important matters of the deepest concern to the Showman World—matters too recent to require lengthened comment on his part. Ever since he had been able to visit Scotland he was proud of the response that his appeal had met with. Taking Greenock Fair and the annual benefit performance for the Guild funds at Ayr Fair as the combined effort of the Scottish showmen, Scotland stood in the honoured position of being the most generous supporter of the trade defence work of Showland, outside of the annual gatherings in London.

He knew that he was speaking to many who had already paid their annual subscriptions. He would remind them that the need for more funds was a real and pressing one. He ventured under these urgent circumstances to appeal for additional subscriptions as well as renewal of annual membership subscriptions.

Here was a work in which all were concerned, a work whereby all were benefited, and he was certain that as their work grew in importance and effectiveness it would meet with wider recognition, appreciation, and support.

Speeches in Support of the Guild.

Mr. James Wilmot, speaking for his father and also for himself, expressed the warm satisfaction with which they welcomed the annual visit of their Chaplain. It was a delight to him and the easiest of all possible duties to attend meetings and to listen to the able advocacy of their friend and defender, the Rev. Thomas Horne.

He hoped that for many years yet to come they might have the advantage and pleasure of meeting Mr. Horne at Greenock Fair. With regard to his father, he was, he trusted, always ready in every possible way to ease the burden from his shoulders. He knew how inadequately he could hope to fulfil with the same earnestness of purpose the position that long years of toil and service for the common good had become almost by right the position of his dear father.

If there was anything in the old proverb "Like father, like son" he would do his best to justify it. The work of the Guild had always won his most hearty approval, and as far as his influence went, he would endeavour to strengthen its great and beneficial work. He called upon Mr. Henderson to address the meeting.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, V.P., heartily endorsed all that had been said with regard to the splendid work of the Guild. It was an honour that he most highly esteemed to be associated with the trade Protective work under the guidance and leadership of such men as their revered Chaplain and their old and staunch friend John Wilmot. It was to men of that calibre and ability that Showland owed so much of its present freedom from persecution. More than that, he valued the educational and religious work of the Guild that demonstrated the showman's unity with all other classes of the people. He was ready at all times to bear his share of the burden, and to do his share of the work. The way in which the Christian churches recognised the valuable and inspiring ministry of their organising Chaplain was to him a matter of the greatest satisfaction. They had every reason to thank God for past successes, and to continue the good work with even increasing fervour and energy.

Mr. J. R. Styles, in a brief and eloquent address, asked his hearers to imagine the state of prejudiced misapprehension showland had been rescued from by the public work of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain. He doubted if any other body of organised workers in the United Kingdom could show so brilliant a record of success. The more he considered the work of their Guild during its twenty-one years of active life, the more amazed he became, the stronger grew his faith in its ultimate triumph, the more determined his zeal to help forward the grand work of the veterans who had brought their enterprise to its present position. It was now for the younger generation to take more of the labour upon their shoulders and to see that the good work of men like their Chaplain and Mr. Wilmot (not to mention many others) were doing was continued with unabated vigour.

The Guild and Gipsy Vandwellers.

Mr. C. Johnson, at the Chairman's request, also addressed the meeting in warm support of the Guild. At the conclusion of his remarks he asked Mr. Horne a question with regard to gipsies seeking admission into the society as vandwellers. With the question he expressed the opinion that as gipsies were bound to derive great benefit from the protection of the Guild in defending all vandwellers, they ought to be asked to support the funds of the Defence Movement.

The Chaplain dealt fully with the subject of the Guild's public action with regard to gipsy life. He explained that the society was concerned only in vindicating show life, and that an important part of their work was to clear away in the public mind the misapprehension, very prevalent until recent years, that gipsy and showman were synonymous terms. As an organised body of showmen, they had had to limit their energies to their own people. His answer was that they did not admit gipsies as gipsies, nor did he think it was wise so to do. For example, whilst he knew all about show life, he knew nothing about gipsy life. How could he speak for a people of whose mode of life he was ignorant? His own line of action had been quite consistent in this matter. If a man had a show and followed the fairs, he would advise the committee to enrol that man, whatever his nationality or tribe. The question he asked was: Is the applicant for membership a showman, or an amusement caterer, getting his living on the fairground? Prove that and he would advise his admission without any regard to colour or nationality. He reminded the meeting that, although a man's money might be accepted by a committeeman empowered to enrol members, that name had to be endorsed by the General Committee, so that anyone getting his name before the committee was liable to be rejected and to have his subscription returned. Hence these were necessary securities against the admission of undesirable applicants for membership.

Mr. Joe Caddick on the Gipsy Problem.

The interesting question and Mr. Horne's reply provoked a speech—a welcome rarity at Guild meetings—from one of the founders of the Guild, the veteran leader Mr. Joe Caddick.

Mr. Caddick recalled the important fact that the very beginning of their defence work was against a book written by the late George Smith—the author of the first Movable Dwellings Bill—entitled "Why I Went a Gipsying?"

He and those associated with him found the most tremendous difficulty in refuting the calumnies cast upon show life by the persistent way in which George Smith and those allied with him insisted upon classing show life with gipsy life. It had been of the greatest importance for showmen to maintain that they were not gipsies, and to keep their vindication of life and character entirely separate and apart from any connection with gipsy life.

He was still strongly of opinion that it would not do for them to weaken their defence movement by admitting gipsy van-dwellers to their ranks. Whilst he agreed with the justice of the definition of principle enunciated by their Chaplain—that no bar of race or colour should be set up by the Guild, provided that the would-be member was a genuine showman—he emphatically repudiated the wisdom of admitting anyone into their ranks whose mode of livelihood was not entirely concerned with the business of the Fair. His opinion was the same as ever—that it would not do to burden their already arduous defence work by linking it with defence of gipsy life. Undoubtedly it was true that the work of their society had been a bulwark of defence to all van-dwellers. It was no reflection upon gipsies that their society restricted its work to what it was originated to defend and to justify, show life, not gipsy life.

Enrolment of Members and Subscribers.

Subscriptions were then announced by the chairman:—Mr. Wilmot (second subscription), £2 2s.; Mr. A. Henderson (second subscription), £1 1s.; Mr. James Wilmot, £1 1s.; Mr. W. Wilmot, £1 1s.; Mr. J. McIndoe, 10s.; Mr. G. Wilmot, 7s. 6d.; Mr. C. Wilmot, 7s. 6d.; Mr. H. Dawson, 5s.; Mr. Arthur Sedgwick, 5s.; Mr. R. Russell, 5s.; Mr. C. Thomas, 5s.; Mr. T. Miles, 5s.; Mr. W. Smith, 5s.; Mr. D. Moore, 5s.; Mr. W. Slater, 5s.; Mrs. M. Smith, 5s.; Anon (second subscription), 5s.; Mr. H. Wilmot, 5s.; Mr. D. Kennedy, 5s.; Mr. T. Boswell, 5s.; Mr. W. H. Strand, 5s.; Mr. J. Wright, 5s.; Mr. T. Cadona, 5s.; Mr. W. McIndoe, 5s.; Mrs. T. Wright, 5s.; Mr. A. Carrick, 5s.; Mr. C. Johnson, 5s.; small subscriptions under 5s., £1 15s.

Temperance Work at the Fairs.

The Guild meeting in the afternoon was held in the British Women's Temperance Association tent, by kind permission of the local committee of the society. The ladies of the local committee of the B.W.T.A., with their usual kindness, provided a tea for the young people of the Fairground. This took place immediately after the Guild meeting, and was followed by a highly-successful temperance meeting.

At this meeting the Rev. T. Horne was an invited speaker, and several of the local clergy took part in the proceedings. A pleasing feature was the way in which the showpeople co-operated with the ladies' committee in making the gathering a success. Messrs. W. Wilmot and J. R. Styles made excellent speeches, and Miss Strand sang a temperance solo with great acceptance. The tent was crowded to its utmost capacity by the showpeople and their Greenock friends.

News from Scotland.

Following Greenock Fair, we have news of the capital fair held at Johnstone. The weather was perfect, and large crowds thronged the ground, and the amusements were well patronised. President Kemp's colossal show, the Cinema Theatre de Luxe, McIndoe's Scottish coliseum of animated photography, and Biddall's living picture and phantoscope were the chief show attractions. The machines included Wilmot's superb motors and Baker and Son's steam yachts, the fun of the fair consisting of all kinds of variety frames, throwing games, &c., which made up a high-class fair.

Horsham Fair.

Here to make merriment for Horsham ancient fair were Biddall's royal electric bioscope, and sideshows by the Biddall family, W. Bedford, and others. The roundabouts, shooters, and games in splendid variety by Messrs. S. Mayne, E. Hussey, A. Bond, Wm. Hastings, J. Freeman, C. Andrews, J. Matthews, T. Smith, A. Taylor, A. Bond, J. Castle, and others.

Burnley Summer Fair.

This fair marks the commencement of the Lancashire holiday season. Thousands of people take full advantage of the closing of the cotton mills to get away to the seaside for the annual holidays. Many thousands yet remain at home, and these numbers are increased by the crowds of visitors from the adjoining towns; so that Burnley Fair never fails from lack of attendant crowds to enjoy its well-arranged and up-to-date amusements.

The exhibition list included Capt. Tom Payne's electric bioscope, Charles Relph's Tiny Town and freak novelty show, E. Ball's midget exhibition, Lyon's Teddy Bears, and Prof. Julius's school of boxers and wrestlers.

The excellent array of machine novelties included sets by P. Collins, Relph and Pedley, Wm. Mitchell, Holdsworth, W. H. East, and Mrs. Holden, who exhibited motors, ostriches, jumping horses, flying pigs, and razzle-dazzle; juvenile horses and motors by Messrs. Shuttleworth and Burrows, steam yachts and swings by Messrs. Shaw and Mitchell, and overboats by Mrs. Cornwell; shooting ranges by Messrs. N. Burrows, Humphreys, J. Cornwell, Jewell, Hughes, and Martin; houp-las, throwing games, and variety stalls by Messrs. Forshaw, East, Taylor, Shorrocks, W. Jennings, R. Ingham, H. Langstaff, Jewell, Bliss, and Holden.

White City, Old Trafford, Manchester.

Delightful weather, with charming music by the Band of H.M. 16th Hussars (Prince of Wales' Own), has drawn large numbers of people to this beautiful amusement park, where the scenic railway and the numerous other riding devices, &c., have been well patronised. Roller skating and dancing in the large pavilions are also well attended.

Hoyland Common Wakes.

Quite a big array of shows, machines, &c., attended this popular fair—Tuby and Son's coliseum, Farrar and Tyler's picture palace, J. Crighton's cinematograph theatre, Westray's miniature animal jungle, Watson's athletes, and Gal Hague's boxers. Varieties by Silverwood, Norman and others. The big machines included Farrar and Tyler's scenic railway, Tuby's motor-cars, and Harniess's galloping horses.

The other amusements, throwing games, stalls, and shooters were provided by Messrs. Doubtful, Pullen, Bentley, Appleton, Calver, Tuby, jun., and Perceval.

Tyler's Green Fair, High Wycombe.

Mr. T. Hurst has forwarded to us for publication the following important official communication. We do not know the local circumstances, but probably some of our London readers who frequent the fair do. If any question of ancient rights is involved, will the tenants communicate direct to the Guild Secretary, The Era offices, and the matter will receive attention?

"CHIPPING WYCOMBE (RURAL) PARISH COUNCIL.

"12, Oxford-street,

"High Wycombe, July 14, 1910.

"Mr. T. Hurst, Secretary Showmen's Association, Pendlebury.

"Dear Sir,—Understanding you act as secretary to the Showmen's Association, my Council direct me to inform you, that having taken over from the Lord of the Manor all the greens and commons in the parish, together with all rights relating thereto, and bye-laws for the management thereof having been sanctioned by the Local Government Board, there will be tolls levied on each vehicle, show, or stall drawn upon Tyler's Green for the fairs; the next is in a few months time. These tolls will be the same in amount as are charged by the Parish Council for Wooburn Green Fair. I intimated this to the showmen attending Tyler's Green Fair last year, and they then collected enough money to meet the expenses the Council incurred in clearing away the rubbish incidental to a fair. Can you bring this to the notice of the showmen in your Association? As soon as I get the papers printed for this year I will forward one for your information.—Yours faithfully,

"Albert E. Taplin."

ALF. BALL SUBSCRIPTION FUND.

We are confident that Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Ball's many friends in Showland will sympathise with them in this hour of calamitous loss. The destruction of the costly and beautiful Electric Lyceum by fire at Tilbury Docks last week will be a shock to many people, and its consequences terrible to Mr. and Mrs. Ball and family. It is no exaggeration to say that the hard work and well-won savings of a lifetime were spent upon the show, and now comes calamity and loss, not by any neglect on their part, but in the mysterious providence of events, struck by lightning and fired. On the Metropolitan circuit of fairs, where Ball's show is a household word, and where Alf. Ball ranks as a leader and champion of Showland, the consternation and grief will be widespread, and the sympathy most personal and real. We trust that response for contributions to the Ball Show Fire Fund will be both immediate and adequate. We strongly commend this matter to the ever generous heart of Showland.

The president of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain writes as follows:—

"To the Editor, The Era, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"Dear Sir,

"I shall feel obliged by you inserting the enclosed appeal and opening up a subscription list in The Era for the Alf. Ball Fund.

"On Monday, July 4, Mr. Alf. Ball's cinematograph show, whilst located at Tilbury Dock, was struck by lightning, and was completely burnt to the ground. Not being covered by insurance, it has resulted in a most deplorable loss—the life's work of Alf. Ball.

"I have known Alf. Ball for many years—indeed, he is well known to the travellers of the United Kingdom—and have always found him a very hard-working and industrious person, ever ready to lend a helping hand to those in need; and now to lose in a few hours what has taken his lifetime to get together is exceedingly sad.

"As president of the Showmen's Guild, I am opening up a subscription list in The Era, and feel sure that my fellow travellers will readily respond by contributing what they can so as to make this subscription list a very substantial one, worthy of the fraternity, and one that will show our practical sympathy in our friend Ball's great and heavy loss.

"I am yours as ever,

"Patrick Collins,

"President of the Showmen's Guild."

Mr. Frank Bostock writes:—

"Enclosed please find cheque value £5 5s. for the Alf. Ball Subscription Fund. I am indeed sorry to hear of his misfortune."

In a letter, under date July 9, enclosing a cheque for £5, Mr. Frank Turner, of the Agricultural Hall and Liverpool-road, Islington, writes:—

"Herewith my small contribution to list for Alf. Ball. I am sure every showman will sympathise with a man who was always ready to help others, and I trust you will get a good list.—Yours faithfully,

Frank Turner."

Writing to Mr. Ball, Messrs. Chiappa and Sons, the show organ builders, of London, say:—

"Dear Sir,—We regret very much to hear of your sad loss, and beg your acceptance of the enclosed cheque for £10, being our small subscription to the fund now being raised, and sincerely trust that the other travellers will all do their best to assist you, and that the fund will raise a good substantial amount. Assuring you of our sympathy and desire to assist you at all times.—Yours faithfully,

"Chiappa and Sons.

FILM GOSSIP.

At the meeting of the Islington Borough Council the following motion, of which Councillor Whittard had given notice, was agreed to without comment:—"That a copy of the resolution passed by the Council on the 1st inst. with reference to the London County Council obtaining powers to prevent cinematograph, bioscope, and funland shows, etc., being open on Sundays be forwarded to the other Metropolitan Borough Councils, and that they be asked to take similar action."

Poet and Picture Playlets.

THE Milan Tribunal has condemned the poet D'Annunzio to pay 1,200 francs compensation to the Italian Cinematograph Company for having failed to keep a contract to write nine playlets for the cinematograph. It was stated by the prosecution that the poet had not only failed to write the pieces, but had also received the payment for them in advance. The poet now states that he fully intended to write the pieces, but that he had accepted so many orders for literary work from Paris for the French theatres and from the editors of French publications that he had not the time even to think about cinematograph plays.

Anti-Pugilistic P.S.A.

THE London Federation of P.S.A. Brotherhoods and Kindred Societies expressed last Saturday their "intense disgust at and emphatic protest against the demoralising exhibition of cinematograph representations of the brutalising and degrading prize-fight in America."

American Picturedromes.

THREE new picture theatres will shortly open in London, under the title of the American Picturedromes—in Charing Cross-road, Ludgate Circus, and Cheapside—under the management of Mr. Alfred Alexander. Mr. Alexander is also arranging to take over the large premises of Messrs. Lewis, in Holborn Bars, which will be one of the largest picture halls in London. A company with a capital of £100,000 will shortly be formed, and Mr. Alexander will be managing-director.

Arthur Brogden's New Quarters.

MR. ARTHUR BROGDEN, general manager for Mr. Leon Vint's electric palaces, has removed his headquarters to Rugby, where Mr. Leon Vint is opening a new palace on Monday next.

Dick Knowles and Hungary.

MR. AND MRS. R. G. KNOWLES recently concluded their Hungarian tour, and the editor of the society journal Hungary makes the following reference in the issue of July 15 to their visit:—"These (Mr. and Mrs. Knowles) indefatigable American guests have just concluded their Hungarian tour, during which they have taken over 6,000ft. of cinematograph film and upwards of 800 'still' pictures of interesting scenes, for use in connection with their American lecturing tour.

Knowles as Lecturer.

"THE inaugural lecture is fixed for Oct. 15 in the New York Academy of Music, under the auspices of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences—the same building in which Mr. Roosevelt lectures on Oct. 1. During their stay in Hungary the Knowles party (which includes Mr. Johnson, brother of Mrs. Knowles) have visited Budapest and its beautiful environs, the mountains, and other distant parts of the country, at all of which their cameras were constantly at work.

Hungarian Hospitality.

"THEY were specially charmed with Count Tassile Festetics's stately home at Keszthely, where they were honoured with the hospitality of the Countess (née Lady Hamilton) and her charming daughter, who kindly permitted a number of films to be taken of scenes in the castle, the park, and the gardens, which, with their ornamental fountains, parterres, and curiously trained trees and shrubs, remind one so much of Versailles."

Alexandra Theatre, N.

JUDGING by the crowded state of the house on Monday last the programme at the Alexandra Theatre is well maintaining its popularity. A varied and well-selected assortment of films is always to be seen here, which, with the farce and illustrated songs, make up an entertainment lacking neither in quality nor quantity. Buckstone's celebrated playlet, Good for Nothing, is chosen for representation this week. Nan, the child of the streets, is undertaken by Miss May Hallatt, whose rendering gained the enthusiastic approval of the audience. Mr. Murray Moore as the foppish young Mr. Simpson and Mr. Henry Hallatt as Charley lent adequate support; while Messrs. H. J. Corner and J. J. Daly as Nan's rather tiresome foster-fathers were quite up to their usual standard of excellence.

Chamois Hunting in the Alps.

ONE of the best travel films at present to be seen in London is Chamois Hunting in the Alps, one of the many fine pictures now being shown at the Electric Theatre, Marble Arch. Every detail is splendidly brought out, and the representation of Alpine scenery is very fine. The Tongue of Scandal is an effective domestic drama film, and there are many other interesting and comic subjects in the excellent picture entertainment given here.

Electric Theatre, Forest Gate.

DIRECTLY the large and delighted audience left the above theatre last Saturday evening, their place was taken by a small but no less enthusiastic company. The gathering, consisting of the entire staff of the theatre, headed by Mr. Reynolds Benjamin, the general manager of the company, had met for the purpose of making a presentation to the popular acting manager, Mr. Thomas Beech, who was leaving to take up a similar position at the company's Cardiff establishment.

Presentation to Mr. Beech.

IN a particularly happy little speech Mr. Benjamin made the presentation, consisting of a massive silver matchbox, suitably engraved, and a handsome travelling rug. The speaker warmly congratulated Mr. Beech on his successful work at Forest Gate, and predicted a similarly successful career for him at his new home. Short speeches followed from Mr. W. S. Redfern (the new acting-manager at Forest Gate), Mr. Lavick (assistant manager), Mr. Sayers (chief operator), and Mr. Leslie, and in reply the retiring acting manager expressed the deep pleasure the presentation had given him, and offered the staff his heartiest thanks for the devotion and loyalty with which they had always worked. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Benjamin for presiding closed the proceedings.

Kensington Picture Palace.

IN the current week's programme at this popular picture palace have been included the following fine films:—Never Send a Man to Match a Ribbon (Hepworth), Trebizonde (Urban), One Night and then—— (A. B.), Fortune's Fool (Edison), and From Forest to Breakfast Table (Butcher's).

Attercliffe Picture Palace Outing.

THE staff of Mr. Matt Raymond's Picture Palace, Attercliffe, had their outing on Sunday, July 9. The party, numbering upwards of thirty, and including the genial manager and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dent, left Sheffield for Cleethorpes in a Great Central saloon carriage, arriving at the popular seaside resort before noon. An excellent dinner was served at the Victoria Restaurant, after which the company sought enjoyment in various ways, not the least popular being a visit to Grimsby Docks. The day was beautifully fine, and all the party thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

Bert Dent's New Appointment.

MR. BERT DENT, who has ably discharged the duties of resident-manager of Mr. Matt Raymond's Picture Palace, Attercliffe, is severing his connection with that popular house, to take up an important position as general supervising manager for the Midland Electric Theatres, Limited, whose headquarters are at Derby, with theatres at Leicester, Nottingham, and Derby.

Bath Electric Theatre.

SOME new and interesting films are being shown this week at the Bath Electric Theatre. A specially attractive one is a fine long set of pictures depicting the King and Queen inspecting the war balloon previous to its flight round St. Paul's. Julia Colonna is a stirring drama of Italy, and the pictures are very beautiful from a spectacular point of view. A very good film is shown of what might have happened when the comet touched the earth, while A Deal in Broken China and A 'Tec's Dream are very funny indeed. A Romance of the Western Hills is also good.

West's Pictures at Bournemouth.

THE present week's programme at the Shaftesbury Hall, Bournemouth, is worthy of the traditions of T. J. West, both as regards interest of subject, excellence of photographic quality, and clearness of projection. A remarkable film is that of With Roosevelt in Africa, which gives some vivid ideas of Central African scenery, animals, and natives. Harvesting in Victoria shows the very up-to-date methods of our kinsmen at the Antipodes. The comedy pictures are numerous. The old favourite, Max Linder, is funnier than ever in his latest playlet, Absent-minded Max. The detective story, always so popular to picture audiences, is treated from a fresh standpoint in Nick Winter, which gives the comical side of the criminal investigator.

Dursley (Gloucestershire) Fête.

HELD on Saturday, July 16, and was the 22nd annual fête, and the pleasure fair was the largest hitherto seen here. Mr. W. Symonds, of Gloucester, had secured the contract for the eighteenth successive year, and did excellent business. There was an electric switchback on the ground, a fine set of galloping horses, and a beautifully-designed set of motors for juveniles. In addition, Mr. Symonds' cinematograph was a big attraction, his films of the Funeral of the late King being very fine. Sideshows were very numerous, besides which there was a good collection of swing-boats and stalls. Mr. Symonds, as usual, gave complete satisfaction to his patrons and the promoters of the fête.

THE Town Hall has been opened as a picture palace, and is doing good business, under the management of Mr. S. W. Barkham. Among the pictures being shown are Incidents in the Life of King Edward, Silkenberg Lakes, Scroggins finds the Comet, Race for a Bride, The Deserter, and Squaw's Revenge. The bioscope arrangements are in the hands of Mr. W. Winch, King's Lynn.

Empress Picture Palaces, Leicester.

THE Mere-road Hall is flourishing, and continues to give good shows, the leading pictures this week being A Sister's Sacrifice, The Jockey, Stone Foundry in Sweden, and Stickfast Paste. At the Belvoir-street house the bill is always of the best, and among the most prominent films are Our Banana Supply, Sylvia's Pets, The Godchild of Louis XI., The Bride of the Haunted Castle, Betty and the Fireworks, and Billy's Bulldog.

Sunday Opening Objected To.

THE Sunday opening of the Maidenhead rink and of the new picture theatre has caused much heartburning to the churchgoers of Maidenhead, and a petition bearing 1,300 signatures has been forwarded to the respective proprietors, the wording being: "We, the undersigned, respectfully request the proprietors of the new skating rink and the picture theatre of Maidenhead, in the interests of religion, to abstain from opening their respective places of amusement on Sundays." In each case a courteous reply has been sent, and in all probability there will be a conference between the promoters of the petition and the proprietors.

The President's Special.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL, a pathetic film, showing the effect of long hours' work in a railway signal box, is a much appreciated picture at the Manchester Bijou Electric Theatre. Hunting a Panther, The Doctor, The Three Brothers, A Hatlining's Responsibilities, The Smoker, and several other entertaining films are shown. Full houses are the rule.

Empire, Leicester, Outing.

THE Empire Theatre, Leicester, staff went for their annual outing on Sunday last, a merry and bright company journeying to Skegness in a special reserved saloon. After dinner Mr. Chas. R. Craig proposed the health of the Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths. The vice chair was taken by the secretary, Mr. Clement Lumley, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was accorded for the work he had done in connection with the outing.

Rice-Gathering in Japan.

A DELIGHTFUL series of pictures are being shown at the Grand, Warrington, this week. Especially attractive are the coloured films showing the gathering of rice in Japan—remarkable specimens of the photographic art.

Sale of Chittock's Famous Show.

WE draw our readers' attention to the sale by auction of Chittock's Show, duly advertised in our columns this week. Mr. Tom Norman, the showman's auctioneer, has control of the sale. The matter could not be in better hands.

Opening Bank Holiday, Aug. 1.

SPECIAL NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to CO-OPERATIVE OFFICES, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (London), Solicitor.

THE ENCORE, May 26, 1910.
We have just received the third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's book on Theatrical and Musical Law, which is published at "The Era" Office, 5, Tavistock Street, Strand. Since the second edition of this work was published—nine years—many changes have taken place in the laws relating to entertainments, and these have necessitated a considerable enlargement of the volume. Full texts of the recent Berlin Convention and the United States Copyright Law are included in this edition, in which is also published the awards governing the relations between artists, agents, and managers. A number of new cases are also cited illustrating the effects of the barring clause. The Musical Copyright Act, children on the stage, the sketch question, and the Workmen's Compensation Act are all fully dealt with and in a readable and easy style, as free as possible from legal phraseology and echnicalities. It is a legal axiom that ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it, and, therefore, it behoves everyone connected with the entertainment world to make himself acquainted with the law as it stands in relation to the profession or business in which he may be engaged. To everyone connected with the Drama or Variety Mr. Strong's book is a necessity, and this last edition is so comprehensive that anyone who consults it can have no possible excuse for infringing the law on the ground of ignorance. The work will, no doubt, have a ready and rapid sale, for all artists, managers, and agents should have it at hand.

THE FINANCIER, June 8, 1910.
"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Mr. A. A. Strong, LL.B., has reached a third edition, and gives in simple language such parts of the law as relate to subjects with which the profession is concerned.

SPORTING LIFE, May 16, 1910.
Dramatic authors, composers, and all of those interested in dramatic enterprise will find much that is useful and instructive in "Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert Strong.

REFEREE, May 15, 1910.
Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable work "Dramatic and Musical Law" published at "The Era" Office, Tavistock-street, has reached its third edition. The author has made every effort to bring the book right up to date.

SUNDAY TIMES, May 29, 1910.
A third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" is just published. The work has already established its value, as a comprehensive and accurate book of reference, and the new edition has been brought up to date by the inclusion of all recent decisions of the courts, and the texts of the Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Law of the United States.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS, June 13, 1910.
In view of the frequent litigation concerning theatrical matters there can be no doubt as to the usefulness of this little book to those whom it concerns, and, apart from its usefulness, it is really quite an interesting little volume, in saying which we are paying tribute to Mr. Strong's lucid methods of explaining the intricacies of the law. He has avoided legal terms as far as possible, and theatrical cases exemplifying legal principles he has given in full. To make this, the third, edition as complete and useful as possible, Acts of Parliament relating to theatrical matters and the regulations of the Lord Chamberlain and London County Council are set out in full in the appendix, with the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States.

THE PERFORMER, May 12, 1910.
THE ARTIST'S LEGAL HANDBOOK.
We welcome a third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" Offices), as it is nine years since the second appeared, and much has happened since then, not least the foundation of the V.A.F. and the resultant Award of 1907. This will be found incorporated in the now greatly-improved and extended Appendix of Statutes, ranging from the Disorderly Houses Act of 1751, to last year's L.C.C. Cinematograph regulations. As far as is possible with further developments in daily progress, this invaluable work of legal reference for all interested in the entertainment profession has been brought up-to-date. Sixty pages have been added, and the whole revised and rendered easier of reference by the re-arrangements that have been made, and the numerous marginal headings that have been introduced. Strong, on "Dramatic and Musical Law," may be regarded as the layman's complete authority on the subject, whether he be PROPRIETOR, MANAGER, or ARTIST, and with a lucid explanation of the law so readily available, the artist will be wise to consult its pages before venturing on new contracts and agreements, whether as employed or—in these days of "combinations," sketches, troupes, and what not—as employer.

THE MUSIC HALL, May 12, 1910.
Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable treatise on "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at the offices of "The Era," has reached a third edition. This includes the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States, also all the important decisions of the Courts, since the last edition, on which the compiler has been able to lay hands. As Mr. Strong remarks, "There is probably no more fruitful source of litigation than the ordinary theatrical contract." If the work under notice achieved no other object than to impress this fact on the parties concerned, it would still be worth its weight in gold.

SPORTSMAN, May 14, 1910.
"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. ("Era" Office, W.C.), has gone into a third edition, which would seem to prove its usefulness.

To the Publisher.
1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, S.E.
15th June, 1910.

My Dear Sir,—
I have had an opportunity of looking into the third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published from your office recently, and I have pleasure in testifying to the great value I have found the previous editions in my practice among ladies and gentlemen connected with the profession for which your valuable paper caters so admirably.
That Mr. Strong has had a wide experience in the matters with which he deals so ably in his book is evidenced by the lucid yet exhaustive manner in which he has treated the various subjects therein, and this last edition is eloquent testimony of the care and ability which he bestows upon his work.
Brought thoroughly up to date it will without doubt find a wide circle of usefulness among the profession whose contracts, Mr. Strong aptly remarks, are so fruitful a source of litigation.
Believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
W. H. ARMSTRONG.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The ever-popular American drama At Cripple Creek is presented in a most efficient manner by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Mr. Wernham Ryott displays distinct ability in the part of Joe Mayfield, and Miss Agnes Verity makes a charming heroine in the attractive rôle of Dynamite Ann; the humorous side of the play is effectively sustained by Mr. Harry Benson as Ben White, the nigger, of Cripple Creek; whilst Mr. Charles E. Johnson as Martin Mason, Mr. J. O. Cuthbertson as Manuel Alveraz, Mr. Wilfred Jessop as Mahketah, Miss Tina Langlois as Maggie Mason, Miss O'Neil as Bella Gordon, and Miss Norah Dillon as Sarah Lively, help to bring out the exciting incidents of the play.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—Miss Amy Augarde, supported by a competent company, appears in The Sicilians, a musical sketch of distinct merit. Miss Augarde scores a decided success by her bright singing and vivacious acting. John Terry and Mabel Lambert amuse with English Types through American Eyes; the Three Warringtons give a daring exhibition of equilibristic feats; Ciss and Will, "the dainty juveniles," sing and dance melodiously and gracefully; Mr. Charles Santon has a wonderful vocal range; Lill Elfreda mimics excellently; Cash and Clair display ability in dancing; whilst Frank H. Vox is a versatile comedian.

THE TIVOLI.—Proprietors, The Tivoli (Aberdeen), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—This is musical week at the Tivoli, and the various items are of high order indeed. Jan Rudenyi, the Hungarian actor-vocalist, excels in a sketch entitled The Power of Music; Francini, Olloms, and Page give excellent renderings of high-class music on the old-time concertina; the Four Ascots display rare skill and energy in their unique clog-dancing; Fred Costin sings and dances drolly; Jules Charmette sings charming French songs; Ardell and Odell display comic abilities in a sketch entitled Quarter to Nine; Jessie Stewart sings sweetly; and Beatrice Allan shows herself to be a comedienne of vivacity and parts. Crowded houses are still the rule.

ACCRINGTON.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The principal place on the bill is occupied by Beatrice Bonnie and company in a smart dancing act, introducing "The Stairaphone"; Stylo scores a big success as a hoop manipulator; Gesta and Hoe, in mimicry, song, and dance, provide a capital turn; Zasma, society gymnast, receives a great reception; Helen Martin sings in a very cultivated manner; Tom Burton proves himself a most diverting comedian; Elsa Wynne is a dainty comedienne and dancer; The Warrens, local instrumentalists, meet with much applause; and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Great Fasola tops the bill, and his performance of weird mysticism is particularly clever; The Codys (Raven and Lily) as lasso experts are very capable; the Lannons are clever vocal duettists and high pedestal dancers, whilst their comedy act The Policeman and the Maid is very amusing; Leon and Tee, in a musical farcical act, On the Farm, are excruciatingly funny; Bu Val, the happy Dutchman, gives several selections and imitations on an English concertina which is much enjoyed; Ivy Mona, comedienne, does well; Silverstone, vocal mimic, is again popular; Connie Isca sings with good effect; and Dick Camp is also well received.

AL FRESCO PAVILION.—The Merry Magnets—who have taken a snug little pitch in the grounds of the Skating Rink in Grosvenor-road—are giving a refined programme nightly, consisting of concerted numbers, dances, humorous sketches, &c. An effectively-arranged stage has been erected, and with electric lighting and capital seating accommodation it only requires fine weather to make the performances successful.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Nita Rae's domestic drama The Shadow of a Crime is being presented here this week by a company organised by Mr. Robert Newland. Jim Murdock is sustained by Mr. Whitmore Ledger in a breezy manner; Mr. Victor Gordon is effective as Ralph Esmond; the heroine is admirably portrayed by Miss Ethel Savill; Miss Ada Arthur gives a convincing impersonation of Winnie Murdock; Miss C. Cardrew ably enacts the part of Dora Bullington; Miss H. Jeffries as Sarah Murdock does good work; and the Misses Violette Vivienne and Daisy Free are also much in evidence as Brown's very much better-half and as a seaside flirt. Minor male parts are undertaken by Mr. Geo. Millard as Brown, Mr. Tom Maynard as Tod, and Mr. Pat Quinn as John.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—After a successful dramatic week the Broadhead programme at the Empire has been changed to "variety." The leading item on the bill is a farcical sketch, No. 9, a laughing success by Sir Francis Burnand. Mr. Lawrence Brough sustains in his inimitable style the part of Dick Whortles. He is admirably seconded by Miss Olga Esme as Dolly Whortles, his wife, with Mr. Alfred Hemming as Joseph Carbury, Dick's father-in-law. Capital support is given by Miss Bessie Harrison and Messrs. Payne and Durham. The other artists engaged are Rex and Ford, eccentric cross-talkers; Alan Adair, a clever and refined light comedian; Johnson and Hart, American hoop rollers and jugglers; Baby Wolff, an accomplished child artist; Victoria Dagmar and a comedy assistant in artistic gymnastic display; and Harrigan and Holt, the inspector and policeman. The company as a whole is a good one.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—A good selection of animated pictures is exhibited here this week. The "star" pictures of No. 1 programme are: Over Silent Paths, one of the A.B. series, Dogs of All Nations. No. 2 programme includes, amongst others, a stirring drama, An Affair of Hearts, by the A.B. players. Another "star" picture is The Painter's Fan.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs, Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—"The World in Motion" pictures at this pleasure resort still draw the amusement-seeking public. Good pictures are shown at this old-time house. This week the extra variety turn is Mr. Forbes Gilbert, the actor, who gives delineations of famous stage characters: Coupeau in Drink and Gaspard in Les Cloches de Corneville.

THE ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—Pictures and variety still find favour with Mr. Marks' patrons. The speciality turns are Miss Vennie Veldon, chocolate-coloured male impersonator, and the comedian, Will Willis.

BARNSLEY.—EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—Business here still continues good. This week there is a very attractive programme, including Mr. Chas. R. Whittle, the popular comedian, who is a big favourite; Miss Alice Gill is a charming vocalist; The Florias do a splendid wire act; Athelda does well in feats of strength; Ronna Shanara's Thibet mountain deer and goats are a novel show; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud are good vocalists; and Theo. C. Le Gar's company in Music the Conqueror, introducing Senor Angel Blanco, Spanish violinist, supply an interesting turn. Weisker's Biograph concludes.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Stone.—T. Hearn and company are this week presenting a variety of good turns to large audiences. As a quick-change artist and as "the lazy juggler" Mr. Hearn amazes and convulses his audience; Gaston Chevalier and Mlle. Etoil le Noir, in the scena The Rat, foot the bill; the Sisters Sprightly, Professor Thornbury, Miss Dulcie King-Lloyd, Miss Gilden Stuart, Florence Gordon Fay, and Jno. Macaulay complete.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—The Colonials continue to draw good audiences; Miss Lillie Kenyon particularly appeals to lovers of good songs.

TIVOLI.—The Dayton Family head the bill this week. Other artists are "Smith," Phil Percival, Sisters Dainty, Arthur Clifton, Dot and Williams, and the Three Armadas.

HIPPODROME.—Mr. Newman's picture company is here this week. The variety portion of the programme is equally appreciated.

BARRY DOCK.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Manager, Mr. Wm. W. Minto.—Crowded houses are the rule at the above popular house. Topping the bill are Fredica's clever pony and dogs, who give an interesting turn; Welda and Wyne are clever comedy jugglers, and Maxford and O'Niel are amusing comedians.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Tom Clare, the well-known comedian, and a piano is making his début this week and scoring a big success. As merrymakers Colley and Scott again appear with success; the Millwards are smart gymnasts; another duo who perform acrobatic feats cleverly are the Renz Brothers; a pleasing turn is the quick-change scena by Bonair and Tess; the dancing of the Three Diamonds is received with acclamation, and the mimicry of Little Doris Druce meets with favour. Pictures are of the best.

SYDNEY GARDENS.—Mr. Reginald Wishart, the accomplished illusionist, in his mysterious bottle, handcuff, and double box tricks, is at the head of affairs at the Cosy Corner this week. Others of a clever party are Miss Mabel Emley, at the piano; Mr. Arthur Moss, a capital baritone vocalist; and Mr. Phil Ward, an amusing humorist.

ON Monday Sanger's Circus paid a visit to this city, and, considering the stormy weather, good patronage was given this admirable pageant.

THE ELECTRIC THEATRE is fully maintaining its position as one of the permanent amusements of the city, the management always striving to secure and succeeding in presenting the very latest films on the market.

ON Thursday Marshall Hill's great Fun City, including switchback, motor-car track, helter-skelter, and many other up-to-date diversions attended Weston (Bath) Flower Show.

BELFAST. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Miss Maude Western and company opened here on Monday with Queen's Evidence. Mr. John Levey plays the dual rôle of Gilbert Medland and Philip Stansfield with skill; and the clever actress Miss Maude Western may be congratulated on her assumption of the dual part of Ada Somers and Ada Sydney. Mr. W. A. Buckstone sustains the part of Sir Frederick Sydney, Bart., with credit to himself; Mr. Wallace Curnock was all that could possibly be desired as the iniquitous Matthew Thornton; Miss Beatrice Western was certainly convincing as Kate Medland; Mr. Harry Ives, who was responsible for the dual rôle of Isaacs the Jew and James Levant, was thoroughly successful; Mr. A. H. Cresswell appeared to advantage as Walter Wynford; Miss Maudie Lambert deserves a word of praise for her acting as Arthur Medland; Miss Nellie Lambert effectively portrayed the rôle of Laura Sydney; and other parts were sustained by Messrs. Wm. May, T. Oggier, and T. Chapman.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading position here is held by Bradshaw Bros., remarkably clever acrobatic eccentrics, who made a big hit on Monday; Rose and Lewis are aptly described as laughter-makers, their act being excruciatingly funny; the trick cycling act of the capable Lotto, Lilo, and Otto is quite amazing; Sinclair and Whiteford produce one of their capitally-acted sketches, which is responsible for much merriment; Miss Aggie Nolan is a refined comedienne and first-class dancer; the Quality Quartette of male vocalists gain much appreciation for their tuneful items; Miss Ada Cerito, comedienne, has been accorded a good reception; and also appearing are Little Pam (child comedian and dancer), Rose and Jeanette (dainty girl and male impersonators), and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—Miss Minnie Cunningham, the charming singer of Irish and other songs, is retained here for six nights longer; Vardon, Perry, and Wilbur appear in their refined musical act; Orpheus plays a number of musical instruments to perfection; Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers, take well; Miss Nellie Wigley ("Prince Charming") sings two songs in first-class style; the Sisters Kilner are smart vocalists and acrobatic dancers; and also on the programme are Mr. Harry May Hemsley, vocalist, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Some beautiful pictures have been exhibited here this week, including Capital v. Labour, Father and Son, Conscience, &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by the Lynches, whose capably rendered illustrated songs have been cheered to the echo nightly, and the Billy Watson Trio, vocalists and dancers.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Some interesting films are being presented here, including The Broken Spell, The Two Fathers, The Skating Carnival, &c. Mr. Clifford Dacre, baritone vocalist, appears at each performance.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Herbert M. King.—When It Was Dark is again meeting with considerable success. Mr. Oswald Cray in the character of the Rev. Basil Gortre displays histrionic abilities of a high order; clever acting is done by Mr. C. Wordley Hulse in the part of Constantine Schwabe; Miss Lillian Herries as Gertrude Hunt is fully equal to the demands of an exacting part; and Miss Rosalie Notrelli as Helene Byars acquits herself creditably. The piece is thoroughly staged.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Marie Kendall, the queen of comediennes, is renewing her popularity with new numbers; the Four Garricks sing delightfully; the ability of Coram as a ventriloquist is very marked, and his jokes are fresh; Gordon Stretton, who styles himself "the new coon," contributes a number of songs in pleasing fashion; Edie and Ramsden, in a smart little sketch, Charlie's Visit, submit some fine dancing and effective fun; Steve McCarthy is a popular comedian and dancer; and other good turns are provided by Rosie Coleman, comedienne and dancer; Harry Conlin, versatile comedian; and Chas. Rose, comedian and buck and acrobatic dancer. Good pictures are provided by Brown's Bioscope.

WINTER GARDENS, ROCK FERRY.—General-Managers, Messrs. B. Alandale and L. Blattner; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry A. Dooley.—A full house on Monday enthusiastically applauded the efforts of a capital company. Mona Vivian, the original Wee Mona, was billed to appear, but was unable to do so. Her place was taken by Mr. Wilfrid Burnand, who won favour for his eccentric sketches and mimicry and his humorous singing; Bert Byrne, the popular comedian, provides unlimited amusement; Miss Meri de Frece uses a beautiful soprano voice with excellent effect in a number of selections; Mr. Douglas Campbell is another successful comedian; Archie Glen's funny character sketches are irresistible; and Miss Theresa Foote, at the pianoforte, proves herself an accomplished performer.

BIRMINGHAM.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Guest.—Crowded audiences are attracted here by A Country Girl in London, Mr. W. V. Garrod's company acquitting themselves creditably. Mr. Frank Dallas distinguishes himself as the unscrupulous German, Oppenheim; Miss Maude Merrick proves a charming heroine; Mr. Charles Helling is effective as Frank Gordon; and Mr. Scott Leighton is the popular adventurer Godfrey Clinton.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—Musical comedy holds sway here, and provides material for almost continuous laughter. Miss Ada Wallis and company present the three-spasm farcical musical absurdity, The Major. Mr. T. C. McGuire in the title-rôle is responsible for a good deal of humour; and Miss Ada Wallis as Angelina "Touch-'em-up" is vivacious and popular; Mr. J. W. Groves portrays the character of a religious crank as Jeremiah Stoney; and others who take a notable part in the proceedings are Mr. Emlyn Davis, Miss Mercia Davis, Mr. Fred Draper, and Miss Ethel Tooney. The songs are well selected, and the Chantaclere Girls contribute pleasing dances.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Fred Karno has secured another screamingly funny production in Jimmy the Fearless, the Boy 'Ero; a hearty reception is accorded Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, the accomplished Dickensian impersonators; Alf. Gibson, the droll comedian, provokes much laughter; a humorous act is presented by J. W. Wilson and Nellie Waring; Stuart Macmillan is a clever little Scot; Gwennie Llewellyn has a sweet voice; the Firmans present a laughable sketch, The Fire Station; Fred Poplar has some up-to-date comic songs; and Kitty Wager is a charming comedienne.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—Mr. Fred Lindsay's wonderful feats with a stock-whip cause quite a sensation; Mr. Courtice Pounds and company present an amusing sketch, entitled Charles—His Friend. The popular and versatile tenor is valuably assisted by Miss Gladys Ivery, Miss Mary Sheridan, and Mr. J. Cooke Beresford. The Anartos are a diverting couple; Chris Van Bern scores as an illusionist; Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten is well received; the Mezettis are amusing bar performers; Ted E. Box is an entertaining whistler; Dacey and Lewis are clever comedians; and Ina Voyce sings pleasingly.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Harwood's Juveniles head a meritorious programme with a bright song scena, entitled Xmas Eve; the Planets, a smart troupe of lady cyclists, introduce a new game, "Aviation Cycle Ball"; the Eight Daughters of Eve present a new series of artistic tableaux; Paul Corrix is a muscular equilibrist; Percy Dalton sings and dances cleverly; Winnie Derson creates a good impression; Tray and Rich are popular comedians; Augustin and Hartley appear in a comedy barrel act; Hurman and Arthur are amusing jugglers; and Harry Anderson, comedian, also contributes.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—The latest detective sensation, forming one of the adventures of "The Man with the Forty Faces," is the subject of the principal turn this week. The sketch is entitled The Raven's Toll, and it is presented by Leonard Mortimer and company. The plot fully engages the attention of audiences, and it is cleverly relieved by dry humour. Rose Atherton's company present a popular comedy sketch, Murphy's Affinity; Kirk and Saraski perform wonderful feats under water; Tom and Eileen Melbourne are an amusing comedy couple; Lily Arthur is a clever comedienne and dancer; Talberto and Douglas are bright comedy artists; and Ken Jones, comedian; and Bert and Dora, comedy entertainers, also contribute acceptably.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—Travel pictures form an attractive feature of the programme. The scenery of Switzerland loses none of its grandeur exhibited upon the screen, and the film is a constant source of delight. The Friend of Man illustrates types of dogs, from the toy terrier to the St. Bernard; and The Adventures of Lieutenant Rose are again full of interest. A good pictorial drama is entitled Mexican Bill, and other popular subjects include In Old California, The Wrong Man, The Airship Craze, etc. Miss Lily Skett, a talented operatic vocalist, renders pleasing songs.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—There is a good programme of new pictures, one of the most popular being a beautiful production entitled Isis. The Frontiersman's Bride, A Romance of the Western Hills, and In the Frozen North are amongst the other popular items, and Ellis and Liston provide a smart vaudeville entertainment.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—Excellent attendances at each performance testify to the enterprise of the management, the pictures presented being attractive and up-to-date.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—The Royal Tokio Troupe give a clever performance of acrobatic manœuvres on ladders, poles, ropes, etc.; and J. H. Hawtrey capably renders two good songs; Dan Whitley is a funny comedian; Alice Maude, a clever male impersonator; and Carl Lynn is very smart in his imitations; Mlle. de Rose and Hilda Claremont are excellent vocalists; the musical selections by the Cavallotti Bros. are greatly appreciated; and the Hipposcope films are pleasing.

BLACKBURN.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Anelay.—Velanche's canine "football team" cause great amusement; Ada Fawn makes a hit with "That little band of gold"; excellent parodies are given by Fred Ward; Vesta Nixon provides a good turn of singing and dancing; whilst Sydney Russell's Eight Empire Girls supply an attractive dancing act; the Three Delaries are skilful on the trapeze; the Seddons are smart comedy jugglers; and Edwardes and Edwardes, clever musicians and dancers.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Business-Manager, Mr. C. B. Clarkson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Ersser.—Messrs. Fox and Leonard's company is here in Greed of Gold.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harry Yorke; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—The cinematograph season continues popular. Mr. P. M'Caffrey, baritone, is well received; and the Bros. Harrison give an interesting comedy and dancing turn.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Miss Lena Ashwell and company is here with Diana of Dobson's, the title-rôle being in the hands of Miss Eva Leonard Boyne, whose acting wins the greatest admiration. Mr. Briscoe Owen plays Captain Bretherton with excellent effect, whilst Miss Marie Lalee as the forewoman at Dobson's and Mr. Thomas Pauncefort as the drapery baronet also give a good account of themselves. Out West is the curtain-raiser. V

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—Mr. Arthur Hardy has selected a capable company to tour the provinces with The Speckled Band, which makes its initial appearance here this week. Mr. Julian Royce scores a big success as Sherlock Holmes, and Mr. C. W. Somerset presents a wonderfully clever study of Dr. Grimesby Rylott. Mr. Bellenden Clarke lends good support by his careful portrayal of Dr. Watson, and Miss Adelaide Grace cleverly delineates Mrs. Staunton. Enid Stonor has an ideal exponent in Miss Alice Leigh, and Miss Lucie Verrier makes the most of the character of Mrs. Soames.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Little Tich again meets with a warm reception here, and Florrie Forde is also as popular as ever. Jennie Johns is a favourite comedienne; Tom Payne, the musician athlete, provides a most acceptable turn; Natalia and Diana are skilful gymnasts; Lowenwirth and Cohan are diverting Hebrew comedians; Pasquali Bros. excel as tumblers and equilibrists; Mike Gray is a comedy juggler; and Colbert is a wonderful hoop manipulator.

BOLTON.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—L'Incognita, soprano vocalist, is appearing here to appreciative houses. Other good turns are Jim Cheetham, boy whistler and bird mimic; the Armiens, in a refined musical speciality; Falso and Eida, in a Japanese ju-jitsu dancing act; Sidney, in an original and clever comedy cycle act; King Luis and partner, in a refined acrobatic equilibristic novelty; Harry Mackenzie, Scotch comedian; May Clarke, vocalist; Walter Bellonini, a smart juggler; and the Premier Imperial Pictures.

BOOTLE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler Sutton, and Allandale; Managers, Mr. Ludwig Blattner and Mr. Bobbie Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Boult.—Mr. C. D. Reekie and full company are entertaining crowded houses at the Winter Gardens this week with The Mountaineers. The staging is excellent and the costumes are pretty and effective, and the piece is proving a decided success.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—This week What the Butler Saw is being presented to good houses. Lionel Rignold is the life and soul of the piece as Pink, the butler; Mr. Chas. Fawcett is also good as the Irishman, Jack Barrington; Mr. Pat Alexander makes an excellent Professor Shall; Mr. Raymond Dudley gives a manly interpretation of Sir Charles Foden; Miss Zoe Gilfillan is attractive, and makes a successful Mrs. Barrington; Miss Marie Daltra makes a perfect Miss Foden. Other characters, all suitably filled, are those of Mr. Harry H. Rignold, as Abraham; Mr. George M. Ascot as General Dunlop; Mr. Frank Stanley as Dr. Clayton; Miss Julia St. George as Mrs. Hake; Miss Florence Vennimore as Mrs. Fleming-Smythe; and Miss May Hart, who is particularly good as Sophonisba Hake.

BRADFORD.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—A crowded audience on Monday greeted very heartily Sexton Blake, the drama founded on a series of detective stories. In the title-rôle Mr. Murray Yorke made a favourable impression, and had able support from Mr. E. McLean as the self-accused Roger Blackburn; Mr. Paul Barry Lewers as the deeply-dyed scoundrel Randolph Lovell, Miss Lydia Mannington as the adventuress, Philadelphia Kate, and Miss Elizabeth Watkins as the sorely-tried Marjorie Lovell. Mr. Millar Wilson as Tinker, Mr. S. Nicholls as the Rev. Edward Grey, Miss Dinah Wright as Euphemia Pattacake, and Mr. Sydney Barner as Faggas also contributed acceptably in sustaining the strong interest in the drama, which is finely staged.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—In their new Risley act, "On the Road," the clever acrobats, the Kellinos, are winning very hearty applause here; Roma and Romani are the recipients of unstinted marks of approbation for their fine instrumental act; Staig's Steeplejacks, motoring and cycling inside a perpendicular cage, furnish no end of genuine "thrills"; in a well-acted and well-staged sketch, An Amateur Anarchist, Miss Lilian Rosebery, Mr. Leo Minster, and Mr. Carter Livesey are very entertaining; Cull Pitt elicits much laughter with his "patter" and droll conjuring; H. O. Wills is a funny comedian, distinctly original in style; Woodhouse and Wells are entertaining with their "patter" and dancing; F. V. St. Clair pleases his audience with capital topical songs; with good songs and pretty frocks Lottie Lennox wins favour; and some amusing pictures are shown.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—The process of redecorating and renovating has been going on here for some time, and this popular resort is now presenting a charming appearance internally. The Girl I Love afforded Fred Maxwell fine scope for his dramatic talents, and he is ably assisted by Minnie Sadler and Fred Bailey. Ellerslie Pyne wins success in a scena, Too Late; An Actor's Dream; Myrtle Grove, child actress, and Edith Chantler, soprano, are young aspirants of promise; the Merrions (Will, Harry, and Fred) present a pleasing turn in comedy, and are novel in vocal and instrumental work; "Fine Feathers" is an amusing Lancashire dialect turn by Harry Rousby and Nell Rene; there is much humour in the clever item by Alfred Guest and Dorothy Newlyn, "The Hebrew and the Soubrette; and the Perfection Pictures are a feature of the entertainment. The Days give a clever and very perplexing performance in second sight and thought-reading.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The special artist at Mr. Norfolk Megone's symphony concert on Thursday last was Herr Zacharewitsek, who gave a finished rendering of Mendelssohn's violin concerto. The orchestra was especially fine in Schumann's B flat symphony, under Mr. Megone's masterly conductorship. This week Mr. Morgan Kingston, the new English tenor, is delighting crowded audiences at the promenade concerts by his beautifully clear and well-trained voice. On Wednesday evening the band of H.M. Coldstream Guards were accorded a hearty reception. In the Grand Pavilion Mr. Walter George and his clever "Smart Set" entertainers draw huge audiences to their capital show, and the animated pictures, both here and in the Royal Victoria Rooms, give great delight.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Luxton.—Herr Julian Kandt and his fine band opened for the season on Monday evening before a crowded audience, and were accorded a hearty reception. Mr. Humphrey Bishop, baritone, is the vocalist for the week, and Miss Annie Croft is well received in her smart songs and dances. In the Opera House, Messrs. Ernest Crampton and Charles Heslop's original entertainment, "The Cigarettes," comprises a clever company of artists, including Miss Aimee Bebb, an attractive vocalist and actress; Miss Nellie Schrader, in some charming songs; and Miss Ida Stanley, pianist and vocalist. Mr. Ernest Crampton delights with his humorous songs; Mr. Leo Roy and Mr. Reginald Crowe are both responsible for much merriment.

SUMMER GARDENS. — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—Crowded houses are the rule here, and the company give some excellent programmes. One of the features this week is a most amusing burlesque, Demented, produced by Mr. H. B. Coda, which is capitally played by the members of this popular company.

BRIGHTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Prior to its production at the Pavilion Theatre, London, E., next Monday, Edward Marris's sporting drama, A Criminal's Bride, is being performed here this week. Mr. Frank R. Robertson gives an admirable impersonation of Sir Henry Felstead, whose sweetheart, Lavender Loseby, has a charming exponent in Miss Ethel Ward; Mr. Annesley Hely shows great skill in his impersonation of the villainous Austin Deepdale; and his accomplice, Grant, is ably represented by Mr. Harvey Welton. Mr. Harry T. Butler makes an effective Archie Ravenscourt; Miss Maud Tremaine is a graceful Kitty Felstead; Mr. Herbert Belmore as Guiseppi Canova and Miss Ella Willmer as Tessa Gianelli are well placed; and much amusement is afforded by Mr. George Brentwood as P.C. Dumbleby, Miss Lillah Peltz as the maid Bellamy, and Miss Mollie Hackett as Jenny Jenkins.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Charles Coborn, the popular comedian, achieves great success with his songs; Tom Stuart gives some dramatic and burlesque impersonations in artistic style; Dot Stephens, dainty and vivacious as ever, wins hearty applause; Cyclumina submits a capital electric cycling speciality; the Great Vincent appears in an acrobatic table act; the Lomas Duo are well received in their speciality scena; Pauline West is a charming comedienne; Zimpa, mimetic humorist, is diverting; the Noels contribute vocal and instrumental selections; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting.

BERRISFORD'S HIPPODROME.—Resident Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Harry Lauder, the Scotch humorist, arouses great enthusiasm with his songs, patter, and stories; Radford and Valentine keep the house rippling with laughter during their clever turn of "jolly Juggling" and quaint eccentricities; Jack Pleasants, comedian, is distinctly effective with his comic songs; Robins and Collier present The Lady and the Porter with great success; the Craggs are very amusing in their acrobatic comedy sketch, Billy, the New Steward of the Channel Queen; the Dufor Trio are enthusiastically applauded for their smart dancing; the Sisters Kebble are pleasing duettists and dancers; Jessie Templeton, comedienne, sings in good style; and Josie Delaine contributes much-appreciated songs.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here with The Naked Truth. Mr. Stanley Logan submits an admirable enactment of Bunny Darrell;

On their garments not a blemish,
But fresher than before.—The Tempest.

The London Coliseum,
St. Martin's Lane,
July 27th, 1910.

Mr. T. Harris.

Dear Sir—I am delighted with your new "SLYDOFFO" process of rain proofing. The light Overcoat you did for me stood the following severe test, viz: 6½ hours Motoring in face of a continual deluge of wind and rain; result, I was absolutely dry, warm and comfortable. It should be a huge success.

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) C. D. Slater, Manager.

Miss Kathleen Maude as Bunny's fiancée is also charmingly effective; Mr. Townsend Whitling is well suited as the irascible Uncle James; Miss Violet Ley achieves much success as Mrs. Haytor; Mr. B. Bealey Beltram's Mr. Hayter, Mr. Lawrence Arthur's Dr. Masters and Mr. Erskine Lang's Teddy Lestrange are ably played; and effective support is rendered by Miss Ormonde Wynne, Miss Dora Fellowes, and Miss Violet Temple.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jay and Mann; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wilfred H. Kent.—Mr. Ernest Benham's company opened here on Monday with Old Heidelberg, which was admirably staged. Mr. Owen Nanes gave an excellent impersonation of Karl Heinrich; Mr. Frank Powell acquitted himself admirably as Staateminister Von Haugh; Mr. Walton Palmer as Hofmarschall Freiherr Von Passarge; Mr. Robert Laurence as Von Bretienburg; and Mr. George Wyley as Baron Von Metzing submitted sterling enactments. Mr. Ernest Bodkin's Dr. Jüttner, Mr. Sydney Hamilton's Lutz, Mr. Alex. Onslow's Graf Von Asterberg, and Mr. Charles Grenville's Von Wedell added to the success of the performance.

Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Maud Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—The series of animated pictures exhibited here continue to prove very attractive. The Story of Esther is presented in strong dramatic form, and St. Elmo also conveys very stirring incidents. The Lakes of Barona is an extremely picturesque film; and much amusement is afforded by Love and Good Fellowship Pills, Betty's Remorse, His New Mamma, and Bill's Serenade. Mr. Osland Denner, a fine baritone vocalist, contributes new illustrated songs; and Mr. Arthur W. Briggs merits praise for his descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to the pictures.

Theatre de Luxe.—Proprietors, Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. H. Cousens.—The animated pictures here are well patronised, crowded houses being the invariable rule. The film representing the local Police Sports and Fire Brigade Display in Preston Park is highly interesting; A Friend in Need and Sly Little Cupid are very dramatic pictures. In the Vicinity of Laos States is charmingly descriptive, while An Embarrassing Legacy, Totorline Toreador, A Valuable Hat, and Betty as Milliner's Apprentice are very amusing.

BRISTOL.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here for a third week, the Anglo-Indian drama A Traitor Prince being now the attraction. Mr. G. M. Montanini acts with considerable power as Prince Rao Dalmirez; Miss Stella Carmichael presents a fine study of Vashti, a snake charmer; Mr. Howard Hardy is manly and effective as Lieutenant Frank Derrick; Miss Netta Mitchell acts pleasingly and expressively as Lola Vane; Mr. Charles Russell makes a good part of Cara, a half caste; and Mr. Arthur Rodney very effectively doubles the parts of Richard Vane, manager of a variety entertainment, and Colonel Vane, a retired Indian officer. The play is excellently staged.

Palace.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Treasurer and Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Amasis heads the programme with interesting illusions, his Egyptian stage setting being both elaborate and attractive. James Willard and company successfully present a fine dramatic sketch, entitled The Devil's Box of Bricks; Mabel Fairchild displays much grace in her effective dances in the legend "A Belfry Dream"; Miss Fairchild being ably assisted by a young lady in song and dance; Harriett Rose is an attractive and pleasing vocal comedienne; Herbert Rule, comedian, is successful; Philip Levard is an expert society illusionist; Johnny Walker, comedian, obtains applause; and Bromley and Fontein please with their song-and-dance speciality. Interesting animated pictures conclude.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Queenie Leighton is having a fine reception here, all her songs being appreciated; Peggy Lennie and Walter Hast please with their dramatic musical idyll, The Maid of Polaria; Maud Wheeman is an attractive vocalist; the Lowells do some smart juggling and balancing; Mario Wilton pleases as a chorus vocalist; Lawrie and Leslie, comedy entertainers, are successful; Johnny Hurley, coster comedian, sings acceptably; and Victor's Juveniles score with their singing and dancing act. Animated pictures conclude.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Included in the list of excellent pictures are In Gypsy Hands, The Cross of Napoleon, and The Mexican's Faith. Amongst the humorous films are Mr. Giddy's Revenge, A Difficult Task, and Race for a Monkey.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—This house has been reopened for a few weeks until the contractors are ready for rebuilding, and a capital programme is drawing crowded houses. The Banzai Family of Japanese entertainers perform some remarkable feats in a gorgeous setting; and W. T. Ellwanger and company have a screamingly funny sketch, Who Did It? An encore is heartily accorded Gladys Revel for catchy songs, and the St. Johns are recalled for a refined and humorous musical turn. Seigel and Field, in a comedy duo, are good; and Harry Morris, Lancashire comedian, again appears. Mildred Bryan gives a very artistic rendering of songs, and the Empire Theatrescope shows amusing pictures.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Radcoe.—Mr. Hymack, truthfully styled the chameleon comedian, takes first place here, and mystifies the audience with his remarkable quick changes. Billy Merson, comedian, keeps the house in constant merriment; and Maud Mortimer, comedienne, is a big success. Sydney Brandon presents dramatic character studies; the Cedrics, comedy artists, have quite a host of good patter; Vela is a very funny tramp on a tight wire, Rose Surridge a pleasing vocalist and dancer, Josh Dixon a highly diverting comedian; and a capital Indian subject is shown by the Palace pictures.

CARDIFF.—Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—Two packed houses on Monday night gave ample evidence of the popularity of George Lashwood, who delights his audience with a répertoire of new and pleasing songs. A welcome return is also made by that interesting sketch, The Little Stowaway, produced with great cleverness by Bertie Shelton; Rossi Ashton, war artist, in travestie song sketching with crayons, drew forth considerable applause; Johnny Fuller gained unstinted approval for his "mouser" wire-rope performance; and Will Johnson, a comedian of rare talent, delighted everyone with his humorous songs. Much appreciation was accorded the efforts of Alice Kingsley, a charming artist with a distinctly good contralto voice; while Jock Whiteford, the smart Scot, proved himself an able comedian. Daisy Martell, clever comedienne, and the American Bioscope complete.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The principal turn at the Palace is the Olmypia team of cyclists, who give a remarkably clever display of cycle football. The competition among members of the audience proves most amusing after the serious play of the experts. Bob Berry, the world's middle-weight champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler, is in no small measure responsible for the packed houses at each performance, this class of entertainment being exceedingly popular with patrons of the Palace. Jose G. Levy's company gives a skilful representation of the dramatic episode entitled The Irony of Fate; Vera Mayne, in illustrated songs, proves highly entertaining; the Vaudeville Trio achieve a distinct success with their delightful vocalism; while Pat Lynch, described as "the dancing demon," and Jack Hamilton, a gifted comedian, complete the list of contributors. The Palace Perfection pictures are interesting and amusing.

CARLISLE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Mrs. R. Stewart McKim and Thos. Courtice; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Miss Loie Esmond's company opened here on Monday in The Love Birds. In the part of Agnes Fritters Miss Blanche Courtenay was a distinct success; Miss Loie Esmond played and sang with great vivacity and archness in the part of Araminta Brown; Mr. Edward Neville was excellent as the fiery Colonel Fritters; Mr. Fred Alberto was very funny as Constable Blobbs; Mr. J. Russell was acceptable as Ferdinand Fluff; and other parts were in good hands.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—Barrie's burlesque menagerie is a most amusing and interesting turn; Conrad's contortion act is full of novel ideas; Adah Payne is a refined and clever vocalist; the Oakes Duo, in a comedy quick-change act, entitled Making a Man of Her, are smart; Wallis Read plays popular pieces on the banjo in excellent style; Reid and Power introduce an attractive little sketch The Chambermaid; and Nellie Neil's singing and dancing never fail to gain applause.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Boys in Camp is the leading attraction here, and with Miss Sable Fern in the chief rôle the sketch proves most entertaining; Raie Walters is a pleasing serio; Harvey and Jessop's simultaneous dancing is freely applauded; Clifford amuses with his ventriloquial entertainment; Alf. Brooks has a well-liked medley; W. B. Raby delights with his vocalism; while the act contributed by Francis and his assistant Alfred is a big success.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Geo. Humphries.—Lovely, lively Lily Burnand tops the bill here and makes her customary success; Koggin and Davis convulse the audience with their acrobatic comedy act; Annette and Leona are responsible for a clever trapeze performance; Zenora's speciality act meets with general approval; Walter Stanley renders well-written parodies; Ena Bruckshaw (vocalist) and George Phillips (dancer) complete the company, while the Edisonograph has an excellent film entitled The Sorceress of the Strand.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—Palace of Varieties.—Business-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Thomas Butt.—The numerous attractive turns here this week include the Selbini Troupe of Cyclists in their pot pourri of cycling, juggling, etc.; Spry and Monti, in their miscellaneous comedy, The Song Writer and the Soubrette; Daisy Stratton, comedienne and dancer; Harry Claff and Miss Alice Tremayne in a musical comedy scena, The Demon and the Fairy; Dolly Elsworthy, the favourite comedienne; Hal Berte, the elastic comedian; Gwladys Soman, ballad vocalist; and Martin Adeson and company, in a farcical absurdity, Dr. Maud's First Patient.

The Pier Pavilion.—Lessee, Mr. Will Pepper; Manager, Mr. Allan Thomas.—The attractiveness of the programmes here has regained for the Pavilion all its old-time popularity. Miss Bessie Bowness is encored for her rendering of the "Waltz Song" from Tom Jones; Miss May Windsor, both in her songs at the piano and in her imitations of children, keeps audiences rocking with laughter; Joe Morley, the well-known banjoist, ably renders many of his own excellent compositions; Allan Thomas is a clever humorist; and Wilfred Stracey is a comedian who creates endless merriment. Mr. Bromley Carter's songs with banjo accompaniments are a pleasing feature. His popularity has been proved by the presentation to him of a handsome silver cigarette case by Mr. Legerton, the piermaster, on behalf of several admirers.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Hubert Helliwell and company are here for five nights with the drama Passion of Life. Mr. Helliwell himself admirably undertakes the part of Jack Kenny; Miss Ada Hender gives a powerful rendering of Belle O'Neal, whilst Mr. Basil Mitchell works hard as Ralph Flint. Mr. Owen Edwin is successful as Fergus MacKenna, and Mr. F. Owen Chambers makes a splendid Captain O'Neal; as a humorist, Mr. Fred Luard shines, and is assisted by Miss Emily Lewis as Tilly. Miss Maud Garth is a very attractive Nita.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Moulliot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Joe Peterman and Geo. Ricketts' company, in The Pawnbrokers, are on a return visit this week; Dalmere's animals provide a very good entertainment; Hyde and Cody Trio give a clever display of tumbling; Albert St. Clair, the baritone-soprano vocalist, goes well; Olive Young presents a couple of good "male" songs; Billy Tucker gives a good ball-punching show; and Mark Hall, comedian, also gains applause.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—My Irish Molly is presented here by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stuart's company, under the direction of Mr. Karl Edwards. Mr. St. John Medley as Dennis proves a big success; Father McGuire is in the capable hands of Mr. Kenyon Gray; and as Captain Vere Mr. Gordon Robey is impressive; Billy Smith, a Cockney showman, is humorously undertaken by Mr. Karl Edwards; whilst Mr. Edwin Firth scores well as Tim Doolan. Molly, in the hands of Miss May Warden, is a great favourite; as Lady Blanche Miss Elma Turner is good; and Miss Rosie Kearns is amusing as Sally.

Daly's Hall.—Lessee, Mr. John Cottrell; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murrray.—An excellent programme is provided this week. The Two Zets, vocalists and dancers, are a success; Horace Monto, in clever and original act, is a capital turn. Animated pictures conclude, among the best being Western Justice, The Way of the World, and Merry Beggars.

COVENTRY.—Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Heading the bill this week is Signor Arvi, who gives a mysterious production entitled Les Metables; Friend and Downing are a smart pair of comedians; Miss Adeline Yohle and company provide a popular musical turn, Difficulties; The Great Four, American comedy vocalists, sing glees and quartets admirably. Other turns are given by Crystal and Saville in musical duo, Jack's Jacket; Arthur Astill, the whistling ploughboy; and La Belle Alva, the gipsy peasant girl.

CROYDON.—Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The Amateur Carnival here is causing much amusement; Neville Graham and company hit the mark in sketch, Pride of Regiment; Tom Yorke is a clever character comedian; Victoria Monks makes a big hit in new songs; the Six Buster Browns sing and dance to perfection; Gladys Huxley is a charming comedienne; Staffo, patter juggler, wins unstinted applause; A. P. Whistler is a good comedian; Louise Zetland, vocalist, is well received; and the Bioscope pictures are popular.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The Elliott-Savonas top the bill, and get a big reception, houses being packed. The Five Oiracs give a clever and original performance in their acrobatical funnisities; Senorita Eloina is a graceful gymnast; the Forsythe, in their comedy act, The Doll and the College Boy, are very amusing; other special turns are Queenie West, comedienne; Chant and Chant, in a vocal comedy act; Sam Redfern, comedian; Mlle. Florence, singer, and the Darliscope pictures.

DARWEN.—Albert Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Holden.—The Two Daniels give a smart negro comedy turn; Mme. Molly Baldwin, soprano vocalist, is recalled. Good films include The Centurian's Daughter, The Way of the World, Linda of Chamounix, and The Siam Teakwood Industry.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Heading a highly attractive programme are Minola Hurst and her Miniature Marvels, who are in every way acceptable; Torti, an Italian tenor, is enthusiastically appreciated; Everhart, hoop expert, and his four assistants give a clever exhibition; Witty Watty Walton is always popular here; Mlle. Bartinelli, a lady contortionist, is well above the average; Blake and Granby are successful in their amusing playlet The System; Phillips and Bristow are praiseworthy wooden shoe dancers; the Donatos, one-legged acrobatic clowns, meet with approval; and the Sisters Gaye soon sing and dance into favour. The Bioscope is as interesting as ever.

DEVONPORT.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. G. Prance.—The clever trick cycling act of the Daunton-Shaw Troupe is keenly appreciated here; Miss Ida Barr is a fine vocalist; Fred Maitland's farce, Roots, Rash Chemists, tests the risible faculties of the audience; Rastus and Banks, coloured entertainers, score in some dexterous footwork; the Crisps have an interesting dancing scena, entitled "The Little Deputy"; Geo. Campbell has some original patter; and Gene Morelle concludes.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. F. G. Kimberley's company in Her Secret Lover is the week's attraction. As Gilbert Seymour Mr. Stephen Langton does full justice to a good part; Miss Laura Walker creates an excellent impression as the wronged wife, Ivey Seymour; Mr. Alfred Stretton is a first-rate villain as John Strange, being ably assisted by Miss Flora Leslie as Alicia Royle; and Mr. Walter Wilson works hard as Captain Darrell Rose.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Appearing here twice nightly is Mrs. E. H. Knight's company in the drama The Lighthouse Robbery. The part of Tom Manley, the hero, is capably sustained by Mr. Percy Beresford, whose fine acting comes in for much applause; Miss Hilda Baynton is a very dainty heroine and is immensely popular in the rôle of Rosa Prescott; Baby Freda as Little Nellie proves herself a clever child actress, and also sings and dances creditably; Miss Alice Dent gives a fine portrayal of Mrs. Manley; Mr. John Paley successfully enacts David Morris; William Farren is well embodied by Mr. S. Fortescue; and Mr. Gordon Ingram as James Hammond works hard. The comedy element is ably supplied by Mr. Rupert Talbot and Miss Louise Carlton in the parts of Sam Kidder and Ruth Manley respectively.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—At the head of an excellent bill here are N. T. Kyoto and C. H. Esa, who perform the very latest equilibristic feats, and also introduce their daring and sensational five-ladder act, which is truly marvellous and meets with a well-deserved reception. A fine turn is provided by Graham, human marionette, who gives life-like imitations of well-known artists; Tom Forestier and company display dramatic ability in the playlet A Society Sinner, and score a big success; the Murias submit a pleasing vocal, instrumental, and dancing scena; the Two Lees in their novel instrumental drawing-room act are heartily received; the Keppels prove themselves accomplished vocalists; and success also attends the Becketow Bros. in their comedy acrobatic act The Butler and the Dude, and Wynnie Darrell, who is a capital singer and dancer. There is the usual display of animated pictures on the Palascope.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—After being closed for a few weeks for renovation this place of amusement was reopened on Saturday last. Desmond and Dare, "the waiter, the dude, and the piano," win much applause for their humorous musical act; King and Rene in a patriotic sketch, A Loyal Old Soldier, introduce some good singing; and a novel and unique turn is supplied by J. P. Carroll, the soldier tambourinist, and is undoubtedly one of the hits of the evening. The Carlenos are a couple of good singers who dance neatly; Miss Saxon-Devon has a good soprano voice which she uses to advantage; and Florrie Elliston sings three songs in an excellent manner. Amongst the best of a good selection of films are The Foundling, The Tasks of Hercules (dramatic subjects), and Music Gone Mad, and The 'Tec's Dream (humorous pictures).

Industrial Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris A. Wordsworth.—The dramatic, humorous, and artistic pictures shown here still continue to draw good houses.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Eve of Her Wedding was presented here on Monday. The hero, George Tremaine, was finely presented by Mr. Wilson Bence; Mr. Benn Carr made a success of Squire Leverton; Mr. Sydney P. Clewlane was excellent as Dick Leverton; Mr. Jay Kay played well as Rudolph Earle; Mr. Louis Lingard in the dual rôle of Paul Carshaw and Hiram P. Younger acted artistically; Mr. Herbert Hastings as Jack Herne, a cripple, supplied a pathetic portrayal; Renie de Telle had a charming representative in Miss Mona Gray; Gwendoline Younger was ably undertaken by Miss Nora Mason; Miss Dora Olga gave a good reading of Edith Trevanion; and the delineation of Mavis Leverton by Miss Pauline Nanton was all that could be desired.

DOUGLAS.—Grand Theatre.—Chairman, Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—Mr. A. B. Tapping and his talented company are appearing here in two of Mr. Arthur Law's smart plays, The New Boy and A Country Mouse. The first-named comedy was the attraction on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Mr. A. B. Tapping was delightfully quaint as Archibald Rennick; Mr. Poole Kirkwood was a duly important Dr. Candy; Mr. Frank Bradley's Bullock Major was a page materialised from "Tom Browne's Schooldays"; Mr. Ernest Rivarez was adroit as Felix Roach; and Mr. Frank Bradley was droll as Theodore de Brissac. Miss Florence Nelson made Mrs. Rennick an imposing personage; Miss Evelyn Ormond was a bright and pretty Nancy Roach. The play was carefully produced.

The Gaiety Theatre.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—The Dairymaids, presented by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, is successful. Miss Dorothy Glasdorff is a dainty and tuneful Peggy; the Eliza of Miss Edie Martin has comedy moments; and the Joe Mivens of Mr. Edwin Dodds arousse continuous merriment. Mr. William Spray and Mr. Harry Clark are smart as the two young officers.

The Palace, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—A galaxy of talent here comprises Miss Sadie Simpson, who is clever; Farr and Farland; Barrington, a piano virtuoso; Ada Gatley; Lola Patey; Pipifax and Panlo, acrobats; and Bransby Williams. Also there is dancing to Mr. Harry Wood's orchestra, skating, and side shows.

Derby Castle, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Kelly.—Miss Lil Hawthorne is the bright particular star here, and truly scintillates. She works hard for public favour, and she gets it. Other attractions are Harry Tate's company, in the sketch entitled Fishing, which goes with a scream, Miss Ruth Lytton, a clever comedienne, and Mr. George Bastow, an effective fun-provoker.

Other amusements in Douglas are Mr. Fred Buxton's pierrots, The Onchans, Mr. Charles Dare's pictures at the Empire, and his White Minstrels on the Head.

DUBLIN.—Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—Mr. Bruce Warwick's In the Shadow of Night company is enjoying a successful week here. Mr. Forbes Carrington makes a distinct hit in the part of John Allington; and Mollie Woodstock is pleasingly represented by Miss Kittie Roze. Mr. Leonard Williamson ably sustains the character of Gordon Allington; and Miss Rena Arundale is seen to advantage as Violet Kingston. Mr. Ronald Douglas makes an excellent Clifford Yorke; and Miss Kitty Johnstone displays ability in the rôle of Bob. Mr. Jack White is capital as Tom Nainby; and both Jake Grudgewell and James Woodstock have able exponents in Messrs. William Hayward and Harry Emmerson.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—Miss Lilian Herlein, an attractive and vivacious comedienne, is the star turn here, and meets with a flattering reception. Rutter's comedy dogs provide a clever and amusing turn; and Harry Levaine, patter comedian, is well received. The Borghetti Troupe, in their unique acrobatic act, are loudly applauded; and Randal Burleigh is a good baritone vocalist. The Sutcliffe Family, acrobats, pipers, and dancers, obtain much appreciation; Henry and Tyler submit a most acceptable cycle act; and the Ettenas, in a humorous globe-walking and spade-jumping display, score a success.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Marsh.—Mike S. Whallen, the popular comedian and raconteur, holds premier position here, and is accorded a hearty reception. Charlie Lloyd and Cissy Barwick are very successful as comedy artists; and Miss Grace Langley is a dainty comedienne and dancer. The Kirbys' comedy and burlesque entertainment is greatly enjoyed; and R. C. Note has some catchy chorus songs which are warmly encored. The Brothers Weymen, expert dancers, make a decided hit; and Merry Maie Dillon sings several lively ditties which win applause. Gilbert's dogs perform very clever feats; and Vi Laurie, comedienne, who remains over from last week, and the Empire pictures, concludes.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—J. W. Rickaby, character comedian, heads the bill here, and meets with success; Miss Alice Hoodless, in her classical poses, gains great applause; Hylton and Wallace are an amusing pair of comedians and capital dancers; the Cromwells, in a novel juggling act, are deservedly applauded; and the other artists appearing are Will Leo, quaint comedian; Eva Carter, lady baritone; Les Atoms, aerial gymnasts; Tom E. Bates, eccentric comedian and acrobatic dancer; and Wilman, Australian instrumentalist. The bioscope concludes.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietors, Sprengel Brothers.—The programme here includes: Charlie Lyndon, comedian; Miss Jessie Horner, soprano vocalist; Miss May Vivian, comedienne and dancer; and the Falconers, Irish sketch artists.

Pavilion, Kingston.—The John Ridding Opera Company are on a return visit here, and drawing good houses. On Monday afternoon the following artists successfully contributed to the opening concert: Mr. Fred Clendon, Miss Marion Stanley, Miss Lucy Lever, Miss Vera Vizard, Miss Christine May, and Messrs. Gilbert, Williams, Kemble, Ridding, and F. S. Gilbert. In the evening Maritana was presented, and was well received.

Arcadia, Bray.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—The excellent programme presented here is drawing large audiences. Miss Lilian Wesson continues to please all with her vocal items; and Mr. Archie Watts is a most successful comedian. Mr. Francis Rayne, tenor, receives applause; and Mr. Frank Dunlop is as entertaining as ever. Miss Irene Vere's songs and dances are warmly encored; and Mr. Albert Leslie, comedian, and Mr. Leslie Leonard, solo pianist, complete the bill.

DUNDEE.—King's Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—For the local holiday week a strong bill is submitted, pride of place being accorded to Reano and his famous band, whose playing has created a furore; as a mimic and monologue artist Henry A. Moore is excellent; Mlle. Eldee's pretty turn is greatly admired; Scholey and Scholey score in a smartly-worked comedy sketch, Winning a Wager; Jay Laurier is a droll of a distinctly novel type; Sheila McNeil scores with her smart ditties and patter, and Norman Telma is an anatomical puzzle. Cody's Aeroplane Smash at Aldershot is shown by the Kingscope, and Mr. Geo. Mundell's fine orchestra continues to be a source of delight to music lovers.

Gaiety Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. K. Stowart.—Miss Dora Hammersley's stock company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Kean, presents this week David Muskerry's drama, The Poor Must Live, which is excellently staged and acted. Miss Dora Hammersley acts impressively as Dorothy Murdock; Drummond Tredigar is finely played by Mr. Charles Kean; the villainous propensities of Clifton Manville are ably emphasised by Mr. James Sommerville; a fine delineation is that of Mr. Ernest C. Edwards as the Earl of Marswood; Mr. Leslie Vyner submits a capital study of Sam Sully; while Dick Sully and Hooker Holdsnitch have able exponents in Mr. Edwin Morton and Mr. Ted Mooney. Miss Delmaine is a satisfactory Countess of Marswood; Miss Lizzie Taylor realises well the part of Olga D'Eyncourt; Mr. Will Henderson as James Brown and Miss Maud Henderson as Mrs. Brown fit their parts admirably; and Sal and Moya Darling, as interpreted by Miss Bella Power and Miss Clarise Jenner respectively, prove interesting studies.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Gaston Mayer's fine company is attracting crowded houses here with The Brass Bottle. Mr. Holman Clark, distinct, penetrating, and impressive, does splendid work as Fakrash-el-Aamash; Mr. Langhorne Burton gives a bright and natural performance as Horace Ventimore; Mr. Percy Marshall is a polished and pointed Professor Futvoye; Mr. Rudge Harding is a delightfully bland and superior Spencer Pringle; Mr. Robert Ayrton is a very able and clever Samuel Wackerbath; and Mr. Harry Paulton is a realistic Rapkin. Miss Edith Hunter is the admirable representative of Mrs. Futvoye; Miss Marjorie Chard is the graceful and attractive Sylvia; Miss Mary Brough as the landlady Mrs. Rapkin is one of the great successes of the evening; Miss Hilda Sims does good work as Mrs. Wackerbath; and Miss Irene Wells as Zobeida the dancer and Miss Phyllis Birkett as Jessie give the best of help.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—The bill this week is of the variety order, with Mr. Arthur Roberts as the chief attraction. In the sketch Till Sunday Mr. Robert keeps the large audience in merry laughter with his capital comedy work as Doyle, Spufenstein, and Nurse Frutti; Miss Ruby Celeste, bright and animated, is an ideal Mrs. St. Hilary; and other parts are capably filled. Miss Celeste and Mr. Roberts also appear with great success in Courtship and Marriage. Miss Beatrice Hodgson and Miss Celeste play very nicely in vain regrets; Mr. Wilson Blackledge is a clever and merry entertainer; Cambo and Castille are a novel and smart musical couple; Mr. Alec Milne is good as a ventriloquist; and Miss Ida Furneaux is a pleasing comedienne.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company is this week presenting the musical comedy, The Cingalee. Mr. Frank Barclay as the Hon. Harry Vereker acts with distinction and sings capitally; Mr. Herbert Franklyn as Bobby Warren is very sprightly; Mr. Frank Lennard as Boobhamba is sufficiently ponderous; Mr. Helier Le Maistre is a capable Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Hylton Warde as Chambhuddy Ram is responsible for much merriment, his scenes with Peggy Sabine being the cause of hearty laughter. In the latter character Miss Florrie Greensmith is admirable; Miss Isa Bowman makes a decided success as Nanoya; and Miss Ray Anderson as Lady Patricia Vane acts and sings capitally.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Sir W. S. Gilbert's delightful old royalist drama Dan'l Druce has this week brought pleasant reminiscences to old playgoers and interesting entertainment to the younger generation. The piece is well rendered by Mr. Walter A. Chetham's repertory company. Mr. Dickson Moffat interprets with good effect the varying emotions of the trying rôle of the old blacksmith; Mr. Henry Earlesmere does well as Sir Jasper Combe; and Mr. Sydney Bland gives quite the Gilbertian flavour to his impersonation of Reuben Haines. The demure Puritan maiden Dorothy is charmingly portrayed by Miss Mildred Hodson, and her sailor lover, Geoffrey Wynyard, has a pleasing representative in Mr. Donald Gow. The several smaller parts are carefully handled by Mr. A. C. Bute as Marple, Mr. Arthur Stirling as Joe Ripley, and by Messrs. J. H. Cooper and Ernest Harrison as a sergeant and soldier of the Parliamentary army.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Morny Cash heads the bill, and his diverting ditties coupled with his droll method proves exceedingly entertaining. In another line of comedy a canine artist collaborates cleverly with his owner, R. M. Stratmore, a Scotch comedian whose accomplishments further comprise expert playing on the banjo and concertina. A very pleasing musical séance is provided by Parks and Price, who display extraordinary versatility as instrumentalists; Flora Cromer gains prominence as a vocalist in a series of finely-rendered songs, including her popular "Lavender" ballad; St. Ruth and Conyers sing a selection of duets acceptably; and Mimi Thornton charms the audience by her dainty dances. Gymnastics and acrobatics are exploited in novel and original ways by Dort and Leonard, Dort's double somersault being unique; and by the Three Original Hodginis, whose speciality is a sensational act on a revolving ladder. The Bros. St. Clair go through some extraordinary evolutions on bicycles, of which a football match is the crowning episode; and the King's Bioscope winds up the programme.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The bill is headed by the popular comedian Will Evans, whose "One, two, three" song and Chantecler burlesque have created unlimited amusement. The remarkable juggling and balancing performances of Ando's Happy Little Japs form another strong item; and the knockabout comedy acrobatics of Smito and Smoto furnish good entertainment. Horace Pollock and company appear with unqualified success in Sir A. W. Pinero's sketch Hester's Mystery; the New Macs patter and dance smartly; the Glenroy Troupe contribute another lively dancing speciality; and the single-handed turns supplied by Mary Ambrose, vocalist and violinist, Fred Curran, quaint parody comedian, and Nellie Wallace, low comedy artist, are all appreciated. Interesting Bioscope pictures complete a goodly bill.

Operetta House.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—Some admirable films are exhibited on the Biograph to crowded and interested audiences. Over the Silent Paths, The Twisted Trail, and In the Nick of Time are notable in the way of picture story-telling; and a good selection of humorous subjects varies the display most agreeably.

Pringle's Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. George Edmunds.—Tragedy and comedy are here alternated in a skilful and interesting manner by a judicious variation of Bioscope pictures, all shown with marked clearness and steadiness. The exhibitions continue to draw full houses.

Marine Gardens.—Manager, Mr. G. B. Smith.—Adverse weather conditions have interfered not a little with the outdoor attractions, but whenever the elements permitted pleasant entertainment has been provided in the Band Court by Dickinson's Merry Mascots and the famous Italian Band of the Royal Piedmont Hussars. Dancing has been carried on with much vigour in the lately-opened ballroom, and the skating rink has attracted a goodly number of skaters. In the concert hall interesting programmes have included Leslie Harris, a popular humorist; Mme. Annie Walker and Mr. Bridge Peters, soprano and baritone vocalists; Mr. Fred Howard, the artist entertainer; Prince Tschagadaeff, the Russian balalaika soloist; and a good series of Bioscope films.

ELLESMERE PORT.—Hippodrome and Picture Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. Corelli and Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Corelli.—An excellent entertainment is provided here this week by The Whips, who render solos, concerted items, and dances. The Whips consist of the following, Misses Rose Alderman, soprano; Sybil Glynn, comedienne; Nan Hawkins, dancer; Messrs. Hinton Jones, tenor; J. Michael Watson, bass; J. Lincoln Taylor, humorist; Harwood Brierley, pianist. A musical comedietta, The Hunt Supper, is included in their attractive répertoire. Up-to-date pictures are also shown.

FOLKESTONE.—Leas Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—The visit of the Gipsies and their Jester is being attended with its usual popularity. The Jester (Mr. Will Gane) causes much amusement with his humorous songs and sayings; Miss Marie West's songs are much appreciated; Miss Elsie McIntosh is a charming vocalist and dancer; Mr. Edgar Berte's recitations are excellent; and Mr. Evelyn Wood has a powerful and well-trained voice.

Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company, in The Cingalee, has played to full houses during the week. The principals have included Miss Mollie Woolstenholme, Miss Pauline Hague, Miss Ida Ernest, Mr. Jack Crichton, Mr. Cyril Dane, Mr. J. W. Ford, Mr. Scott Cullen, and Mr. Milroy Cooper, who have all ably sustained their parts.

GATESHEAD.—King's Theatre, Ltd.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—The leading line here is filled by Mr. J. C. Piddock and Fred Winn's company in the sketch The Light in the Window, in which Mr. Winn achieves a triumph as Jim Wishart. Dave Samuels, American comedian, is popular; Allie Moore is a most daring roller skater; Ernesto is a particularly smart juggler; Dolly and Madge McCalla are pleasing duettists; Smarte Bros. are clever and amusing acrobats; Trixie De Tay, a comedienne with something new, and the Kingscope complete the list.

Metropole Theatre.—Sole Lessee, Mr

pictures is shown here this week. The programme is varied by the excellent turns which also appear, viz., Miss Victoria Loving (comedienne and dancer), Vex and Mars (in a neat acrobatic act), and Harry Vernon (comedian and dancer).

THE GEM.—Proprietors, The Goodman Entertainment Co.; Manager, Mr. C. Goodman.—The films here are well up to the average, the chief of them being The Twisted Trail. Mr. Frank Harvey and Miss Nellie Cotter are entertaining in their different items.

GLASGOW. — METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. R. Marriss Davis' répertoire company is appearing here in a variety of plays. On Monday and Tuesday Jane Shore was given. The Duke of Gloucester of Mr. P. B. Woulfe, the manly Antony Yeaste of Mr. Henry Parr, and the Lord Hastings of Mr. R. Marriss Davis were faithfully portrayed. Miss Edith Lorraine, in the pathetic title-rôle, gave an admirable interpretation, ably supported by Miss Josephine Richards as Queen Elizabeth. The play was admirably staged. The Priest of the Temple, The Merchant of Venice, and The Octoroon were also in the week's bill.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—Dan Crawley tops the bill here, and this lively comedian is in good form; Mlle. Camille Ober, Parisian chanteuse, shows herself the possessor of a phenomenal voice, and her various songs were enthusiastically applauded; the Seven Perezoffs provide lots of fun, and are very dexterous in their juggling turn; Harry Leybourne's imitations of the types of singers seen at a country concert prove amusing; Shirley and Ransome take well in a clever little domestic sketch of coster life, entitled Jim's Pal; Williams and Warden, contribute a lot of lively and smart cross-talk; Billy French's wooden-shoe dancing at once puts him on good terms with his audience; Phil Rees' stable lads are a smart lot, and their sketch, with songs, dances, &c., is cleverly carried through; the Blessings show much dexterity in a head and hand-balancing act. The bioscope concludes.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—Clark and Hamilton's dainty and amusing turn always evokes the heartiest enthusiasm; the Harmony Four combine in a marked degree humour and excellent vocalism; roars of laughter greet the sketch Ferdie's Ma-in-Law; Kitty Colyer is a dainty comedienne and expert dancer; the Schaffer Four show wonderful dexterity in their juggling turn; Madge Allen takes well in her comedienne business; Anita Barling is a lady juggler of more than average ability; and the Almas contribute a clever act, comprising equilibristic feats and tumbling.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Wrestling is again the chief attraction here, Pat Connolly challenging all comers; Harry Taft's whistling, patter, and eccentric comedy take well; Lily Edwards is accorded a hearty reception for two chorus songs artistically sung; the Phœnix Trio sing well as New York newsboys, their voices blending beautifully; Three Floradoras shine in song, dance, and comedy; Abel and Welsh give a wonderfully clever acrobatic and contortionist act, introducing a lot of novel feats; Arthur Gallimore Trio are very amusing in a comedy turn; Crosby and Walker, the two Eton boys, have some clever patter; and the latest films are shown on the Palacescope.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—The Futurity Winner, with its realistic setting of a racecourse and real racehorses, is presented by Joseph Hart's company, and proves popular; Doody and Wright are received with enthusiasm for their quaint comedy turn; Margaret Ruby and Ernest Laws are seen to advantage in a protean sketch, The Days of Romance, with a number of clever changes; Dan Thomas, the clever character comedian, is heartily applauded; Mabel Berra, a prima donna from New York, sings several operatic ballads in excellent style; Niagara and Falls as comedy acrobats put in a lot of hard work, and are well received. Clever turns are also given by Harry Marte, Charles Leighton, and Rose Fitzgerald.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Two fresh programmes of pictures weekly are still being presented, and excellent patronage is the result.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Manager, Mr. Wm. Sinclair.—Herr Karl is a very amusing comedy juggler and cartoonist; Careta Dahlia performs daring feats on the flying trapeze; Belle Brandon is a smart comedienne and wooden shoe dancer; and Peter Gill displays wonderful agility in his club swinging act. Other contributors to the bill are H. M. Somers, light comedian; and Frank Newbury, whistler; and a capital selection of pictures is given on the bioscope.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Albert Hengler; Manager, Mr. Harry Milne.—Smart variety turns are given here by the Brothers Long, comedians and dancers; Becky Sharpe, illustrated songstress; and Tom Gilmour, comedian. The remainder of the programme consists of a fine series of films, tragic and comic, and selections are also given on the Auxeto-gramophone.

STAR.—General-Manager, Mr. Guss Lazenberg; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Chandos.—Kerr and Shaw keep the house in good humour with their absurd antics, and are applauded for their clarionette playing; Matt Gilmour is a comedian and raconteur of exceptional merit; Mollie Doon sings in fine style and dances well. Pictures—grave and gay—make up the remainder of the programme.

SCOTTISH ZOO AND CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—This house continues to draw large audiences. The already magnificent collection of animals is still being added to daily. Within the Zoo the Royal Italian Circus is an interesting item, consisting chiefly of the wonderful performance of ponies, monkeys, and dogs.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—One of the brightest attractions this season is the staging of the popular musical play The Arcadians, by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's excellent company. Mr. Gus Oxley as Smith keeps the audience in a continual ripple of laughter; Miss Devine plays with much charm as Eileen; Miss Gladys Silvani is a first-class singer; Miss Marion Edwardes as Sombra is exceedingly popular; Mr. Douglas Mars is an excellent Astropede; and Mr. W. Dawson plays well as Strephon. The play is beautifully staged, and the orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Albert Bartlett.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is presenting with much success Mr. Preedy and the Countess. Mr. A. W. Baskcomb gives a clever performance of Mr. Preedy; Miss Zella Powys plays well as the Countess; and Mr. John Nesbitt makes an excellent Mr. Bonnsall.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The programme presented here is attracting large audiences.—W. Mills, the champion Australian whip expert, is scoring with his remarkably clever display; Elsie Hulbert and her dancing girls are very popular; the Faludy Troupe of acrobats perform clever feats; the Three Torontos are fine athletes; the Taylor Family give a capital aquatic display; and Doodles keeps the audience in a merry mood throughout the evening.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—Dusty Rhodes is topping the bill and is immensely popular; Arthur Newman and Florrie Knights do first-rate juggling; Miss Annie Schubert scores with her scena, The Deputy; Kloof and Ramsey appear in a pleasing musical turn; Archie Nash is an entertainer of marked ability; the Whittakers' comedy skit is well received; the Lyric Mummers are first-class artists; and Jack North's songs are very amusing.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Cash.—Mr. Harry Liston and Miss Lord Lumley score greatly with their speciality Merry Moments; Mr. Selwyn Driver's sketches at the piano are artistic and pleasing; Miss Maude Ashton renders some excellent songs to her own accompaniment; Mr. Cuthbert Allan's selections are well received; and Miss Shipley (soprano) and Mr. Ernest Pike (tenor) complete an entertaining programme.

THE GEM.—Manager, Mr. E. V. Barr.—In addition to a first-rate exhibition of pictures, Ching Ling Fee mystifies the audiences with some wonderful tricks; the Mackays' songs and dances are well received; and Mme. Constance Bellamy well renders songs from her répertoire.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. J. Bennell; General-Manager, Mr. J. B. Lawton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Clayton.—In a fine array of pictures this week the foremost are: The Detective's Dog, The Call of the Heart, and Winter Bathing in the West Indies. The amusing part of the programme is furnished by The Merry Widow Again, Calino Tries the Cold-water Cure, and Off for the Holidays.

GRIMSBY. — PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's company is presenting a répertoire of standard plays, beginning on Monday with The Two Orphans, with Mr. Wilkie as Jacques. Other plays in the week's programme were The Sleigh Bells, The King and the Miller, Jane Shore, and Richelieu. Prominent parts were undertaken by Mr. Philip Gordon, Mr. Herbert Mansfield, Miss Hunter Watts, Miss Mary Lovett, and Miss May Dallas.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—The Garden of Girls is a very attractive speciality presented by Haley's company of vocalists and court dancers; Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene appear in a clever comedietta, My Lady's Chamber, which has a strong dramatic interest; Enzer and Miss Clarice give a novel exhibition, combining juggling, sword business, and jiu-jitsu; Billy Farrell is as entertaining as ever, and his new act, Becky's Masquerade, is very popular; the Northcotes (Madge and May) are charming duettists; Robb Gilmore is a successful comedian who introduces quaint dancing, and Ernie Harlow is a clever mimic.

GUERNSEY. — THEATRE ST. JULIAN. — Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. George A. Deighton.—Consul, the almost man, is the principal attraction here; Burnetti is a good character musician and impersonator; the Sisters Saxony contribute agreeable songs and dances; Lena Leslie delights with her vocal numbers; Mr. Harry Drew's songs create a favourable impression; the Delafiores, baton spinner, are clever; and Bernard and Western, comedians and patterers, interest all; and Mlle. Haydee's marionette show is smartly worked. Mr. George Edwardes's company, in The Merry Widow, fill in the end of the week.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Miss Winifred Maude is here with The Stowaway. Miss Maude takes the part of Althea Dale, and is ably supported by Messrs. Victor Du Cane, Wm. Vane, M. Maud, W. Ernest, M. Soucs, H. Heath, Simpson, H. Johnson, H. Marston, W. Foster, M. Ross, Miss M. Millward, and Mrs. W. Lawrence.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Bertha Ward, a young soprano, has a very sweet voice, and uses it with artistic effect; the Four Panamas give an excellent tumbling, dancing, and pantomimical sketch, From Shadow to Sunshine, a fine dramatic film; The Frontiersman's Bride, an excellent picture depicting a tale of adventure; and His New Mamma, a capital comic picture, are the best of a good selection of pictures.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Sears is a very clever illusionist, and presents an elaborate and attractive turn; Marie Dreams, lady baritone, has a powerful and tuneful voice of good range; the Donaldson Bros. present their laughable sketch Sports in a Jungle; the Werds Bros. introduce some new and startling acrobatic feats; Musical Silvo gives a very pleasing turn; Le Hurst is a good ventriloquist. The pictures complete an excellent bill.

HANLEY. — GRAND. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Yellow Fang is admirably played by Miss Mary Mayfren's company, which includes Mr. George Pickett and Miss Violet Campbell. Rocco, the burlesque acrobat, is clever; Wish Wynne presents a charming act; Fred Evans, in a novel absurdity, Dreaming, is received favourably; Barnes and West are expert dancers; the Brookland Girls are pretty; Hugo and Smit, comedy acrobatic performers, are funny. The pictures are good.

KING'S.—Lessee, Mr. J. P. Moore; Manager, Capt. F. Shaw; Acting-Manager, Mr. Colin Hazelwood.—The chief films here are The Ranch Girl's Legacy, Gold is Not All, The Chemist, A Life for a Locket, &c. Allon Tonks supplies appreciated vaudeville items.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of this week Messrs. Milton Bode and John Hart's company appeared in the ever-popular Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr. Cyril Thompson as the Marquis de Corneville was excellent; Mr. E. St. Alban as Gaspard gave a fine impersonation; Mr. Fred Dark in the part of the Bailie was funny; Miss Ethel Negretti made a dainty Germaine; and Miss Dolly Castles was good as Serpolette. Other parts were in good hands. For the rest of the week Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company appeared in The Little Damozel.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—A capital selection of Ruffell's Pictures is supplemented by the Saletos in a marvellous and refined equilibristic performance, and Kitty Desmond, a dainty and charming comedienne.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. Scutt.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company opened on Monday a three days' visit in Charley's Aunt, which attracted a well-filled house and evoked continuous laughter. Mr. Hugh Wakefield very successfully played Lord Fancourt Babberley; Mr. Henry Hare gave full effect to the character of Stephen Spettigue; the ladies had charming exponents in Miss Audrey Stafford as Donna Lucia, Miss Ruth Henton as Kitty, Miss Phyllis Back as Amy, and Miss Grace Vanna as Ela Delahay, and were excellently supported by Mr. T. McCausland Stewart as Colonel Chesney, Mr. Robert Burnett as Jack, Mr. R. B. Mason as Charley, and Mr. Sydney Compton as Brassett. The Merry Widow is being presented by Mr. George Edwardes's company the remainder of the week.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Maxwell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hawker.—Mr. Charles Graham's company is here in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. As Capt. Harry Peyton, Mr. Arthur Poole gives a convincing rendering; Mr. Graham Phillips effectively personates Major John Colden; Mr. Valentine is a clever characteristic sketch by Mr. Cecil Clayton; Miss Olive Noble charmingly depicts Miss Elizabeth Philipsen; Molly Edwards is admirably represented by Miss Nora McDonnell, and Miss Leonora Braham is graceful in the part of Mistress Sarah Williams.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—Mr. Wallis Arthur's concerts are well patronised. The programme is continually varied, and each alteration seems to be more attractive. Mr. George Blackmore has a budget of diverting and original songs, and his patter is as droll as ever; Miss Nellie Perryer at the piano sings charmingly; Mr. Oldbury Brough is a big favourite, his humour being much enjoyed; Miss Gladys Hill sings with expression; an accomplished singer is seen in Mr. Harold Vincent; and Mr. Harry Kemp receives applause for his spirited singing.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres, Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Mr. Frank Lindo and company are here in Home, Sweet Home. Miss Marion Wakeford is a charming Joan; Mr. Lindo is manly as Stephen Armitage; Mr. Sidney Dench plays with quiet dignity as the Duke of Ancaster; Mr. L. Laurence makes all his points well as the villainous Lyle; and much amusement is caused by the vagaries of the Hon. Percy (Mr. Bert Dench) and Sybil Fay (Miss Helen Holmes). The remaining characters are adequately represented.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—The leading place this week is taken by Atlas, the strong man, who is accompanied by Miss Vulcana, the Sisters Atlas, and Little Gus, all of whom exhibit considerable skill and grace in their various feats of strength. Others are Miss Elsie and Cousin Bob in some clever and difficult feats of balancing; the Four Rosebuds, graceful singers and dancers; Miss Ethel Entwistle, a sweet and refined vocalist; Reed and Stevens, in a laughable duologue; Harry Waldon, comedian; and Walter Ellis and company in the screaming absurdity entitled The Sleepwalker. The pictures complete.

HULL. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Morton's Co.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton. — The Mockery of Marriage is a play that has already been spoken of with a considerable number of compliments on previous occasions, so that on the present it is only necessary to speak of the excellent acting. Mr. Graham Arthur's company is a good one, and Miss Mabel Liston as Alva and Miss Lillian Beaumont as Rose play with considerable force. The heavy rôle is rendered by Mr. W. Graham Arthurs; and Mr. M. McKenzie is an effective Seth Pearce. The comic relief is efficiently provided by Miss Ada Baird and Mr. David Phillips. The hero finds a good representative in Mr. Ernest Wingfield.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—Variety is again doing excellent business. Mr. Jack Holland is an original comedian; Annie Lang, comedienne and dancer, wins favour; F. Mozetto is an expert juggler; Webb and Edna Branston, operatic duettists, achieve a success; the Custances have a sparkling comedietta, entitled A Game for Two; and the Musical Marvels, vocalists and novelty instrumentalists, and Mr. Ernest Montefiore and company in The Little Colonel are greatly admired.

THE PALACE.—Lessees, Jarrow Palace Co.; Manager, Mr. John V. Kane.—At this place of amusement some excellent pictures are being shown, and variety is introduced by Garton's Ten Star Coons, who are a big success. Mr. J. D. Williams, eccentric character comedian, also scores.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, Messrs. John Weddle and Co.; Manager, Mr. John Rabey.—This place of amusement continues to show some fine pictures. Variety is introduced by Jack Shevill, comedian, and the Sisters Laurenson, duettists.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lesley Edwards.—Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus's company is here with that very successful play The Thief. Mr. Limpus acted admirably as Richard Chelford, and was heartily applauded; Miss Mary Carnegy was well received as Marise Chelford; Mr. Carl W. Lindsay won favour as Harry; Mr. F. Morland was an able Raymond Leyton; Miss Mary Forrester did well as Isabel Leyton; and Mr. W. Somerset appeared as Mr. Protheroe.

ROYAL HALL.—Mr. T. J. West is showing some excellent pictures here.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietor, Mr. Louis Marks; Manager, Mr. Leopold.—The Dutch Drolls are the chief attraction here, and are a very smart troupe.

TRIANGLE PARK.—The Gaieties, old favourites, are paying a visit here after an absence of some years, and Mr. Wilson James and Miss Ruby Wilson receive quite an ovation.

ALHAMBRA.—Proprietors, Messrs. L. C. Langlois and L. Ponlain.—The Electric Pictures go well, and Eva Ward is still here.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Ernest Mansell opened here this week with his well-known patriotic entertainment, entitled "Life in the King's Service."

LEEDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nathaniel Hepworth.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is here with Two Little Drummer Boys. Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith are well played by Miss Maggie English and Maudie B. Douglas respectively; and Captain George Darrell is convincingly portrayed by Mr. Polson Turner; Miss Violet Langley is splendid in the rôle of Alma Kingley; and Miss Ada Champion does well as Margaret Rivers.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—La Pia heads the bill here, and she appears in her Japanese and fire dances and the latest novelty, "The Sea Nymph," which is much appreciated; William Mitchell and J. J. Cain present a very laughable sketch, The Frenchman and the Other Fellow; and Cassie Walmer wins approval in song and sand dance. Other good turns are done by J. A. Wilson and his dog "Towser," the Jackley Trio, the Maples, and Aida Martine. Arthur Leslie gives two clever imitations; and A. C. Lilley and company present in new form their military sketch, entitled Drummed Out.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Sandy McNab makes his first appearance here in the humorous sketch The Egyptian Mummy; Lalla Selbini, American bathing girl, does a varied act, including trick cycling and juggling, and wins much approval; Ben Lewin gives capital character-studies from Dickens; Walker and Lake provide smart patter in a little sketch dealing with phrenology; Daisy James contributes several popular songs; Miss Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane are entertaining in Visitors. Kitty Upton, Enid Errol, and Chas. Hampden's company in Cloudland; and the Lacon Family also appear to complete a capital company.

THE VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, is a pleasing vocalist and also a clever pianist; Smith and Gibbs are exceedingly smart equilibrists; and Harry Raymond and Daughter are well received in coon song and dance; Will Rhodes, Hilda de Gray, Milton Trio, etc., complete a bright bill.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—An ovation is being extended to G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, who heads a good all-round programme here. Mr. Elliott's style is of such a fascinating nature, and his dancing so neat and smart, that he can be truly said to be one of Leicester's greatest favourites. Another artist who is achieving a big success is Peggy Pryde, the cheerful comedienne, who keeps the audience in continual merriment. The Twelve Fezzans, who are natives of the Sahara, give a remarkable acrobatic display; Frank Cumminger and Frances Colonna make a hit with their clever sand dancing; Rich Taylor's novel ventriloquial act is popular; Leo Tell's equine conversations and imitations of instruments are realistic; Lawrence Barclay makes a success with a really mirth-provoking turn; Azella Wilson is an attractive and clever lady gymnast; Will Poluski, jun., is a humorous comedian; Nellie Farrell renders an Irish song and dances cleverly; the bioscope is also retained.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—The leading feature in a capital programme is Alice Hughes and company in the mirth-provoking playlet, The Star of the Bazaar; the Garden Troupe of International Dancers and Pipers are making a hit with a clever show; Tom Gott is good in his Yorkshire dialect songs and stories; the Dulcets (Edyth and Evelyn) are making a successful appearance. Others in the programme are Harold Heath, the dandy coon and dancer; Dolly Ross, comedienne; the Sisters Lylle, vocalists and dancers; and George Acre, character comedian. Another successful beauty and hair competition is being held, for which valuable prizes are competed for by large entries. The bioscope pictures include One Night—and Then; Susan's Revenge, and Fools of Fate.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. N. Craig.—The usual high standard of picture entertainments is maintained here, the two principal films this week being A True Indian's Heart and Setting Back the Hands of Time. Other attractive and well-shown films include Beneath the Gas, Woman from Mellons, Punch, the Benefactor; Simone, The Capture of a Vagrant, The Highlander's Defiance, and A Cocoanut Plantation. Ryder Davis, a popular comedian, is an additional attraction.

THE EMPRESS PICTURE PALACES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. P. W. Willard.—At both the Belvoir-street and Mere-road halls, where the pictures are changed twice a week, the management continue to place before their patron's a diversified and up-to-date programme.

LIVERPOOL.—STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Night and Morning is occupying the boards here this week. Mr. Stanley Carlton, who brings an able company, plays the part of Richard Sefton with spirit and dignity; Mr. Bertram Damer looks the rôle of Lionel Mildmay; Miss Rubie Maude admirably portrays Alice Wylford; Mr. Claud Aymond proves excellent as Dr. Gilmour; great laughter follows the work of Miss Marion Holly (Selina), Mr. Willie H. Vernon (Bob Barleycorn), and Miss Jenny Bostock (Mrs. Barleycorn); and creditable support also comes from Messrs. John Croudace (Lucas Hardshore), James Hart (Muggins), Arthur Merdaunt (the Vicar), and G. E. Gilmour (Jenkins).

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Top of the bill here this week is Miss Fannie Ward and company in the capital playlet An Unlucky Star. Miss Ward's powers as an actress are very telling. The always-welcome Miss Harriett Vernon brings her latest naval scena, "Emblems"; My Fancy, on real ice skates, shows some remarkable dancing in her new work, "Winter, Spring, and Summer"; the Gothams provide a treat with their harmonising singing and fun; as whirlwind dancers Hasse and Mariette do themselves much credit; the Miller Bros. cause shouts of laughter with gymnastic work and burlesque wrestling; Emmie Ames pleases with her latest "Christmas Tree"; the Findens (Mr. and Mrs. Harold) afford great pleasure with their sketch; and Harry Bancroft earns popularity by reason of his chorus songs.

LYRIC.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Twice-nightly drama here continues to be exceedingly popular. This week we are having Geoffrey Langdon's Wife, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown's company. Mr. Wilson Coleman admirably undertakes the rôle of Felix Beverley; Mr. Edward E. Louis makes a capital Jack Sterling; Miss Amy Ellam as Mary acts with judgment; Miss Minnie Goepel pleases as Sweet Nancy; Mr. Reginald Brown exhibits power in the strong rôle of Geoffrey Langdon; and worthy support also comes from Messrs. Cyril Grier (Colonel Miles), Mr. Harland Brookes (Detective Banks), and Miss Kathleen Magee (Hon. Mrs. Sands).

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—The big feature here this week is Mlle. Denarber, the mysterious "balloon girl," who, whilst seated in a balloon, which is ingeniously swung over the stalls when the lights are down, sings very effective songs; Gorman's Juveniles have a pretty vocal scena, "The Waif"; the Six Ceylons are presented by Joseph Clifton, and go through a funny pantomimical acrobatic sketch, A Dream in an Opium Den; Lindsay and Hart offer a smart Scotch comedy act; Carlotta Lovey affords general delight with her latest songs; Susie and Protti go through a clever dancing turn, entitled "The Human Tee-to-tum"; the Hessey's submit a new instrumental act, which is greatly enjoyed; and also in the list are Madge Osmond, the "ideal dandy," and J. W. Gallagher, comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Here this week the stock company are presenting Moths. Mr. Sydney Grant plays in capital style Prince Sergius; as Lord Jura Mr. Harry Tresham acts with ability; Miss Nina Blake Adams presents the Duchess de Sonnaz in most pleasing fashion; Miss Florence Cameron fits the rôle of Fuchsia; Miss Lina Nazeby carefully portrays Lady Dolly; and also in the cast are Mr. Tom H. Solly (Duke of Mull), Mr. Leo Montgomery (Raphael), Mr. Cecil Ravenswood (Ivan), and Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Vere Herbert).

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. M. Slater.—Foremost here this week is Oswald Williams with his excellent illusions, in which he is assisted by Winifred La Barte and company. The whole performance is richly enjoyed. A wonderful exhibition of lightning juggling is given by the Five Mowatts, and they earn rounds of applause; Mathews and Cowper create great laughter with their funny sketch, When the Clock went Wrong; Lena Verdi pleases generally as a vocalist and mimic; that lively coloured comedian, Charles J. Johnson, gains plenty of applause; the Three Laurels present a clever speciality act; Lupino Lane dances in good style; and also on the programme are Arthur Slater, "the whistling man in white," and Sybil St. Elmo, vocalist.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Topping the bill this week is Jake Friedman's Happy Holland, which is being received with delight. The company includes Jake Friedman, Leigh Ellis, Maud Lockwood, Chas. Mavern, L. Grey, and Florence Hanton. The singing of the Lancashire mill girl, Maggie Walsh, is much appreciated; A Woman's Curiosity, given by the Moncktons, causes laughter; the Hartley Wonders have an exceedingly clever jumping speciality; Alick Lauder sings amusing Scotch songs; as head and hand balancers the Adras show much skill; and contributions also come from Dix and Dox, Continental musical grotesques, Gertie Rex, character comedienne, and Harry Luck, comedian.

LLANDUDNO.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—The farcical comedy Where is William was presented to a full house on Monday. In the part of Sir William Gregory Mr. Charles Windermere was excellent, and thoroughly sustained the merriment throughout the evening. He was ably supported by Mr. Rule Pyott as William Jolly; Mr. Robert Urquhart gave a creditable performance of Harry, and Mr. Leslie Norman was well placed as General Rahbuh; Miss Belle Donaldson showed ability in the rôle of Lady Gregory; Miss Clare Manfield as Phyllis Patterson did well, and Miss May Rosine (Emily) and Miss Zoe Davis (Eliza) did all required of them. The Clown provided an ideal curtain-raiser, in which Miss Zoe Davis, Mr. Robert Urquhart, Mr. Rule Pyott, and Mr. Charles Windemere acquitted themselves capitally. Candida was announced for the last three days.

PIER HEAD PAVILION.—Local Manager, Mr. A. B. Sutcliffe.—Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale's Vaudeville Entertainers continue to draw crowded houses both afternoon and evening. The star artist is Mr. Fred Walmsley, who convulses the audiences with his witticisms; Nellie Le Bretton is a comedienne above the average; Norman Osborne's ventriloquial efforts are thoroughly appreciated; Emilie Tait's soprano solos are rendered feelingly; Olly King does well as a light comedian, and A. B. Sutcliffe, the local favourite, is as popular as ever. Bert de Crez is an efficient accompanist.

PIER PAVILION.—The orchestra under Mr. A. W. Payne, A.R.C.M., delights large audiences nightly, and Miss Rosina Beynon is a great favourite.

LLANELLY. — HAGGAR'S THEATRE (late the Royalty).—Proprietor, Mr. W. Haggar, sen.; Manager, Mr. James Haggar.—This theatre, lately acquired by Mr. W. Haggar, of Bioscope show fame, has been thoroughly renovated by him and electric light installed. The theatre has been opened this week with pictures and variety on the "two-houses-a-night" system, and with great success. The pictures include the very latest, and the American film, Thou Shalt Not. Parr and Parker, Welsh comedians, are also in the bill, and are popular; Mr. Helliers is a taking vocalist, and his illustrated songs are very good.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—VINT'S ELECTRIC HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Vint's entertainments continue to attract crowded houses. A superior set of pictures is shown this week, Paid in Full, The Sorceress, and Seabird Rocks being films worth special mention. Ray and Douglas (The Postman and the Girl) give a smart turn, their repartee being refreshing; Sadie and Vone, American Amusers (coloured artists), and the Three Van Earles, dancers and vocalists, are also good in song and dance.

TEMPERANCE HALL. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Evanson.—The star pictures here are Cagliostro and Victims of Fate, two very fine films. The Lovelaces, American song illustrators, give a good turn, some of their "slides" being very effective.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—Mr. Percy Hutchson's company opened their tour here with a successful representation of the comedy Smith. The company is of all-round excellence, and the efforts of the players are cordially acknowledged by a large audience. Miss Cicely Stuckey and Mr. Robert Minster are seen to advantage in the more important characters and make full use of the opportunities afforded them. The play is mounted and dressed with taste.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—Some capital varieties and pictures are drawing large audiences. The artists include the Brooklyn Comedy Four, in musical harmony; Taree, Australian instrumentalist; and the Luzellas, lady gymnasts, in a clever act.

MAESTEG.—PICTURE PALACE.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—A strong bill is provided here this week, the chief films being The Lie, A Fisherman's Wife, San Juan Hill, and The Girl and the Ranger. Hearty receptions are accorded the Musical Palmers, and Alpho, the sleeping ventriloquist.

MANCHESTER. — ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—The Midnight Mail is the attraction here, played by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company. The cast is an excellent one, Mr. George Harvard as Harry Steyne, the engine driver, Miss Trissie Humphrys as May, his wife, Mr. W. Hatchman as Leonard Royle, the Manager, Miss Mildred Carr as Nancy, and Mr. Fred G. Evison as the amusing Billy Brewer all supplying admirable impersonations.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Facing the World Alone, a play of strong dramatic interest, is staged here this week by Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty. Mr. J. Edward Whitty gives a powerful delineation of Caleb Valentine, and Miss Nellie Garside is quite equal to the character of 'Melia Burgess; Miss Edith Rutland as the Duchess of Pimlico handles a strong part well, and Mr. Charles O'Connor is capital as Capt. Parkhurst, while Mr.

Guy P. Ellis comes in for appreciation as Jim Mouler. The other parts are well filled.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—When Woman Hates is being presented here by Mr. Bulmer's capable company. Mr. Richard Ferris gives a powerful interpretation of Lieutenant Fred Rokeby; Godfrey Lawton finds an able exponent in Mr. Austin Mortimer; and Mr. Percy Folliss is conspicuous as Colonel Hiram. Miss Doris Brookes proves herself to be a talented actress as Cora Daintry; Miss Jean Scott makes a sympathetic Edith Rokeby; and Miss Ada Oakley deserves praise for her representation of Marie Rokeby. The humorous rôles are capably filled by Miss Mary Dalby as Mrs. Sally Potts, Mr. Evan Roland as Patrick O'Brien, and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd as Alphonse Picolot.

WORTHING. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Malcolm Spurgin.—For the first three nights of the week the stage was occupied by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and his company, who presented for the first time locally the brilliant dramatic play The Mummy and the Humming Bird. The interpretation of the part of Lord Lumley by Mr. Stewart was perfect; as the unscrupulous Signor Mr. Lewin Mannering deserved high commendation; and Mr. Charles Groves, jun., was a praiseworthy Guiseppe. Miss A. Bruce-Joy as Lady Lumley won the admiration of all. Others in the cast included Mr. Percy Marmont, Mr. Eric Morden, Mr. J. E. Turner, and Mr. George Branton, and the Misses Constance Barton and Maisie Richardson.

THE KURSAAL GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold.—The bright and entertaining party the Comedy Comets continue to do good business here, and the Gardens are filled nightly with appreciative audiences.

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—Messrs. Pooles have adopted an excellent plan, viz., of giving an entire change of pictures twice weekly. The leading films are Bradford's Claim, The Black Peril, Aviation, His Just Deserts, and The Eleventh Hour, a very thrilling picture. The Cinephone, as usual, has some excellent songs, illustrated.

BIRMINGHAM EMPIRE PICNIC.

Last Sunday the weather outlook was very unpromising, but the one hundred persons who went on the Birmingham Empire picnic to Bewdley did not give way to depression. It was a merry party, and the few showers of rain during the day did not mar the enjoyable programme arranged by the genial manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham, and his able lieutenant, Mr. A. Williams. This is how the day was spent:—9.30 a.m., entrained at Snow Hill Station, refreshments, varied and first-class, provided en route; 10.45, arrived at Bewdley, a charming village in the Midlands, on the River Severn; 11.15, prepared for fishing contest, and boating on river; 1 o'clock, five-course dinner at the George Hotel; 3 p.m., trip up the river to Arley, more refreshments; 6.30, return journey to Bewdley; 8.45, entrained for Birmingham. At the close of the dinner Mr. Matcham (who was in the chair), and who was supported by Mr. Westwood, of Walsall, Mr. Harold Wallis, and Mr. Albert Bushell (Gaiety), made an interesting presentation of a gold watch on behalf of staff and friends to Mr. Jim Hardy, who has retired from the staff to enter into business on his own account. Mr. Matcham said Mr. Hardy had been with the firm over sixteen years, and had proved a tried and trusted servant. He hoped Mr. Hardy would live as long as the watch lasted. Mr. Hardy, in returning thanks, said he could not wish to serve under a better master than Mr. Matcham, and the watch would always remind him of the happy days spent at the Empire. This ceremony over, laughter reigned while Mr. Matcham presented the prizes to the successful anglers. "Hold up your fish," called the chairman, and elderly persons in the company donned their glasses to view the sprats. However, if the fish (?) were valueless, the prizes were not. Mr. Selby, the popular stage-manager, received as first prize a silver drinking-cup; Mr. Thomas, second, a watch; Mr. Williams, third, case of pipes; and Mr. Francis a pipe and Mr Bushell's prize for the smallest catch.

HENRY FOSTER, an actor, of Great Barlow-street, Marylebone, was charged on remand, on the 22nd inst., at Bow-street Police-court, before Sir Albert de Rutzen, with stealing a revolver from the Lyceum Theatre. On May 26 the prisoner was charged with firing a revolver on the public highway near Covent Garden market, and was bound over in his own recognisances. The weapon was detained by the police, and it was subsequently ascertained that it had been stolen from the Lyceum Theatre on the previous day. Last week the prisoner, who was arrested by Detective Phillips, told the magistrate that he took the revolver from the property room at the theatre "for revenge," as he had been discharged for being late for rehearsal. It was now stated that although the prisoner had asked for employment at the theatre he was not engaged. Sir Albert de Rutzen said Mr. Martin Harvey, the actor, had written to say that the prisoner bore a good character. In the circumstances he would only be bound over in his own recognisances to come up for judgment if called upon.

AT the Ladbroke Hall on Friday, the 22nd inst., was given a special copyright performance of The Girl of My Dreams, a musical comedy in three acts, book and lyrics by W. D. Nesbit and Otto Hauerbach, music by Karl Hoschna.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, the Comedy, by T. W. Robertson, entitled "HOME."

On Monday, July 25, the sixth of these interesting revivals took place at the Coronet, before a large and appreciative audience. This comedy, from the pen of the late T. W. Robertson, was adapted from Emile Augier's L'Aventurière, and first produced in January, 1869, at the Haymarket, with such notable actors as E. H. Sothern, Henry Compton, Ada Cavendish, &c., in the leading rôles. In 1881 it was revived at the St. James's by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, with Sir John Hare and Miss Kate Bishop also in the cast. The present revival, under the auspices of the enterprising manager of the Coronet, Mr. Eade Montefiore, is replete with interest, and all the parts are excellently rendered. Mr. James Carew is really admirable as the "prodigal son," Alfred Dorrison, who returns from seeking a fortune in foreign parts just in time to prevent his venerable father from being caught in the toils of an adventuress, and to save his youthful sister from the unwelcome attentions of the cowardly swindler Captain Mountraffe. His manly appearance and humorous interpretation of the part quite win all hearts, and relief is experienced when the dangerous course of deception he is obliged to practise ends so happily for all parties concerned.

Miss Adeline Bourne acts with force and intensity as the finally repentant adventuress, Mrs. Pinchbeck, a lady of the Becky Sharp order, with yearnings after higher things. She is particularly fine in the closing scene, where all the woman's blandishments have met with ignominious failure, but her character is redeemed by real love for Dorrison, the man who has schemed to bring about her downfall. Miss Nell Compton gives us a fresh and charming picture of the schoolgirl in love in her interpretation of Lucy Dorrison, and she is ably seconded by Mr. Geoffrey Wilkinson as Bertie Thomson, the amusing young lover. Miss Doris Marshall looks pretty, and is appropriately coy and demure as the somewhat spiteful little ingénue, Dora Thornhaugh. Mr. O. B. Clarence acts with dignity in the small part of the infatuated father, Mr. Dorrison, and Mr. Edward Sass is intensely funny as Mrs. Pinchbeck's drunken reprobate of a brother. His droll costume as the "little soldier" from Mexico, his drunken antics, and sublime self-conceit make "Captain" Mountraffe lose half his repulsiveness, card-sharper and bully though we know him to be. In the intervals of the play the Chamber Quartet played some greatly-appreciated selections.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, entitled
"THE SAILOR'S WEDDING."

Mr. H. Brinsley Hill's drama The Sailor's Wedding was produced by the Kennington répertoire company on Monday last. Mr. Walter Gay made a sailorly-looking hero as Lieutenant Gordon Drake of H.M.S. Fearnought; Miss Jessie Winter was a graceful and sympathetic Mary Bellini; Count Bellini was carefully enacted by Mr. Frank Crimp; Mr. Cecil Klein supplied an admirable enactment of Sir Victor Lascelles, the friend of Drake, his performance throughout being a very praiseworthy one; Mr. G. P. Poulson was a picturesque Ferici, the villain, who plotted for the hand of Mary; Miss Winifred Whyte found ample scope for her histrionic gifts as Lenore de Gresac, the adventuress, giving a powerful delineation of the character; Mr. Frank Bertram was full of dry humour as Jack Hawkins, the sailor lover of Polly Clarke, the waitress at the Bunch of Grapes. The latter part was played with much vivacity by Miss Nellie Burdette. Mr. W. Sidney as Bill Burns, the rival of Hawkins in Polly's affections, was excellent; and Miss C. Bertram was well placed as the French Maid. Mr. George Cockburn's interpretation of Giacomo Ferrara was a realistic study, Mr. W. J. Yeldham was admirable as the priest, and Miss Mary Kilpack adequately filled the rôle of Countess Bellini.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, entitled
"THE BEAUTIFUL AVENGER."

This week witnessed the return of two of the popular stock company to play lead in this production, Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson and Miss Mary Pemberton, and a cordial reception has nightly been accorded this successful drama, with the ever-popular Mr. Newman Maurice in the cast as a grocer's assistant, Peregrine Patch. As the Beautiful Avenger Miss Mary Pemberton realised perfectly the character, and gave a clever piece of acting. Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson, too, did valued work as the artist, Cyrus Telford. Mr. W. H. Porter stands out prominent as Zadok Foxbane; and Mr. Victor Loraine is successful as his son, Herman. Mr. Will Smith does good work as Jim Jhams. Miss May Day displays ability as Baldie Mansfield. Miss Lilian Claire is good as Edna Volta; and Miss Grace Emery is in every way a capital representative of Arabella Binks. A word of praise must be awarded to Mr. C. Johnston as the detective Weston. Mr. F. A. Scudamore's drama is very picturesquely mounted and staged. The orchestra played some pretty selections, under the bâton of the chef d'orchestre, Mr. W. T. Gliddon. The Bank Holiday attraction is The Temptress.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, entitled
"DRIVING A GIRL TO DESTRUCTION."

Mr. Morton Powell's No. 1 company is presenting the above-named play effectively. Miss Maud M. Powell as Ruby Wright adds to grace of person the charm of finished acting. Miss Edith Wallis as Lucas List's cast-off mistress is a powerful characterisation. Lucas List is admirably interpreted by Mr. Walter Clarke. Mr. Leslie Austin as Robert Ray portrays his part with great strength. Mme. de Meral as played by Miss Anna Corri could hardly be in better hands. Miss Lilla Nordon as Bessie Betts, the barmaid of the Blue-Bell, rings the changes on gaiety and gravity with success. Ned Chipples is ably played by Miss Eva Norman. Mr. Henry Scatchard's performance of Octavius Screw is excellent. Mr. Edward Swinton as Billy Broad is very funny. The part of Freddy Feather is suitably allotted to Mr. William Clements; that of the Rev. Christopher Lovett is well handled by Mr. William Berson. Miss Edith Taylor as Florence Slade and Miss Doris Drew as Lilly Chubb are satisfactory. Miss Emily Ruff is well played by Miss Rachel Rose. Mr. Mackintosh Clyde is good as Bobby Broad. Mr. George S. Darling is adequate as P.C. Clearing; and Mr. W. Witty does well as William Wadd.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, July 25, the Drama, entitled
"DANGEROUS WOMEN."

The attraction this week at the Shakespeare is Mr. F. A. Scudamore's well-known play Dangerous Women, which is excellently played by a capable company, under the direction of Mr. Otto Minster. The piece met with a good reception on Monday evening, and the interest and sympathy of the audience were enlisted from beginning to end. As Cora Fay Miss V. St. Lawrence is provided with a strong part, to which she did every justice, cleverly depicting the utterly infamous character of the woman. Her partner in vice, Lola Lascelles, was ably portrayed by Miss Lilian Duncher. Miss Ada Dawson contributed a sympathetic rendering of the part of the much-wronged Sylvia Rothwell; and Miss Lily Belding as Mrs. Raby was effective. Miss Maggie Arthur scored a success in the rôle of the generous newspaper boy, Joe Perkins; and Miss Rosie Arthur did well as the blind girl, Polly Perkins. The humour of the piece was in the hands of Miss Lucy Murray as Bessy Basket and Mr. George P. Lester as Elijah Smudge, who caused considerable amusement by their humorous antics. Mr. Otto Minster played in manly fashion as Ronald Courtney; Mr. Gerald Venning displayed ability in his impersonation of Colonel Rothwell; and Mr. Charles Fortescue made the most of his opportunity as Mark Raby. Mr. Walter Grahame was seen to advantage as Mr. Dysart; and Mr. Alexander Bradley gave a forcible delineation of the half-mad Dr. Paul Dysart. Mr. Elliston Bevens as Sir Reggie Hopgood acts in amusing style; and Mr. Tom Tindall put in some very excellent work as the burglar, Dick Pudsey. Other parts were capably filled.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

On Monday, July 25, the Play entitled
"MAN TO MAN."

The above well-known play forms the attraction here, being presented by a company under the direction of Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Clifford Bown. A very consistent performance is given by Mr. Edward Lloyd as the much-tried and deeply-wronged hero, George Gordon. Mr. Charles Stirling infuses a sufficient amount of villainy into the despicable character of George Ellerton; Mr. Charles Coleman gives a manly and dignified impersonation of the Rev. Philip Ormond, known as the Mad Parson; and Mr. Bruce Williams is quite amusing as "the wanderer with no means of existence," Samuel Plumtree. A fine character-study is supplied by Mr. Clifford Bown as Bill Burkley, a convict. Miss Maude Ryder acts in a simple and effective manner as the boy, Ned Doyle; and Miss Anna Beaumont is at times amusing as Miss Lavina Dove. A good impersonation of the revengeful gipsy, Madge, is given by Miss Francis May, and Miss Beatrice Hone plays in a natural and sympathetic manner throughout as the true-hearted Ethel Maythorne. All the minor characters are in safe hands, and the play is well staged.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, the Drama, in a Prologue and Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE CHRISTIAN."

After a long spell of varieties, which are appreciated by a large section of Kingstonians, there was a return on Monday to drama again, and dramatic productions will be the attraction for several weeks, Mr. Davey, the managing-director, having secured some first-class bookings. Mr. Marcus D. Draper's company are appearing in the play, and give a fine representation of the stirring incidents in this very human production. Filling the part of John Storm himself, he carries the house with him by the earnestness and force of his acting; and Miss Gladys Purnell, who appears as Glory Quayle, also gives a fine impersonation of the part. The Lord Robert Ure of Mr. Stephen Ewart is a finished piece of acting; and a most creditable appearance is made by Mr. W. Burgess Barratt as Horatio Drake. A pretty picture of Miss Callendar is given by Miss Rose Burgess, whose Scotch accent is beyond reproach; and other parts are ably filled by the Misses Marsie Richardson, Ina Rosant, Alexandra Lisle, Margaret Woolfinden, Dorothy Wilmer, and Winifred Palmer, and Messrs. Burton, Yaldwin, Edwin Ling, Aylmer Williams, Walter Watford, Percy Callingford, Julian Symes, and George Weir. Mr. Barratt also acts as stage-manager and producer.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

On Thursday, July 21, Giacomo Puccini's Opera, "MANON LESCAUT."

Puccini's Manon Lescaut was performed for the first time this season at Covent Garden on Thursday night, July 21. Since 1908, when Mlle. Cavalieri appeared as the heroine, Manon Lescaut has not been heard at the Royal Opera, as the great popularity of Puccini's later works has overshadowed the composer's operatic version of the Abbé Prévost's novel. Musically, Puccini's opera is most attractive, but the Manon of Massenet from a dramatic point of view deals more effectively with the various incidents of the story. The performance on Thursday week was excellent in many respects. Mme. Kousnietzoff, who played the heroine for the first time at Covent Garden, made a favourable impression on the audience. Although dramatically the part does not suit Mme. Kousnietzoff so well as some of her other impersonations, the music was beautifully sung, the Russian artist being at her best in the great scene with Des Grieux. Mr. Martin as Des Grieux sang with impassioned fervour, and if at times, owing to enthusiasm, the vocalist displayed a tendency to force his voice, the fine duet in the second act was splendidly sung by both artists; while Mr. Martin acted with no little dramatic power at the close of the third act. Signor Sammarco by his great ability made even the part of Lescaut interesting; and Signor Gianoli-Galletti gave a clever study of Geronte. Signor Zucchi was an effective Edmondo; and Mlle. Egener deserved praise for her singing in the charming "Madrigal" for female voices. The two parts of the Sergente and L'Oste were successfully doubled by Signor Sampieri; and Signor Panizza on the whole may be credited with obtaining from the orchestra a smooth and attractive performance of the opera.

The performance of Aïda on Saturday, July 23, has not been surpassed during the present season. Mr. Riccardo Martin impersonated Radames, a part which so admirably suited the American vocalist that it was a matter of regret this esteemed tenor has not been heard in Verdi's fine opera earlier. Mr. Martin sang grandly and with impassioned fervour worthy of his distinguished companion, Mlle. Destinn, whose magnificent performance of the unhappy slave girl is justly considered one of the famous artist's finest creations. As Amonasro M. Baklanoff appeared for the first time, and acted with dramatic intensity, while his fine baritone voice was heard to advantage in the music. After the third act the artists were received with a perfect storm of applause. Mme. Kirkby Lunn repeated her excellent interpretation of Amneris, and the rest of the cast was the same as on a former occasion. Signor Panizza conducted with zeal, and the ensemble generally reached a high standard.

La Traviata was given on Tuesday night at Covent Garden, and as Mme. Melba appeared in the part of Violetta a crowded house was the result. There is, of course, nothing fresh to say about Verdi's old opera, but the occasion had special interest owing to Mme. Melba's brilliant singing. Being in splendid voice, the great prima donna gave such a finished rendering of the certainly charming music that the enthusiasm was unbounded, and after a performance of "Ah fors' e lui," which the singer has never surpassed, Mme. Melba received a perfect ovation. Mr. John McCormack as Alfredo sang artistically, and Signor Sammarco was again an excellent Germont. Signor Panizza conducted, and secured a smooth performance.

M. Lugné-Poe's next work to be produced at the Théâtre de l'Œuvre will be Kesa, a play M. Robert d'Humières brought back from Japan, founded on a curious legend. The excellent cast will comprise Mme. Suzanne Desprès, M. de Max, and M. Lugné-Poe.

Among the most important novelties of the coming theatrical season in Berlin are the following plays: Maria Magdalene—if the censorship can be prevailed upon—and The Blue Bird, by Maeterlinck, both at the Deutsches; Georg Hirschfeld's drama, Das neue Leben, at the Lessing; Helene's Heimkehr, by Bornhagen, translated into German by Stefan Zweig, at the Berliner; and new French farces at the Residenz, Trianon, and New Schauspielhaus. Leoncavallo's Maia will be the first novelty at the Royal Opera.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL AT WHITLEY BAY.

The old "Spanish City," the first venture of anything like a permanent amusement abode in the popular seaside resort which has sprung to such prominence during the past two decades—due very largely to its close proximity to the metropolis of the North, Newcastle, and the whole of Tyneside and district, with its complex population of about one million souls, and also in a great measure to private enterprise and an excellent and practical local Council authority—has now been revitalised.

There is an excellent electric train service from and to Newcastle every quarter of an hour up to midnight. There is also connection to and from the North, to North and South Shields, to Sunderland, and surrounding districts.

Towards the close of last year the "Spanish City," with its various side-shows and other attractions, was acquired and floated by the Whitley Pleasure Gardens, Limited, and o'er the ashes of the "City," Phœnix-like, has arisen a great white palace in a way only existing in the imaginative realms of the Arabian Nights, and those who are familiar to Whitley Bay, or anyone in the habit of spending part of their leisure on the invigorating coast, may well ask themselves if they are not living under the beneficent sway of Harum Al Raschid. The buildings are of a permanent character, the principal parts being on the most modern form of construction, known as ferro-concrete, on the Hennibigue principle—a mechanical combination of concrete and steel which is said to result in qualities of permanency that will vie with anything in the past. The strength of this material, considering its bulk and form, exceeds anything ever anticipated by the great constructors of former times. This was very strikingly evidenced the other day by the severe test to which the theatre gallery was subjected by the authorities, when something like 100 tons dead weight was applied on the extreme overhang of the cantilevers without showing any appreciable movement.

The effect from the links and front is decidedly impressive. The façade fronts on to the main promenade on the sea-banks, and its centre portion, some 120ft. in length, is double storied and is flanked by two imposing and elegant towers, surmounted with copper terpsichorean life sized figures. Immediately behind these the great dome stands out boldly against the sky-line. It is a hemisphere of 50ft. in diameter, encircled at the base by twelve lunettes giving light to the interior. Crowning all is a 20ft. copper lantern. The total height from the ground to the top of the flagstaff is over 110ft., and it is believed that this dome is the largest yet constructed in ferro-concrete. The main entrance is in the centre of the front, and is approached through an archway 20ft. in width with a broad flight of marble steps leading to the interior.

Over the shops on either side of the entrance are open promenades and roof gardens, surrounded by colonnades with beams upon which hardy creepers climb round. These verandahs afford a commanding view of the sea and country both to the north and north-west of the whole of the grounds, with the manifold amusements therein.

The dominating feature on entering is the great rotunda, 80ft. in diameter, around which are ranged twelve great columns supporting the dome. This expansive space, which is somewhat unique in theatre vestibules, is elegantly treated in decorative plaster work. A broad balcony surrounds it, communicating with the fine café on the first floor and with the various roof promenades. From this expanse there radiates entrances to the grounds, theatre, and amusement hall. The theatre is approached by a wide easy flight of steps, and is designed on rather original lines. It skirts one side of the grounds, and is entirely open thereto, although quite protected from wind and rain by the broad projecting roof balcony, and in bad weather or during the winter season this open space can be entirely closed at will by revolving shutters, thus making it comfortable and cosy all the year round.

It is designed to afford a large promenading space, from which a full view of the stage can be obtained. It is elevated above the sitting area, and does not in any way interfere with the view of those seated in the auditorium. In the large ground area, which has a good rake, there is accommodation for about 1,500, the front portion of which is fitted with 600 tip-up chairs as stalls, the remainder being seated and upholstered to accommodate about 900 people.

There is a gallery in ferro-concrete that is capable of accommodating 500 to 600, every seat from which enables the holder to obtain an uninterrupted view of the stage.

The sweeping semi-circular roof is divided into small coffers in fibrous plaster, and is generously illuminated by electric lamps, giving a fine general effect to the interior. The proscenium is chaste and effective in design, and has an opening of 30ft.

The stage is large, and capable of putting on any modern production on the road. It measures from wall to wall 55ft.; footlights to back wall, 32ft.; and stage to grid, 42ft.

The electric installation is on the most recent principle, and complete in every detail, with the most modern appliances for the best stage-lighting effects.

There are several good and commodious dressing-rooms all fitted out with the necessary appliances for the comfort of the artists.

Some idea of the magnitude of the buildings will be conceived when it is stated that they cover considerably over three-quarters of an acre. In the grounds there are attractions such as the figure-eight railway, the water chute, the social whirl, the old mill, and subterranean water passage and caves, the Hall of Mirth, and the latest of money-makers that is doing so well as the Brussels Exhibition, yclept "The Joy Wheel Table," and sundry other side-shows, such as American skittles, &c.

The contractors are the well-known theatre compilers, Messrs. Davison and Miller, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the work was completed in a surprisingly expeditious manner even for this firm, who gained a name in this direction nearly twenty years ago. The whole is designed and carried out by Messrs. Cackett and Burns Dick, F.R.I.B.A., architects, Newcastle.

The resident manager is Mr. Auguste A. Peulevé, a gentleman who has had considerable experience of such ventures at some of our most popular resorts.

Fraulein Marga Burchardt, the clever young operatic singer at the Court Theatre at Hamburg, has signed a five years' contract under very favourable conditions for the Court Opera at Stuttgart, as successor to Fräulein Sutter. The latter artist, it will be remembered, was the victim of a terrible tragedy not long ago, having been shot by her lover—a Stuttgart doctor—in a fit of jealousy.

A novelty of the coming season at the Leipzig Opera will be the work of an Irish resident in Berlin, Mrs. A. Madison. The composition is drawn from Ludwig Fulda's fairy-tale play, The Talisman, which had such a long and successful run many years ago in Berlin, and has retained the same name.

"To understand the spirit of Henry VIII." says Mr. Louis Parker, "it is necessary to remember that, contrary to the general idea, the Reformation was not a sudden but a gradual affair. People did not go to sleep one night as Roman Catholics and wake the next morning as Protestants. Elizabeth herself was christened according to the ritual of the Romish Church. Henry VIII. married Catherine Parr with the Romish ceremonies. The doctrine of Transubstantiation was upheld beyond the time of Catherine Parr, and it was not until the reign of Edward VI. that the change in ritual was complete. So that the spirit which informs Sir Herbert's production is Roman Catholic in its ceremonies and splendour."

A very enthusiastic reception was given to A Criminal's Bride on Monday evening last, when it was performed by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company at the Grand Theatre, Brighton. On the termination of the last act, and in response to hearty and prolonged applause, the author appeared before the curtain. The story of the drama is replete with stirring and exciting incidents, the characters are ably drawn, the special scenery painted for the production by Charles H. Frampton is charmingly picturesque, and the hunting dresses, uniforms, and costumes are handsome.

The first act opens at Woodsorrel Hall, where Sir Harry Felstead is entertaining a hunting party, one of the guests being Austin Deepdale, a crafty and designing mesmerist. It is soon evident that Sir Harry Felstead is deeply in love with Lavender Loseby, his trainer's daughter; his love is reciprocated, and the trainer, David Loseby, gives his consent to their engagement. During Sir Harry's absence the evil Deepdale mesmerises Lavender, and while she is embracing the scoundrel Sir Harry makes his appearance and orders the latter out of the house; and the curtain falls as Deepdale is confronted by Mitchell, a Scotland Yard detective, who is keeping an eye upon him. In the second act, in a country police office, two Italian wanderers—Giuseppe Canova and Tessa Gianelli (the latter carrying a child)—are among the arrested. Here Mitchell learns from the Italians that Deepdale is the father of Tessa's child, and that he had cut off Giuseppe's left hand after mesmerising him. In the following scene of the act Deepdale continues his villainy, and, anxious that in a local race meeting Sir Harry's horse shall not beat the one he himself is running, determines that Sir Harry shall be prevented from riding. Deepdale had been stopped for furious motor driving, and had given his name as Sir Harry Felstead; he had failed to answer the charge, and as the result of a warrant being issued Sir Harry is taken in custody. The trainer, however, is equal to the occasion, rides Sir Harry's horse, and wins. In the last scene of the act Deepdale and his accomplice—his chauffeur Grant—arrange to steal the Felstead jewels. Lavender is again hypnotised by Deepdale, who actually compels her to open the safe with the key lovingly entrusted to her by Sir Harry, and to hand him the jewels. The inmates of the house are aroused, Deepdale's villainy is laid bare, the jewels are recovered, and Sir Harry refuses to prosecute, but makes Deepdale leave the house and promise to quit the neighbourhood. In the third act we find that Lavender has been abducted by Deepdale, assisted by Grant. The girl is taken to the Lecqmont Caves, where exciting incidents transpire. Sir Harry seeks his fiancée, and is about to enter the cave while holding on to a rope, when the rope is cut and the ardent lover falls upon the rocks below. He is captured and bound. Grant drinks a drugged liquor from a flask, thinking it pure spirit, and falls insensible. Arrangements are made by Deepdale for a secret marriage with Lavender. The latter has been rescued and taken outside the cave by Mitchell, and when a clergyman, under a threat of being shot, marries Deepdale to a lady, the latter is found to be none other than Tessa. In the fourth act we find Tessa at Deepdale's home, visited by her old lover Giuseppe. The latter realises Tessa's unhappy life, but hearing Deepdale approach he hides in a room, only to be compelled to listen to further insults heaped upon the young wife by the unprincipled villain. As Deepdale passes the room in which Giuseppe is hidden, the enraged Italian puts out his hand, strangles Deepdale, and leaves the house with Tessa. All ends happily for Sir Harry and his pretty bride, and outside the church in which their wedding takes place the spectacular display of the huntsmen in costume makes a charming stage picture.

Mr. Frank R. Robertson gave a polished enactment of the manly young English gentleman, Sir Harry Felstead; Miss Ethel Ward made a pretty and brightly winsome Lavender Loseby; and Mr. Grayson Bancroft was seen to great advantage as David Loseby. Mr. Annesley Hely submitted a masterly impersonation of the scheming villain, Austin Deepdale; Mr. Harry T. Butler made the most of his opportunities as Archie Ravenscourt, Sir Harry's friend; Mr. Herbert Belmore as Giuseppe Canova and Miss Ella Willmer as Tessa Gianelli played with strong dramatic fervour; Mr. J. Templar Ellis was distinctly effective as Mitchell; Mr. Harvey Welton acquitted himself admirably as Grant; Miss Maud Tremaine made a graceful Kitty Felstead; Mr. George Brentwood afforded unbounded fun as P.C. Dumbleby, and was ably supported by Miss Mollie Hackett as Jenny Jenkins, and Miss Lillah Peltz as Bellamy.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, July 26. Present: Mr. F. J. Arlton (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Chris Walker, C. F. Collings, Robson Paige, Langford Reed, Basil Dean, Frederick Annerley, H. Le Grand, Murri Moncrieff, Miss Mildred Cottell, Miss Beatrice Chester, Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Vita Spencer, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 19th inst., and the meeting confirmed and the chairman signed same.

Mr. Arlton entered a protest against the alterations for payment of quarterly subscriptions passed last week without due notice of motion having been given, and gave notice to rescind that portion dealing with quarterly subscriptions of old members.

Mr. C. F. Collings gave notice that he should move that all motions passed by the Council remain in force six months.

The House Committee's report was read by Mr. Reed, and on the motion of Mr. Walker, seconded by Miss Chester, adopted.

On the motion of Mr. Paige, seconded by Miss Chester, a vote of thanks was tendered to Miss Estelle Despa for her kind gift of pictures to the Association.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. Collings, and on the motion of Mr. Walker, seconded by Miss Cottell, adopted.

The hon. solicitor's report was read, adopted, and instructions given. Another compaint against Mr. Austin Leigh was discussed and instructions given.

The Council gave instructions for the closing of the rooms on Bank Holiday as usual.

Miss Beatrice Fay, Mr. Charles Sparrow, and Miss Bessie Rignold were elected members, and Miss Caroline Fenton was nominated.

"THE HAND THAT ROCKS THE CRADLE."

A Drama in Four Acts, by J. A. Campbell, Produced, for the first time on any stage, at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, July, 25.

Post-Captain Henry Drummond ..... MR. DOUGLAS TREMAYNE
Lieut. Philip Marchant ..MR. GERALD JORDAN
Derek Mason .....MR. GUY HASTINGS
John Melrose .....MR. T. LIONEL ELLIS
Jerry Dale .....MR. FINN DOYLE
Lieut. Arthur Barclay .....MR. STANLEY VINE
Edward Somerville .....MR. L. J. LAWRENCE
Capt. Hubert Sternroyd ....MR. E. H. CLARKE
Sir Dennis Jermyn .....MR. W. WEBB
Gabrielle D'Armaud .....MISS JANICE DEANE
Nanoya .....MISS BABS STUART
Audrey Melrose ....MISS GERTRUDE F. GODART

Mr. J. A. Campbell's latest contribution to popular melodrama, The Hand that Rocks the Cradle, is a well-built piece of work, and likely to occupy a permanent place in the esteem of the public for whom he caters. It deals centrally with the double life and downfall of a naval officer, incidentally exploiting the heroic interest that one naturally looks for, as well as the human appeal of a woman and her baby in circumstances of trial and distress. The scene opens at the home of John Melrose, a coast-guard. He is a widower, and has set his mind upon a love-match between his only daughter, Audrey, and Derek Mason, petty officer on H.M.S. Hercules. Audrey, however, has been seen rather frequently about the quarters of Lieut. Philip Marchant of the same ship, and it presently transpires that she and the Lieutenant have been secretly married. The girl is troubled by the secrecy of it, and pleads for a confession to her father; but Marchant resists this on the ground that if he marries before he is twenty-eight (he is not yet twenty-seven) he will lose a large sum of money promised to him by a rich aunt on that condition. He is, meanwhile, jealous of Derek, and knows that he is not favoured by her father. The latter, finding him on the scene, demands the reason of his presence. Philip asks Melrose's consent to his marrying Audrey, but this, of course, is not granted. The situation becomes still more dramatic when from over the cliffs comes Gabrielle d'Armaud with intimate greetings for Philip; for in the midst of the latter's anger at her appearance it turns out that Gabrielle is his wife. The next scene is a room in Lieut. Marchant's quarters ashore, where he is visited by Lieut. Barclay, of H.M.S. Royal Edward, who presses for the return of a loan of £100. Marchant cannot pay, nor is the story of the aunt a true one—indeed, one of the objects of his bigamous marriage with Audrey is to acquire her father's money. A scene ensues between Gabrielle D'Armaud and the Lieutenant on the score of Audrey, which is interrupted by the latter's appearance, followed by her father, who suspects that something is wrong. Derek comes also, prompted to inquiry. Audrey begs Derek to go, and he is about to obey her desire when Marchant, his mouth full of lies, insults her father, and suddenly her feeling for the Lieutenant changes to hate. Melrose, more than ever convinced that something serious is amiss, asks Derek to find out what there is between Audrey and Marchant; and when Audrey and her father have gone there is a strong scene of recrimination between Derek and Marchant, whose evasions are assisted by Gabrielle, until Derek asks her to leave the room for a while. Then he confesses that his name is not Mason, that he is a victim of Marchant's people, who have defrauded him out of money that should have given him a better position in the world, and that Philip himself is always in the way of his ambitions. So bitter the argument becomes that in the end he strikes Philip, and challenges him to call the guard and have him arrested for striking a superior officer. Philip, dreading inquiry, declines, so Derek calls himself. Philip sends the men away, but Derek recalls them, and gives himself up. Next comes the court-martial on board H.M.S. Prince Consort, a really fine scene, not in the least overdone either in acting or staging. All concerned are called, and a very trying scene of inquiry is ended by Audrey's confession that Marchant is a bigamist, and she is shortly to become a mother. She falls fainting, Derek is put away, and Marchant is put on parole. We are returned to the living room in the house of John Melrose. Old John has not forgiven his daughter, though she is in his house with her child, almost mad with anxiety for Derek, whom she now loves as much as she hates the perfidious lieutenant. Asking forgiveness of her father, she lays her head on his knee and falls asleep from exhaustion. She is roused by the clicking of a revolver, and hears her father muttering of his intention to kill Marchant and then destroy himself. The sudden appearance of Marchant cuts short a tragic moment. He says he has been released, but the approach of soldiers and the hasty warning of Gabrielle reveal the fact that he has broken parole. He hides, threatening to shoot Audrey if they give him up. The soldiers come in, and ask if Lieut. Marchant has been there (he is levelling the revolver at Audrey from behind a door), and Audrey answers, "Yes, he is there!" There is a report, and Audrey falls, but not wounded. All this time the old man has been standing in a dazed fashion, taking no notice. The soldiers take Philip; and Gabrielle walks out, laughing and singing over the episode. Audrey rouses herself; the baby is brought in; and her father, unable any longer to resist the appeal of mother and child, forgives the unhappy victim at last. Upon this come the Judge-Advocate and Derek, free. Audrey, rocking the cradle, looks up, sees Derek, and goes to him; and he opens his arms for her. The curtain falls, but it raised again upon a tableau of Audrey and Derek kneeling by the cradle, and old John Melrose looking on, roused from his stupor. Thus the story ends.

The scenery and dresses were very pretty and effective, and there were here and there several amusing passages between Jerry Dale, of the Hercules, and Nanoya, Audrey's Cingalee maid, which were much appreciated. Nothing vulgar or suggestive was introduced at any part of the play; it was clean, interesting, and undoubtedly successful. Miss Gertrude F. Godart as Audrey carried off the prime honours. Her voice was full of pathos, and her style just suited to the part. Mr. Guy Hastings as Derek Mason was also very fine, carrying himself well, and acting with all his accustomed tact and skill. As John Melrose Mr. T. Lionel Ellis added a remarkably good depiction; Mr. Gerald Jordan brought out the villainy of Philip Marchant in commendable style; and Miss Janice Deane was good as the Frenchwoman, Gabrielle D'Armaud; while Mr. Finn Doyle as Jerry Dale and Miss Babs Stuart as Nanoya worked together with an admirable sense of humour. Calls for the author were duly answered by Mr. Campbell, who was much gratified by the hearty reception of the play.

MR. FRED C. WHITNEY, the American impresario, who is to produce The Chocolate Soldier in England, the musical version of Mr. Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man, says the American public is weary of musical comedy. "I think," he said, "that the tide has once more turned. The public is sick of vaudeville in high places, except in cases of exceptional merit, and cloyed to a great extent with the heavy diet of grand opera. It has had an attack of indigestion, and comic opera—real comic opera—is the antidote. All that is necessary now is to nurse that condition by giving the public the right kind of works and in the right manner." There is no sign of any such weariness in this country.

MISS CLARA ALEXANDER'S MATINEE.

Opportunity was taken by Miss Clara Alexander, who is justly esteemed for her Negro impersonations, to display her talent in other directions, and for that purpose produced two new playlets at the Queen's Theatre on Tuesday at a matinée given by her in aid of the West Ham Hospital. Many of the artists on the programme were conspicuous by their absence, but an audience none too numerous greatly appreciated the efforts of those who appeared. Neither of the plays referred to, which were both from the pen of Miss Kate Lyon, contained anything particularly meritorious. The first was an episode of the American Civil War, entitled

"PEACE."

George Carter .....MR. NORMAN TREVOR
Tramp .....MR. J. LINDSAY
Jake .....MISS MARJORIE DAY
A Soldier .....MR. CECIL BEVAN
Elsie Winston .....MISS CLARA ALEXANDER

It depicts the endeavour of a Northerner to carry a message to the general in command of the Federal Army, by which a sanguinary engagement would be prevented. Pursued by the Southern soldiery, he seeks refuge at the hands of a young girl, whose horror of war induces her to assist him. Her lover, however, is less impressionable, and delivers the man up to his pursuers, not, however, before he has entrusted his despatch to the girl, who secretes it in a ball of wool, and declines to tell anyone of its whereabouts, although her sweetheart threatens to leave her if she refuses to obey. Nothing of an incriminating character being found on the prisoner, he is released, and regaining possession of the paper makes off, while the lover and his lass are reunited. Miss Alexander proved her ability as an actress by a charming impersonation of the gentle and warm-hearted Southern girl. She had invaluable assistance from Mr. Norman Trevor as the Southern officer, and Mr. J. Lindsay acted impressively as the refugee. A good word should also be given to Miss Marjorie Day, who played a Negro boy cleverly.

The other dramatic item was a story of Italian peasant life, also by Miss Lyon, entitled

"THE ROSE."

Reni .....MISS CLARA ALEXANDER
Alessandro .....MR. J. LINDSAY
Signor Werth .....MR. F. WARLOCK
Madre .....MISS ROSALIND ROSS
Riccardo .....MR. DOUGLAS IMBERT

A tedious imbroglio is furnished in the above playlet, the construction of which leaves much to be desired. It tells of an Italian gambler who, to gain money to pay his debts, sells his right to the love of his sweetheart to an unscrupulous Pole, whose advances, however, are firmly resisted by Reni, the young lady in question. She begs Alessandro, her lover, not to desert her, and, overcome by her pleadings, he resolves to return to his allegiance, making an appointment for the evening. Reni's brother has overheard the two men's compact, which he reveals to Reni, telling her that the Pole is coming to carry her off at the time appointed by Alessandro. Reni provides herself with a dagger in view of eventualities, and is about to plunge it into the heart of Alessandro, who is dressed like the Pole, when he reveals himself, and reconciliations ensue. Miss Alexander acted well as the Italian girl, displaying much dramatic fervour and emotional skill. Mr. F. Warlock made a properly sinister personage of the Pole, and Mr. J. Lindsay played the unthankful rôle of the lover.

Miss Alexander was also heard and applauded in some of her popular impressions of Negro life, and the rest of the programme was contributed by well-known artists. Mr. Gordon Cleather gave manifest pleasure with his rendering of "Drake's drum" and "The old Superb." Miss Sybil Arundale entranced all with her song "If only I'd been born a boy"; Miss Marta Cunningham sang Arditi's "L'Extasi" exquisitely; Mr. Cecil Bevan told funny stories in excellent style; and Miss Josephine La Barte greatly amused with admirably rendered songs at the piano.

NEW THEATRE AT BARRY DOCK.

The Theatre Royal, Barry Dock, erected for Messrs. Jours, Ltd., was opened on Monday by the managing-director, Mr. Arthur Carlton, and may properly be described as one of the finest theatres in the principality. The new theatre was designed by Mr. Ernest Knapman, of Barry Dock, and the imposing character of the building—its fine design and decorative work—reflects the highest credit upon that gentleman's skill. The auditorium is handsome and commodious, capable of seating 2,500. The stalls are finely upholstered in Rose du Barri velvet with silk stripes, while the front rows of the pit have comfortable arm-chairs. The wallpaper harmonises in colour with the draperies, carpet, and upholstering. A great feature is the electric lighting. On the stage alone are 800 lights, exclusive of several high-power arc lights, and two large dynamos give an output of 500 amperes.

The manager is Mr. Hamilton A. Warden, a gentleman of considerable experience, who will be assisted by Mr. Frank Dure.

A crowded and fashionable audience attended the opening on Monday evening. Mr. Carlton appeared on the stage after the entire company had sung "God Save the King," and had a rousing reception, for which he returned thanks in an able and eloquent speech. The opening attraction was The Dairymaids, presented by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company. Mr. Norman Bowers sustained the chief part (Joe Mivens) with credit, and immediately made himself popular; Miss Eva Ellis acted and sang delightfully as Peggy; and the rôle of Helen left nothing to be desired in the hands of Miss Phyllis Desmond; Miss Margaret Carter made an imposing Lady Brudenell; and Dr. Bryne was capitally portrayed by Mr. Bernard Vaughan. Very amusing was Miss Ruby Louis as Eliza, her duet with Mr Bowers in the Gymnasium scene gaining well deserved encores. Fun was provided by Messrs. Donald Price Evans and Algernon W. Lee. Miss Kathlene Simco was a pleasing Winifred. The chorus was strong and the mounting delightful.

Mr. Paul Smythe ably conducted an augmented orchestra. The production was under the capable management of Mr. Andrew W. Spens. The stage manager is Mr. Ernest Pearce.

AT Sotheby's Rooms on the 22nd inst. the first four folios of Shakespeare's works were submitted for sale. The first folio was sold for £1,800. The first edition probably consisted of 500 copies, of which about 200 survive, but of these less than twenty are perfect. The second folio realised £2 10s., and the third folio (published in 1613) sold for £850. The fourth folio made £76. The third folio is as rare as the first folio, for many copies were destroyed in the Great Fire of London. A defective first folio went for £600.

THE Festival of Empire, postponed owing to the death of his late Majesty King Edward VII., will be held at the Crystal Palace, London, in connection with the Coronation festivities upon a more gigantic scale than would have been the case this year. Mr. Leolyn Hart, the well-known scenic artist, is busily engaged upon one of the most stupendous productions ever placed before the public. This will be held in conjunction with the Pageant of London. It is an entirely new idea, and one that has never before been treated in such a manner. It is estimated that the production will find employment for over 2,000 men for about six months, and the whole will be completed for opening early in May, 1911.

DEATH OF HAWES CRAVEN.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Hawes Craven, the well-known scenic artist, which took place on the 22nd inst., of acute bronchitis and cardiac failure at the age of seventy-three. Mr. Craven was born at Leeds, and his parents were both on the York circuit. His father took young Craven to London, where the parent became engaged at the old Marylebone and Strand Theatres. At the latter house, the scene painter, Mr. Dearlove, advised young Craven to study drawing at the Marlborough House School of Design, where the future scenic artist carried off all the prizes. He was apprenticed to John Gray, the scene painter of the Britannia Theatre, where he gained a variety of experience and obtained a good deal of practice. They only did the special work such as the pantomime, a new piece for Easter, and an autumn drama. Mr. Gray having attracted attention by some really fine work, was offered a West-End engagement, and took young Craven with him to the Olympic Theatre, under the management of Alfred Wigan, which merged into that of Emden and Robson. Having made some progress, he was offered the engagement of second painter, and it was at the Olympic in 1865 that he painted the scenery for Wilkie Collins's play The Frozen Deep. Then commenced his real experience, which came about through Mr. Gray being seized with rheumatic fever. Mr. Craven used to tell the story as follows: "One day some gentlemen came up to the painting room concerning the production of a new piece, and the preparation of scenery for it. Mr. Emden, who was manager of the theatre then with Mr. Robson, asked me if I thought that I could do the work myself. The new scene was to represent the interior of a lighthouse. Another gentleman who was looking through a portfolio of my sketches from nature, questioned me very closely. Had I ever seen a lighthouse? I said yes. Among my holidays I had been to Plymouth, and been to the Eddystone; further, I had taken sketches, not only of the exterior, but the interior of the lighthouse and of its predecessors, which were hung and framed in the living room there. My old habit of drawing everything I saw stood me well then. They said they would like to see my sketches. Next day I brought them, and they came to see them. One of these gentlemen was Mr. Charles Dickens, who passed them over to another gentleman, who decided they were of some merit, and to his knowledge particularly truthful—in fact, just what they wanted, the action of the play taking place in the living-room of the Eddystone Lighthouse, a night scene with a violent storm. It was agreed that I should do the scene. As soon as this was settled the gentleman who had my sketches in his hand produced one of his own—Eddystone Lighthouse during a storm, with a wild moonlight sky, a passing vessel, and some wreckage in the wild waters. This was one of the finest things I had then seen, and no wonder, it was Clarkson Stanfield himself I was talking to—Clarkson Stanfield, the great scene painter, the Royal Academician, the finest marine painter living. He said, 'I want you to copy this, young man, for me, but do it large and do it in scenic colours on scenic canvas, that I may form my judgment. I will come in a couple of days to see it.' How I did work! I was at it early and late. I made a sketch 10ft. by 8ft. They all came to the appointment—Mr. Clarkson Stanfield, Mr. Charles Dickens, Mr. Wilkie Collins, Mr. Emden, and Mr. Frederick Robson, the famous actor. 'Bravo!' said Stanfield 'you shall paint that again—larger. You shall paint it as an act drop for this play for this theatre, as an idea of my own.' And I did. I also painted the scene and made my first success. Mr. Stanfield gave me his own drawing as a reward, and the management raised my salary."

Mr. Craven next joined the celebrated William Beverley at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, then under the management of B. T. Smith. On one occasion, when the pantomime was in full swing and they were approaching Christmas, some disaffection occurred amongst the assistants, and most of them suddenly left, there being no written engagements. Mr. Craven remained. Mr. Beverley said nothing, but he did something. Every painting frame was filled at once with scenery to be painted which would have fallen to the lot of the assistants up to Christmas. Beverley and Craven worked together for fifty-six hours. After that they worked a week the regular time—10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Again they had fifty-six hours consecutively. For refreshments they had sherry and eggs, dry toast and tea. This went on till arrears were caught up.

During the management of Frederick Gye at Covent Garden, Craven did all the scenery for the great operas—The Huguenots, Robert the Devil, Der Freischutz, Norma, Dinorah, Marta, and many others. After some years Mr. Craven joined Charles Fechter, and did most of the work for Monte Cristo, The Duke's Motto, No Thoroughfare, Black and White, Bel Demonio, and The King's Butterfly, until the end of the Lyceum seasons under Fechter. In due course he was engaged by Mr. H. L. Bateman for the Lyceum Theatre. Upon the death of Mr. Bateman, Henry Irving became manager, and the work that Craven did at the Lyceum is still well remembered. He painted the scenery for Richelieu, Hamlet, Macbeth, The Belle's Stratagem, Philip, Much Ado About Nothing, Faust, Charles I., Becket, King Arthur, Romeo and Juliet, Olivia, Coriolanus, Cymbeline, Richard III., The Amber Heart, The Dead Heart, The Cup, Eugene Aram, The Bells, The Merchant of Venice, Louis XI., Vanderdecken, King Lear, The Corsican Brothers, Queen Mary, The Lyons Mail, Werner, Ravenswood, and many other dramas. Sir Henry Irving considered it necessary that Mr. Craven should visit the several countries wherein the scenes of the plays were laid, so that the impression of fidelity might be given to all the details, and the late artist undoubtedly owed much of his ability and success to this practice.

Even with every care, however, it was not always possible to avoid error. In the case of Irving's production of Much Ado About Nothing in 1882, for which Craven painted the scenery, the artist had been given a free hand in dealing with one of the scenes, and he painted a magnificent cedar-walk. Mr. Bram Stoker tells us that a correspondent informed Irving that cedars had not been introduced into Messina until a few years before the time in which the scene is laid, and therefore they could not have attained the great size bestowed on them by the artist.

One of Craven's finest scenes was that of the interior of the Temple of Diana in Irving's production of The Cup in 1879. He made drawings from ancient vases, and part of a real column from Ephesus was used in the set. Irving, says Mr. Stoker, studied the mounting of Faust at Nuremberg and Rothenburg, and sent for Craven, whose visit to these beautiful old towns resulted in some wonderful scenes, which greatly delighted the Crown Prince Frederick of Germany when he saw the play at the Lyceum. Miss Ellen Terry wrote that "dear Mr. Hawes Craven, who so loved his garden, could paint the flicker of golden sunlight for the stage better than anyone." Mr. Craven also did the scenery for some of Sir H. Beerbohm Tree's productions at His Majesty's, including the Hades scene in Ulysses.

Craven's methods of work were characteristic. Mr. Bram Stoker, in his "Reminiscences of Sir Henry Irving," says he "could work like a demon when time pressed. Ordinarily he wore, when at work in those days, a long coat, once of a dark colour, and an old brown bowler hat, both splashed out of all recognition with paint. Scene-painting is essentially a splashy business, the drops of paint from the great brushes, of necessity vigorously used to cover the acres of canvas, 'come not in single spies but in battalions.' But when matters got desperate, when the pressure of the time-gauge registered not in hours, but in minutes, the head-gear was changed for a red handkerchief, which, twisted round the head, made a sort of turban. This became in time a kind of oriflamme. We knew that there was to be no sleep, and precious little pause even for food, till the work was done."

The funeral took place at Brockley Cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

THE WALTER STEPHENS' APPEAL.

A SAD CASE.

Mr. Walter Stephens, a clever author, late a theatrical manager, and long an earnest supporter of and investor in theatrical and variety enterprises, is in need of help, caused by illness and adverse speculations. To prove his claim to the consideration of the benevolent we give some particulars of his work in the profession. Mr. Stephens, by his extensive support of, and investment in, theatrical enterprises has directly and indirectly spent many thousands of pounds and has given work to many hundreds of people.

On leaving, early in life, the legal profession, for which he had studied most successfully, Mr. Stephens started theatrical work by writing, in collaboration with Mr. Fenton Mackay, the highly successful farcical comedy Brown at Brighton. Later he wrote, by himself, another farcical comedy, namely A Trip to Margate.

About the same time he embarked in sundry touring enterprises with such celebrated plays as The Cherry Girl (two companies), The Flood-Tide, and Human Nature. He also became managing-director of these companies. Next Mr. Stephens, greatly daring, as was ever his wont, dramatised "Paradise Lost." This play was promptly prohibited by the English Censor, notwithstanding the fact that, as all students of Milton know, that great religious poet himself started a dramatisation of his mighty epic!

Mr. Stephens also prepared for the stage Tolstoy's story, "While Ye Have the Light," and he began to write extensively and eruditely on the Repertory and National Theatre schemes, also spending a great deal of money as well as time in seeking to forward these ideas.

Among Mr. Stephens's more recent dramatic work was his writing, in collaboration with Mr. Chance Newton, a farcical comedy, at present called Are You a Smoker? and an apparently very powerful and romantic new dramatisation of the immortal "Don Quixote." The production of these two plays has not, at present, gone beyond the "copyright" performance stage.

As regards Mr. Stephens's variety work, that has indeed been varied. In addition to writing several clever sketches, he claims to have "created" the Putney Hippodrome. Also of causing, somewhat less directly, the "creation" of at least three variety theatres out of previous playhouses.

In the engagement of certain variety companies of artists, and in generous subscriptions to variety (as well as theatrical) charities and funds, Mr. Stephens has spent both willingly and largely.

Mr. Stephens attributes his present painful position in a certain degree to the great music hall strike, followed by a most severe and painful illness, which rendered him quite helpless, and he is lying in immediate need of assistance. In his better days Mr. Stephens spent largely in charity, and was indeed ever a generous and benevolent man, and this appeal is made, especially to theatrical and music hall managers and professionals, in order that some of his friends among them, and also some whom he has helped in the past, may aid in assisting him over his present difficulties.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (London). 5s. The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Important changes in the law affecting the amusement professions have been made since the issue nine years ago of the second edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable book on Theatrical and Musical Law, and the third edition just published comes opportunely to hand. The work has been greatly enlarged, upwards of sixty additional pages being required to accommodate the mass of new information. The publication has been brought as nearly as possible up to date, and within its pages will be found analyses of important measures which have been adopted both in Parliament and out. There is, for instance, the full text of the recent Berlin Convention, and the New Copyright Act of the United States. The awards governing the relations between managers, artists, and agents are reproduced in their entirety, and a number of fresh cases illustrating the effect of the barring clauses is included.

The Musical Copyright Act, by which tardy justice was secured to song writers and publishers, is given in full, and a digest of the measure, bringing out its salient features, is also printed. A whole chapter is now devoted to the subject of children on the stage, and the important question of the Workmen's Compensation Act is exhaustively dealt with. All the decisions of the Courts affecting theatres and music halls are referred to, many notable cases being recalled. The law governing dramatic and musical copyright is defined as clearly as its intricacies will allow, and a reliable indication of the methods to be adopted in securing protection is afforded. The progress made in the question of licensing has been too slow to allow of more than a reproduction of the terms of agreement entered into between the representatives of theatres and music halls regarding sketches, but pronouncements under that heading are numerous.

THE BEECHAM OPERA SEASON.

A Summer Night, by Mr. G. H. Clutsam, was performed for the first time at His Majesty's Theatre on Saturday night before a large audience. Mr. Clutsam, the composer, is a skilled pianist, has written several songs and a cantata, The Quest of Rapunzel, besides being a musical critic of modern ideals. The libretto of Mr. Clutsam's one-act opera is based on a story in the Heptameron by Marguerite of Navarre. Facio, a farmer, and his wife Lucretia have a maidservant Lisa, who is engaged to a young muleteer, Toni. Facio and his old friend Niccolo are talking of the coming marriage of the young couple and their own past days when Lisa enters. Facio gives her a ring, telling Niccolo not to mention it to his wife. Niccolo declares he will get back the ring, and the two friends have a wager about it. Facio is to ask Lisa to meet him at night, when Niccolo is to take his place. Lisa agrees, but also privately tells Lucretia all about the matter, and the wife determines to impersonate her servant at the meeting-place. Niccolo thinks Lucretia is Lisa, and secures the ring. Owing to an alarm Toni searches the garden, and Niccolo, to avoid him, gets into a tree. On Niccolo showing the ring and claiming the wager, Facio recognises it as belonging to his wife, and is in a great rage. Lucretia also is surprised to find that instead of her husband she had met Niccolo. All, however, is soon explained by Lucretia, who rebukes Facio and Niccolo for being so foolish, and the opera ends happily with the love matters of Toni and Lisa. Slight as the plot is, it serves to introduce some pretty music, the most important being for the orchestra. Lisa has a solo of considerable charm. The lovers' duet is pleasing, and the quartet admirably written, while an interlude for the orchestra, although somewhat long, has decided interest. The performance, excellent as it was, would have gone with greater spirit if spoken dialogue had been employed. Indeed, the gay themes in the orchestra seem to demand such treatment. Miss Beatrice la Palme was excellent as the vivacious Lisa, and sang admirably, while the more staid part of Lucretia, the farmer's wife, was most ably undertaken by Miss Muriel Terry. Mr. Walter Hyde sang and acted with spirit as the lover Toni, and Mr. Harry Dearth and Mr. Lewys James were entirely successful as the middle-aged friends Niccolo and Facio. The orchestra, under Mr. Thomas Beecham's skilful guidance, played superbly, and the scene of the old farmyard, with the Tuscan hills in the distance, was charming. A Summer Night met with a hearty reception, both composer and Mr. Beecham being called on. After Mr. Clutsam's opera, Mozart's lively work Impresario was given for the first time. Originally produced in Schönbrum in 1786, under the title of Der Schaupielderektor, Mozart's little comedy, arranged by Mr. Alfred Kalisch, proved extremely funny, and kept the house full of merriment throughout the performance. As the much-troubled impresario Frank, Mr. R. Scrope-Quentin was very diverting, while the satirical Buff of Mr. Hubert Carter proved also excellent. Mr. Calvert acted cleverly the part of Eiles, a banker, who is so eager that his lady friend Mme. Pfeil should be engaged by the impresario. Miss Caroline Hatchard as Mme. Hertz, the prima donna, sang delightfully, and Miss Beatrice la Palme, who impersonated Mme. Silberklang, gave an excellent account of the rondo, "Sweetest Damon, I am willing." These two ladies, of course, want the chief part as prima donna, and the fun is further increased by actors and actresses demanding special parts of the bothered manager. The Misses Elinor Foster, Doris Lytton, and Grace Croft appeared as the actresses, and a leadinng male character was ably sustained by Mr. John Bardsley. Mr. Cuthbert Hawley conducted the orchestra.

MR. MULHOLLAND ON SUNDAY PERFORMANCES.

It occasionally happens that a curtailed report of a speech, when certain portions are necessarily separated from their context, does not convey a correct impression of the whole, and this applies to the published account of Mr. J. B. Mulholland's remarks at the meeting held at Terry's Theatre last week. Referring to the many Sunday performances now given under the guise of charity, he said this seemed to be a charity which begins at home—and stays there! In fact, charity is made to cover a multitude of sins. The operation of the Income Tax Acts was said to be making us a nation of liars, but the operation of the entertainment licences was calculated to create a class not only of liars but of hypocrites. He did not agree, he said, with Mr. Jesson's criticism of the Sunday League, as that organisation appeared to him (Mr. Mulholland) to comply not only with the letter but with the spirit of the resolution that places of entertainment should not be open on Sunday "for purposes of trade or for profit and gain."

Licensing regulations were applied drastically to one class of licensee and loosely or not at all to another. This was unjust and wrong, especially to the conscientious licensee, not only because it gave his competitor an unfair advantage, but sapped his own sense of fairness and of right. But the anomalies of licensing were such that they might be referred to as chaos. A good deal had been said about the picture theatres, which, he understood, presented a similar programme on Sundays as on week-days. But supposing he produced the same play on Sunday which he had played during the week his licence would be forfeited. Much capital had been made out of the educational influence of the picture theatre; but he ventured to think that Martin Harvey in The Only Way or Forbes Robertson in The Passing of the Third Floor Back would, on educational or moral grounds, compare not unfavourably with the most moving of moving pictures. He protested against invidious distinctions being made, but if they continued then he, as a theatre manager, would claim equal privileges as a right. He therefore supported the resolution upon general grounds, but entirely subject to its having a general application.

ON Monday the management of the Crystal Palace announce a long and entertaining programme of amusements, both in the vast building and in the extensive grounds. There will be military bands playing from 10.30 a.m. to 10.30 p.m., including the East Surrey Military, London Victoria Military, Crystal Palace Military, and Crystal Palace Quadrille Bands; organ recitals by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock; grand variety shows, the artists including the Czars, Miss Kessanly's Dogs, the Carlens, and the Florias; a grand bioscope and gramophone entertainment in the electric theatre; side shows—Old London, Fairy Archipelago, water chute, rapids, boating, the ever-popular maze, and other such exhilarating excitement. There will be sports on the cycle track by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, and last, but most certainly the bonne bouche of the day will be Messrs. Pain and Sons' greatest spectacle ever witnessed, "The Fall of Pompeii." This is really a marvellous show, and on Monday visitors will have the opportunity of witnessing two performances during the day. Surely a programme to suit the most fastidious, for those tired of indoor entertainments, if they go to the Crystal Palace, can roam about the beautiful grounds which, with great thickets of trees, flowers, and picturesque lakes, more than equal many parks in and around London. The variety show performances will be given twice daily during the holiday week, and "The Fall of Pompeii" will be performed every evening at 9.30

SIR HERBERT TREE'S preparations for the production at His Majesty's Theatre of Henry VIII. on Sept. 1 are being rapidly pushed forward, and Sir Herbert and Mr. Louis N. Parker have completed a very effective and satisfactory "version" of the play. There will be more people employed on the stage in Henry VIII. than in anything Sir Herbert has yet done.

THE following will be the arrangement of scenes:—Act I.: Scene 1, A cloister; 2, The Council Chamber in the Palace; 3, The Banqueting Hall in York Place. Act II.: Scene 1, Riverside street on Watergate, in Westminster; 2, The Oriel Gallery in the King's Palace; 3, A pleasaunce at Windsor; 4, The Great Hall of Blackfriars. Act III.: Scene 1, A pleasaunce at Windsor; 2, Council Chamber adjoining a chapel; 3, Interior of Westminster Abbey; 4, Queen's Chamber at Kimbolton; 5, The Oriel Gallery in the King's Palace; 6, Tilt-yard in the Royal Palace at Greenwich.

THERE are no transpositions of the text in the new version, but Sir Herbert and Mr. Parker have omitted all that part of the play which deals with the political beginnings of the Reformation, which would hardly be comprehensible and would certainly not interest a modern audience. This, however, means hardly more than the omission of one scene. We have the Prologue, but not the Epilogue. The printed play is in five acts, but the revisers have merely rearranged the division of the scenes, not their sequence.

IF represented without any change of scene and no intervals whatever, Henry VIII. would take three hours to perform. At His Majesty's it will play for two hours and a half, "waits" included. The changes of scene will take a very short time, and the entr'actes will be brief. The scene in Westminster Abbey will be a magnificent spectacle, taking in the whole of the great stage of the theatre. The producers have ransacked every authority and obtained astonishing exactitude. They will introduce a part song, with the words and music by King Henry VIII.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has left London for a voyage on a friend's yacht until the middle of August, when he will return with Mrs. Bourchier (Miss Violet Vanbrugh) for Sir Herbert Tree's rehearsals of Henry VIII.

MR. JAMES WELCH will commence his sixth tour with Charles Marlowe's famous farce When Knights Were Bold at the Grand Theatre, Douglas, on Monday. Mr. Welch will be supported by practically the same cast that appeared with him at Wyndham's and Criterion theatres. Another company, with Mr. Langdon Bruce in Mr. Welch's part of Sir Guy, and Miss Isla Glyn as Rowena, will start a tour at Margate on the same date. This tour will run right through to May, and both will be under the direction of Mr. Arthur Whittaker.

MR. GEORGE BARRETT will, at the termination of the run of The Whip at Drury Lane, appear at the Tivoli in a seaside scena, which has been specially written for him by Herbert C. Sargent, the author of many of the popular tabloid comedies which form so prominent a feature in music hall programmes. Mr. Barrett will be supported by Miss Joan Burton and Miss Ray Vivien.

AFTER the performance of The Balkan Princess at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on the 22nd inst. Mr. Frank Curzon and Miss Isabel Jay were called on the stage by Mr. Bertram Wallis and presented by him—on behalf of everyone employed in the theatre, from the call-boy to Mr. Wallis himself—with a loving-cup in the form of a large silver bowl and two silver goblets.

REPLYING to Mr. Wallis's address of congratulation, Mr. Curzon remarked that the presentation did honour to two great occasions of his career, as it served not only to commemorate his marriage with Miss Jay, but also to remind him that that day (Friday) was the tenth anniversary of his management of the Prince of Wales's.

ON Saturday night, after the fall of the curtain on The Naked Truth at Wyndham's Theatre, Mr. Curzon and Miss Jay were made the recipients of a handsome pair of candelabra and an autograph book with the signatures of the company and staff.

MISS JAY and Mr. Curzon were married on Monday at the Church of St. Dionis, Parsons Green, S.W., the ceremony having been delayed for half an hour, owing to a mishap to the bride's motor-car. The wedding was quite private, and attended by only a few near relatives. Miss Jay, who was dressed in a white costume covered with lace, was accompanied by a little girl, who acted as bridesmaid. Mr. Curzon's brother officiated as best man. After the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Curzon left for the Continent.

MR. EDWARD TERRY has appointed Mr. Percy H. Vernon his representative in London during his autumn tour.

A RATHER startling incident took place on Monday, July 25, at the Pier Pavilion Theatre, Hastings, during the visit of Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner company in connection with the Battersea flat mystery. The Scotland Yard authorities, following up a supposed clue, sent detectives to the theatre to make inquiries concerning two members of the company under suspicion, who, it appears, had been pupils at Miss Earle's Dramatic School, and, while pursuing their studies in a course of her instruction, had to call and see her at certain periods some time ago. The Scotland Yard people found that one of the artists had sailed for Australia, and that the last time he had performed in this country in the above play was on Friday night, July 15, at the Theatre Royal, Middlesbro'-on-Tees. After a long and searching examination at the Police Station it was proved to the satisfaction of the officials that one of the artists was acting in the drama on Saturday evening, July 16, the night that the tragedy took place, and that the other artist, now on his way to Australia, was in front of the theatre all Saturday evening, July 16, watching the play and seeing his successor in the part.

THE Hon. Ronald William Edward Finch, youngest son of the Earl of Aylesford, who is just twenty-one years old and a midshipman in the Royal Navy, was best man at the wedding on Monday at the Registry Office, Poland-street, W., of Mr. Edward Charles St. John Ronaldson and Miss Ida Stockwell. Bride and bridegroom were rehearsing at the Gaiety Theatre all last week, and will spend their honeymoon in The Merry Widow touring company.

COLONEL MAPLESON has arranged with Signor de Macchi, the Italian impresario of Rome, to give an Italian opera season at the Kingsway Theatre, commencing on Sept. 1. The opening performance will be Rossini's Il Barbiere, when Mlle. De Frate, daughter of Signor Gianoli Galletti, will appear as Rosina, in which rôle she has had a remarkable success in Italy. Several new Italian operas will be given, and the company will consist of many excellent artists, who will appear in England for the first time. Signor de Macchi will conduct on the opening night.

THE honorary freedom of the borough was conferred on Monday upon Mr. F. R. Benson, the well-known Shakespearean actor and theatrical manager, by the Stratford-on-Avon Corporation. David Garrick was similarly honoured in 1769. Mr. Benson has for over twenty years given the annual performances in the Memorial Theatre at Stratford to commemorate the poet's birthday, and during that time has produced thirty-three different plays of Shakespeare.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY, whose tour of the provincial cities commences at the Opera House, Harrogate, on Aug. 22, proposes to spend a good portion of the vacation motoring, as is his custom. At present, in the company of Sir George Frampton, the celebrated sculptor, Mr. Harvey is visiting some of the historic spots in the West of England, and presently will move on to Scotland, where the two artists, each famous in his own sphere, will spend a considerable time.

MR. LIONEL RIGNOLD'S company opened its tour of What the Butler Saw at Weymouth on the 21st inst to a fine house, and did excellent business for the three nights. The comedy went like wildfire, and Mr. Rignold has been offered the best week of next year for a return visit. The local Press is enthusiastic.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN, who lately gave a special performance of David Garrick at Hastings, has been presented by a well-known doctor in that popular resort with a handsome signet ring, at one time the property of Sothern, the original exponent of the part.

THE Gaiety Theatre Company has had a very successful year, notwithstanding a temporary diminution of receipts for a few weeks, owing to the lamented death of the late King. After writing off £7,289 for depreciation, the net profit for the twelve months amounted to £29,096, which, added to £6,966 brought forward, makes a total available surplus of £36,062, apart from a reserve fund of £5,000 which it was decided to create last year. It is now proposed to pay a dividend of 3s. per share, together with a bonus of 1s., being equal to twenty per cent. for the year. It is also proposed to increase the reserve by £10,000, or to £15,000, which is equivalent to twenty-five per cent. of the share capital. A sum of £14,062 will be carried forward, being £7,096 more than the sum carried over last year.

MR. W. CLARKSON sends us a copy of the following letter which he has received from Toronto:—"Queen's Own Rifles, Semi-Centennial Reunion. Reunion Headquarters, 36, King Street East, Toronto, Canada. W. Clarkson, Esq., Dear Sir,—On behalf of the committee in charge of the Queen's Own Reunion and Historical Pageant, I am instructed to express to you their great satisfaction with the costumes sent for our use. Their completeness and general appearance of being the genuine article in all cases met with the hearty approval not only of the committee, but of the public who attended the Pageant, the richness of many of the costumes being universally admired. We had perfect weather, and we trust the costumes will be found in excellent condition, as no rain fell during the two weeks of dress rehearsals and the production of the Pageant."

"THE WHIP," Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton's sporting drama, which has been such an unprecedented success at Drury Lane Theatre, is in the ninth month of its run, and reached its 250th performance on Friday. The successful melodrama looks like continuing to attract the public until the pantomime is ready for production. Long since the patrons of Old Drury had "subscribed" a hundred thousand pounds to see the play, and the receipts are still increasing.

ARRANGEMENTS have been concluded with Mr. Percy Harrison whereby that well-known impresario brings Mme. Tetrazzini to the Crystal Palace for a special grand concert on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 24. Mme. Tetrazzini's triumphs, both on the operatic stage and concert platform in London, New York, and the Continent, are so well known that it is needless to dilate on them here. The concert at the Palace will be given in the Centre Transept, which will suit her magnificent voice exactly. She has more than once expressed her desire to sing there. Mme. Tetrazzini will be supported by a company of well-known artists.

THE attraction at the Marlborough Theatre next week will be J. Bannister Howard's The Earl and the Girl company, with Mr. Edward Lewis as Jim Cheese. In the second act will be introduced the famous Chantecler dresses, which have been specially made for this company by Mr. Willie Clarkson and are a facsimile of those used in Paris.

MR. ALEX. HENDERSON and Mr. F. C. Whitney will produce at the Lyric Theatre on Sept. 10 the comic opera in three acts, entitled The Chocolate Soldier, by Bernauer and Jacobsen, English version by Stanislaus Stange. The music is by Mr. Oscar Strauss. This opera was a sensational success last season in New York, and is being revived there in September. It is, however, essentially English, and will be interpreted at the Lyric Theatre entirely by English artists. Several interesting engagements are pending, full particulars of which will be given at a later date.

THE London County Council, at their meeting on Tuesday, sanctioned drawings submitted by Mr. B. Crewe, showing a proposal to erect a theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue and Broad-street, Holborn. The theatre will have accommodation for about 2,450 persons.

MISS MAY ROBSON and her company sailed for New York on Saturday, and will arrive in London on or about Aug. 11 to make preparations for the production of the American farce comedy The Rejuvenation of Aunt May, which will be produced at Terry's Theatre on Aug. 22 under the management of Mr. L. S. Sire.

THE autumn tour of Mr. Alex. Maclean's new and successful romantic play, My Lady Bellamy, will commence next week. Mr. Maclean will again be supported by Miss Laura Leigh, in the title-rôle, Miss Mary Palmer, Mr. A. D. Layland, Mr. Burke, and others of the original cast, noteworthy changes being that Mr. Lyttleton-Holyoake will play King William III. and Mr. Eric Snowdon the spy Tarfax. Mr. Maclean will probably prolong the tour over the period originally intended owing to the great appreciation the play has met with in the provinces. The tour opens at Whitby on Aug. 1.

MISS ROSE MONCRIEFF will tour this Christmas her pantomime production of Jack and the Beanstalk, as played last year at Brixton Theatre.

AT the conclusion of the midsummer term of the Royal College of Music on Wednesday, the following awards were made by the Director and Board of Professors:—Council Exhibitions—Pianoforte, Gladys M. Cawston, £10; singing, David Ellis, £10; singing, Mary O. Congreve-Pridgeon, £10; violin, Antonio Piedra, £10; and organ, Cecil K. F. Wright, £10. The London Musical Society's prize for singing, value £3 3s., was won by William J. Dodds; Messrs. W. E. Hill and Sons violin prize went to Philip Levine; and the Savage Club Exhibition to Edith F. Ivimey (pianoforte).

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON, the enterprising lessee and manager of the Opera House, Southport, is very busy just now working from eight to ten hours a day, and sometimes more, at rehearsals alone, for the new plays which he is going to shortly give Southport theatregoers and those from a wider field an opportunity of witnessing. For the visit of The Blue Bird the entire London production and company are being taken to Southport. The scenery for its setting is astonishingly elaborate, and before the visit could be decided upon the stage-manager of the Haymarket Theatre was engaged to inspect the Opera House and measure the stage accommodation there, and see whether it was at all possible to take that brilliant attraction there. However, with certain alterations it has been found possible to do this, and Southport is, therefore, not to have to forego this treat. The company will consist of no fewer than 140 artists, this play being in several senses the most stupendous that has ever been done in this class of production.

LATER in the year Mr. Hutchison is going to have Peter Pan, which will go direct from the Duke of York's Theatre, also with the original company, including Miss Pauline Chase in the leading rôle. The next production will be The House of Temperley. Here again the original company playing it has been booked to appear at the Opera House, and this company is over a hundred artists strong. The Speckled Band, The Mountaineers, and The Brass Bottle are also engaged. The Carl Rosa Opera company and the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company are to pay return visits, as also will Our Miss Gibbs and The Arcadians.

MR. F. R. BENSON, Mr. Edward Terry, and Mr. Ed. Compton will pay return visits; The Merry Widow and When Knights were Bold will be given in August; The Naked Truth and The Chorus Lady will be presented in the early spring; and Mr. Hutchison hopes in the course of the season to play Arsène Lupin in the drama of that name.

MR. R. F. SAGER will produce his new drama, entitled Brothers or, Why Women Weep, at the Public Hall, Haslingden, Lancs, this evening.

MR. WILFRED DRAYCOTT is returning to New York on Aug. 3, having accepted an engagement from Messrs. Cohan and Harris in a new play to be produced early in September. Mr. Draycott has been touring in the United States with Miss Marie Tempest in Penelope.

A NEW and original play, written by Miss Emma Litchfield, entitled His Indian Wife, will be produced on Monday by Messrs. Travers Green's and Arthur Hinton's company at the Elephant and Castle Theatre.

MR. HARRY P. TOWERS'S Dear Little Denmark company will leave King's Cross at 11 a.m. tomorrow, by special train to Lowestoft. The company includes Miss Thelma Raye, Miss Winifred Volt, Mr. Edward Thirlby, Mr. Hartley Summers, Mr. Cameron Carr, and Mr. E. Taylor Platt. Mr. Towers will travel down with the company.

THE Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds, will re open next week, the first performance being given by Cavaliere F. Castellano's Grand Opera Company, who will produce Carmen. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, the present lessee, opened her initial tour at the above theatre in 1906 with a dramatised version of Merimée's story. Her fifth tour with her Shakespearean Répertoire Company starts on Aug. 22. A strong cast has been secured, including Miss Gertrude Gilbert and Mr. Frank Cellier.

THE staff of the Theatre Royal, Aston, will hold their annual summer outing on Sunday, Aug. 21, when they hope to spend an enjoyable day at Holt Fleet, a pretty resort on the Severn.

MR. EDWARD FOSTER, the manager of the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, will to-day complete a fortnight's holiday at Weston-super-Mare.

"THE SPECKLED BAND" will continue at the Adelphi Theatre until next Saturday night, and on Monday, Aug. 8, will be transferred en bloc to the Globe Theatre. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury will register his 1000th performance in the character of Sherlock Holmes this evening, having played the part in the Sherlock Holmes' drama 935 times, and making his appearance as Holmes in The Speckled Band on that evening for the sixty-fifth time.

MR. PAT CAREY and Mr. G. H. Smythson's concert party, known as the Pelican Pierrots, commenced their riverside season at the Sun Hotel Gardens, Kingston-on-Thames, on Saturday evening, and have given performances every night since. The company consists of the Misses Barker, Jeffreys, and Willey, and Messrs. Phil Bert, Ted Kay, Jack Fern (who manages the show), and Mr. Carey, all attired in the regulation pierrot costume, and their singing and dancing, their jokes and their patter, have attracted a lot of people to each performance, which has been welcomed as a desirable addition to the attractions of the river.

THE inquest on the body of the late Mr. T. Weldon Anderson was resumed on Saturday. Much evidence was heard, and a statement by Miss Maud Earl, a teacher at the Academy of Dramatic Art, was read, but Mr. Anderson's death remains a mystery. The inquest was adjourned till the forenoon of Saturday, Sept. 17.

THE funeral took place on the 22nd inst. at noon, from the residence of deceased's sister in Tufnell Park-road. The interment took place at Abney Park Cemetery, Stoke Newington. The two sons and two daughters of the deceased and Miss Anderson were the chief mourners. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. A. O. Palmer, chaplain of the cemetery. The eldest son of the deceased assisted to bear the coffin from the mortuary chapel to the grave, and after the remains had been lowered into their place he placed on the coffin a bunch of roses, to which was attached a card bearing the words, "To our darling father, from his children." A card which was attached to a beautiful wreath of arum lilies and heliotrope bore the words, "With the fondest love and deepest grief of his sorrowing sister."

"MY idea of the character of Wolsey," says Sir Herbert Tree, in an interview in the Standard, "is that he was one of the greatest Englishmen who ever lived—and, mind you, I am not pretending to have made that discovery for myself.

"I see him stout of girth, clothed in the cardinal red, living well—he was an epicure even in water, for he spent £50,000 in laying pipes from Coombe to his palace at Hampton Court. He was very complex, subtle, and brusque, a very Prince of the Church, imbued with the ultramontane Italian spirit. Suggesting the plebeian, he had a touch of Bismarck, Gladstone, and Disraeli. He was utterly unscrupulous in serving God. In the scene of the end of his career as statesman, which puzzled me greatly for a long time, for I could not understand how Shakespeare imagined it, I have overcome the difficulties which I found by dividing the stage in two. I hope to have symbolised the tragic episode of his farewell to the world and his entry into monastic life by my treatment. You will see Wolsey quietly disappear from the world, knocking at the door of Heaven, as it were."

AT the Bootle Police-court on Monday, Mr. Edwin Berry, on behalf of the Pennington Estate Company, Ltd., made an application with regard to the plans of the New Metropole Theatre, which is now being built in Stanley-road. He explained that in December last the plans of the theatre were approved by the Bench. These included the taking down of two corner shops, and the present application was to vary those plans somewhat. The Company did not intend to demolish the shops, and therefore the site would occupy 1,000 instead of 1,300 square yards. The building itself would not be altered. It is to accommodate 2,500 persons, and it is proposed to open the theatre to the public about Christmas. The application was granted.

MR. ARTHUR HARDY'S Quintuple Bill, in conjunction with Mrs. Russ Whytal, will commence at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Aug. 29.

MR. ALFRED MANNERS, the popular proprietor of the Empire Theatre, Swindon, has started his season under the best auspices this week, having secured Mr. Murray King and his excellent company in Our Flat. Mr. Manners has again made a succession of excellent bookings for his increasing patrons during the season, and arrangements have also been made with Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Brydon Phillips to present two entirely new pantomimes.

MR. FRANK CURZON'S No. 1 company, with The King of Cadonia, starts its tour on Monday. The cast will consist of Mr. John Morley, Mr. Arthur Staples, Mr. Robert Selby, Mr. Lawrence Robbins, Mr. Francis Howard, Mr. Louis Russell, Mr. Alec Buchanan, Mr. C. B. Williams, Mr. Alfred Clark, Miss Joan Penrose, Miss Amy Preston, Miss Lily Hodson, and Miss Alice Venning.

MR. ERNEST H. G. COX has been re-engaged to play Olaf in The Prince and the Beggar Maid, and opens on Monday at the County Theatre, Kingston. Mr. Cox has given five hundred performances of the part, being the first to play it in the provinces.

MR. G. E. WILLIAMS, the popular manager of the Alexandra Theatre, is taking a well-earned holiday for the next fortnight. As usual, he goes on his annual cricket tour, and will be playing for his county eleven.

MR. CECIL A. COLLINS has been engaged by Mr. Stanley Cooke for his season of A Man From Mexico at the Strand Theatre. Mr. Collins, it will be remembered, played Bill Sikes with Sir Herbert Tree's company of Oliver Twist on tour, later playing Jason in the Bondman and Capt. McGregor in The Drums of Oude.

MISS WINIFRED PEARSON, who recently made such a success as Claire Forster in The Woman in the Case, has been re-engaged by Miss Annie Hughes for her old part of Vivian Morrison (the adventuress) in Miss Tommy.

THE elocution school prize at the Royal Academy of Music has been won and divided by Miss Florence Dickinson, pupil of Mr. Bassett Roe, and Miss Catherine Marshall, pupil of Mr. L. Cairns James. The prize was adjudged by Mr. Norman McKinnel.

MR. ARTHUR LAW RAYNOR, who has been piloting The Little Damozel for Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow in the provinces, has been re-engaged by them to business manage The Naked Truth tour, which has opened with great success at Brighton; four and five curtains to each act is the nightly rule.

THE numerous friends of Miss Evelyn Shaw (Mrs. Richard Winslow) will be sorry to learn that she has been compelled to resign her engagement with Mr. Nevill Graham owing to ill-health. She is to undergo a slight operation on Tuesday, but hopes to be herself again by the end of the month.

MISS DORA HAMMERSLEY and her stock company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Kean, will perform on Monday for the first time on any stage an entirely new and original play entitled Married to the Wrong Woman.

MESSRS. J. FORBES KNOWLES and Harry Masterman will produce at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, on August Bank Holiday, a drama entitled Nick Carter, Detective, by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck. The scenery has been painted at His Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, and the tour is already well booked. A fine company has been engaged, including Misses Helena Walbran, Nellie Fern, Nellie Shirley, Nellie Waddington, Nancy Lawrence, Little Hilda Vokes, Messrs. Raymond Thomas, Wm. Burgess, Harry Momber, Rich Nugent, Will Ellythorne, Reg. Turner, Jack Turnbull, and J. Forbes Knowles.

A PERFORMANCE for copyright purposes will be given at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on Wednesday, Aug. 3, of two pieces by Clifford Seyler, Squibs, a play in one act, and The Will and The Way, a farcical comedy in three acts.

THE annual outing of the Colchester Theatre Royal staff took place on Saturday last, a large party travelling to Southend via Liverpool-street. Dinner was taken at the Borough Hotel, under the admirable presidency of the highly-popular lessee and manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona. Southend was quitted by tea-time, and the evening was spent in London, parties being made up for the Oxford, Coliseum, &c., the crowd uniting at Liverpool-street Station at midnight, and travelling home by the "supper" train. Mr. F. J. Byles once again did the secretarial duties to everyone's satisfaction.

THE Charles Lucas Silver Medal (composition) at the Royal Academy of Music has been awarded to Emma Lomax, the examiner being Dr. G. J. Bennett; the Schloesser Prize (accompanying) has been awarded to Evelyn Cook, the examiners being Messrs. Adolph Schloesser and Charles Macpherson. The Anne E. Lloyd Exhibition (singing) has been awarded to Gertrude Walton, the examiners being Messrs. Henry Beauchamp, Edward Iles, Fred King, A. Thompson, and Mme. Clara Samuell. The Parepa-Rosa Gold Medal (contraltos) has been awarded to Bella Newstead, the examiners being Mme. Marie Hooton, Miss C. Thudichum, and Mme. Carlotta Elliot. The Julia Leney Prize (harp) has been awarded to Violet M. Scotts, the examiners being Messrs. F. Corder and John Thomas and Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie. The James Tubbs and Son's prize (violin) has been awarded to Nellie Fulcher; the Hill and Sons' Prize (violin) has been awarded to Willie Davies. Other prizes are:—The Dove Prize (for general excellence), awarded to Phyllis Norman Parker; the Charlotte Walters Prizes (elocution), awarded to Lily Fairney and Violet Leonard; the Betjemann Gold Medal (operatic singing), awarded to William J. Samuell; the Westlake Memorial Prize (pianoforte), awarded to Elsie Jones; the Hannah Mayer Fitzroy Prize (violin), awarded to John Spink; the Alexander Roller Prize (pianoforte), awarded to Dorothy Craske; the Ridley Prentice Memorial Prize, awarded to Lucy Ehrmann; the Bowen Gift, awarded to Willie Davies; the Lesley Alexander Gift, awarded to Benno Pitt; the Challen and Son Gold Medal, awarded to Adela Hamaton; the Chappell Pianoforte Prize, awarded to Frank Hutchens.

THE first of The Speckled Band touring companies, with Mr. C. W. Somerset as Dr. Rylott and Mr. Julian Royce as Sherlock Holmes, started its tour on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Blackpool. This company will visit Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Swansea, Southampton, Nottingham, Birmingham, Belfast, Dublin, Cardiff, Oldham, Southport, Bradford, Sunderland, Aberdeen, Dundee, Newcastle, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Sheffield.

MR. H. P. TOWERS'S company with The Mountaineers, including Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Aida Jenoure, Miss Statham, Mr. Claude Flemming, Mr. Fred Eastman, and Mr. Frank Lawton, will start for Yarmouth on Sunday by special train from King's Cross at 11 a.m. Mr. H. P. Towers will accompany them.

MR. CHARLES KING has been engaged to play the part of Young Oliver Holt in The Dawn of a Tomorrow on tour.

BY a regrettable error in the Dublin correspondence inserted in our last issue the name of Mr. Mouillot was inserted as managing-director of the Queen's Theatre, Dublin. Of course, it is well known that Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson is the managing-director of the Queen's.

AT the Woodbridge Petty Sessions, on the 21st inst., the adjourned application made recently by Mr. Walter Curtis, manager of the Weights Theatre of Varieties Company, under the Theatre Act, 1843, for a licence for the performance of stage plays in a portable building to be erected on a meadow in the Avenue, Woodbridge, for the space of three months, was considered. The Bench adjourned the application on the previous occasion in order to obtain references as to the performances, and also to ascertain the opinion of the residents of the town. Mr. Curtis said that if the Bench acceded to his application he asked that they would date the licence forward to Oct. 22, as owing to being uncertain about their decision he had applied for a similar licence at Beccles, which had been granted. He further put in contents bills of the performances to be given, and stated licences had been granted to him for Leiston, Stowmarket, Saxmundham, and Beccles. During the ten years he had been connected with the company no complaints, to his knowledge, had been received from anyone, with the exception of some publicans, whose complaint was that the performances kept the people away from their houses.

IN support, he called Mr. Robert Skinner, on whose meadow the building would be erected, and who witnessed one of the performances at Saxmundham. He stated the performances were "not so bad." They were well conducted and quite respectable. When asked if there was anything to object to, the witness replied, "Not altogether," and on being further pressed to give his reasons, said from a religious standpoint it was objectionable, otherwise it was all right.

FOUR superintendents of police spoke highly of the performances, and stated the theatre was well conducted and most respectable; and a petition was put in signed by a number of the inhabitants, and also a resolution from the Woodbridge Traders' Association, against the granting of the application. After retiring, the Chairman said the Bench had very carefully considered the application, and unanimously refused to grant the licence applied for.

MESSRS. SAMUEL FRENCH AND CO., LTD., have just published Mr. Charles Hannan's one-act version of his successful three-act farcical comedy The Electric Man, which was produced at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, and subsequently ran at the Royalty and Shaftesbury theatres, being afterwards given in the condensed version now presented at the Chelsea and Metropolitan halls.

AT the meeting of the Wandsworth Chamber of Commerce recently held at the Wandsworth Town Hall, Alderman S. Cresswell presiding, the General Purposes Committee recommended that the L.C.C. should be asked to restrict the type of posters displayed on hoardings round the Council property in Wandsworth. Mr. Wenmoth said that the posters chiefly complained of were those with suggestive titles purporting to display terrible scenes in plays produced at second or third-rate theatres. Some of these pictures were not fit for young people to look at. The Association agreed to send the letter proposed to the L.C.C.

A FULL meeting of the General Council of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala was held at the Bee Hotel in that city last week, Mr. Lewis Peake presiding. The reports of the various sub-committees were considered highly satisfactory, and only fine weather is required on Tuesday to crown their efforts with success. A most gratifying incident was the reading of a letter from Mr. Tom Watson, in which he stated that it had been decided to again allocate the proceeds of Liverpool's practice matches to the gala fund. Thus, as last year, a considerable sum will be available to assist the local charities.

THE Sports Committee reported that inquiries for forms of entry for the professional footballers' championship race had been received from all parts of the kingdom, and that a numerous and high-class entry would be forthcoming. For the handicap for Liverpool F.C. players Councillor Tom Bell, J.P., had kindly offered to furnish a silver challenge cup, and this offer had been accepted with thanks. During the twenty-one years the gala has been in existence no call has been made on the charitable feelings of Liverpool M.P.'s. It was, however, decided to approach them with the object of their providing the 50-guineas challenge trophy for the footballers' championship.

MR. W. W. RUTHERFORD, M.P., has already forwarded a donation of five guineas to the object. Councillor W. W. Kelly stated that the collecting bottles issued by the Novelties Committee had been a huge success, and he anticipated a considerable income from this source. Mr. W. A. Crouch (Floral Sales Committee) said that notwithstanding the present unsatisfactory state of trade, the committee had been successful in obtaining many gifts of prizes, &c. The committee of the brass band concert, to be held at New Brighton Tower on Aug. 6, announced that they had received from Messrs. Boosey and Co., London, a splendid silver cornet, of the value of eighteen guineas, as a prize to be given to the best cornet player on that date.

MR. FRANCIS LAIDLER writes: "In The Era of July 9 you stated that the proceeds of the previous Tuesday's matinée at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, amounting to £46, had been devoted to the fund in aid of the sufferers in the recent sad accident at the Leeds Roundhay Park Gala, but your notice conveys the idea that I was the only one who should be mentioned in connection with the success of the matinée. I shall be glad if you will therefore correct this impression by kindly inserting this letter in your next issue. This matinée was not one of the regular Tuesday matinées (which are discontinued until August), but a special performance in which Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's Cripple Creek company, and the entire theatre staff, together with the orchestra, gave their services free. The matinée was arranged by Mr. Nathaniel Hepworth, my acting manager at Leeds, and by Mr. Merrie, on behalf of Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow."

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

East of Chicago.

WE take the following from "In Memoriam: Bronson Howard," a brief biography of the celebrated American dramatist which has just reached us from New York:—

"An example or two of the type of humour that made an especial appeal to Mr. Howard may not be inappropriate. Riding during the daytime in a sleeping-car in the far West, Mr. Howard's attention was attracted by the affectionate treatment bestowed upon a little girl by a gentleman with whom she was. The girl was a child of ten or twelve, the man was evidently her father. The relationship made an immediate appeal to the tenderness of Mr. Howard's nature, and he spoke to the father.

"'You seem very fond of that little girl,' he said.

"'Oh, yes,' the father answered; 'she goes nearly everywhere with me. This little girl has travelled with me all over the United States.'

"'Indeed!' Mr. Howard commented.

"'Yes,' the father answered, 'all over the United States.' And then, after a moment's pause, 'That is, except east of Chicago.'

"This easy elimination of the entire Atlantic seaboard struck Mr. Howard as especially characteristic of the western mental attitude."

The Important Exchange.

"ANOTHER story that he delighted to tell, as showing the Westerner's easy grouping of his own achievements with the volcanic wonders of Nature, was this: Mr. Howard had accompanied a citizen of Denver to a central elevation; the man was displaying the surrounding panorama.

"'That mountain over there,' he said, 'is Long's Peak. Right there in the middle is the Merchants' Exchange. That's Pike's Peak on the left.'"

The Lost Dramatists.

"SOME years ago [says Mr. Augustus Thomas], when a philanthropic gentleman endeavoured to found a Theatre of Arts and Letters, I found myself at a preliminary dinner sitting next Mr. Howard. The magazine and short-story writers of the time were also guests, among them such eminent gentlemen as Charles Dudley Warner, William Dean Howells, and Edmund Clarence Stedman.

"'What is the idea of this gathering?' I asked Mr. Howard.

"'Well,' he replied, 'our host has an idea that these literary gentlemen are the lost dramatists of America.'

"'Perhaps he is right,' I submitted, upon which Mr. Howard asked,

"'What is a dramatist, Thomas?'

"'I take it that a dramatist is a man who writes plays.'

"'Exactly. Have these gentlemen written p'ays?'

"'I don't think so.'

"'Then they are not dramatists. The dramatist shows his inclination at an early age, just as the artist shows his. It is impossible for an eminent business man at fifty to say "I will be a portrait painter," and thereupon succeed.'"

Comical "Corpses."

THE Westminster Gazette has an amusing article by C. M. S. called "At a Pageant Rehearsal":—"In pageant battles, those who are marked out for death wish even to expire in rows. 'Corpses, please don't die in a row.' That order was actually given from the watch-tower of a pageant grand stand! On that occasion the poor 'corpses' lost their tempers badly and walked off the field, amid the laughter of the mixed audience who were watching the dress rehearsal.

Real "Hard" Work.

"'I AIN'T going to die to-morrow. It's the turn of some other chap,' said one such aggrieved warrior, as he ruefully showed his bruises. A British King who had to stab himself, and then realistically roll, with a thud, down stone steps, injured his thigh so much that he had to employ an understudy to go shares in risks. Indeed, the ambulance tents in a pageant ground often have a real part to play. They render first aid to young soldiers who injure each other with wooden swords in the heat of mediæval battles, or who fire blank cartridges into each other's faces in the excitement of warfare. After one such battle, in which many young Territorials were engaged, party spirit ran so high that groups of Cavaliers and Roundheads were fighting it out in private when the battle was over. On that occasion splinters of wooden swords were picked up all over the field of action, and the properties tent was hard put to it to supply new weapons by the score to many doughty young warriors.

A Pageant Menagerie.

"ANIMALS play no mean part in modern pageants. At one large pageant this year the list of animals comprised a calf, a yoke of oxen, a goat, a flock of sheep, six pigs, a dog, and about a hundred horses, not to mention ponies and lap-dogs. The calf filled his first days with terrified lowing, and then became entirely reconciled to wearing a wreath of flowers and being prepared day by day for a bloodless sacrifice by a fierce Roman priestess, who is a most harmless lady in private life and a warm adherent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. That calf grew so fat that the pageant joke was that she would be a cow before the end of the performances.

Royal Robes.

"A PAGEANT is a great leveller of ranks, though it does provide a tent for the sham Royalty who are taking part. It is very curious to see the inscription over such a pavilion: 'For Kings and Queens,' and the adjacent tents are labelled with even more weird titles: 'Gents quick change' is one such name, and a little farther down the road we find: 'For pigs and ponies,' which strikes one as a queer mixture.

"ONE of the pageant kings had a very curious experience as he walked home in full Saxon Royal Coronation robes one evening. Two men who were motoring through the town, unmindful of a pageant, gazed at him with open-mouthed wonder and horror. Then one remarked to the other: 'My God, what is that?' However, as a rule a town keeps general carnival during a pageant week, and no sort of costume, or scantiness of costume, excites comment, though an ancient British maiden did overhear two little girls remarking: 'My mother would not let me go out like that if it were ever so, would yourn?' Perhaps that was not surprising, considering the fact that the lady in question had bare arms and legs."

A Galleryite's Retort.

"MR. F. R. BENSON," says the Daily Sketch, "has related some capital stories of his experiences on the stage. At one town he was playing to poor business. The occupants of the gallery were few and not over enthusiastic. The actor was about to make an exit, and it came to him to say, 'Tarry awhile, and anon I will return," upon which a voice from the gallery exclaimed, 'Don't trouble to return, guv'nor, we're going, and shall not be back.' And yet another. It was again a poor house. The manager was standing at the gallery entrance when a little boy came down the steps crying bitterly. Questioned as to the cause of his intense grief, he replied, 'I've been sitting up there by myself, and it seems so lonely!' And the solitary patron of the drama among the 'gods' went home, encouraged by the return of his admission money."

HONOUR TO MR. F. R. BENSON.

The summer season of the Stratford Festival opened on Monday last, when A Winter's Tale was presented to a crowded house. There were several alterations in the cast as compared with the performances already noticed in these columns, Miss Marjorie Patterson making her début in the leading rôle of Perdita, and Messrs. Eric Maxon and Murray Carrington exchanging their former parts of Polixenes and Florizel respectively.

Before the opening of the theatre a special meeting of the Borough Council was held in the Town Hall, at which Mr. F. R. Benson was presented with the freedom of the ancient borough of Stratford-on-Avon. The building was crowded for the occasion, and in addition there were large and enthusiastic crowds in the streets through which Mr. Benson, accompanied by Mrs. Benson, passed on his way to the Council Chamber, where there were assembled the Mayor, aldermen, councillors, borough officials, and a large gathering of townspeople.

The Mayor, in making the presentation, said the Council decided in April last to confer the gift upon Mr. Benson, and fully intended it to be made the following month, but the lamented death of King Edward VII. prevented this intention being carried out. The delay was not unprecedented, for it was singularly a fact that the last gentleman to receive the honour, David Garrick, was made a freeman on Oc. 11, 1768, and only actually received it on May 8, 1769, so that it was over 142 years since Mr. Benson's immediate predecessor was appointed. He thought Mr. Benson would feel the honour the greater that Garrick should have been in the same honourable profession, should have won his fame on the stage in the same town, and principally by producing the plays of their great poet and townsman, William Shakespeare. No living man had done more than Mr. Benson to make known and popularise the works of the greatest man this or any other century had produced. By his great tact, love of the cause and of Stratford-on-Avon, Mr. Benson had succeeded in bringing the annual festival to the high position it now held, and had made the town attractive to visitors from all parts of the world. In handing Mr. Benson the casket, with its contents, he felt that not only that gentleman, but Mrs. Benson and their family, would duly appreciate the gift. Mr. Benson would feel proud that he had won it, and they that he had received his due from the town in which he had worked so hard for the last twenty-four years, and upon the stage of which they were so proud he had produced upwards of thirty-three of their townsman's plays.

Councillor A. D. Flower, as representing the governors of the Memorial Theatre, said the Memorial Association and the Corporation were very closely identified in the borough. Theirs was the only theatre, he believed, in the United Kingdom where the Town Council was permanently represented by the inclusion of the Mayor and the aldermen among the ex-officio governors. Mr. Benson's success was due to the fact that throughout his life he had set a high ideal and kept it before him in face of difficulties and many discouragements, and an indefinable charm which inspired love and enthusiasm among all with whom he came into contact.

Mr. Benson, having accepted the gifts and subscribed his name to the roll, said no words of his could aptly express the joy, hope, and encouragement which filled his heart that day. The honour was far beyond his expectations, and was one he could not possibly have hoped to attain without the assistance of his wife and those loyal comrades whom Stratford had always treated so kindly. That day, in the words of the prize play, he had been constituted "Your knight, your friend, your serving-man," and he hoped they would allow him to remain so, and that he might be spared to owe them still his life and service.

Outside the hall Mr. Benson was presented with a handsome wreath of laurel by Mr. E. Fox on behalf of the burgesses, while Mrs. Benson was the recipient of a bouquet from the ladies of the town. Then Mr. and Mrs. Benson entered a decorated landau, and were drawn round the town by enthusiastic admirers, a band of Morris dancers leading the way.

THE STRATFORD PRIZE PLAY.

On Tuesday, July 26, at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, Mr. Benson and his company presented the play by Josephine Preston Peabody (Mrs. Lionel Marks) to which was awarded the prize offered by the Committee of the Stratford Festival for the best play worthy of production at the Shakespeare Commemoration. Its presentation was originally fixed for May 5, but was postponed owing to the death of King Edward. It was entitled

The authoress has taken as her foundation the legend of the Pied Piper of Hamelin, dating back to the year 1284. The Piper has already completed his contract to rid the burgh of its rats, but he has not yet reappeared to claim the promised reward.

The first act introduces us to the market-place of Hamelin, in which is prominent a large sculptured figure of the Christ. A company of strolling players of the period are producing the rude miracle play of the Salvation of Noah by means of the Ark, accompanied by the Pitchforking of Lost Souls into Hell. The priest Anselm (Mr. Murray Carrington) is pointing the moral:

It doth body forth
A Judgment that may take you unaware—
Sun-struck with mirth.

And Jacobus, the burgomeister (Mr. Alfred Brydone), none too sober, likens the deliverance of Noah and his company from the Flood to the deliverance of Hamelin from famine and the plague of rats. He alludes to the disappearance of the Piper as a providential interposition:

The rats are gone,
The man is gone. And there is nought to pay.

So his mean and sordid soul rejoices. But it happens that the Piper is in the Ark, playing the part of Reynard the Fox, and when the burgomeister proposes that the day should be brought to a close with thanksgiving to Saint Willibald,

Upon whose day the rats departed thence,

Reynard protests; and, backed by Hans the butcher (Mr. Harry Caine), Peter the cobbler (Mr. W. W. Caithness), Axel the smith (Mr. G. F. Hannam Clarke), and other humble members of the community, claims the promised thousand guilders.

Jacobus in his stingy reluctance to pay is supported by Kurt the syndic (Mr. Moffat Johnston), another cramped and stunted spirit. These two characters are intended to typify the narrow, selfish, and shrivelled life of the burgh, with its conventions, its gossip, and its greed.

It is against these conditions of life that the Piper protests. He typifies the Life of the Open Road. He abominates restriction. He would live where there are

No walls, no hedges,
No tolls, no taxes—rats nor aldermen.

He would live

Along with squirrels, and bright fish
And bubbling water.

So when the burghers, dominated by Jacobus and Kurt, propose to take advantage of the fact that he has "no scrip to show" for the contract but their word, and offer him a paltry fifteen guilders, coupled with the insult that

He is a stroller,
A wastrel, and the shadow of a man.
. . . . . Nothing is his.
He may not carry arms; nor have redress

For any harm that men should put on him, he determines to teach them a lesson. They go into the church, leaving him almost alone. Then he commences softly to pipe the Kinder-Spell. The children creep round him. And as he pipes gayer and louder every door opens, and the children follow him, fascinated, bewitched, to "The Hollow Hill," "a great, dim-lighted, cavernous place," where opens Act II., Scene 1.

This cavern, painted by Messrs. Joseph and Phil Harker, provides the setting for the quaintest scene of the whole drama. Here we have the main motif of the play, the Kinder-Spell, elaborated. It is not the mere magic of the Piper's music which endears him to the Kinder. It is that he incarnates the Child-Spirit, the elfishness and the irresponsibility of childhood. He is a child himself. He enters into their games, their make-believes, their dreams, their prankish joys, their wistful sorrows.

He has taken a peculiar affection for one little lame urchin, Jan (Miss Hetty Kenyon), son, as we learn elsewhere in the play, by a former alliance, of Veronika (Miss Marion Terry), now the unhappy wife of Kurt, whom she has wed to buy Jan

House

And warmth and softness for his little feet.

Jan's big heart in his little crooked body o'erflows with pity for the loneliness of the Christ in the market-place. He speaks of Him always as "the Lonely Man." He cannot understand why He never smiles.

It grieves him that the Head is always bowed
And stricken. But he loves more to be here
Than yonder in the church.

And he continually waits and watches

To see Him smile.

This sentiment strikes an echoing chord in the heart of the Piper, himself "a lonely man," the son of strolling players, banned by the Church. He tells, in one of the finest passages of the play, how his mother

Was a thing so trodden, lost, and sad
I cannot think that she was ever young
Save in the cherishing voice, and how

She starved and sang;

And like the wind, she roved and lurked and shuddered
Outside your lighted windows, and fled by,
Storm-hunted, trying to outstrip the snow.

A love-element, originating in the first act, meets with further allusion in Act II., Scene 1, and is developed in Act II., Scene 2, the Cross-ways—another beautiful illustration of the genius of the Messrs. Harker. Barbara (Miss Violet Farebrother), the daughter of Jacobus, has stricken the fancy of Michael-the-Sword-Eater (Mr. Eric Maxon), one of the Piper's fellow-strollers. Life to him was

A death-black night
Until she came.

After the exeunt of the children of Hamelin, he made his way back to the burgh and saw her by stealth. There he learned that the burghers, in their fear and remorse, had resolved, in token of their repentance, to offer up to the Almighty a vicarious sacrifice by dedicating Barbara, their Burgomeister's daughter, to the service of the church, and immuring her within the four walls of a convent. She had dreamed that Michael, whom she took for "some noble in disguise," would come to rescue her. And when he appears she pleads with him to save her by restoring the children. But he is loyal to his chief, and, as he relates to the Piper:

I swore I knew not of thy vanishment
Nor the lost children. But I told her true
I was a stroller and an outcast man
That hid there, like a famished castaway,
For one more word, without a hope,
Helpless to save her.

Now, if there is one trait in the Piper's character as strong and deep even as his love of children, it is his hatred of cages;

How can I breathe and laugh
While there are things in cages?

he asks; and his mind is set on saving Barbara from her impending consignment to a nunnery. To Michael he says:

Take heart! I swear, by all the stars that chime!
I'll not have things in cages!

When the procession of the burghers, leading Barbara to the Nunnery of Rudersheim, headed by priests, and followed by the womenfolk, approaches the crossways, chanting a Latin hymn, Jacobus, meek, Kurt, very stern, the Piper, hidden in a tree, commences to pipe the Dance-spell. Here we cannot do better than quote the stage directions: "The hymn wavers; when the first burghers reach the centre of the stage, it breaks down. They look up bewildered; then, with every sign of consternation, horror, and vacant fear they begin to dance, willy-nilly. Their faces work, they struggle to walk on, but it is useless. The music whirls them irresistibly into a rhythmic pace of three-quarter time, and jogs their words, when they try to speak, into the same dance-measure. One by one—two and two they go—round and round like corks at first, with every sign of struggle and protest, then off, on the long road to Rudersheim." It was unfortunate that the small dimensions of the Stratford stage prevented Mr. Benson's company from realising all the humorous possibilities of this scene.

In the confusion of the Dance-Spell Barbara is left behind. She, too, is bewitched by the Piper's mystic music, and further effort on his unselfish part is needed in Act III. before her affections are duly transferred to Michael. But if Act III. opens in the chord of the sweet comedy of A Midsummer Night's Dream and As You Like It, it ascends to true and high tragedy as Veronika appears on the scene, pale, worn, and haggard, and appeals to the Piper to give her back her little lame Jan. Miss Marion Terry met with deservedly warm approval in the rôle of Veronika. She addresses the Piper as

You, who have torn the hearts out of our bodies
And left the city like a place of graves.

He assures her that the Kinder live, and laugh, and asks

What's breath and blood—what are the hearts of children
To Hamelin, while it heaps its money-bags?

He scourges Hamelin with tongue.

. . . . . that town
Stands as the will of other towns, a score,
That makes us wandering poor the things we are!
It stands for all, unto the end of time,
That turns this bright world black and the sun cold,
With hate, and hoarding; all-triumphant greed
That spreads above the roots of all despair,
And misery, and rotting of the soul.

He threatens

Now shall they learn—if money-bags can learn—
What turns the bright world black, and the sun cold;
And what's that creature that they call a child.

He has

. . . . . to pay for fifty thousand hates,
Greeds, cruelties.

And at last he has it in his power. He has the children, and he will not give them up. Besides, as he persuades himself:

I save the children—yes, I save them, so.

And he pleads with Veronika to trust him—

I love thy child. Trust me—I love them all.
They are the brightest miracle I know
. . . . . .
. . . Now I have the children safe with me;
And men shall never teach them what men know.

He alludes to the children as

Those radiant things that have no wish at all
Save for what is all-beautiful! the rainbow,
The running water, and the moon, the moon!
The only things worth having!

and charges Veronika to return to Hamelin and wake up its dead souls.

Then follows the most remarkable scene of the play. The Piper pleads with the Christ on the Cross to be allowed to retain the children.

O let me keep them! I will bring them to you
Still nights and breathless mornings; they shall touch
Your hands and feet with all their swarming hands,
Like showering petals warm on furrowed ground—
All sweetness! They will make Thee whole again,
With love Thou wilt look up and smile on us!

But as no favouring answer comes from the dumb Christ, so does the Piper's voice rise in a crescendo of passionate entreaty, almost irreverent in its rude force, and he makes this offer:

Look, lonely man! You shall have all of us
To wander the world over, where you stand
At all the crossways, and on lonely hills—
Outside the churches, where the lost ones go!
And the wayfaring men, and thieves and wolves
And lonely creatures, and the ones that sing!
We will show all men what we hear and see;
And we will make Thee lift thy head and smile
. . . Let me keep but one.

Then he breaks down, accepts the Christ's continued dumbness as a refusal, and promises to release the children.

The last act shows us the melancholy and darkness that have fallen on the childless people of Hamelin; leads up to the return of the Piper, and an intensely dramatic situation as he conjures the believed-to-be-dying Veronika from her bed to welcome back her Jan; who is followed presently, in a poignantly emotional scene, by all the other children. The curtain falls as the Piper bids them all adieu:

There's so much piping left to do—
I must be off and pipe. I promised
The lonely man.

Although we understand that the authoress had not Mr. Benson in mind when she composed the play, yet it is no exaggeration to say that the part of the Piper fits him like a gossamer glove. The alternate pathos, whimsicality, elfishness, brooding sense of injustice, mysticism, protest, despair, joy, and sadness of the rôle give Mr. Benson the very opportunities which those who have followed his career closely know him so fitted to seize and develop.

The choice of Miss Marion Terry for the part of Veronika is as happy and fortunate as that of Miss Hetty Kenyon for the child part of Jan. In fact, the cast is of all-round excellence. And although in all the five acts the dominant figure is, as it should be, the Piper, Mr. Benson is thoroughly and loyally supported by every member of his talented company. Miss Violet Farebrother as Barbara particularly showing us the rapid strides she has made since first she joined the Benson company.

In a play of this nature, in which music is not merely an incidental but a leading motive, a heavy responsibility fell upon Mr. Christopher Wilson. It is essential to the vraisemblance and success of the play that the audience should accept the probability of the magic effect of the pipe music. In this Mr. Wilson has completely succeeded, and he has left in our memories haunting and wistful melodies in accord with the weird spirit of the play.

To Messrs. Harker's excellent work we have already alluded, and would only, in conclusion, congratulate the Shakespeare Festival Committee on having by their enterprise brought into the light of public prominence a real mistress of the dramatic art, who has enriched the Anglo-Saxon drama with a play of real beauty and consummate charm.

The play was received with unbounded enthusiasm by a crowded house. Players, author, composer, were all called before the curtain again and again, and many floral tributes were presented.

On Wednesday, July 27, Mr. Benson revived Julius Cæsar. The performance was almost identical with that noticed in our columns two months ago, the main difference being that Mr. Murray Carrington played the title-rôle instead of Mr. Guy Rathbone, and that Miss Violet Farebrother assumed—for the first time, but with noteworthy success—the part of Calphurnia. The feature of the evening was Mr. Eric Maxon's very powerful delineation of Cassius.

Actors' Religions.

"THE real religions of the people behind the footlights, who pass before us in the garb of priest or atheist, nun, or the woman of fads and spiritualistic fancies," says the Scotsman, "form a subject that offers surprises to the outsider who never sees stage people except when the bewildering orchestra and flaring footlights are between himself and them. Perhaps he thinks that in real life, if actors go in for such a thing as real life, they have no time for anything but late suppers after the show and bed all the next morning.

Footlight Faith.

"PEOPLE who scornfully think that actor folk are blasé, disillusioned, and cynical should go on the stage themselves and learn from their new comrades of the sock and buskin what idealism and simple faith are. Faith! Why, a sweet, childlike faith is essential to anyone who contemplates going on the stage. Perhaps that is why religion is rife behind the footlights—and especially new religions. All the latest styles in religion are largely followed by the men and women of the stage—Christian Science, New Thought, Theosophy, Yogi, or Oriental Occultism, and many others.

"HUNDREDS of stage folk have opened their hearts to the advantageous doctrines of 'Science and Health' especially, and they work it on themselves with extraordinary results. There is, for instance, a young woman understudying a leading part in a current production who has waited in vain for over half a year to get a chance to play. She is still waiting. And is it because the one for which she is substituting is an Amazon, one of the never-misses-a-day kind? Not a bit of it. She is a 'fainter,' always falling down in a dead faint just before the show. But 'it's all a mistake, this fainting business,' she tells the other members of the company after they have revived her; 'an error.' She sees her substitute leaning over her hopefully. 'I am perfectly able to go on with my part now,' declares the pale and trembling star vigorously, 'and when I am sufficiently perfected in science these errors will discontinue.'"

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, July 28.—The atmosphere in the theatrical world seems, at the present moment, to be charged with crime, for from every side we hear nothing but assaults, robberies, and tutti quanti. The case that attracts most attention is that of Mlle. Cavell, a charming actress I have had the pleasure of knowing for several years. A few nights ago, returning from Enghien with a M. Mouilleron, who had volunteered to take her back with him to Paris in his motor-car, she suddenly jumped out of the car because—as she says—M. Mouilleron drew a revolver from his pocket and, in a threatening manner, pointed it at her head. M. Mouilleron, on his part, denies having attempted to assault or even to frighten the lady; and his explanation is that Mlle. Cavell took fright at his removing his revolver from one pocket to another. Unfortunately, he goes further, and accuses Mlle. Cavell with attempting to blackmail him, claiming damages to which she is not entitled. This charge has created a very ugly impression in the theatrical world, where the lady is very well known. People shrug their shoulders, and very rightly laugh at the idea of a young woman jumping out of a motor-car travelling at the rate of thirty miles an hour, risking her life, with the object of securing damages from a man who is anything but wealthy. M. Mouilleron is not a murderer, nor is Mlle. Cavell a blackmailer; and it is easy to guess what occurred during that midnight ride from Enghien to Paris. M. Mouilleron—as is proved by witnesses—had been drinking rather freely. He was a stranger to Mlle. Cavell, and it is more than probable that, being in a "larky" humour, he pulled out his revolver, whereupon his terrified companion threw herself out of the car and received some ugly injuries. The matter, now sub judice, would never have assumed such proportions if M. Mouilleron had not taxed Mlle. Cavell with trying to blackmail him.

NEXT we have Mlle. Francesca Fiori, from the Théâtre Mondaine, who accuses a M. X., a young man to whom she had been introduced, with having given her a poisoned peppermint drop, which, the gentleman asserted, would cure her sore throat. She took the sweet, and became so ill that for several weeks she had to remain under medical treatment, the doctors asserting that her illness was due to poisoning. At her request, M. Hervouet, the secretary of the Dramatic Artists' Syndicate, wrote to M. X., asking him what he intended to do in the matter, whereupon that gentleman despatched one of his friends to Mlle. Fiori to tell her that he was willing to "organise a concert for her benefit." Mlle. Fiori indignantly replied that she did not want any charity, but "damages" for having been thrown out of employment. M. X.'s emissary thereupon shook his head and said that his friend did not possess a sou in the world. Acting on M. Hervouet's advice, Mlle. Fiori has now brought a criminal action against M. X., and M. Levy-Oullmann, the well-known barrister, is acting on her behalf. This queer and unpleasant story has been confirmed by independent witnesses, and the author of this unpardonable hoax appears to be a man belonging to the musical world who is in the habit of taking sweets prepared with some Eastern compound—no doubt, a kind of "hashish." His friends believe that it all arose through a mistake, but the official enquiry will bring the truth to light.

CASE number three concerns Mlle. Carmen Deraisy, who, in Chantecler, at the Porte-Saint-Martin, impersonates the hen pheasant, the rôle created by Mlle. Simone. She, too, has been assaulted. "At the close of the performance," she says, "whilst my maid was undressing me, a man, hidden behind a screen, rushed forward, struck me violently in the face, and ran away." Fortunately for her she recognised her cowardly assailant, and so did the people who rushed to her dressing-room attracted by her cries. M. Durand, the Police Commissary of the Porte-Saint-Martin district, is investigating the affair, and we may expect some sensational disclosures.

WHILST on the subject of Chantecler, I may mention that the work to follow it will be L'Aventurier, by M. Alfred Capus, with M. Lucien Guitry in the principal part. The other rôles will be held by MM. Jean Coquelin, Pierre Magnier, Signoret, Mosnier, Mmes. Gabrielle Dorziat, Juliette Darcourt, and Jeanne Desclos.

AT the Gymnase the next novelty will be La Fugitive, by M. André Picard, with Mlle. Yvonne de Bray in the name-rôle. Mme. Chérel, whom we applauded so often at the Palais-Royal, has also been engaged by M. Franck for the coming season.

M. EMILE MASSARD, always very much interested in the members of the "profession," petitioned the Paris County Council to open rooms in every Paris hospital specially reserved to actresses, actors, and members of the music hall stage. The question came under discussion, but M. Massard was informed that the City of Paris could not accede to his request, inasmuch as the authorities cannot draw any distinction between one class of patients and another.

MLLE. SUZY DELSART, the charming "Merry Widow," has made her last appearance as Missia Palmieri. When Miss Constance Drever left Paris it was Mlle. Delsart who assumed that rôle—a difficult undertaking—and Mlle. Delsart was delighted when the clever English artist complimented her on the manner in which she acquitted herself of her task. Her place has now been taken by Mlle. Jenny Bernals, and La Veuve Joyeuse continues to draw crowded houses at the Paris Apollo.

"GRETA."

Drama, in One Act, by Charlotte Brook. Produced at the Grand Opera House, Harrogate, on Friday, July 22.

Iddio	MR. THOMAS PAUNCEFORT
Greta	MISS MARY CREWE
Martha	MISS NANNIE HUME
A Stranger	MR. LESLIE CROWTHER

This sketch is the winner in Harrogate of a competition inaugurated by Miss Lena Ashwell. It is the story in a new form of the eternal triangle. Greta, when a small child, was found one night on the doorstep of Iddio's house. He, a poor, lonely, half-witted hunchback, takes her in and makes her his own. Years after he marries her, and when the play opens he is waiting, with some trepidation, her return from the village, whither she has gone to make some purchases. His jealousy is his all-consuming passion. Greta has been so carefully guarded that she has seen no man save her husband, for fear, when she does, she will turn from his misshapen body and know the meaning of love. Martha, the old housekeeper for the couple, seeks to comfort Iddio, but he is tortured with his fear. At length she enters and she reads to him of love. He retires to his room to bed, and bids her follow. When alone she lets in the stranger, whom she has been meeting of late. He proposes instant flight, and tells her of love, of life, and of the world outside. She consents to go. Iddio has meanwhile been concealed in the room, and had heard all. On the exit of the stranger to make arrangements for the flight Greta gets a few trinkets together. When her back is turned Iddio springs on her and strangles her, "to save her from dishonour." Mr. Thomas Pauncefort gave a clever reading of the jealous Iddio, and Miss Mary Crewe as Greta was good though inclined to make too long pauses. Miss Nannie Hume was excellent as the talkative Martha. Mr. Leslie Crowther as the stranger lover had some excellent lines to speak.

MOTOR JOTTINGS.

Messrs. Middleton have sent us the 1910 edition of their interesting publication "Motor Trips from London and Paris at a Glance." Published in handy form, this very useful guide contains exhaustive particulars of practically every circular route of interest throughout Great Britain.

Runs from a half-day trip to a three weeks' tour are given, and every city, town, and the principal "show-spots" to be seen and enjoyed by the sight-seeing motorist are carefully included and tersely but thoroughly described.

There are upwards of seventy excellent maps of the various runs selected, clearly showing each route without any of the usual bewildering and quite unnecessary complications.

A feature is made of the direct routes to the various race meetings, and another important innovation is the section dealing with tours in France, nine special maps of French trips being included.

The difficulty of how to get out of London quickly is set aside by the extremely useful inset map "The Way Out of London," and altogether Messrs. Middleton's handsome little guide—published at one shilling—is a most excellent and indispensable companion to the man with a car who is desirous of thoroughly knowing and appreciating the inexhaustive attractions of our tight little isle.

The City of Coventry is at present enjoying the luxury of a real trade boom that seems likely to continue. The Britisher may be slow to move, but he is thorough, and he has now got the great motor industry well in hand.

All the big works in the city of the historical Lady Godiva and the notorious Peeping Tom are working full time, the output of such well-known firms as the Daimler, the Deasy, and the Triumph Motor Cycle Co. being really enormous.

At Adderley Park, near Birmingham, the Wolseley Siddeley Autocar's record is one new car completed every working hour. Messrs. Vickers, Son, and Maxim, the proprietors (famous the world over for their mighty ships of war), offer a most highly-finished four-cylinder chassis—12-16 h.p. at £305, with many higher power types at corresponding prices.

He was quite a new victim to the fever of speed, and papa had generously, if perhaps unwisely, purchased for Algy a splendid new car. Not lacking in courage, "mamma's only boy" soon had the wheel in hand, and for fully ten minutes was rapidly, if somewhat unsteadily, careering down the sun-baked road. Soon, however, the new steed displayed a lagging tendency, and our hero's face wore a look of perplexity and keen disappointment. "I say Walters, my boy," he remarked to his chauffeur, "what ails the confounded hack? Don't seem in its full stride, don't you know." "Only the plugs, sir," answered the "shuvver" with a broad grin. "I think the two front cylinders are 'missing.'" "Two cylinders missing, Walters! Oh, isn't that demmed awkward? Don't you think we had better turn back, chappie, and see if we can—find them?"

The Premier Motor Cycle Co., Aston-road, Birmingham, are marketing their valveless, gearless motor cycle. In appearance it is very similar to the well-known Triumph, but its general constructions is widely different, and offers some interesting innovations. Its proprietors claim that the most troublesome parts of the four cycle motor are all eliminated. The valves, the timing wheels, cams, and tappets are dispensed with altogether, the only moving parts being the piston, connecting-rod, main shaft, and flywheel. With Bosch high tension ball bearing magneto Brown and Barlow carburettor, Clincher studded tyres, no expense has been spared to make this mount thoroughly reliable. It is 3½ h.p., scales only 140lb., and is offered to the retailer at 40 guineas.

Three of the directors of the Metropolitan Amalgamated Railway Carriage and Waggon Co., Ltd., Saltley, were involved in a serious motor-car accident in Great Francis-street, Birmingham, last Wednesday afternoon.

It was Thursday afternoon, and the matinée had just concluded. The "top of the bill," a very clever comedian, stood outside the "Hip." admiring his latest extravagance, a magnificent 20-30 h.p. car. The sun rays were shining on the beautifully-polished brass and the equally dazzing wind-screen of best mahogany and plate. "They make 'em in mica now, Jack," remarked his visibly-impressed companion, referring to the shield of glass. "Do they?" answered John the Comic; "well, I bought that bally lot in Preston. Support home industries, say I."

The staff of the Royalty Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness, held their annual outing on Sunday. The resident-manager, Mr. Geo. Stone, accompanied the party, which left Barrow by the s.s. Lady Moyra at 9.15 for Fleetwood. Thence they travelled by motor-car to Lancaster via Knott End for dinner at the King's Arms Hotel. Various places of interest in Lancaster and district were visited, and on return to Knott End via Garstang a good tea was provided at the Bourne Arms Hotel. All this and the return sail to Barrow was greatly enjoyed.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Reynolds and Donegan Engaged for Paris.

Earle Reynolds and Nellie Donegan, the marvellous roller-skaters, whose attractive act, it will be remembered, was such a success at the Palace Theatre last year, have been booked to appear at the Folies Bergère, Paris, with their skating interlude, for one month, commencing on Sept. 1.

Gala at Sunderland Rink.

There were large numbers of people at the Whitehall Rink, Sunderland, on the occasion of the gala night on the 21st inst., and the affair was very successful. The event of the evening was the final of the mile handicap for amateurs, and after a good race N. Boucher carried off the large silver cup, and A. Harrison secured the second silver cup. The manager (Mr. Twemlow) presented the trophies. A squadron race between teams of three Sunderland skaters and three Newcastle skaters ended in a win for the local team by over a quarter of a lap. A half-mile race between a cyclist (C. Watt) and a skater (J. Brown) ended in the cyclist winning easily. At ten o'clock a confetti battle was begun, and the fun was maintained till 10.30, when the entertainment closed after a very enjoyable evening.

Roller Skating in Cardiff.

Those who predicted a brief life for roller skating have been extremely poor prophets when one finds how the Olympia Rink, in Queen-street, Cardiff, is being patronised. Large and fashionable crowds assemble at each session, and the scene is ever an animated one. A good deal of the success is due to the excellent methods of keeping the building cool, but the quality of the skates, the good floor surface, and the music of the band all contribute to a maximum of enjoyment.

Blackpool Beach Rink.

The rink at the Pleasure Beach, Blackpool, is the largest in the district, and, being well equipped in every respect, is well suited for patrons obtaining the maximum of enjoyment during the three sessions which are held each day. During the hot weather the rink can be thrown open at the sides, so as to provide every comfort for rinkers. The prices of admission are reasonable and within the reach of all, while the best of skates can be hired at moderate prices.

New Brighton Skating Rink.

There was some exciting races on the New Brighton Roller Skating Rink on Wednesday, the 20th inst., for gold and silver medals, and the finals were very close. In the boys' quarter-mile race Wallis, who was one of the youngest competitors, distinguished himself in the heat, but was most unfortunate in the final. He was leading in the second lap, but took too big a sweep when turning one of the corners, and as a consequence bumped into the rails and allowed his opponent, Douglas, to gain on him for some distance. Wallis, however, made a plucky attempt to gain ground, and almost recovered on tape. The winner of the gold medal was P. Douglas, and A. Wallis won the gold centre silver medal. In the ladies' race there was a keen struggle. Miss McCabe, who had been leading during the early part of the final race, fell, and little Miss D. Turner then led all the way and won the gold medal. The gold centre silver medal was won by Miss J. Little.

Carnival at Chesterfield.

Roller skating is still a popular pastime with Chesterfield people. The Premier Rink at West Bars has been closed during the summer months, and the local enthusiasts have not been able to enjoy a skate. Opportunity was, however, afforded them on Wednesday, the 20th inst., when a carnival took place, it having been arranged by the Chesterfield Roller Skating Hockey Club, with the object of augmenting their funds, so that the winter season can be started with a good balance on the right side. It was a great success, and Mr. Victor Davis and Mr. F. Renshaw, the secretary of the club, are to be congratulated on the result of their efforts. The management of the Premier Rink Company generously offered them the use of the rink gratis, and Mr. C. Cartwright, the local manager of the rink, who during the close season is superintending a rink at Scarborough, but who will return to Chesterfield in September, attended and rendered assistance. Over three hundred people attended, and they spent a thoroughly pleasant evening. The evening's enjoyment was concluded with a battle of confetti.

Penzance Rink.

This rink has been well attended during the past week. Large numbers from the combined fleet visiting Mount's Bay have paid it a visit, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Gymkhana at West Stanley Rink.

A highly interesting and amusing gymkhana was held at the West Stanley Skating Rink on Wednesday night, splendid prizes being given for several events, such as ladies' potato race, amateur half-mile race, obstacle race, wheelbarrow race, &c., &c.

The Wonderful Howards, the Royal telepathic entertainers, were due to appear at the De Valance Gardens, Tenby, next week, but being suddenly booked for America for twelve weeks, Mr. Sidney James kindly let them off and cancelled their dates until next season. They sailed on Wednesday in the Oceanic for New York, where they open on Aug. 8, and return home at the end of October.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

It sometimes happens that a motorist's search for the best tyre ends where it begins, that is he strikes the best first. This seldom occurs in real life. The usual process is the slow and painful one of weeding out the undesirables. If you are not one of the lucky ones, in other words, if you have not yet tried

DEATH OF HENRI GROS.

A conspicuous figure of the variety world, and one whose influence on the contemporary music hall is immeasurable, is lost to view by the death of Mr. Henri Gros, who passed away on Sunday at his residence in Tavi-ton-street, Gordon-square, at the age of sixty. Possessing a strong personality and a thorough grasp of every phase of the entertainment business, Henri Gros threw himself whole-heartedly into its development so far as the music hall is concerned, and by voice and pen strenuously maintained the rights and privileges of the profession.

A man of keen business aptitude, Mr. Gros was also a formidable fighter. In 1900 he was appointed president of the London Entertainments Protection Association, a position to which he was elected for many years in succession. He was, of course, at the helm of that institution during the stormy period of the strike, and represented the association at the arbitration proceedings which resulted in the Award of 1907. On the "great sketch question," as he was wont to describe it, Mr. Gros discoursed eloquently and frequently, warmly advocating the legalisation of that form of entertainment. He was a ready speaker, and as a proof of his volubility it may be recorded that, presiding at an annual dinner of the Licensed Victuallers' Protection Association, he considerably astonished his hearers by making a speech lasting an hour and a quarter.

He yielded to no one in his desire to promote the interests of professional charities. In the year 1903-4 Mr. Gros was president of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and remained a member of the executive up to the termination of that society some two years ago. He was, moreover, a generous contributor to philanthropic institutions, and served as a ray of sunlight in the beclouded lives of many a poverty-stricken professional. At the Variety Benevolent Fund sports last week the "Henri Gros Challenge Shield" figured among the prizes. Even while that trophy was being competed for its donor was rapidly sinking, and on the following Sunday he breathed his last.

Starting his career as a wine merchant, Mr. Gros made his first venture in music hall enterprise in 1892 by acquiring an interest in the Metropolitan, in Edgware-road, and up to the time of his death was managing-director of that variety theatre. He was also managing-director of the Variety Theatres Consolidated (Limited), which own the Metropolitan, Chelsea, Euston, South London, and Walthamstow Palaces of Variety, and managing-director of the United Varieties Syndicate, which runs the East Ham and Tottenham Palaces.

Mr. Gros' chief energies were devoted to the Metropolitan, which was originally opened in 1862 as Turnham's Varieties, being rechristened the Metropolitan in 1864. After the hall had undergone many changes of management Mr. Gros acquired it in the May of 1892. Six years later he formed a company, under whose auspices he transformed the hall into a handsome palace of varieties, some £30,000 being spent on the work. Two years ago Mr. Gros saw the necessity for further innovations, and on Aug. 24, 1908, the Metropolitan, after being reconstructed and redecorated at a cost of £10,000, was reopened on the two-houses-a-night system. Mr. Gros also took an enthusiastic interest in the Chelsea Palace, which he opened in the April of 1903, and of which he had chief control. His interest in the other establishments with which he was associated was less marked, perhaps, but he applied himself indefatigably to his responsibilities there, and before his health began to give way was constantly to be seen at the various halls.

He was an uncompromising opponent of anything in the shape of vulgarity on his stage, and more than once came into conflict with his artists on the subject. His hostility to the "blue business" on one occasion had an amusing result. Sitting in the stalls at the Chelsea Palace one evening, Mr. Gros noted certain objectionable lines in a song sung, and demanded that the words should be sent to him for revision. The song was duly submitted, and was returned with two verses cut out—the two, however, which the comedian had not sung.

Mr. Gros was consistent throughout in his dealings with artists and employees. The secret of his success in business lay principally in the fact that he recognised the worth of every man in his employ, and placed him in the position most suited to his capacity. He was a strict disciplinarian, but if he erred at all it was on the side of leniency, and would overlook almost anything in an old hand in order to retain him on the staff. By the employees at the halls with which he was more immediately concerned he was regarded with a feeling amounting almost to veneration, and his influence over them may be estimated by the remark of an old servant: "It was impossible to tell the guv'nor a lie."

For many months past the deceased proprietor had suffered from heart trouble and dropsy, but bore his affliction with marvellous fortitude. The death last October of his wife, to whom he was deeply attached, undoubtedly hastened his end. A few weeks ago he paid a brief visit to Folkestone, hoping to gain relief, but without avail, and he lingered on to the end, passing peacefully away in his sleep. His death will be sincerely regretted by all classes of the profession, but by none more than the smaller turns, to many of whom he proved a real benefactor. He leaves two sons, one of whom was recently admitted a solicitor, and two daughters.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral took place at the Jewish Cemetery, Willesden, on Thursday; and evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many personal friends, his business associates, and more particularly by those in his employ, was shown by the large attendance and the numerous and beautiful floral tributes to which were attached cards inscribed with expressions of the deepest sympathy, regard, and regret. The funeral cortège, consisting of the hearse and fourteen carriages, started from the residence of the deceased, Taviton-street, Gordon-square, at eleven o'clock, and reached the cemetery a little after twelve o'clock. The chief mourners were Mr. G. Gros, Mr. S. Gros (sons), Mr. J. Beyfus (uncle), and Mr. S. de Groot and Mr. H. de Groot (cousins).

The Entertainment Proprietors' Protection Association were represented by Messrs. J. L. Graydon, P. J. Rutland, T. S. Dickie, and Underwood. Others present included Messrs. Henry Tozer, Jos. Davis, Walter Payne, Richard Warner, W. Huddleston, E. Warner, J. Somers, Wm. Bailey (manager of the Metropolitan), D. M. Trytell (conductor of the orchestra), W. H. Handley (who as pianist has been associated with the Metropolitan for over forty-seven years), Wilson Hallett, Percy Murray, F. Gooch, Blyth-Pratt, J. Wilson, J. McEvoy, Miller, T. S. Mayne, W. Wincote, J. M. Berlin, J. Andrews, P. Cohen, J. Cohen, the staffs of the Metropolitan, the Chelsea Palace, &c., including the stage hands, cleaners, check-takers, &c. The members of the music-hall profession were well represented in the large assemblage at the graveside. Messrs. Harry Tate, George Conquest, and Ernest Selig were amongst those who arrived after the service was over and the mourners had departed. The service was conducted by the Rev. G. Isaacs, of Devonshire-road Synagogue, the Rev. A. Adler (brother of the chief Rabbi), and the Rev. J. Spero, of the Great Portland-street Synagogue. The deceased was interred in a grave situated between two others, which contain the remains of his wife, Isabella Gros, who died on Oct. 20, 1909, at the age of sixty-one, and his mother, who passed away in 1902, aged eighty-one. Close by is the grave of Dr. Phineas Gros, who died on Dec. 14, 1902, aged thirty-four years.

The floral tributes of affection and regard were very numerous, and filled four landaus. Amongst the most prominent was a large crown composed of various choice flowers, the whole surmounted by a dove. This was from the staff of the Metropolitan, and the accompanying card was inscribed "R.I.P." Mr. Alfred Butt, of the Palace, sent a wreath, and the card attached bore the words "With deep sympathy. To one who was always sincere in his endeavours." On a cushion of white flowers was the word "Rest," and the card bore the following inscription: "To our dear governor. From his managers. God rest his soul." A tasteful design in red and white flowers came from the Grand Order of Water Rats. The management and staff of the Chelsea Palace sent a floral cushion of white flowers, with the word "Peace" prominent, and the inscription "Kind hearts are more than coronets and simple faith than Norman blood." A wreath from the Entertainment Proprietors' Protection Association bore the inscription: "To its devoted President." There were also wreaths from the directors of the New Tivoli, the London Pavilion, and the Oxford, the Canterbury and staff, the management, staff, and orchestra of the East Ham Palace, the Walthamstow Palace staff, members of the South London orchestra, the Variety Artists' Federation, the Fulham, Kensington, and West London Licensed Victuallers' Protection Association, Henri Gros. and Co., Mark Lane, Bass, Ratcliff, and Gretton, the office staff Durham House-street, Mr. J. Pritchard (a design made up entirely of red flowers), Music Hall Ladies' Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Will Collins, Mr. Jos. Davis, Messrs. Jos. Wilson and Mr. Blyth-Platt, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Kotin, Col. NEW HIPPODROME AT CROYDON.

The new Stoll Hippodrome at Croydon, which was opened on Monday, stands on the site of the old Theatre Royal in Crown Hill, built in 1800. After a varied history the old Theatre Royal was demolished in May, 1909, to make way for the more elaborate and up-to-date house which will now take its place with the other houses of amusement in Croydon.

The new palace of varieties occupies a commanding central position in the town, and has its main frontage in Crown Hill with entrances and exists on each side. The richly-embellished and well-appointed interior includes stalls and pit on the ground floor, a large circle and gallery over, and will accommodate about 2,000 persons. The building has been designed by Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co. for the Croydon Hippodrome Co., Ltd., and nearly £20,000 has been laid out on the new building, a full description of which was given in our last issue. Mr. J. Christie is the district manager and Mr. Stanley Hope the acting manager of this latest addition to the variety stage.

The scheme of decoration is in cream and gold in bold relief, giving an artistic and rich appearance to the interior of the house. A pleasant shade of green in the tapestry and upholstery work offers a welcome contrast to the rich red velvet pile carpets. Ample stage room has been provided, and artists will find that their comforts have been well thought of with dressing-rooms quite in keeping with the generous proportions of the whole of the magnificent theatre. A large number of influential ladies and gentlemen responded to the invitations to view the house on Thursday afternoon, when general admiration was expressed and the management congratulated all round upon this new elaborate addition to Croydon's palaces of amusement. There were no speeches, by order, but the Hippodrome orchestra, under the direction of Mr. H. Rattray, gave an excellent programme of music during the afternoon, and interesting selections on the Auxeto-gramophone were also appreciated. The directors had thoughtfully provided tea and light refreshments. The house opens to the public on Monday with a capital bill of fare.

St. Ruth and Conyers, who are appearing at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, this week, are making a great success with their new Irish medley, which is much above the ordinary style of medleys, and is rendered artistically. Mr. A. Douglas Willcox is again responsible for the composition and arranging.

THE NEW TIVOLI.

The nineteenth annual meeting of the New Tivoli, Limited, was held at the Tivoli, Strand, W.C., on Wednesday, Mr. Henry Tozer (chairman of the company) presiding.

The secretary (Mr. Ilford Ibbetson, F.C.I.S.) having read the notice convening the meeting and the auditor's report,

The Chairman said: This meeting constitutes the nineteenth occasion upon which we have met to consider the results of the trading for the year. From the accounts of the company at June 30 last it will be seen that the net profit for the twelve months then ended (after providing for £5,688 interest on the mortgage and debentures) amounts to the sum of £10,851 16s. 8d. In January last an interim dividend of £4 per cent. was paid, and the directors now recommend the payment of a further dividend of £6 per cent., making £10 per cent. for the year. After payment of this dividend the directors propose to deal with the surplus by applying £3,000 to the general reserve fund (making £28,000 to the credit thereof) and carrying forward the balance to the current year's accounts. The financial position of a company is undoubtedly the keynote to its soundness. Dividends rize and fall in accordance with the barometrical indications of general business conditions, but the ability of a company, after satisfying its obligations towards its mortgagees and debenture-holders, to earn year by year a substantial amount of net divisible profit is, it will be conceded, the feature which commands the most confidence and gives the most satisfaction to shareholders. Judging by this year's results, we have to congratulate you upon the fact that we are able to pay the substantial dividend of 10 per cent., to put aside a further £3,000 to our reserve fund, and to carry forward a fair balance of profit. This has been accomplished in spite of the severe drawback we experienced early in May by the lamented death of the late King. I may tell you at once that the loss of takings from that time up to June 30 (the end of our financial year), as compared with the corresponding period of 1909, has in the main accounted for the difference in the profit and loss of the past and present years. Other matters have occasioned and still occasion increased care and attention on our part; but we are gratified to be able to present to you what may be considered, in these days of severe competition and other detrimental circumstances incident at the present time to nearly every class of business, a satisfactory result of a particularly anxious year. I may, perhaps, mention as an illustration of modern movements, that at the present moment more than one-third of the shareholders are ladies, although in the early years of the company they were few. At the current rate of increase they will soon be in the majority—it may be because our articles of association give them equal votes to men shareholders. On all occasions we shall be willing, as we are to-day, to give the fullest information and explanation of the accounts, which have been simply and conclusively stated in the print we have, as usual, forwarded to the shareholders. With the final assurance, on the part of my colleagues and myself, that the takings have been encouraged in every way and the expenses most carefully controlled, I now beg to move:—"That the directors' report and accounts for the year ended June 30, 1910, recommending a dividend of 6 per cent. (less income-tax) for the half-year ended that date, together equal to 10 per cent. for the year with the dividend already paid, placing £3,000 to the general reserve fund, and carrying forward the balance to the current year's accounts, be, and are hereby, adopted."

Mr. Henry Sutton seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously, without discussion.

Mr. H. H. Wells, in proposing the re-election of Mr. Walter Payne, the retiring director, remarked that Mr. Payne rendered extremely valuable services to the company, and on legal matters they found his advice of the greatest importance, and undoubtedly an economy to the company.

The proposition was duly seconded, and the motion was agreed to.

Sir John Runtz, in proposing that 500 guineas be voted to the directors as remuneration, said he was quite sure that the motion would receive the unanimous support of the shareholders. The chairman had, with his usual clearness and conciseness, placed the affairs of the company before them, but had not referred to all the favourable features which might have been put before them in connection with the figures. The chairman naturally had referred to the £3,000 placed to reserve, and also to the balance carried forward, which showed that the company had earned during the year 15 per cent. on their capital, whilst they had declared a dividend of 10 per cent., thus keeping 5 per cent. in the company. This, he considered, was very sound finance indeed, and he was quite sure that the shareholders would endorse this policy. He noticed on the other side of the accounts, in connection with Consols and India 3 per Cent. Stock, that these items last year stood in the books at, respectively, 84¼ and 87 13-16, whilst this year they were taken respectively at 82¾ and 82⅞. He supposed that this was done before the profits of the year were taken into consideration, and he mentioned this in order that the shareholders might know that the directors had their eye on all corners of the balance-sheet, and that their securities were not only written down, but were written down to a safe figure. They had earned 15 per cent., and they had, as he had previously pointed out, carried 5 per cent. to reserves. They shared, of course, in the general sorrow at the death of King Edward VII., but they could not control those circumstances, and, taking all the conditions of the year into consideration, the directors had managed the company extremely well, and he thought the shareholders would show their gratitude by unanimously agreeing to the proposition he had made.

Mr. R. Meyer seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to.

The Chairman, in returning thanks, stated that there never was a time of greater anxiety in the whole ten years they had been managing the affairs of the company than the present. They were desirous of maintaining the prosperity of the company to its fullest, and there was nothing that would conduce to this end that would be left undone.

Last week Dr. Walford Bodie played to record business at the Hippodrome, Keighley, despite the week before the great Feast holiday—the worst week of the year. He played to packed houses nightly, and on Saturday had a rousing reception at both houses, being lustily cheered at the conclusion of his performance. This week he is playing to phenomenal business at the Hippodrome, Stockton-on-Tees. On Monday night he opened to two packed houses at early-door prices. Monday next he appears with his own company at the King's Theatre, Seacombe. The Doctor has had many offers, but has no immediate vacant dates, being fully engaged till the end of November, but is booking for 1911.

Mr. Justice Bucknill gave judgment in the King's Bench Division on Saturday in the action brought against Mr. George Roboy by Mr. Frederick Ginn, stamp dealer, who claimed £276 in respect of stamps alleged to have been supplied. In respect of certain Mauritius stamps the defendant had paid £42 14s. 2d. into Court. Judgment was given in favour of the plaintiff for £43 13s. 11d., including the sum paid in, the plaintiff to have the costs of the action up to July 1, and the defendant the costs from that date.

MR. FORBES ROBERTSON AT CARDIFF.

Mr. Forbes Robertson went to Cardiff on Saturday to address a meeting convened for the purpose of appointing a committee to raise a local fund for the Shakespeare National Memorial Theatre. The meeting, which was held at the City Hall, was largely attended, and the Earl of Plymouth, who presided, was supported by Mr. Robertson and Mr. O. R. Dawson (representing the London Committee), the Lord Mayor (Alderman John Chappell), and others. The noble chairman, in an opening address, pointed out that the question was not a London one, it was really not a question for the British Islands: it was an idea which touched the whole English-speaking race. They appealed, however, in the first place, to their own countrymen. The chairman announced that Mr. D. A. Thomas, M.P., who was unable to be present, had promised fifty guineas towards the fund.

Mr. Forbes Robertson, who was received with great cordiality, said he hoped that in the near future there would be commenced a noble building, on some good site in London, in memory of Shakespeare. The movement had been attempted once or twice before; this time they were going to win. After briefly reviewing the history of the movement, Mr. Robertson continued: "We blunder along in some mysterious sort of way, and we have gone on far too long without some institution of this kind in our midst. We boast of London being the richest and most powerful and the largest city in the world, and yet there is the ghastly fact that there is no monument to Shakespeare in that city, for you cannot call that unfortunate statue which stands in the middle of Leicester-square a monument at all."

Even in Paris, he went on, there is a monument to William Shakespeare, and there was an excellent one in New York. The enthusiasm of the New Yorker had produced the most beautiful theatre in the world—a theatre devoted to répertoire, and where, it was distinctly understood, they should give a certain number of performances of Shakespeare. "If a young country like America can do that," said Mr. Robertson, "surely we British can do it—we must do it, we will do it."

Mr. Robertson pointed out the extent to which the drama was subsidised in other countries. Proceeding to discuss what he described as the ridiculous question often asked as to whether the drama is an educational force, the distinguished actor said it was perfectly obvious to any person who had ever thought of the matter for a moment that the drama was at least as powerful in its educational influence as painting, music, and sculpture.

"It delights me," said Mr. Robertson, "to find that we are met in this magnificent temple which Cardiff has raised in its midst. Here you have set the most beautiful and elevating buildings that fill one with feelings of delight and ideas of the most lofty kind. Great architectural features, noble pictures, well-proportioned houses, beautiful statuary—all these things have an influence upon even those people who are hardly educated at all. I speak of the beauty of Cardiff and of these noble buildings that you have raised, matching with the splendid ancient castle hard by, because we are badly in want in London of such buildings. London is a struggling octopus, with crowded streets, many of them poor and miserable in appearance, and that is another reason why we should put our shoulder to the wheel and do something to help to beautify that extraordinary and interesting city."

The Lord Mayor proposed the following resolution:—"That this meeting cordially approves of the project of the establishment of a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre, constitutes itself a local committee for the city of Cardiff and district, with power to add to its number, and pledges itself to use its best endeavours to raise a substantial local contribution to the fund."

MISS OLGA AUDRE was the recipient of many handsome presents from the members of The Great Awakening company on the occasion of her birthday, July 28.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1910.

COMMITTEE AND SUB-COMMITTEE

The Theatres Alliance, a development of the Suburban Managers' Association, which was founded in 1894, is valuable as representing the very important body of "proprietors, lessees, licencees, directors, or responsible managers of London or provincial theatres in Great Britain and Ireland receiving touring companies"; and the fact of such an active and enlightened manager as Mr. J. B. MULHOLLAND being the president of the Association suggests its business-like and active organisation. We may take it, then, that the very definite and thoughtful report of the sub-committee of the Theatres Alliance on the much-discussed report of the famous Censorship Committee expresses the feeling of a very large section of theatrical managers.

The sub-committee in this report draws particular attention to the part of the Censorship Committee's report which suggests that "the licence of a theatre which has been endorsed three times within a period of five years shall be liable to forfeiture by the Court which directed the last endorsement, and be incapable of renewal for a period of five years following to or for the benefit of the same licensee."

The effect of the recommendations as they now stand, the sub-committee point out, would be to make the actual theatre building responsible for the wrongful acts of lessees or temporary occupiers, such, for instance, as touring managers visiting suburban and provincial theatres with touring companies. If the structure is not suitable or is not properly maintained, an "entertainment" licence may be opposed at the outset or on application for renewal, or for other definite reasons; but having been obtained this licence should not be capable of being interfered with because of the personal fault or neglect of a lessee, occupier, or touring manager. The punishment should fall on the delinquent and not on owners, mortgagees, shareholders, or workmen, who would be entirely innocent of the breach of the law. Powers are or can be made adequate to deal with any offence against law or decency there and then, but any breach by any particular management does not interfere with the future good conduct by other persons, or with the suitability of the premises for the purposes for which they are designed.

This is so obvious and fair that it is surprising that the present system has been so long endured. The owner of a theatre can no more be held responsible for the offences of an occupier than the landlord of an ordinary house can be for the conduct of his tenants. The point should certainly be further discussed. With regard to the Censorship Committee's opinion that the licensing of the forty theatres which are now in the jurisdiction of the Lord Chamberlain should be transferred to the London County Council, the Theatres Alliance considers it is not desirable that this jurisdiction should be enlarged.

This opinion, coming from such a representative body as the Theatres Alliance, endorses that which we have expressed concerning the proposed changes in the licensing arrangements. We are aware that the present ones cannot be defended on the ground of logical symmetry; but a drastic alteration, as we have often pointed out, requires a strong demand for change on the part of those chiefly affected. England is ruled by institutions that can be riddled with clever and amusing arguments, which, however, are entirely ineffective as regards effecting changes. For instance, the Liberation Society has for years been advocating, with great acumen and eloquence, the disendowment of the Church of England. Yet that institution is still firm and strong on its basis. It is for the subject to choose how we shall be governed; and all the logic and argument in the world will not alter his sentiments.

The sub-committee, however, is not entirely conservative. It is in favour, for instance, of a change in the licensing arrangements. It quotes from page 16 of the report, where the Censorship Committee said: "Proprietors of theatres ask that, if the existing law which ostensibly protects their interests is not to be enforced, they shall at least be allowed to meet their competitors on equal terms, and, if they so desire, during a part of the year, or, it may be, as a portion of their entertainment, to present performances other than stage plays. This cannot but be regarded as a reasonable demand."

With this recommendation on the basis and the ground set out in the report, says the sub-committee of the Theatres Alliance, we are in accord. And they comment weightily on the statement by the Censorship Committee that all places of entertainment holding the (proposed) new single licence should be required to obtain a Justices' licence if it is proposed to sell intoxicants upon the premises, but that existing theatres which now hold an excise licence should be entitled, subject to good conduct, to continue to sell under that licence for a period to be determined in the statute.

It cannot be too strongly pointed out, says the sub-committee, that theatre proprietors are not asking for the single licence otherwise than in default of the enforcement of the law as it now stands, and therefore if any alteration is necessitated, the existing rights or privileges of the former should not be interfered with or curtailed. Neither should there be any statutory term limit to the existing right to an excise licence.

The sub-committee therefore recommend that the words "for a period to be determined by the statute" should be deleted, and they do not agree with the opinion that all places of entertainment holding the new single licence should be required to obtain a justices' licence if it is proposed to sell exciseable liquors. They think that in future any theatre holding an entertainment licence (which should be strictly limited to theatres and music halls proper) should have the right to an excise licence, subject, however, to conditions that may be imposed as now by the licensing authority, with right of appeal as previously mentioned.

The sub-committee consider that the "existing anomalous practice" of granting licences for plays to managers and not to authors should be altered. They argue: "As a matter of practice the licence is not likely to be asked for till production is intended, and if a play is accepted the payment of the fees (if they are kept on the present reasonable basis) will not be a serious matter to either party, and is not in the least likely to be any obstacle to a play that is deemed sufficiently good to be performed."

We have already commented, in detail and pretty completely, upon the Censorship Committee's report; but this manifesto by the Theatres Alliance is a really valuable contribution to the settlement of the important questions involved. The fact is, in practical politics nothing is done without the impetus of agitation. And this is reasonable enough. If a class or calling will not make known its wants, if it is not loud and unanimous in demanding that its desires shall be gratified, how can it expect that anything will be done for it in Parliament? There has been, surely, sufficient evidence taken respecting the licensing question. Is it beyond the bounds of possibility that there should be a conference between the Theatrical Managers' Association, the Touring Managers' Association, the Entertainments Protection Association, the Theatres Alliance, and the leading music hall managers, at which some compromise may be arrived at and a course of action agreed on? If something of the sort be not done the general public and the politicians will imagine that both the theatrical and variety professions are contented with existing arrangements. If this is so, let us hold our peace and refrain from complaint. If otherwise, let us draw up a Bill and get a member of the House of Commons to introduce it. The Theatres Alliance, at any rate, has delivered its soul and distinctly defined its desires.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The orchestral and final concert of the present term took place at the Royal College on Thursday evening, July 21, under the direction of Sir Charles V. Stanford. Mr. J. D. Davis's pleasing and picturesque symphonic poem "The Maid of Astolat" came first in the programme, while the last item was Sir Alexander Mackenzie's "Three Preludes to Manfred," which was conducted by the composer and well interpreted by the orchestral students. Of the three movements, Astarte proved the most attractive. The Pastorale, although somewhat long, had pleasing features, and was ably scored for the orchestra while a spirited finale brought the work to an effective conclusion. Mr. Philip Levine and Mr. Cedric Sharpe gave a painstaking performance of Brahms's difficult Double Concerto for Violin and Violoncello in A minor, and were warmly applauded. The two songs included in the concert were accompanied by the orchestra, Mr. David Ellis singing the "Preislied" from Die Meistersinger, and Miss Catherine Ryan displaying a pleasing voice in "Deh Veini" from Mozart's Figaro.

MR. K. SCOTT-BARRIE'S New Pavilion in the Harehills district of Leeds offers a lavish entertainment, performers to the number of fourteen appearing. There is sprightly Nellie Towers, whose "Singing Maiden" is always welcome, and quite refreshing is the singing of Miss Ailas Moore, a dainty comedienne, whose versatility is unquestionable. The irrepressible K. Scott, in conjunction with ubiquitous Will Ambrose, is the cause of innumerable outbursts of merriment; Louis Shand is a baritone of considerable power; Geo. Taylor scores as the gent with the peculiar walk; Chas. Armstrong is another light comedian, whose "Esau" song might easily have been supplemented with others; and Harold Franklin gave a lively rendering of "Mlle. New York," and upon pressure obliged with "Reilly did it!"
